SOME CARD PLAYERS

EIGHT BUCKS FROM MAPLESVILLE CORRALLED BY DEPUTY FALLON.

Sunday night last a motley group of dusky individuals, eight in number, were rounded up by Deputy Sheriff Frank Fallon, near the classic little city of Maplesville and brought to the hotel de Jones where they are now resting in durance vile, with the ugly charge of card playing lodged against them It seems that Deputy Fallon having business in the western part of the county went over to discharge the duties of his office; while there some one "put him wise" with reference to a card game that was in progress. Now, Deputy Fallon is a terror to evil doers, especially those of the colorde variety. Hvaing located the game he marched boldly up to the rendezvous and said to the intensely interested gamers "Boys, I have need of each and every one of you over in the capital city of this county, where the Judge of the Court dispenses justice with an even hand; now, don't any one of you boys think you can make a get away of it, for I'm here with the goods and I'm going to take you all in a bunch." And so he did; true to his word he rounded them up and the march to the county site was begun; they didn't march to any particular tune, Tannhauser, Beethoven, Mendelssohn and all the famous composers of march music were forgotten in that march, it was just a plain "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys are Marching," which run riot through the minds of the wayfarers as they journeyed Clantonward.

To be plain, Deputy Fallon secured a horse whereon he rode, but the others secured no horses, they came riding "mother's ponies." Along with the eight negroes were two white men charged with obscene and abusive language in which they indulged while overloaded with the fluid that inebriates.

ANOTHER CHAPTER WRITTEN.

IN THE ARSON CASE

Goldstein and Levy Held Under Bond Charged With Crime.

Another chapter has been written in the case of the State against Ike Levy and Max Goldstein, charged with having fired the storehouse on the west side of town, or rather, they are under bond because in the opinion of the Judge of the County Court there is ground to believe that they are probably guilty.

Readers of the Press will recall that on Friday morning, December 22nd last, the clothing store of Jos. Goldstein was discovered to be on fire.

The discovery was made early in the morning before the streets were occupied by but few persons. The store was tightly locked; papers had been put upon the large glass windows so that it was practically impossible to see into the store; these papers, however, were placed upon the windows some weeks ago and may have had nothing whatever to do with the case. When entrance to the store was effected it was discovered that fire was burning in several places, though there appeared no connection between the several fires. It was shown at the hearing on Monday evening that quite a quantity of goods had recently been shipped from the store and this gave additional weight to the belief that the store was fired.

In this case Hon. J. Osmond Middleton represented the defendants and the State was represented by Senator Curry and Solicitor Latham. After the examination of six or eight witnesses, the State rested its case asking that the defendants be placed under bond to appear at the next session of the Grand Jury. There was no argument in the case, Senator Curry making a brief summary of the testimony only.

In addition to the two gentlemen above mentioned, the State of Alabama and the insurance companies were ably represented in the persons of Hon. Cyrus B. Brown, Secretary of State and ex-officio Insurance Commissioner, and Hon. Lorrie Rice, State Fire Marshal, both of whom rendered valuable assistance in gathering testimony and presenting the case.

After the conclusion of testimony, Judge Deason placed each of the defendants under bond in the sum of seven hundred and fifty dollars, on the ground that there is probable cause to believe that they are guilty of having fired the store house. After the Grand Jury has made an investigation of the case another chapter in the Clanton mercantile career of these two young men may be written, but we do not propose to prejudge the case or write anything that might be construed as prejudicial to the two young men; if they are innocent of the charge we sincerely hope they will be able to establish that fact; if they are guilty we as sincerely hope a Chilton county jury will say so and fix the punishment according to the crime.

It makes one shudder to think what might have happened on that Friday morning before Christmas had the attempt at arson have proved successful; just how many thousands of dollars of property might have been destroyed, just how many men, women and children might have been rendered homeless and shelterless at that merry season of the year cannot be foretold.

MR. HARVEY CHANDLER

UNDERGOES OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS

Mr. Harvey Chandler left Monday morning for Birmingham to undergo an operation for appendicitis with which he has been suffering for some months.

Mr. Chandler has heretofore consulted physicians with reference to his condition but has delayed an operation in the hope that he might regain his health without the necessity of having the operation, but on Sunday night he suffered another attack and decided that he would delay no longer.

The many friends of this popular citizen sincerely hope that the operation will not only be highly successful but that Mr. Chandler will rapidly recover hir health.

Mr. J. W. Carwile who has been spending some months in Dothan and St. Andrews Bay returned to Clanton Thursday morning to abide forever, convinced that there is no place on earth like the capital city of Chilton.

ANOTHER FIRE BUG

INCENDIARISM ON INCREASE

Saturday afternoon Mr. L. J Perry of Maplesville neighborhood brought to Clanton and lodged in jail a negro, charged with having set fire to a neighbor's corn crib. It seems from the best information obtainable, that the negro had some grudge against the owner of the corn crib and took that method of "evening up matters." Doubtless before he is through with the "evening up" process he will deeply regret his rashact and will have sufficient time to reflect upon the truthfulness of the statement that "the way of the transgressor is hard."

TOO MUCH CELEBRATION

PLATE GLASS WINDOW BROKEN

Sunday night the young men of the town celebrated the passing of the old and the arrival of the new year. As is customary on such occasions pistols, fire-crackers, tin cans, church bells and other noise producing instruments were brought into requisition. Some one put a giant fire cracker in the old sewer pipe standing at the corner of J. R. Broadhead & Son's store and when it exploded the force of the explosion shattered the pipe throwing small fragments in all directions.

One piece of the pipe went across the street striking the plate glass window of J. V. Higgins and crashed through it.

Mr. Higgins estimates his loss at about fifty dollars.

The Press understands that the young men who were celebrating have agreed to pay Mr Higgins the damage sustained.

Rather costly celebration wasn't it?

DR. BREWER LEAVES CLANTON.

GOES TO CHATTAHOOCHIE, FLA.

The many friends of Dr. H. G. Brewer, who has been connected with the Alred Drug Company, for many months, will regret to learn that he leaves this week for his native state, having accepted a position on the medical staff of the Florida State Insane Hospital. In conversation with Dr. Brewer he states that he regrets exceedingly to part even temporarily with his Clanton friends, but that the invitation extended to him to join the staff of a state institution was so flattering that he could not refuse it. Then, too, it puts him much nearer his home town and permits him to visit his parents at frequent intervals, whereas, should he remain here, his opportunities for visiting home are rather limited.

While Clanton regrets exceedingly to give up this most estimable gentleman we are glad to learn that the change made is in the nature of a promotion.

MR. W. S. COX ANNOUNCES

SEEKS OFFICE OF COUNTY COMMISSIONER; THUS, THE FIGHT IS FORMALLY OPENED.

In another column of this paper will be found the announcement of Mr. W. S. Cox as a candidate for nomination to the office of County Commissioner from the Fourth District. Mr. Cox needs no introduction to the people of his home county; he is well and favorably known in every section of the county. Having made a success of his personal business affairs, he will without doubt prove himself to be an efficient official, should he be accorded the nomination by the party—for undoubtedly, if nominated, he will be triumphantly elected. The office he seeks is now held by Mr. W. T. Mahan. Mr. Cox states that he is going to make a vigorous campaign and that he who secures more votes than himself will have to be on the hustings early and late.

AN EASY JOB

COUNTY COURT PROCEEDINGS.

The following proceedings were had in the County Court on Monday and Tuesday of this week. There was no court last month on account of the fact that the Circuit Court was in session and occupying the court room.

In each instance the State of Alabama appeared as plaintiff:

J. D. Caton, A. W. W., continued to February term.

Fred Caton, A. W. W., continued to February term.

Charles Bryant, Grand Larceny, discharged.

T. H. Caton, A. W. W., pleads guilty and is fined $5.00.

Henry Easterling, detaining minor child, nol prossed and costs assessed against Mrs. Laura Easterling.

M. A. Dees, S. M. P., continued to February term.

G. L. Davenport, grand larceny, examination waived and bond fixed at $300.

Geo. Kelley, P. D., fined $5.00.

Alvin Harrell, S. L., not apprehended.

Jno. P. Atcheson, larceny, continued to February term.

Jno. P. Atcheson, Abandonment of wife, continued.

Dolby Hunly, P. L., fined $5.00.

Jas. Edwards. P. D., fined $5.00 and costs.

Russell Sample, betting at cards, waived to grand jury.

George Smith, betting at cards, waived to grand jury.

James Richardson, betting at cards, pleads guilty and is fined $20.00.

Nathan Mitchell, betting at cards, pleads guilty and is fined $20.00.

Will Thomas, betting at cards, waived to grand jury.

Will McCoy, betting at cards, pleads guilty and is fined $20.00.

Dave Simmons, betting at cards, pleads guilty and is fined $20.00.

Frailder Yelder, betting at cards, pleads guilty and is fined $20.00.

The case against Ike Levy and Max Goldstein, charged with attempted arson, appears elsewhere.

CUT HIS THROAT TO GO TO HEAVEN.

SAD DELUSION OF AN OLD PAUPER

Out at County Poor House resides a poor old man by the name of Albert Sward. For some weeks he has been in a brooding disposition and those in charge of the county institution have been keeping rather a close watch upon the old man. But, notwithstanding watchfulness, the old man succeeded on Tuesday night in cutting seven deep gashes in his throat. Dr. Arthur Johnson was immediately summoned and sewed up the wounds, taking twenty two stitches in the old man's throat.

For some time he has been laboring under the delusion that if he would cut his throat and drink his own blood he would go straight to heaven. In fact the old man insists that the Almighty sent an angel to him and made him such a proposition, and as he was anxious to get to heaven as soon as possible he decided to immediately accept the proposition and hasten his departure.

THE BEST CONCERT

A MUSICAL TREAT.

Those who were fortunate enough to attend the Best Concert, which was given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church were given a rare treat indeed. The concert was scheduled to take place at the Court House, but for some reason was changed to the Methodist church at a late hour, which perhaps accounts for he attendance not being larger than it really was, but despite this change and the very inclement weather a fair audience greeted the artists at the church. The Ladies of the Aid Society netted a neat little little sum from the entertainment after paying all expenses.

MR. J. W. P. MURPHY

ANNOUNCES FOR TAX COLLECTOR.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the announcement of Mr. J. W. P. Murphy as a candidate for Tax Collector of Chilton county, subject to the action of the democratic primary election.

Mr. Murphy is a young democrat of sterling qualities. While he has not heretofore taken a conspicuous part in the politics of the county he has always worked untiringly and vigorously for the success of the party candidates and holds the principals for which democracy stands near his heart.

Being a young business man of progressive ideas and policies he would make an ideal Tax Collector for the county; not only is he progressive in his business policies, but by nature, as well as by training, he is careful, painstaking and impartial in his treatment of men and measures, therefore, should he be elected, he would be the Tax Collector of all the people and not of any particular class or or clan.

Mr. Murphy is extremely popular with those who know him best and has the happy faculty of making friends rapidly and holding them firmly; we therefore predict that he who defeats Mr. Murphy for the honor which he covets will have a struggle before him.

MR. MADDOX SUPPRISES FRIENDS

CROSS ROADS

Editor Press—Permit me to say a few words from our community through our valuable paper.

After one week's vacation our school opened Monday morning with bright prospects for the remaining part of the term. But on coming in closer contact with his pupils, what could be more astonishing to our teacher, Prof. T. E. Williams, than to discover that two of his small boys were possessed with that awful stuff—whiskey—and upon questioning them, they said "Papa gave it to us." For several moments the teacher was at outs to know what to do with small boys whose papa had given them whiskey. But after conversing with his assistant, Miss Martha Jane Mims, he came to the conclusion that nothing short of carrying them home to the papa who had given them the whiskey would do. So off he went to talk to their papa about the matter. He asked the father to keep them until the next morning, then send them back to school, and with his co-operation he would try to make pure men of them.

Now, let the fathers and mothers who may read this piece, and into whose hands God has placed children, take heed lest they be guilty therein. And let the teachers of the county and state into whose hands these children are placed for fraining, do as ours always do—stand firm by that which is clean, pure, just and right, and by the help of the Almighty you will succeed in educating our boys to a higher citizenship.

With best wishes to your paper and its many readers, I beg to remain as ever,

A Pupil.

BURNING DAYLIGHT

By JACK LONDON

AUTHOR OF "THE CALL OF THE WILD," "WHITE FANG," "MARTIN EDEN," ETC.

(Copyright, 1910, by the MacMillan Company.)

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest.

CHAPTER V.—Continued.

Back in Dawson, though he remained true to his word and never touched hand to pick and shovel, he worked as hard as ever in his life. He had a thousand irons in the fire, and they kept him busy. Heavy as were his expenses, he won more heavily. He took lays, bought half shares, shared with the men he grub-staked, and made personal locations. Day and night his dogs were ready, and he owned the fastest teams; so that when a stampede to a new discovery was on, it was Burning Daylight to the fore through the longest, coldest nights till he blazed his stakes next to Discovery. In one way or another (to say nothing of the many worthless creeks) he came into possession of properties on the good creeks, such as Sulphur, Dominion, Excelsis, Siwash, Cristo, Alhambra, and Doolittle. The thousands he poured out flowed back in tens of thousands.

Dawson grew rapidly that winter of 1896. Money poured in on Daylight from the sale of town lots. He promptly invested it where it would gather more. In fact, he played the dangerous game of pyramiding, and no more perilous pyramiding than in a placer camp could be imagined. But he played with his eyes wide open.

Corner lots in desirable locations sold that winter for from ten to thirty thousand dollars. Daylight sent word out over the trails and passes for the newcomers to bring down log-rafts, and, as a result, the summer of 1897 saw his saw mills working day and night, on three shifts, and still he had logs left over with which to build cabins. These cabins, land included, sold at from one to several thousand dollars. Two-story log buildings, in the business part of town, brought him from forty to fifty thousand dollars apiece. These fresh accretions of capital were immediately invested in other ventures. He turned gold over and over, until everything that he touched seemed to turn to gold.

With the summer rush from the Outside came special correspondents for the big newspapers and magazines, and one and all, using unlimited space, they wrote Daylight up; so that, so far as the world was concerned, Daylight loomed the largest figure in Alaska. Of course, after several months, the world became interested in the Spanish War, and forgot all about him; but in the Klondike itself Daylight still remained the most prominent figure.

CHAPTER VI.

It was held by the thousands of hero-worshipping chechaquos that Daylight was a man absolutely without fear. But Bettles and Dan MacDonald and other sourdoughs shook their heads and laughed as they mentioned women. And they were right. He had always been afraid of them from the time, himself a lad of seventeen, when Queen Anne, of Juneau, made open and ridiculous love to him. For that matter, he never had known women. Born in a mining-camp where they were rare and mysterious, having no sisters, his mother dying while he was an infant, he had never been in contact with them.

But it was left to the Virgin to give him his final fright. She was found one morning dead in her cabin. A shot through the head had done it, and she had left no message, no explanation. Then came the talk. Some wit, voicing public opinion, called it a case of too much Daylight. She had killed herself because of him. Everybody knew this, and said so. Correspondents wrote it up, and made more Burning Daylight, King of the Klondike, was sensationally featured in the Sunday supplements of the United States. The Virgin had straightened up, so the feature-writer was, and correctly so. Never had she entered a Dawson city dance-hall. When she first appeared there, she had earned her living by washing dishes. Then she had run a sewing-machine in her own little girl parlor, for stage and respectable whites. Then she had given up even the first, and, save for Daylight, had become a recluse. And now she was dead, and all Dawson, while disapproving, was sorry.

And the sorriest man in Dawson was Daylight. He felt remorse, and he felt responsibility. He remembered the way she had looked at him, how she had laughed when he narrated Mickey Dolan's mistake in staking the fraction on Skookum Gulch. Her laughter had been lightly joyous, while at the same time it had lacked its old-time robustness. Not that she had been grave or subdued. On the contrary, she had been so patently content, so filled with peace. She had fooled him, fool that he was. He had even thought that night that her feeling for him had passed, and he had taken delight in the thought, and caught visions of the satisfying future friendship that would be theirs with this perturbing love out of the way.

And then, when he stood at the door, cap in hand, and said good night. It had struck him at the time as a funny and embarrassing thing, her bending over his hand and kissing it. He had felt like a fool, but he shivered now when he looked back on it and felt again the touch of her lips on his hand. She was saying good-by, an eternal good-by, and he had never guessed. At that very moment, and for all the moments of the evening, coolly and deliberately, as he well knew her way, she had been resolved to die. If he had only known it! Untouched by the contagious misery himself, nevertheless he would have married her if he had had the slightest inkling of what was contemplated. And yet he knew. O'GORMAN IS PICKED Toastmaster of Love Feast of the Democrats.

HE IS WITTY AND TACTFUL

South Has No Exclusive Claims on Oscar Underwood—General Sherwood, Author of Pension Bill, Is a "Soldier by Heredity."

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—When the Democratic national committee meets in Washington on January 8, the anniversary of the Battle of New Orleans, which was won from the British by General Jackson, there will be several presidential candidates in this city, not to use their influence with the committee on their own behalf, but to speak at the big party dinner, otherwise called a love feast, which will be held on the night of Old Hickory's day.

It is promised that Harmon and Wilson and Clark and Underwood and Marshall, and perhaps Folk, will be present to talk good Democratic doctrine. The committee of arrangements cast about for awhile to find a toastmaster for the evening. It is said that fully 30 names were suggested before some one, who other Democrats say had an inspiration, proposed James A. O'Gorman, now in the United States senate, to which he was elected to succeed Chauncey M. Depew.

Senator O'Gorman is an extraordinarily quiet man, but under the quietest of exteriors there is hidden until the time comes for its disclosing a keen sense of humor and a storehouse of good stories. Applying the rule of greatness which has been referred to before in these dispatches, that of the length of a man's biography as it appears in the congressional directory, Senator O'Gorman must be a great man. He was asked to write his life for publication and he wrote less than seven lines. He is of Irish descent, as his name suggests, and his witticisms are of a kind which suggests Irish ancestry, softened or heightened, whichever you will, by American environment. The Democrats are congratulating themselves that in Senator O'Gorman they will have an ideal toastmaster and a man who will not put his foot in it politically, for be it known that toastmasters at some big party banquets, Democratic and Republican, on occasion have made mistakes which later have hurt.

Underwood Not Wholly Southern.

Oscar W. Underwood, chairman of the house committee on ways and means and Democratic floor leader, is as is known a presidential possibility, although Mr. Underwood rather discountenances any claims that he is in any sense a real candidate, beyond the fact that his state delegation will support him as its first choice.

A great deal has been said about Mr. Underwood as being a southern man, from the south and of the south. He is a southern man in his sympathies, although probably he is in no way sectional. The north has some claim to Mr. Underwood as well as the south. He was born in Kentucky, which is a "border state," and then went with his parents to live in Minnesota, where he resided for ten years. Then he went to the far south and later went back again to the north. As some one has put it, Mr. Underwood was born on middle ground, and then lived at both ends to make him strike an average of all kinds of Americanism.

Something About Sherwood.

Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood, author of the Sherwood pension bill, which recently was the center of debate in congress, is a Democrat. General Sherwood and a good many others in congress have resented a speech which was recently made on the floor to the effect that movers of pension measures were largely influenced by a desire to get the old soldier vote. General Sherwood has offered a "reward" to any one who will produce evidence that he ever asked an old soldier for his vote on the ground of his pension activities or his service as a volunteer.

A member of congress in speaking of his Ohio colleague once said that a good many men were soldiers by heredity, and that Sherwood was one of them. Isaac Sherwood, Samuel Sherwood and Peter Yeomans, two of General Sherwood's grandfathers and the other his great-grandfather, were soldiers in the Revolution, and other ancestors served in Indian wars and in the war of 1812. General Sherwood himself took part in 41 battles of the Civil War and was made brevet brigadier general by President Lincoln "for long and faithful service and conspicuous gallantry at the battles of Resaca, Franklin and Wilsonville." General Sherwood is a sexagenarian man.

Making the Arrangements.

Two Lists of Eminent Women.

Mrs. Taft, wife of the president, and Mrs. La Follette, wife of the Wisconsin senator, were asked the other day to name the greatest woman living or dead, and while their answers were given instant publicity by the New York paper which put the "question of great women to them," a reprinting of the answers will serve the purpose of a little comment. Mrs. Taft named these as her idea of the greatest women of the world: Queen Victoria, Rosa Bonheur, Joan of Arc, Maria Mitchell, Cecile Chaminade, Jane Austin, Charlotte Bronte, Frances E. Willard, Harriet B. Stowe, Florence Nightingale, Susan B. Anthony, George Eliot, Mme. Curie, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Lucretia Mott, Margaret Fuller, Queen Elizabeth and Queen Louise of Prussia.

Mrs. La Follette made these selections: Jane Addams, George Eliot, George Sand, Ellen Terry, Rosa Bonheur, Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Olive Schreiner, Florence Nightingale, Mme. Curie, Isabella of Spain, Queen Elizabeth, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Harriet Martineau, Mary Lyon, Nancy Hanks, Cornelia Agrippa, Modjeska, Sophie Perovsky.

Washington has been interested in the matter of these selections by two women of prominence socially and through their husbands, politically, and the matter is going to be discussed at several of the women's clubs in this city in the near future. It is held by a good many people who have studied these lists that they show differences in the temperament of the two women who presented them.

Memorial for Barry.

After months of controversy a design for a memorial to Commodore John Barry has been accepted, and it will be erected in Franklin square in this city. One design for the monument was accepted tentatively, but objection to it was made and the objectors finally had their way. The trouble over the selection of a proper design probably will go into insignificance by comparison with the trouble that is likely to come when the matter of the inscription is taken up. Partisans of Barry, Revolutionary sea hero, desire that the words "Father of the American Navy," shall be cut into the base of the statue. This is opposed not altogether quietly by men who say that John Paul Jones or some other sailor was the real father of the American navy.

Barry's service to his country was great and so was that of Jones. Neither one was an American by birth, one being an Irishman and the other a Scotchman. It is probable that the whole dispute will be left for settlement to naval officers who have been of necessity close students of naval warfare and who will look into the question of precedence of command and worth of service as between officers of the Revolutionary ships.

Foss Brothers Are Interesting.

Governor Foss of Massachusetts was in Washington the other day visiting his brother, Representative George E. Foss of Illinois. The brothers politically were Republicans and now one of them is a Democrat while the other remains in his Republican faith. It is barely possible that one day these two brothers may be in the United States senate, one representing Massachusetts as a Democrat and the other Illinois as a Republican. If this happen precedents will be smashed for the senate records contain no membership episode like it.

Governor Foss is in favor of women's suffrage and within a day or two he has paid a tribute to the sex which has pleased the suffragists of the capital immensely. They intend to use one of the governor's sayings in their leaflets as a part of their propaganda for a constitutional amendment allowing women to vote. Mr. Foss said:

"The enfranchisement of the women is not yet accomplished, but it is coming; political leadership is not yet established as one of women's tasks and yet the inspiration and the faith which are leading this country ahead today rise very largely from the wives and mothers of America. It always has been so; let us believe that it always will be."

Golf Renews Dick's Youth.

When states or districts fail to return men to the senate or the house a large percentage of the disappointed ones remain to live in the capital. This matter has been commented upon frequently, but there are always new examples to prove that the rule or percentage holds. Charles Dick, until lately a senator from Ohio, is in Washington a large part of the time. He is tremendously interested in legislation on behalf of the national guard of the different states. He is the author of what is known as the Dick bill, which did more than anything else to bring the regulars and the guardsmen into closer affiliation personally.

PROMINENT PHYSICIANS FAIL IN KIDNEY TROUBLE—A WOMAN'S GOOD ADVICE.

"I regard Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root as the best medicine for kidney and bladder trouble I have ever taken and I will always recommend it to all those who are afflicted with bladder or kidney trouble. For eleven months I was afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble in violent form. The symptoms in my case were fearful. During all this time I was being treated by the best and foremost doctors of the country, all of them failing to afford me the slightest relief and I continued to grow worse all the time and while I had utmost confidence in their treatment, it seemed that the time had come in my case when I must try other remedies, consequently, I resorted to the use of Swamp-Root and before I had taken three small bottles, every pain and symptom had completely disappeared. For any form of kidney trouble, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is the medicine to use. I have never known it to fail in a single case.

Very truly yours,

L. M. HUNTER,

When writing, be sure and mention this paper. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

Young, but Oh, My!

The lawyer was sitting at his desk, absorbed in the preparation of a brief. So bent was he on his work that he did not hear the door as it was pushed gently open, nor see the curly head that was thrust into his office. A little sob attracted his notice, and turning, he saw a face that was streaked with tears, and told plainly that its feelings had been hurt.

"Well, my little man, did you want to see me?"

"Are you a lawyer?"

"Yes. What is it you want?"

"I want—" and there was a resolute ring in his voice—"I want a divorce from my papa and mamma!"

ALMOST FRANTIC WITH ITCHING ECZEMA

"Eight years ago I got eczema all over my hands. My fingers cracked and it itched until it almost drove me frantic. The eruption began with itching under the skin. It spread fast from between the fingers around the nails and all over the whole hands. I got a pair of rubber gloves in order to wash dishes. Then it spread all over the left side of my chest. A free doctor treated the trouble two weeks, but did me no good. I rested night and day. Then I decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment but without much hope as I had gone so long. There was a marked change the second day, and so on until I was entirely cured. The Cuticura Soap we have always kept in our home, and we decided after that lesson that it is a shame soap is price and the very best in quality. My husband will use no other soap in his shaving mug." (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Shiby, Redondo Beach, Cal. Jan. 15, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 21 K, Boston.

PULLED IN DIFFERENT WAYS

Ordinary Man on the Street Perplexed by Seeming Business Contradictions.

"Life is full of contradictions," said Yale.

"For instance, about six months ago a life insurance agent got after me and bothered me nearly to death. I told him at the start that I had all the insurance I was able to carry, but he kept right on trying to persuade me that I needed more and, finally, in sheer desperation, I consented to take out another policy. Then the company's doctor began trying in every way he could think of to make it impossible for me to get the insurance. He acted as if I was voluntarily trying to beat the company in some way, and when I failed to pass the examination both he and the agent appeared to think I had wronged them by taking up their time."

"That's nearly as bad as my case. Several months ago representatives of a piano house got after me for the purpose of persuading me to buy a piano on the installment plan. Just to get rid of them I at last agreed to buy. Now they've got a corps of men out trying to dig up proof that I never could or would pay for the piano if they were to let me have it. Business is a great thing."

Knowledge from Experience

Is what we understand when Dr. Spalding, an eminent Baptist divine, of Galveston, Texas, writes: "Send me two bottles of Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullein. It is for a friend suffering from consumption. It is a preparation I know from experience to be good." For all Colds, Whooping Cough, etc.

At druggists, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 a bottle.

How He Found Out.

"Mr. Chairman," shouted one of the delegates to the convention, "I move that the nominating speeches be limited to one minute each!"

"Second the motion!" yelled a dozen others.

A storm of protest arose, but the chairman put the motion.

It was lost by a vote of 47 to 45.

"I merely wished to find out, Mr. Chairman," explained the delegate who had made the motion, "how many ambitious orators there are in this convention. There are 47."

Critical Condition

Women who suffer from womanly ailments, often give way to despair. After trying different medicines in vain, they lose heart and hope.

No friend in need could be more welcome to a sick, delicate woman, than a remedy which will relieve her pains and distress, build up her strength, and restore her failing health.

Mrs. Bessie York, of Huntington, W. Va., says: "I was sick for two years, and tried all the medicines and doctors I could hear of, that I thought might cure me. They all failed to relieve me. I was so bad, that every month I thought I would die. Finally, I decided to and it relieved me. I am still improving. I can't praise this wonderful woman's remedy enough, for what it has done for me."

Cardui is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, which act on the cause of the trouble, and thus bring relief in a natural manner.

If you suffer from any symptoms of womanly trouble, better try Cardui, for it has helped thousands of weak, sick women, during the past 50 years, and should surely do the same for you.

Try it today. Your druggist has it on hand.

Profit by Competition

When several fertilizer companies decide to extend their business into new sections, price cutting is apt to occur. Farmers are tempted by these reductions to buy even lower grade goods than the average. But the lower the grade, the less plant food one gets for a dollar.

Ask for one per cent. increase of Potash in place of each dollar per ton reduction. Instead of a price cut of three or four dollars you will get 25 or 33 per cent. more plant food for the same money.

Tell your dealer about this right away—the price cutting may come at any time.

We will sell Potash in any amount from 200 lbs. up. Write for prices.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

I am a candidate for nomination to the office of County Commissioner of Chilton County from the Fourth District of said county, subject to the action of the democratic party, at the primary election to be held on Monday, April 1st, 1912.

W. S. Cox.

TAX COLLECTOR.

I am a candidate for nomination to the office of Tax Collector of Chilton county, subject to the action of the democratic primary election to be held Monday, April 1st, 1912.

J. W. P. Murphy.

COUNTY TREASURER.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for nomination to the office of County Treasurer of Chilton County, subject to the action of the democratic primary election to be held on Monday, the 1st. day of April 1912.

The Campaign is now on but the candidates are shy.

If you want an office now is the time to let the people know it.

The formation of an Underwood Walking Club sounds mighty good; we hope it will accomplish much for the distinguished Alabamian.

The State Executive Committee may not have violated any party law or precedent, but they violated the expectations and desires of a large majority of the voters of Alabama when they made that new rule, and if we know men, as we think we do, the committee will discover in the near future that the creature is never bigger or more powerful than the creator.

Respectfully referred to Gardner Green and other well known politicians:

"Man, proud man, clothed with a little brief authority,
"Don't cut such capers before high heaven as makes e'en angels weep."

We wish our readers, one and all, a Prosperous New Year—and many of them.

The girls of Chilton county are going to organize a Tomato Club and make themselves famous; why do not the boys come together and organize a Corn Club and make themselves rich?

It seems that the Press' proposition to pay the expenses of some one to the republican convention is going begging; the fact is the "knowing ones" are aware of the fact that the Press runs no risk in making the proposition, hence they will not accept and are persuading others to stay at home.

"Wesley F. Thomas Post No. 2 is going to assist the widows of Mr. Calaway's children in every manner." We think every Democrat in Chilton county should do likewise for it matters not what Mr. Calaway's politics were, he was a Democrat in Chilton county and his children are entitled to the support of every Democrat.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound "Cures in Every Case."

Mr. Jas. McCaffery, Mgr. of the Schlitz Hotel, Omaha, Neb., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, because it cures in everytime. "I have used it myself and I have recommended it to many others who have since told me of its great curative power in diseases of the throat and lungs." For all coughs and colds it is speedily effective. Upchurch Drug Co.

Paying Taxes in Kind.

The natives of the Congo pay their taxes in kind, as might be expected in a territory just beginning to be civilized. The value of domestic animals in that country is such that one wished it were nearer London, in view of the high price of meat here. A bullock is valued at about 19s 6d, a cow 23 3s, a horse 46 16s, a sheep 1s 3d. The camel commands the highest price, viz 64.

The custom of payment in kind is one so remote as most persons would think. The Reverend Dr. John Duncan, first of Edinburgh, we know, has stated that during the time he was professor of moral philosophy in St. Andrews he was accustomed to receive part of the emoluments of his chair in kind from the farms belonging to the university. This would be prior to 1774, in which year he was translated to Edinburgh.—London Globe.

Fever Sores.

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all dealers.

Medicines that aid nature are always most effectual. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It allays the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Thousands have testified to its superior excellence. Sold by all dealers.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is a reliable family medicine. Give it to your children, and take it yourself when you feel a cold coming on. It checks and cures coughs and colds and croup and prevents bronchitis and pneumonia. Upchurch Drug Co.

HERE'S A PROPOSITION AS WHITE AS SNOW

Read all this advertisement and bring us the answer

We intended this week to enumerate some of the tremendous bargains which we have to offer to our friends and patrons but when we went to look for special inducements we discovered that everything in our stock is so low and the goods so fresh that we decided there was no particular line for us to emphasize' we mean every line we carry is an inducement within itself.

We trust we have been in business too long for it to be necessary for us to go into detail and tell you of the tremendous stock we carry, the varied lines of merchandise found in our stores or the cash bringing prices that rule at our store.

That we do not believe to be necessary, so we are not going to worry you with prices, but now that the weather is getting a little cooler and cotton is rolling in fairly well we want to stimulate CASH trade just a wee bit; for that reason and for the purpose of showing that our heart is in the right place, and for the further purpose of creating a little friendly interest among our farmer friends we want to make the following proposition:

Read carefully and understand well

Billy Shinnick had an eight gallon jug full of molasses. Sam McCook had a three gallon and a five gallon jug full of wood. Billy wanted to get those jugs exactly four gallons of the molasses. They had no other measures except the three jugs. How was Billy to tell when he had measured the molasses correctly without pulling out the three jugs?

The solution of these questions presenting the correct solution to this problem and trading twenty dollars CASH[illegible] same after the FIRST day of November will be given absolutely FREE to any person sending in a correct solution. Get busy with your pencil and see if you can solve it.

WISE ADVICE TO THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

Its Mission in the Service of the People Is Clear—Must Honestly Fulfill Pledges and Be Progressive and Conservative.

This is not the first occasion on which the door of opportunity has been opened to the Democracy and they have shut it on themselves. Let them remember "the landslide" of 1893 and its consequences. The same thing may easily occur again. Titus is still before the gates. By 1913 the shattered and shaken forces of Privilege will have recovered from their overthrow and the fight will have to be made over again. Only by uniting on the fundamental principles and making mutual concessions as to personal interests can the Democracy hope to win. If they falter the party is lost. The principles will some day be victorious, but the Democratic party will have lost the glory of the victory. . . .

The Democracy has before it a clear, if difficult, mission—to establish the rights of the people according to the constitution, and to make it plain that among these rights is the right to acquire and hold and use property in any manner not inconsistent with the rights of others and only so. If the rights of the people and this property right are conflicting, then is this latter no right, for the rights of the people are the supreme law. . . .

The Democracy must be at once both progressive and conservative. It must honestly fulfill its pledges. It must meet bravely the questions arising out of the new conditions of which we hear so much, and it must conserve those rights of the individual on which our security has been based in the past. Nor is this reconcilement as difficult as some would have us believe. We are, it is true, drifting into new seas; but we have a chart by which we may steer safely, however perilous the tides that swing and sway us and the rocks and reefs that appear in our course. Its name is the constitution. It it was drawn by a body of wise; experienced and patriotic men whose minds were set on one thing—civil liberty through the perpetuation of Republican institutions.—Thomas Nelson Page, in the North American Review.

Opportunity of the South.

No sensible man, certainly no one friendly to the south, wishes to see the tariff made a sectional question. The course of Mr. Clark and Mr. Underwood tends to prevent this. They stand not only with their own party throughout the country, but with the strong public sentiment in support of tariff reduction that has divided the Republican party, and thrown the house into the hands of the Democrats. When we say that in this they are serving their own section, we have in mind the important fact that they are bringing to bear on national affairs the intelligence and strength of their section, and giving it the opportunity to take a leading part in the affairs of the nation. They are undermining the unfortunate sectionalism that has, perhaps unavoidably, pervaded southern politics for a long time. They are ranging the south on the side of progress and in the line of the most significant movement of national opinion that has manifested itself in years. Nothing is more certain than that our vast and intricate and oppressive tariff system is to be reformed, and its reform is bound to be the one task of statesmanship in the next few years. It can be determined, and under certain conditions it can be led by the men of the south.—New York Times.

Reciprocity and Public Welfare.

President Taft seeks the benefits of reciprocity in the quickest way. Instead of negotiating a treaty which could not become effective without ratification by a two-thirds vote of the senate, he has negotiated an agreement which can be enacted into law by a majority vote of the two houses.

It now remains for the American people to make their attitude with regard to this agreement so plain and emphatic that congress will not dare to put it into cold storage. It ought to be adopted! The welfare of the country demands it, and the interest of the Republican party in congress ought to be wise enough to see that antagonizing will be disastrous.—Leslie's Weekly.

Southern.

Scores of men in the convict camps in Arkansas will be liberated if Governor Donaghey carries out the threat he made to free them if contractors do not use methods more humane in handling them. "I give notice to the contractors," the governor indignantly declared, "that I will depopulate every convict camp in the state if this cruelty is not stopped. I will turn the prisoners out as fast as they are brought in unless conditions are changed," he exclaimed.

One of the biggest taxes ever paid to sell near beer in the United States was paid by J. M. Bassett & Co., who turned $8,000 over to City Clerk Thomas Nall for a license to conduct a near beer saloon in the city of Griffin, Ga., during 1912. In addition to this amount the firm pays a state license of $300 and a revenue tax of $20 on the same business. This was supposed to be a prohibitory tax and no one suspected that anybody would attempt to take out a license at that high figure.

At the conclusion of services Rev. R. E. L. Kirkland, pastor of the First Congregational church, Tampa, Fla., was the storm center in a near riot in which the police interfered, arresting six persons. In a written statement he declared he had been kicked by some of the women. The cause of the outburst was an attack made by Reverend Kirkland in his sermon on a former pastor in connection with alleged misappropriation of church funds. Strained relations have existed between Reverend Kirkland and members of his congregation for some time.

Arrested within a few minutes after the bloody remains of her son-in-law Frederick Wasseriaben, had been found in a pond near the western city limits of Mobile, Alabama, Mrs. Mary T. Godau made a full confession of the deed. Wasseriaben had been shot three times, twice through the head and once through the arm. The killing occurred at the home of Wasseriaben, after, according to the confession, insulting remarks made to Mrs. Godau.

E. Kline, a Hungarian, who represented himself as James Stewart of New York, was arrested in Nashville, Tenn., on a charge of forgery, and will be taken back to Scranton, Pa., to face his accusers.

William Rodenkirchen, a foreigner, registering at a Greensboro, N. C., hotel as "Rodenkirchen, Adrian, Siberia," was discovered by a hotel clerk groaning and vigorously jabbing his throat with a pen knife. When disarmed it was discovered that Rodenkirchen had slashed each wrist thrice; stabbed himself just above the heart, and had dug a hole in his neck large enough to place three fingers.

Despondent, according to a note found, James Grant, a prosperous farmer and merchant of Benton, Ark., clubbed his wife, five children and stepson to death, and then hanged himself. Grant's body was found suspended to a rafter in a barn, and those of the woman and children about the farm dwelling, their skulls crushed.

General.

After speaking at Flint and Bay City, Senator Robert M. LaFollette wound up his first day's campaign in Michigan in the interest of his "Progressive" candidacy for the Republican nomination for president, with an address at the Masonic temple here. He discussed the trusts and their reation to the tariff, the money trust as the climax of all and the necessity of returning the government, as he said, to the hands of the people; he asked the support of all Republicans and Democrats alike, in doing this. "There is quite a Progressive sentiment all through the North," he said. "I don't know of any Progressive legislation in the South and the strength of the Democratic party is in the South. If the sentiment of the Democrats of the South were the same as that of the Democrats of the North, I think it would be as good an instrument as the Republican party."

A resolution indorsing Governor Foss for the Democratic nomination for the presidency of the United States and indorsing his administration was adopted by the Democratic committee of Massachusetts.

The wages of motormen and conductors of the Philadelphia street car system have been increased.

Portuguese and a few Spanish sailors, representatives of every country on the globe, were united in the service of the United States navy when the battleship North Dakota, the first of the new dreadnaughts to be completed, was commissioned at the New York navy yard.

"Not even a presidential election will be able to make business any better in 1913," declares a close observer of business conditions. "Times may be darker in the early part," he continued, "speculation may be dampened and Wall street may not enjoy the prosperity which it might, but the real business of the country is on a firm basis and is going to be good." And this pretty well represents the general idea among men who are in touch with conditions throughout the country. The big crop means good business for the railroads; this in turn goes a long way toward insuring the steady demand for steel. With the railroads and steel men profitably busy, times should not be difficult to bring about.

A 24-hour battle, in which the Turkish troops defeated the Italian force, killing half of it in the rout, is described in an official message from Constantinople, made public at the Turkish embassy in Washington. The message was transmitted to the imperial ministry of war at Constantinople by the commander of the Turkish troops from Tobruk, Tripoli, under date of December 23.

The physical and mental condition of the Rev. C. V. Richeson of Boston is so unfavorable that his trial on January 15, the date set, will be an absolute impossibility in the opinion of his counsel. "Perhaps his wounds may be in a favorable condition," says a statement from his lawyer, "but his general and mental condition is far from favorable, and I believe an early attempt to put him on trial at so early a date would cause collapse which would delay the trial indefinitely."

The crippled torpedo boat destroyer Warrington, which was run down off Hatteras in a gale Wednesday night by an unknown ship, was safely towed into Hampton Roads. The revenue cutter Onondago brought in the destroyer's crew.

The peace conference held at Shanghai between the representatives of the Pekin government and the revolutionary party agreed that the form of government to be ultimately adopted for China should be decided by a national convention, whose determination should be binding on both parties. It also was agreed that pending the decision of the national convention, the Manchu government was neither to accept nor to attempt to obtain foreign loans.

Control of state authorities by inferior United States courts has developed to such an extent that the people are becoming impatient, declared Gov. Simeon E. Baldwin of Connecticut at the opening of the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the American Historical association at Buffalo, N. Y., and the eighth annual meeting of the American Political Science association in joint session. If some of the recent court decisions are not disaffirmed, Governor Baldwin said, the judicial power of the United States will extend to any justifiable controversy arising in any state, although pertaining to mere matters of local concern.

A dispatch from London states that the Russian government has decided to suppress disorders at Tabriz and other disturbed Persian towns. The dislocation of the telegraph lines makes it impossible to get a reliable narrative o fthe outbreaks. Yet it cannot be doubted that a situation of the gravest complexity has arisen.

Washington.

It was announced at the white house that the report of the army medical officers who have examined Charles W. Morse, convicted New York banker, serving sentence in the Atlanta, Georgia, Federal penitentiary, does not warrant immediate interference by the president and the pardon will not be granted at this time. The physicians made a physical examination of Morse in the military hospital at Fort McPherson, where the banker is being treated under guard.

Several thousand rural free delivery letter carriers are barred from active participation in politics by an executive order signed by President Taft. The order forbids the rural letter carriers from pernicious activity in politics and empowers the civil service commission to dismiss any of them found to be so engaged. The rural carriers are not to be denied the right of political belief and discussion of political issues, but their active participation in political affairs will be stopped.

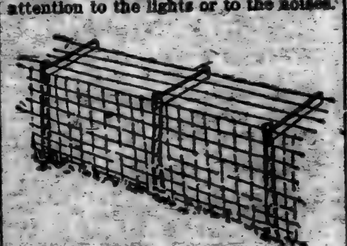
Although with the new administration in office Washington has settled down to the regular winter season of entertainments, the social season has not opened with the usual brilliancy. Owing to the illness of Mrs. Taft, the White House has been closed to entertainments, and the absence of Mrs. Wilson from the capital has also had a depressing effect on the social activities.

PROPER PROTECTION AGAINST RAVAGES OF PREDATORY DOGS



Most Successful Plan Is to Build Yard of Boards, Leaving No Cracks on Outside of Fence—Partition Is so Constructed That Animals May Jump In, But Cannot Get Out.

Novel Dog-Proof Fold—The inclosure at the Left Allows the Dog to Jump In, and There He Remains.

Wherever there are dogs and sheep together there is constant danger that the latter will at some time suffer. Sheep are so constructed that even worrying by dogs seems to shock their nervous systems to such an extent that they seldom prove profitable. In most states there are laws against depredation by dogs, but because of their construction many of them are dead letters, writes G. W. Franklin, in the Country Gentleman.

I have long since ceased to look to the law for any loss sustained in depredations by dogs. I take the privilege of protecting my sheep in my own way. My first precaution was to provide plenty of bells—as many as one to every six or ten animals. When the sheep were unduly excited the bells made such a noise that they would frighten some dogs, and would at least arouse sleepers to look after the flock. Finding that this did not work satisfactorily, however, I hung lanterns out near the sheep-yard, but the dogs became so bold they paid no attention to the lights or to the noises.

Detail Construction of Dog-Proof Fence.

My next plan was a most successful one. Attached to the sheep-barn a sheep-yard was constructed of boards, leaving no cracks on the outside fences. The partition between this yard and another adjoining was a board fence with cracks not more than three inches wide. On the outside of the sheep-yard were dog-guards which prevented a dog from jumping over into the yard. The partition fence also had guards so that a dog could not jump over from the adjoining lot. This yard also had the guard on it, but they were on the inside, so that once he had gained access a dog could not get out. The fence inclosing this yard was constructed of woven wire, with the dog-guard made of smooth wire. I soon found that dogs would jump into the contiguous lot to get into the sheep-yard; but when they had gained entrance to this inclosure they had gone to their destruction. The next morning all I had to do was to go down and gather in the depredators and give them burial. I dare say that Kenmor Farms have more dogs buried on them than any similar territory in the Union. I found that the dogs would easily gain access to the yard intended for them, but I never had one get into the sheep-yard if the dog-guards were placed correctly. The dog-guards are made by nailing arms on the top of the posts extending outward and upward at an angle of about ten or twelve degrees. On the tops of these arms are nailed four or five barbed wires. These provide a barrier that a dog cannot scale.

I have been informed that it is unlawful to kill my neighbors' dogs; but when I find a dog in my sheep pasture or on my premises I take the privilege of killing him for fear he might do some damage. Notwithstanding that it is unlawful to put out poison, I have also used a good deal of this. I have never put out any poison for dogs, however, always being careful to put it out for wolves. If a dog gets the wolf poison, I cannot help it. When I put out poison I always notify my neighbors that I have done so, and advise them to keep their dogs locked up. I use strychnin—enough to kill a dog and no more. The poison is wrapped in a small piece of tissue papare so that it will not permente the bait and make it bitter. When it is put in a carcass of a sheep several places are doctored, and after one day the carcass is buried down below the reach of dogs or anything else. I have gathered in many dogs with poison that was put out for "wolves."

There is another method that I have found to be of some value in getting rid of dogs, but it is not to be recommended, since it is against the laws laid down by the humane society. It consists in saturating with lard a sponge about as large as a dog can swallow. When digestion takes place the grease is digested and the sponge swells up on the liquids of the stomach and can neither pass out nor be digested. The dog soon pines away and dies. No poison has been administered, for lard and sponges are not poisonous.

I am a firm believer in the justice of the sheep owner's taking this matter into his own hands, but keeping still about it, for if he is to keep on the good side of his neighbors he must never act as if he had been the means of killing their dogs. As a rule, however, a neighbor realizes that when his dog strays away on a sheep farm and is killed he has got no less than he deserves.

I advise all sheepmen to protest themselves against the ravages of predatory dogs. I have found that legislators avoid this question, for there are more voters who own dogs than voters who own sheep. A dog that is not kept busy will get into mischief, no matter how well he is bred. Some of the worst dogs I have ever caught are those called hunting dogs. They are sagacious and when not kept busy hunting have to work off surplus energy by chasing sheep. The shepherd dog that is reared on a sheep farm seldom gets into trouble, but if he is reared as a pet and is not made acquainted with sheep he is liable to get into mischief if not kept under proper restraint. Sheep should be kept corralled at night, thereby removing one of the dangers that are liable to come to a flock. Daytime depredations are scarce unless a sheep pasture is an outlying one.

HOW TO MAKE OLD FARM PAY

Stop Scurrying and Go to Resting All Cultivated Land If Amount Is Only Five Acres.

It is a commentary on American agriculture that in certain sections there are farms of 100 or more acres that can be bought for less than the first cost of the buildings. And in some cases for less than the policy insurance companies have placed on said buildings.

The old farm doesn't pay.

Its acres have been destroyed. Its soil has been tilled and tilled till it would tilled no longer and refused to yield up its treasures to the inevitable

SIMPLY ENFORCE LAW

EFFECTIVE METHOD OF DEALING WITH TRUST PROBLEM.

"Passing of Competition," of Which So Much Has Been Made, Exists Chiefly in the Imagination of Those Who Wish It.

Many eminent gentlemen have recently assured us that the days of competition have forever gone by. Judge Gary would recognize that supposed fact, and entrust to the government the great task of seeing that there is fair play. Mr. Carnegie takes much the same view. Mr. Perkins advocates a "business court" which shall tell Big Business what it may and may not do. Mr. William Allen White is greatly impressed with the "economies of production" that follow the passing of competition. And only the other day the Contributing Editor rebuked those who "believe that it is possible by strengthening the anti-trust law to restore business to the competitive conditions of the middle of the last century," and declared that "any such effort is foredoomed to failure, and, if successful would be mischievous to the last degree."

All of which is pure assumption, and assumption that has little to rest on. The world has known monopolies before, monopolies of a peculiarly complete and odious character. We are not the first people that has had to deal with the trust problem. No doubt there were men back in the Elizabethan days who were convinced that "competitive conditions" could never be restored. But they were restored, and have pretty generally prevailed in England to this day. There was not much competition under the old regime in France, society being little more than a combination of nobles and church dignitaries to rob the people through restraints imposed on trade. But those restraints were swept away. What warrant have Mr. Roosevelt and the rest for thinking that today's attempts to restore competition are "foredoomed to failure"?

But here is the further suggestion that [illegible] not be restored through the enforcement of the anti-trust law. The New York World calls attention to the fact that the recent reduction of cable tolls by the Western Union Telegraph company was promptly met by the Commercial Cable company, which intimates that "the specter at Washington is responsible" for the Western Union's action. So here we have a plain case of competition, competition due to the attitude of the administration as to law enforcement. The "specter at Washington" is evidently the Sherman law as it is being enforced by President Taft. There seems to be a mistake somewhere. Is it not possible that the error is on the part of those wise men who would substitute for competition the tender care of a government that might—we do not say that would—license and sanction such restraints on competition as that which resulted from the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the steel trust? The World says:

"Judge Gary is still pleading for a Little Father. . . . Not that a good trust like the steel trust would harm a single hair of a rival's head or knowingly commit any conceivable wrong, but human flesh is weak and government is all-wise and always beneficent. There used to be captains of industry when the steel trust was formed. Now they are beginning to be outlaws. They want a Red Cross nurse in a government uniform to take command. They must be saved from themselves. They must have some one who will lead them but into still [illegible]

In other words, the demand is for [illegible]

AGAINST A MERCHANT MARINE

Recent Action Must Show the Country the Extent of Dictatorship of Wall Street.

Few things have so opened the eyes of the country to the extent of the grip of the Wall street dictatorship on credit and industry in the United States as the story of how this centralized money power has refused to permit the organization of a $15,000,000 American steamship company or allow an independent American mercantile marine to be built in American shipbuilding yards. The general comment of papers over the country is that nothing can so foster the growth of Socialism as this revelation of a capitalistic control to the extent that it can deny the people of the country the natural advantages of their $375,000,000 investment in the Panama canal.

The people have only vaguely grasped the idea that no railroad can be built except with the consent of a few men in Wall street. This new exhibition of the power of the dictatorship jars the nation into a realization, at last, that the great problem is to curb this power, which is now seen to be great enough to challenge the government itself by practically declaring that there shall be no mail carrying steamship company organized to operate between American ports via the canal on the terms which the government itself specifies. These terms are that such a mail carrying steamship line, and its directors, shall be absolutely independent of the great trans-continental railway combination.

Likewise does this power serve notice indirectly on the government that no mail carrying company so organized can get its ships built in American yards. And this is the clique that has been demanding that the government at Washington tax the people of the country to pay it to build ships to give work to American laborers in these yards. This strips the whole ship subsidy propaganda of its last mask, and it is exposed not as a proposal for benefitting the ship builders and their workmen, and "to put the American flag on the seas again," but as another plan, such as the tariff is, to turn national revenues into the treasury of Big Business.

Great Problems Simplified.

The scheme of forbidding men to do business with each other is absurd in the light of business growth under our wide American liberty. It is too European—too Russian. Everybody should be free to do business his own way, with everybody who is willing to do business with him. Free to enter into all the combination he finds to his interest; taking the responsibility of answering in the courts for his trespass on the rights of others.

If you want to correct the evil of monopoly, reduce the tariff to a simple revenue tax and reduce the monopoly of a patent to a fair compensation to the actual inventor.—Lewiston (Me.) Sun.

According to Judge Gary, the Steel Trust has been so much absorbed in its "moral responsibilities" lately the wonder is it should find time to manufacture steel and iron for purely commercial purposes.

Germany Shows the Way.

Germany wearied of the sugar trust [illegible] several years ago. She is now [illegible] of the indirect bounties paid on the export of grain. The export certificates will be receivable for duty [illegible] months instead of six, and [illegible] for the payment of duties on imported grain above [illegible] of flour and many other commodities. It is one of the failings of the protective system that it is good business to [illegible] able to make [illegible]

SHORTEST ROUTE TO JAPAN

It Is Along the Aleutian Islands, Which Stretch Out From Alaska Toward Asiatic Continent.

Few persons are aware that the shortest route from San Francisco to Japan is by way of Alaska. Nearly a thousand miles are saved by vessels leading with the Orient by coasting along the Aleutian Islands, rather than following the Hawaiian route.

The Aleutian Islands, which extend in a chain east and west for more than a thousand miles, are inhabited by the remnant of the Aleuts. Their war of the revolution closed just as the American Revolutionary war began. So patriotic were the Aleuts, so brave in their struggle for independence, that they succumbed to the Russians only after a conflict of nearly fifty years, and then simply because the race was almost exterminated in the struggle. While the Aleutian Islands must eventually form an important link in the commerce between the United States and the Orient, other islands link our country with the vast empire to the north. In the narrow Behring Straits lie two little islands, one occupied by Russia, the other by the United States, so that citizens of the two great nations live on respective islands within a few miles of each other.

CANNOT SHOW THEIR TEETH

Dentists at Disadvantage in the Matter of Advertising, Compared With Other Professions and Businesses.

"Men in every other profession and business have the advantage of dentists in the matter of advertising," said a man with forceps in his hand. "They can persuade good-looking young women to wear their goods for photographic purposes; the dentist cannot. The whitest, evenest set of false teeth ever made cannot tempt a woman to wear them and be photographed with her mouth wide open.

"Manufacturers of cosmetics and artificial hair are besieged by women who are willing to daub their faces with paint and powder and build their heads out with puffs and braids into any style of architecture desired for photographic advertisements. Neither do they balk at patent wearing apparel. The most absurd garment ever invented can find somebody to pose in it before the camera. But false teeth are universally blacklisted.

"Every woman who gets photographed with her mouth spread into a smile wants people to think that the teeth she shows are her own, and the dentist who would dare to label the picture 'These teeth made by Dr. Blank' would lay grounds for a libel suit."

His Book.

He was very old, and he scrambled into the "pay-as-you-enter" car with difficulty. Once safely inside he seated himself in the corner of the car and began to read.

The car bumped its way along Walnut street, past Broad, past Rittenhouse square. Not once did the old man look up. He was absolutely buried in his book, in which he gave the absorbed attention of a scholar.

At Fifty-fourth and Spruce streets the old man cast a startled glance out of the window, got up and hobbled to the front of the car. On the way he dropped his book and several passengers had a chance to see the title before it was picked up and given back to its owner.

The volume which had so absorbed the octogenarian was "Jack Spot, the Young Highway Robber; or, the Desperado of Devil's Gulch."—Philadelphia Times.

Pews at Cut Rates.

"A reduction of $2 a year in pew rent will fetch the bargain hunter every time," said a sexton. "Only last week a young woman who expects to make her home in this city concluded that of all city churches of this denomination she liked ours best and would take a pew here, but when she found she could get a pew that suited her about as well in another church for $2 a year less she let all other considerations go by the board and identified herself with that church.

"The cut rate pew hunter is a recognized feature of modern church life. Because a new member elects to join our congregation does not at all signify that he shares our religious convictions or likes the pastor and our service; it may mean that we charge less for the pew he likes than another church up the street."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Adjustable Picture Frames.

"Did you ever see," said a shopper among commercial picture frames designed to stand on desk or table top edging in shape that could be fixed either vertical, so it would contain only be for a portrait, or lengthwise, so it would be for a landscape picture?

ARE MICROBES IN YOUR SCALP?

It Has Been Proved That Microbes Cause Baldness

Professor Unna of Hamburg, Germany, and Dr. Sabourand, the leading French dermatologist, discovered that microbes cause baldness. Their theory has time and again been amply verified through research experiments carried on under the observation of eminent scientists. This microbe lodges in the Sebum, which is the natural hair oil, and when permitted to flourish it destroys the hair follicles and in time the pours entirely close, and the scalp gradually takes on a shiny appearance. When this happens there is no hope of ever reviving the growth of hair.

We have a remedy which will, we honestly believe, remove dandruff, exterminate the microbe, promote good circulation in the scalp and around the hair roots, tighten and revitalize the hair roots and overcome baldness, so long as there is any life left in the hair roots.

We back up this statement with our own personal guarantee that this remedy called Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will be supplied free of all cost to the user if it fails to do as we state.

It will frequently help to restore grey and faded hair to its original color providing loss of color has been caused by disease; yet it is in no sense a dye. Rexall "93" Hair Tonic accomplishes these results by aiding in making every hair root follicle, and pigment gland strong and active, and by stimulating a natural coloring pigment throughout the hair cells.

We exact no obligations or promises—We simply ask you to give Rexall "93" Hair Tonic a thorough trial and if not satisfied tell us and we will refund the money you paid us for it. Two sizes, prices 50c and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it in Clanton only at our store—The Rexall store Upchurch Drug Co.

MR. WILLIAM A. KEMP ANNOUNCES

On the editorial page of this issue will be found the announcement of Mr. William A. Kemp of Clanton as a candidate for nomination to the office of County Treasurer. Perhaps no more popular citizen ever resided in Clanton, or Chilton County, than is he. True to his friends, loyal to his party, and of strictest integrity, he numbers his friends by the number of his acquaintances. Mr. Kemp is a native of Chilton County; he was born but a few miles from Clanton at the old family residence where for three generations the Kemp family had resided. He married a Chilton County lady, both of whom were educated in Chilton County, and, in this county he expects to rear and educate his children.

Mr. Kemp is a conscientious, practical business man; he never falters in the path of duty and would not turn one hairs breadth from the path of duty and integrity to accomplish an act however desirable the after result might prove. It is such men as these that the democracy should honor with nomination for office, and the people of the county should elect to occupy them.

By his close attention to business, and his fair dealings with his fellow men, Mr. Kemp accumulated a fair competency and he seeks the office to which he aspire, not so much for the emoluments it may bring as for the honor of serving his fellow citizens.

Mr. Kemp is in every way qualified to fill the important position of County Treasurer and the Press predicts that on Wednesday, the 3rd day of April, when the ballots are counted, he who has won over Mr. Kemp will do so by the narrowest possible margin.

VOL 2. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 11, 1912 NO. 42

A PECULIAR BUSINESS PROPOSITION

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY REFUSES TO RENDER SERVICE FOR PAY.

Away back in the dim and misty past some wise old scholar, perhaps it was King Solomon, made the statement that there was nothing new under the sun; but that ripe old sage never lived in the enlightened twentieth century, nor was he a resident of Clanton, or of Chilton county, otherwise he would have known better. As a usual thing when a person of such great reputation for wisdom, as was King Solomon, makes a statement with any degree of positiveness it can be relied upon as bearing much of truth, if not entirely true, but when experience and observation tells us the reverse of the story enunciated by the wise man we are prone to take what he says with more than an ordinary pinch of salt.

Now, in the days in which King Solomon flourished there may not have been anything new under the sun—unless it was his father's hat—but in these days of kaliedoscopic changes something new bobs up all along the line every few days.

The PRESS man is by no means a globe trotter nor would he pretend to align himself with the knowing ones of this generation, but he has had some experience and has been as far as Coosa county to the east, Shelby to the north, and Elmore to the south and for the first time in all of his thirty two years of experience, he discovered in Clanton last Saturday a public service corporation which refused to render service for pay.

The circumstances were these:—The Confederate Veterans of Camp R. E. Lee held their semi-annual meeting on the last named day; since the previous meeting, one or more of the old veterans had answered the last roll call and taps had been sounded over their final restng places. As is customary in such instances, the Camp wished to pass resolutions of regret at the death of these faithful old soldiers; to do so in a becoming way it was necessary to ascertain to what Company, Regiment and Brigade each belonged during the civil war.

Request was made of the editor of this paper to ascertain the wanted information in reference to a very dear old friend who had lately passed away.

Feeling an interest in the old soldiers, and wishing to do them every possible favor, he went to the phone asking for a certain connection with a view to getting the correct data.

Mirabile Dictu! Ye Gracian Gods and Finnish minnows!

Ye deep seas west of where the mighty Oregon flows and knows no sounds save its own roaring! Geewhiz and then some!

Talk over that phone to get a matter of information? Why we guess not! At least not on your kodak picture; never at all till you have walked two full city blocks and deposited the full sum of ten cents, two nickles, one dime in the hands of the Treasurer of the Company. No Siree, not till the company has secured a firm grasp upon your one tenth of a simoleon and has entered the same in the book kept for profits and loss, receipts and disbursements. Then, when you have accomplished this little walking bout and deposited the coin of the realm in the hands of the Company Treasurer you may return and have your little say.

These are not the words which came to us, of course, but it meant practically the same. "The company allows no one to talk over the phone who is not a subscriber, till the toll has been deposited in the hands of the Treasurer, some two or more blocks up the street."

But, said the Editor, I have that precious little ten cents in my lilly white hand and am ready to leave it with your subscriber whose phone is being used; is it necessary for me to go two blocks to pay the toll and get a receipt? Shall the receipt be sent to the Central office before the conversation can be had?

Oh, fudge, it was a funny predicament but it had to be borne, for the Central office had no right to disobey orders. They were acting strictly within the rules of the company.

Finally it occurred to the editor that he might write a note and secure an answer just as quick by paying some urchin a dime to take the note and return with the answer, and this he started to do; but, the proprietor came to our relief. He too was stalled for a few minutes and it looked rather gloomy for the bona-fide subscriber. He had not paid up his dues and had but two more days in which to pay and it was necessary to remind him that he was on the ragged edge of durance vile and in danger of being sent into outer darkness where there is weeping and gnashing of toothies. But all things come to him who waits—with angel-like patience.

The bell rang, it was the call at the other end. With trembling voice and ashen pale face the bona-fide subscriber enquired in subdued tones:—"Is the lady of the house at home?

"No sir, She's gone visiting," came the reply, and then the curtains fell. Now suppose that had been a case of life and death instead of a simple case of accommodation to a few old soldiers who had given their lives to protect our common country?

Suppose it had been a case of fire where many homes and much property were endangered? Suppose it had been the call of a dying man for his confessor? Oh, just suppose any old thing, wasn't it ridiculous and isn't that a rather severe rule for a company occupying the streets of a town, free of charge, with its unsightly poles and its wires strung here and there, to impose upon a long suffering public?

We can easily see how such companies are frequently imposed upon by not having stringent rules and enforcing them; but, how a company which lives because of the goodness of the people and the Town Authorities, which is seeking to avoid State and County License, which has an income practically assured from the very incipiency, could inaugurate such a system of rules staggers the imagination and causes one to dwell upon legends of the Middle Ages when every Knight guarded his own castle least some one polute its sacred precincts.

Being a public service corporation, it occurs to this paper, it can be made to accommodate the public, and that too, without exhorbitant fees attached. If it is not a public service corporation then the Town of Clanton has greatly erred in permitting a private company the use of its streets and should hasten to remedy the evil. It should permit no private individual to monopolize its streets in any such manner and it is in duty bound to render to other citizens the same rights and privileges which it affords to a certain collection of individuals.

Nuf said now, but later might be more.

MR. ODEN ANNOUNCES.

The PRESS takes pleasure in printing in another column the announcement of Mr. W. M. Oden for nomination to the office of Tax Collector of this county, subject to the action of the democratic party, at the primary to be held on the first day of April next.

Mr. Oden, from birth and raising, is a democrat in whom there is no guile. He has been loyal to the party at all times, and was a worker in the ranks at a time when it took moral courage and genuine manhood to announce allegiance to the democracy.

A native of Chilton County, he has never had a desire, or inclination to change his place of residence. Chilton is the place where he was born, educated and married, and here he hopes to die and be buried.

Mr. Oden is the head of a large family—being the father of twelve children—all of whom were born and educated in this county.

A farmer by occupation, he has devoted his life to the upbuilding of his county, and the material prosperity of her citizenship.

Should the people of Chilton honor him with the office which he seeks, they can, with confidence depend upon it, that the duties of the office will be faithfully and carefully discharged, and that the people, who are tax-payers, will have a painstaking and fearless officer.

MR. T. E. WILLIAMS ANNOUNCES.

SEEKS OFFICE OF COUNTY, SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the announcement of Mr. T. E. Williams, a Chilton county born and raised man, for the office of County Superintendent of Education.

Mr. Williams is in every way qualified to fill, with credit to himself and his constituency, the office which he seeks.

Having been born and raised in Chilton county he is well acquainted with the conditions which confront the average school boy, and is qualified to meet these conditions in a way which will remedy the evils and multiply the good things in the school life of the Children of Chilton County.

Mr. Williams aside from being a christian gentleman, is not adicted to any of the present evil habits with which a large majority of the young men of the present generation are slaves. He does not use tobacco or intoxicants in any form, but stands out boldly for a moral integrity as well as a christian education.

He comes from a family who have devoted their time and talents to the moral and civil up-lift of the people of Chilton, and, if nominated, can be trusted to devote his time and talents to the elevation of the youth of Chilton county.

Mr. Williams is a young man of sterling qualities; what he does he does well; what he believes for the best interests of his county or his people he not only encourages but works energetically to bring to pass.

We know of no young man within the county in whose hands the people could more safely intrust the great responsibilities of the office to which he aspires with the perfect assurance that the duties of the office will be faithfully performed and that the responsibilities of the office will be carefully safeguarded.

A SENSIBLE SUGGESTION TO FARMERS.

READ IT AND REFLECT, THEN ACT ACCORDING TO SUGGESTIONS.

United States Dept. of Agriculture
Bureau of Plant Industry
Washington, D. C.

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 5, 1912

To all Alabama Agents:

As we begin our work for the New Year it is well that we have a clear conception of our attitude towards certain fundamental problems with which we are confronted. One of these relates to the present price of cotton and the means that are to be employed for bettering it.

Much has been said during the past few months on this subject, some of which has been wise and much otherwise. A favorite slogan to day is, "Reduce your cotton acreage 25 per cent this year so that we may get 15 cents for our crop in the fall."

The end sought—15 cent cotton—is a most laudable one, but the argument used is fallacy and will ultimately defeat the very object it is seeking. The past history of such movements has repeatedly shown us that the average farmer, if he believes there is to be a substantial reduction in acreage and resultant higher prices, inevitably increases rather than decreases his acreage. This is only natural.

How then, are we to attack this problem? There can be but one sure way to reduce the cotton acreage of 1912, and that means lies through a realization by our farmers of the fact that we have other crops more profitable than 9 cent cotton. Corn and cow peas, pork, hogs and cattle, sytup, forage crops and pea nuts—these are some of the crops that must now take the place of a large part of our OLD VETERANS AT MT. CREEK TO CELEBRATE.

PREPARATIONS BEING MADE TO OBSERVE LEE'S BIRTHDAY.

Editor Press:

On January 19th the Confederate Veterans at the Soldiers' Home, Mountain Creek will celebrate the birthday of General Robert E. Lee in a fitting manner.

Preparations for the event are about complete. The committe having the matter in charge have received a pleasing letter from the Hon. John W. A. Sanford Jr., of Montgomery, in which he accepts an invitation to be present to address the Veterans. This is sufficient to warrant the delivery of an oration both historical and eloquent.

Mrs. Dow, a pianist of acknowledged musical talent, and one of Montgomery's favorites in the musical set of that city, has kindly consented to be present. This estimable woman has visited the Home on a former occasion, and enjoys the esteem of the old men here.

Miss Miller,—Mrs. Dow's sister,—an excellent elocutionist, will also visit the Home on the day mentioned and assist in making the occasion entertaining for the Veterans and visitors.

The committee, consisting of Dr. Ellsberry, the post physician, Rev. G. A. Hornaday and Capt. Wm. Bell, will leave nothing undone in order to make the day a success.

A large number of visitors are expected from nearby towns and immediate vicinity. W. P. T.

cotton next year, nor of cheap grain and meat. There has been no money in cotton this year, doubly so will it be a white elephant to the man who next year uses it to buy dollar corn and high priced meat.

Our argument must be a simple one of economics—the course of the most profit. Cotton is cheap, may remain so, and we have made little on it this year; other crops are high-priced and have been profitable. Let us stress these facts in our daily work

Very truly yours.

MR. ROPER SEEKS OFFICE

A YOUNG MAN OF STERLING QUALITIES

We are printing elsewhere today the announcement of Mr. Howard Roper, who is asking the democrats of the county to nominate him as their candidate for County Superintendent of Education,

Mr. Roper is peculiarly fitted for the office which he seeks, having been a public school teacher in the county for the past six or eight years, His experience as a teacher, and his associations in the school room enable him to understand thoroughly the necessities of a dependable system of public schools which will redown, not only to the good of the people of the county, but will give the parents and scholars the very best results for the money expended.

Aside from his thoroughness as a teacher, he is practical, energetic and progressive. Should the democracy of Chilton nominate him as their candidate, they may depend upon his entire time and attehtion to the duties of the office and to the betterment of our educational system.

Mr. Roper is a native of Chilton County; attended the schools of the county as a youth and young man, and after having completed, as nearly as he could, his education in the county, attended the State Normal College at Jacksonville, where he fitted himself, under able instructors, for his life work—that of training and educating the young of his county.

His first vote was cast for democratic candidates and since tha time he has been an aggressive fighter in the ranks of his party.

The democracy of Chilton would make no mistake in conferring upon Mr. Roper the nomination for County Superintendent of Education.

BANK ELECTS NEW OFFICERS.

Mr. William T. Callen, President of the Peoples Savings Bank;
Mr. J. A. Thomas, Cashier.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Peoples Savings Bank, one of Clanton's most prosperous institutions, Mr. William T. Callen was elected President to succeed Mr. Holloway, who resigned that position.

Mr. Callen has for some years had active control of the bank and his elevation to the presidency, while in the nature of a promotion, is not after all a new office with which he has been invested.

Mr. Holloway does not relinquish his interest in the bank, being elected as Vice President thereof.

Mr. J. A. Thomas was unanimously elected as Cashier of the institution. Aside from the election of these officers the Board of Directors declared an annual dividend of ten per cent on the capital stock. This is somewhat of an eye opener to the average citizen; for when such institutions are enabled to declare such dividends it speaks volumes for the prosperity of the section in which it flourishes. The newly elected Board of Directors is composed of:—William T. Callen, Samuel Kaufman, M. L. Griel, T. E. Lovejoy and J. A. Thomas which is an extremely strong directorate.

LATE NEWS OF THE WORLD TERSELY TOLD.

SOUTH, EAST, NORTH AND WEST

Notes From Foreign Lands, Throughout the Nation and Particularly the Great South.

Southern.

"Look here!" said one of two men for whom Union Station Agent F. H. Smith was looking up rates in an interval between trains at Macon, Ga. Smith turned to the muzzle of a revolver and the next minute he was bound and gagged while one of the pair went through the station safe, securing about $3,000 in paper money. They made a clean getaway and it was forty minutes before a station watchman found Smith. The hold-up occurred at 8:05 o'clock, when there was a lull between trains. Smith was checking up his receipts when the two came into the office through a side door, a common occurrence outside of rush hours. The pistol was pulled while Smith's back was turned. He was bound to a railing. Two sacks containing about $300 in silver were left by the robbers.

H. Horne of Macon and New York City and associates have secured control of water power sites along the Coosa, Tallapoosa and Tennessee rivers. They intend to make the Coosa navigable to the gulf, and Horne stated that there would be a total expenditure of $150,000,000. The work will start within the next thirty days, Birmingham being the headquarters of the company. Mr. Horne would not divulge the names of the interested parties.

Gen. Francis Tillou Nicholls, former governor of Louisiana, who was credited with putting an end to the Louisiana lottery, is dead at the Nicholls home in Thibadaux, La. He was a brigadier general in the Confederacy, and left the army with one eye, one arm and one leg. He was about eighty years old.

Edward S. Whitaker, former inspector of police of New Orleans, convicted some months ago of unnatural crimes against several little girls, is dead in a News Orleans hospital due to a complication of diseases. For many years he was prominent in Louisiana politics and police affairs.

Fire, in Columbia, S. C., cleaned out a block in the West Gervais street and the wholesale district, and inflicted damage variously estimated at between $225,000 and $450,000. It was the most disastrous blaze in Columbia since the town was laid in ashes during the last year of the Civil war. The fire started in the department of the Gibbes Machinery company, probably from an overheated boiler.

Capt. John Cussons is dead at his home, Glen Allen, Henrico county, Virginia. Captain Cussons was chief of scouts under Stonewall Jackson and General Lee and gained fame in the West as an Indian fighter immediately after the Civil war.

Ninety-five out of the ninety-six counties of Tennessee are infected with hookworm disease, according to the annual report of Dr. Olin West, hookworm specialist, working under direction of the state board of health. Since the work was started two years ago Doctor West and his assistants have thoroughly inspected diseases in every county in the state, and have found every one infected with hookworm, with the exception of Lewis county.

Five minutes after he had pleaded guilty of having secured $400 under false pretenses, C. J. Stafford, declarer at one time to have been a curb banker in New York City, and who was also known as J. E. Anderson, swallowed a quantity of carbolic acid in his cell at police headquarters in Memphis, Tenn. He died in ten minutes. Remorse and a desire to spare his wife the humiliation that would attend his conviction prompted him to take his life, the man explained in a letter.

General.

Speculation was rife as to what ultimately will be the fate of Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson of Boston, who, in a written statement, confessed the murder of his former sweetheart, Avis Linnell. From a source close to Governor Foss, the statement came that the attitude of the executive probably would be in favor of a commutation of sentence of death in the electric chair to one of life imprisonment if the law's fullest penalty is imposed by the court.

A resolution indorsing Governor Foss for the Democratic nomination for the presidency of the United States and indorsing his administration, was adopted by the Democratic committee of Massachusetts.

Birmingham Civic League Complains Indecencies Are Flaunted Before the Public.

The Woman's Civic League of Birmingham, composed of prominent and philanthropic women, has stirred up much interest in statements given out and discussions which have been carried on for the past week with Commissioner Lane, of Birmingham, looking to a correction of what they term is an evil growing with terrible effect. "Indecencies flaunt themselves in our theatres of every class; vice takes its toll from the girl children on our streets; every charity is loaded down with the waifs who are the flotsam and jetsam of vice and crime." This is from Mrs. C. P. Orr, president of the league. A report along this line has been made, and a copy of same has been submitted to Commissioner Lane.

The league is going to seek a strict supervision of cheap places of amusement.

After raising 600 pounds of cotton in their garden plot, Simon Webb and his wife, an aged couple, picked the seed from the lint by hand instead of taking it to the gin. The cotton was sold to a local buyer. It was pronounced to be the best cotton sold in Gadsden in many years. Mr. Webb says he picked lint from the seed when he was a boy, long before the war. He is almost 80 years old.

Ripe strawberries have been reported in Baldwin county. Several of the large farmers have reported ripe fruit on their plants, although there is no general ripening. Farmers say that in a few weeks berries will make their appearance in the Southern market, and that within a month or six weeks big shipments to the Northern markets will be started.

The property holders of Alabama City are agitating annexation to Gadsden. Alabama City has a population of 4,000 and Gadsden has a population of 12,000. It is about two and a half miles from the center of Gadsden to the center of Alabama City, and the corporate lines are now adjoining.

O. U. Wiley, of Troy, will make the race for congressman from the Second district. Mr. Wiley stated that he had yielded to the desire of his friends reluctantly, as southeast Alabama voters had been urging him to make the race for some time.

James J. Brown, a prominent citizen of Uniontown, died after a lingering illness of heart disease. He was a member of a prominent Virginia family, his father being one of the first settlers of the Alabama canebrake section.

Lieut. Gen. C. Irvine Walker, commanding the United Confederate Veterans, made the announcement at Mobile that Major Wallace W. Screws of Montgomery has been chosen as orator for the reunion to be held at Macon, Ga.

I. W. Hill, formerly state superintendent of education, announced himself as a candidate for congressman from the state-at-large. Mr. Hill is a native of Macon county. He was formerly superintendent of schools of Gadsden.

Formal announcement was made by Capt. Sam Blackwell, of New Decatur, that he will oppose Congressman William Richardson, of Huntsville, for the democratic nomination for congress.

The body of J. H. Crawick, an aged farmer, formerly of Anniston, where he was well known, was found lifeless in his bed at his lone country home north of there.

On February 6 the voters of Hale county will say whether or not they wish the county to issue bonds for building and improving public roads.

The postal savings bank at Ozark opened for business.

Alabama paid $85,155.97, its counties and towns $18,641.10; leaving an expense fund of $7,486.55 on the first quarter of the license collections under the automobile law passed by the last legislature. Sixty per cent of the collections go to the state, and 40 per cent to the counties and towns. Fifteen per cent of the first is set aside for the expenses of the department. The secretary of state has registered 5,000 automobiles, 40 dealers in persons' 275 chauffeurs and 270 motorcycles.

It was announced that Fort Payne will soon have another bank.

The contract for building Ashville's new bank known as the "Citizens' Bank," has been let.

The next meeting of the Alabama State Bar Association will be held in Montgomery May 16, 16 and 17.

Nettie Hart, the 5-year-old daughter of Mrs. B. B. Hart, of Smithfield, a suburb of Birmingham, died from the effects of burns received while playing with fire.

The amount for distribution of Confederate pensions in Lauderdale county is $3,400. This sum has been received by Judge James F. Keence for the quarterly payment, and he is now busy settling with the old soldiers.

Mrs. Ursula King died at Evergreen. Mrs. King was the widow of William King, who served several years in the Seminole Indian war in Florida. She was related to many prominent people through this section. She was nearly 90 years of age. She was buried at Bellville.

That Governor O'Neal will be one of the delegates at large from Alabama to the national democratic convention, and that he will be selected to place Oscar W. Underwood in nomination for the presidency of the United States, is the prediction made by the governor's political friends in Birmingham.

Thomas Williams, a negro for whom police officials have been searching for in Mobile, surrendered. Williams is wanted in connection with the murder of Policeman Frederick Wasserlaben, whose body was found in a pond of water Sunday, December 30. The police believe Williams will throw additional evidence into the tragedy.

With the attorneys declaring that they do not believe, but know, that the supreme court erred in some particulars in its decision, application for rehearing in the Montgomery city commission case was filed. The court recently held the act passed by the last legislature establishing the commission form of government to be valid.

The ninth annual meeting of the Alabama State Horticultural Society will be held in Jasper January 25 to 27, inclusive, and an attractive programme for the meeting is being sent members by Secretary Williams, of Auburn. The session of three days will be devoted to scientific discussion of the best methods of truck gardening and fruit growing in Alabama.

W. T. Murphree, chairman of the Etowah county executive committee, issued a call for a meeting of the committee for January 20. At that time Mr. Murphree's successor will be elected. Arrangements will also be made for the holding of the county primary. Mr. Murphree, the retiring chairman of the committee, is a candidate for the Gadsden city court judgeship, opposing Judge Disque.

Dr. G. P. Hartwell, for forty years a missionary to Hwang-Hien, North China, and known as a patriarch of the Southern Baptist convention, died at Hwang-Hien, according to a cable received by his daughter, Miss Jean Green Hartwell, of Anniston, who was planning to go to her father's bedside at an early date. Dr. Hartwell was president of the Hwang-Hien Theological Seminary, and formerly taught at Howard College, Birmingham.

The Farmers' Truckers' Association of Bay Minette held a meeting in the court house, at which time the matter of acreage in the various truck crops for the spring were taken and arrangements made for markets in accordance with the approximate yield.

Interesting results have been secured at the Auburn experiment farm from tests of varieties of cotton for productiveness.

Twenty-nine varieties and strains of cotton were tested during the year 1911, of which the leading varieties in order of combined value of lint and seed were: Hite producing 9972 pounds of lint cotton, nearly two bales, to the acre, with a total value of $90.45; Cook (from Stone), with 8483.5 pounds of lint cotton at a value of $85.83 an acre; Cook (Alabama Station No. 453), 8337 pounds at a value of $82.17; Lowe, 7855.2 pounds, with a value of $83.07; Cook (from Sommermour), 8228.5 pounds, $81.50; Cook (Alabama Station No. 469), 7987 pounds with a value of $80.92; Cook (Alabama Station No. 315), 7774.2 pounds, with a value of $78.90. The figures were based on lint at 9 cents a pound and seed at $16 a ton.

The most productive variety, Hite, afforded a return of $90.45 an acre, or $35.14 more than the value of the least productive variety.

The first meeting of the board of trustees of the Alabama Reform School for Juvenile Negro Law-breakers was held at the governor's office the past week, and after organization was effected the needs of the school were discussed, which resulted in the appointment of a committee to look over the location of another building to cost about $8,000. There will be another meeting of the board February 15, at which time reports will be made by the committee.

Small Girl's Pretty Answer to Stupid Question of Inquisitive Busybody.

She was a pretty little tot, and everybody who knew her took pleasure in pausing to ask her some kind of a question, merely to show an interest and for the pleasure of hearing the musical cadence of her voice. Some of the questions were what might be termed leading, but for all she invariably had some kind of an answer. Among these latter inquiries was one from an intrusive busybody who was old enough to know better, but who belonged to a class of persons who never learn. Knowing that the little girl had only recently become the possessor of a young and attractive stepmother, with a curiosity inborn she asked her very frankly:

"Well, Pollykins, how do you like your stepmother?"

The child raised her blue eyes gravely, and with her face glowing with happiness replied:

"Oh, very much, indeed, Mrs. Skillington. We fit very nicely, considering that she got us ready made."—Judge.

IN MATCHTOWN.

Fortunately no Faith Was Required, For She Had None.

"I had no faith whatever, but on the advice of a hale, hearty old gentleman who spoke from experience, I began to use Grape-Nuts about 2 years ago," writes an Ohio woman, who says she is 40, is known to be fair, and admits that she is growing plump on the new diet.

"I shall not try to tell you how I suffered for years from a deranged stomach that rejected almost all sorts of food, and digested what little was forced upon it only at the cost of great distress and pain.

"I was treated by many different doctors and they gave me many different medicines, and I even spent several years in exile from my home, thinking change of scene might do me good. You may judge of the gravity of my condition when I tell you I was sometimes compelled to use morphine for weeks at a time.

"For two years I have eaten Grape-Nuts food at least twice a day and I can now say that I have perfect health. I have taken no medicine in that time—Grape-Nuts has done it all. I can eat absolutely anything I wish without stomach distress.

"I am a business woman and can walk for 2 or 3 miles a day and feel better for doing so. I have no trouble in my work, and it is remarkable how quick, alert and tireless my mental powers have become." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

1912 OPENS WITH BRIGHT PROSPECTS

Pronounced Increase in Business Confidence.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The year opened with a pronounced increase in business confidence based upon the improvement during the past three months, especially in iron and steel, copper and dry goods, and there is a growing belief that the new year will prove better as to the volume of business transactions than 1911, though this optimism is tempered by much conservatism, and there is no disposition to expand unduly.

The increased operations and larger working forces feature the opening of the year in iron and steel. Some plants that were closed entirely or only part time are resuming activity again, and the leading interest is now running at about 82 per cent. of capacity. Blast furnaces' capacity has increased at Pittsburg, the local car plants are more active, and finished lines show further improvement, with several additional orders for line pipe and structural material. Prices are firmer.

For the first half basic iron is quoted at $12.45 and Bessemer $14.25, and $14.50 Valley. Crude steel material has advanced 50 cents to $1 per ton, forging billets being especially firm at $26 Pittsburg, while with a better demand $1.25 is the minimum for bar iron and $1.15 for steel bars, Pittsburg.

Jobbers of dry goods are opening their floor showings of wash fabrics for spring, and are sending their men on the road seeking additional business on spring silks and regular lines. A reduction on printed shirtings of 3-4 cents a yard was announced in the primary markets, but there is a firmer tendency in drills, sheetings and heavy colored goods. Export trade in cotton goods with miscellaneous ports opens auspiciously, but the China markets are closed.

There has been a further resumption of operations in cotton mills. While trade in woolens is rather quiet, as usual at this period, some of the larger agencies for overcoatings have been booking a very satisfactory business, and leading manufacturers of chinchill have already sold their production for the fall season, while others are getting ready to provide for the increasing demand for these lines.

Leather is quiet, but generally firm. Hides show some improvement. There is a fair amount of business on the books of the New England shoe factories.

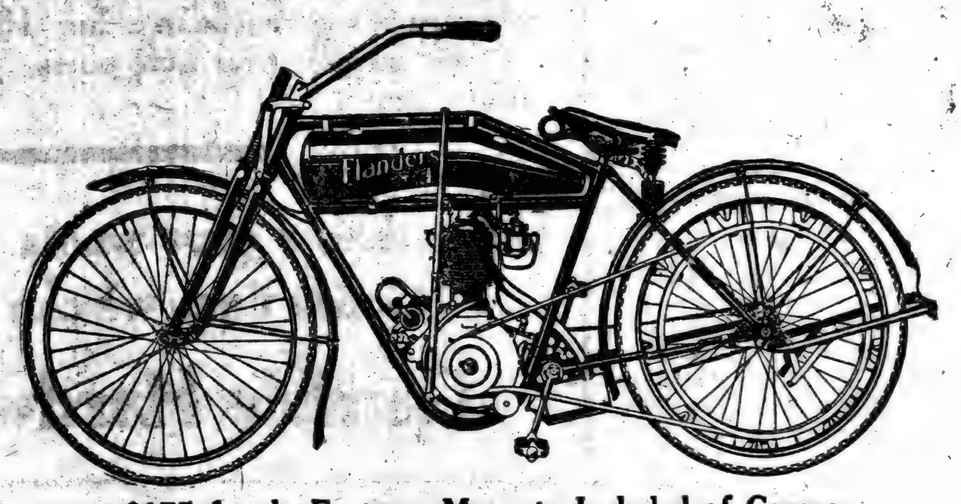
New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

At the advent of the new year the undertone of trade seems of an encouraging character. At the moment retail lines present the most active branches of distributive trade, while in industrial pursuits iron and steel and textile mills have enlarged their working forces. Of course, the returns are not uniform in all instances, quiet trade being especially marked at the South and some cities elsewhere also indicate that the severe weather, instead of developing business, has actually retarded it. In the larger lines, wholesale and jobbing, for example, trade is marked by the customary seasonal slowness, and while some salesmen are again on the road, it is too early to expect much in the way of new orders.

What few buyers have come to the dry goods markets speak hopefully, but the concensus seems to indicate that country merchants will be chary about placing orders in quantity for some time. A conservatively cheerful sentiment prevails in the iron and steel trades, but at the moment new business is light, following the heavy bargain buying witnessed in December, and at the same time some lines are not yet free from competition. As matters stand, the saner tendency is to guard against over estimating the improvement and to regard the large orders already booked as a basis for future betterment. Collections are not better than fair, being especially slow in the South, but a more favorable turn taken by the lumber trade in the far West is expected to improve payments in that quarter, where settlements have been slow.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending Jan. 4 were 349 against 394 last week, 282 in the like week of 1911, 271 in 1910, 171 in 1909 and 135 in 1908.

Business failures in Canada for the week number 32, which contrasts with 22 last week and 27 in the like week of 1911.



Wheat, including exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending January 4, aggregates 9,201,611 bushels against 2,855,560 last week and 3,568,914 this week last year. For the 27 weeks ending January 4, exports are 97,581,804 bushels against 82,702,597 in the corresponding period last year.

Flanders "4" Motorcycle

$175 f. o. b. Factory—Magneto Included of Course

Has Them All on the Run

WHAT AN UPSETTING of prices the arrival of the Flanders "4" Motorcycle has occasioned. Why, the other makers seem to be in a panic.

IT'S FUNNY, TOO, when you recall the unkind things they said about the Flanders "4" when we first advertised it and stated the price.

OF COURSE THEY SAID a first-class four horsepower motorcycle could not be made for $175, even with battery ignition. And a magneto included—utterly impossible.

WE WISH WE COULD print all the things they said in their frantic efforts to discredit the Flanders "4" and justify their own prices—which at that time were $250 and $275 for machines of same power and less quality.

YOU WILL REMEMBER they all said the only way it could be done was to make the machine out of poor materials and throw them together. They not only admitted, they protested, they could not duplicate the Flanders "4" at the price—or anywhere near it.

THAT WAS BEFORE we had begun to ship Flanders "4's" to our dealers and customers. They felt safe in making such statements—for though they knew in their hearts that this concern could not afford to turn out a second grade article—they had no idea what a sensation it was going to create.

SO THEY LAID TRAPS for themselves—and now we are driving them right into them.

THEY MUST EAT their own words—they said they would have to use poor material and poorer work in the making to meet the price of Flanders "4."

WELL, THEY HAVE ALMOST met the price—and they will have to meet it and go lower before they can sell their antiquated machines in competition with this up-to-the-minute motorcycle.

NOW IT DOESN'T REALLY MATTER, but are we to assume that what they said was true and that they are now making punk machines to meet Flanders "4" in competition—or that they told fibs about it?

FRANKLY WE DON'T BELIEVE they are making them any worse—some things are impossible. And we do know that until Flanders "4" arrived on the scene, prices of motorcycles were high above all reason.

WE SAID IN OUR AD that Flanders "4"—magneto included—selling for $175, left a mighty small profit to us on each machine.

BUT WE ARE SATISFIED with a small profit on each machine so long as we can build 50,000 per year. And the price—$175, magneto included—has created a demand sufficient to justify us in building that many.

HERE'S A POINT YOU HADN'T NOTICED perhaps: Other makers did not drop their prices until we had actually begun to make deliveries. Do you know why? There were two reasons.

FIRST: OUR AD CREATED a tremendous demand which we were as yet unable to supply. The other makers saw this and determined to supply some of it at high prices. And they did. Then they began to think it was going to continue.

SECOND: THEY HOPED that when this machine did appear it would not be up to all our representations would give them a new lease of life.

NOT ONLY THAT: But in addition to hoping, they set about picking it to pieces before they had actually seen it themselves.

IT IS A FACT that, before we had shipped one motorcycle we heard stories told by competitors of how this part was weak and that part wrong, etc. The wish was father to the thought—that was all.

OH! WHAT A BUMP they got when we began to send them over the country. The effect was electrical.

PRICES BEGAN TO TUMBLE: First they chopped off $25.00—made theirs $250 and $225 instead of $275. But it didn't do. Dealers wired them—"You must meet Flanders prices. No use to damn the machine—it has Flanders' name on it and the public knows."

OFF CAME ANOTHER $25—and another. Here and there they put on a magneto and tried to hold the old price. No go—Flanders had said, "No motorcycle is complete without a magneto."

WELL, THEY HAVEN'T YET reached our price. Can't and stay in business, because most of them are not manufacturers—only assemblers. They buy motors and other parts and pay one or two extra profits on them.

IT COSTS THEM MORE to build the same machine than we can sell it for. Get that?

WE HAVE THE FACILITIES—a $2,250,000 concern. We make every part. We buy right and pay cash and it costs us less to sell—because folks know a dollar's worth when they see it, and Flanders "4" is the biggest value ever offered. It sells itself.

EVERY DEALER KNOWS. Didn't they all "hot foot it" to Detroit to get the agency? Of course we couldn't give it to them all—we picked the best and of course those who didn't get it are sore. Naturally. And they are getting sorer every day.

WHEN A DEALER KNOCKS the Flanders "4"—as, of course, he must, to sell other makes—just ask him why he was unable to get the agency when he asked for it. You won't miss one in a hundred.

MEANTIME what you want to know is how soon can you get a Flanders "4." That is the burning question with thousands. And we are doing our best to answer it definitely.

IT DEPENDS ENTIRELY on how soon your order is in our dealer's hands. We can't promise to deliver on the minute—for we have none in stock. Demand is away ahead of supply all the time. But get your order in—pay a deposit so the dealer will know you mean business and you won't have to wait more than a month—perhaps not more than two weeks. The dealer will tell you for he knows when we have promised to ship him. Or you may write direct to us and we will gladly tell you.

THE FLANDERS GUARANTEE goes with every machine. That means that if the machine we ship you isn't right we will make it right. The name Flanders stands for quality—you know that.

PROOF: This ad is published in more magazines that circulate widely—in other issues than the one in which these are published. If you live in a place where we have as yet no representative, this is your chance to obtain the best motorcycle—from the best makers in the entire motorcycle field. Better send the factory direct today.

FOR AGED PEOPLE.

Old Folks Should Be Careful in Their Selection of Regulative Medicine.

We have a safe, dependable and altogether ideal remedy that is particularly adopted to the requirements of aged people and persons of weak constitutions who suffer from constipation or other bowel disorders. We are so certain that it will relieve these complaints and give absolute satisfaction in every particular that we offer it with our personal guarantee that it shall cost the user nothing if it fails to substantiate our claims. This remedy is called Rexall Orderlies.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity. Three sizes, 10c., 25c., and 50c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Upchurch Drug Co.

Notice to the Public

Having sold my entire interest in the Clanton Milling and Bottling plant to Mr. W. M. Aldridge, I will have no future connection with these institutions. This will enable me to give my entire time and attention to the ICE business and it is my intention to serve the best grade of ice obtainable. I shall be glad to serve the public with ice at all times.

Permit me to thank my former friends and patrons for the liberal patronage accorded me in the past and to ask a continuance of the same in the ICE business.

Do you know that fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, and require no internal treatment whatever? Apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely and see how quickly it gives relief. For sale by all dealers.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound "Cures in Every Case."

Mr. Jas. McCaffery, Mgr. of the Schlitz Hotel, Omaha, Neb., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, because it cures in every case. "I have used it myself and I have recommended it to many others who have since told me of its great curative power in diseases of the throat and lungs." For all coughs and colds it is speedily effective. Upchurch Drug Co.

Chas. Durham, Lovington, Ill., has succeeded in finding a positive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear thro' on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Foley Kidney Pills. After he had taken them two days we could see a change and when he had taken two thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." Upchurch Drug Co.

Mrs. Robt. Popwell, who has been dangerously ill for the past few days, is, we are glad to say much improved.

Mrs. Adams, of Wetumpka, who has been on a visit to Mrs. E. M. Pinckard, her niece, returned home Wednesday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Lull of Wetumpka.

Fever Sores.

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all dealers.

Medicines that aid nature are always most effectual. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It allays the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Thousands have testified to its superior excellence. Sold by all dealers.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound

is a reliable family medicine. Give it to your children, and take it yourself when you feel a cold coming on. It checks and cures coughs and colds and croup and prevents bronchitis and pneumonia. UpchurchDrug Co.

HERE'S A PROPOSITION AS WHITE AS SNOW

Read all this adverisement and bring us the answer

We intended this week to enumerate some of the tremendous bargains which we have to offer to our friends and patrons but when we went to look for special inducements we discovered that everything in our stock is so low and the goods so fresh that we decided there was no particular line for us to emphasize' 'we mean every line we carry is an inducement within itself.

We trust we have been in business too long for it to be necessary for us to go into detail and tell you of the tremendous stock we carry, the varied lines of merchandise found in our stores or the cash bringing prices that rule at our store.

That we do not believe to be necessary, so we are not going to worry you with prices, but now that the weather is getting a little cooler and cotton is rolling in fairly well we want to stimulate CASH trade just a wee bit; for that reason and for the purpose of showing that our heart is in the right place, and for the further purpose of creating a little friendly interest among our farmer friends we want to make the following proposition:

Read carefully and understand well

Billy Skinnicks had an eight gallon jug full of molasses. Sam McCook had a three galon and a five galon jug full of wind. Billy wanted to give Sam just exactly four gallons of the molasses. They had no other measures except the three jugs. How was Billy to tell when he had measured the molasses correctly, using nothing but the three jugs?

The first out of town customer presenting the correct solution to this problem and trading twenty dollars in CASH or on or after the FIRST day of November will be given absolutely FREE a fifty pound sack of Fancy Patent Flour. Get busy with your pencil and figure on Billy and Sam.

Wouldn't it be well for the City Council to meet just one time this year? There is no time better than in the early part of the year January for instance.

The appointment of George M Howle, of the Iconoclast, by Governer O'Neal as one of the Jury Commissoners of Jefferson County came somewhat in the nature of a surprise to the governor, many friends throughout the state.

While we have no objections personally to the appointment we are afraid it will not be long before a certain phase of Jefferson county history will be repeating itself.

RIDERVILLE

Riderville people have entered into the new year with quite a bouyant and industrious spirit, not withstanding the inclement weather.

The holidays passed off very quietly and pleasantly.

The saw mill has undergone quite a number of repairs.

Many new families have moved here quite recently. The Rider residence in West Riderville has been purchased by Mr. J. H. Mathison, of Centerville, and he and his family now occupy the building. He expects to engage in dairying and truck farming.

The new Methodist pastor, Rev. Chambers, formally, of Montgomery, preached a most excellent sermon here Sunday night. We hope for Bro. Chambers a most successful year on this charge. The S. S. of this place is one to be proud of. A statistical report of 1911, showed an attendance of 2977, average attendance of 60, visitors 275, and finance $65.50. They have five classes and a cradle roll of 15.

The ladies of the School Improvment Association held their first meeting for the present year Friday afternoon. Statistics showed membership of thirty two. Amount for dues and realized from entertainments and bazaars etc. $76.20. A handsome $225.00 piano has been placed in the school and paid for, lacking the small amount of 65 cents. $10.00 has been contributed for library purposes. While a Xmas free was decorated and supplied with a present for each child in Riderville on Xmas night, through the auspicies of the S. I. A. Remember our society is only three months old. We feel proud of its achievements, however its success has been largely through the co-operation of interested patrons of the school and some others who wish to see the cause of advancement in their community.

Mr and Mrs. Joe Cunningham had as their guests at a turkey dinner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Biscoe, and family of Plantersville, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Young, Mr. Cunningham's father and brother, Fred, Mrs. Calla Rider and daughter Nellie, and Miss Johnson, also Mr. Fred Young of Oklahoma. It was a most sumptious dinner and one much enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham were both delightful host and hostess.

R. E. LEE CELEBRATION

DAUGHTERS OF CONFEDERACY TO HAVE AN ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM.

On Friday afternoon, January Ninet eenth, at the Clanton Public School, the ladies composing the Daughters of the Confederacy have arranged to have a most pleasant and entertaining function in celebration of the birth day of that peerless Southerner Genl. Robt. E. Lee.

Quite an attractive program has been arranged for the entertainment of all who will attend, and everyone is cordially invited, on that afternoon, to be the guests of the Daughters of the Confederacy.

Especially are the old soldiers urged to attend this celebration. There will be music, appropriate to the occasion, speeches and recitations by school children and others.

Classy Dressers

Are now giving us all their work. We have the only white barber shop in town. In addition to our well kept razors and sctssors, we have installed an Electric Massage machine of the latest design where our patrons can have all the advantages secured in the larger cities.

A ROMANTIC MARRIAGE

Last Tuesday quite a romantic marriage took place in Shelby county in which two young people of Chilton played the principal role.

From best accounts it appears that young M. Hobson, a merchant of Jemison, engaged Mr. C. W. Reynolds to keep store for him for several days, saying that he wished to go off on a short trip. Tuesday morning he left on the accommodation train and about time the train started Miss Warrine Reynolds, the only daughter of Mr. C. W. Reynolds, a young lady of perhaps fifteen, stepped upon the rear platform, and went with Mr. Hobson. They were immediately married in Shelby county.

When the father of the youthful bride discovered how he had been deceived and that he had practically lost his only child he was almost overcome with grief.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobson returned Wednesday to the parental roof, and we, understand, received a fatherly blessing.

No more popular man resides in Chilton than genial Charley Reynolds and while his friends sympathize with him in the unexpected marriage of his daughter they are none the less loud in their praises of the gallant young man who captured so precious a treasure.

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 40th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization.

CHAPTER VII.

In no blaze of glory did Burning Daylight descend upon San Francisco. Not only had he been forgotten, but the Klondike along with him. The world was interested in other things, and the Alaskan adventure, like the Spanish War, was an old story. He settled down in St. Francis Hotel, was interviewed by the cub-reporters on the hotel-run, and received brief paragraphs of notice for twenty-four hours.

Several months passed in San Francisco, during which time he studied the game and its rules, and prepared himself to take a hand.

Tiring of being merely an onlooker, he ran up to Nevada, where the new gold-mining boom was fairly started—"just to try a flutter," as he phrased it to himself. The flutter on the Tonopah Stock Exchange lasted just ten days, during which time his smashing, wild-bull game played ducks and drakes with the more stereotyped gamblers, and at the end of which time, having gambled Floridel into his fist, he let go for a net profit of half a million. Whereupon, smacking his lips, he departed for San Francisco and the St. Francis Hotel. It tasted good, and his hunger for the game became more acute.

And once more the papers sensationalized him. BURNING DAYLIGHT was a big-letter headline again. Interviewers flocked about him. Old files of magazines and newspapers were searched through, and the romantic and historic Elam Harnish, Adventurer of the Frost, King of the Klondike, and Father of the Sourdoughs, strode upon the breakfast table of a million homes along with the toast and breakfast foods. Even before his elected time, he was forcibly launched into the game. Financiers and promoters, and all the flotsam and jetsam of the sea of speculation surged upon the shores of his eleven millions. In self-defence he was compelled to open offices. He dabbled in little things at first—"stalling for time," as he explained it to Holdsworthy, a friend he had made at the Alta-Pacific Club. Daylight himself was a member of the club, and Holdsworthy had proposed him. And it was well that Daylight played closely at first, for he was astounded by the multitudes of sharks—"ground-sharks," he called them—that flocked about him. He saw through their schemes readily enough, and even marveled that such numbers of them could find sufficient prey to keep them going. Their rascality and general dubiousness was so transparent that he could not understand how any one could be taken in by them.

So it was that he resolved to leave the little men, the Holdsworthys alone; and, while he met them in good fellowship, he chummed with none, and formed no deep friendships. He did not dislike the little men, the men of the Alta-Pacific, for instance. He merely did not elect to choose them for partners in the big game in which he intended to play. What this big game was, even he did not know. He was waiting to find it. And in the meantime he played small hands, investing in several arid-lands reclamation projects and keeping his eyes open for the big chance when it should come along.

And then he met John Dowsett, the great John Dowsett. It was the first big magnate Daylight had met face to face, and he was pleased and charmed. There was such a kindly humanness about the man, such a genial democratiqness, that Daylight found it hard to realise that this was the John Dowsett, president of a string of banks, insurance manipulator, reputed ally of the lieutenants of Standard Oil, and known ally of the Guggenhammers. Nor did his looks belie his reputation and his manner. Physically, he guaranteed all that Daylight knew of him. Despite his sixty years and snow-white hair, his hand-shake was firmly hearty, and he showed no signs of decrepitude, walking with a quick, snappy step, making all movements definitely and decisively.

It was not long afterward that Daylight came on to New York. A letter from John Dowsett had been the cause—a simple little typewritten letter of seven lines. But Daylight had thrilled as he read it. The bald sentences seemed gorged with mystery. "Our Mr. Howison will call upon you at your hotel. He is to be trusted. We must not be seen together. You will understand after we have had our talk." Daylight conned the words over and over. That was it. The big game had arrived, and it looked as if he were being invited to sit in and take a hand. Surely, for no other reason would one man so peremptorily invite another man to make a journey across the continent.

They met—thanks to "our" Mr. Howison—up the Hudson, in a magnificent country home. Daylight, according to instructions, arrived in a private motor car which had been furnished him. Dowsett was already there, and another man whom Daylight recognized before the introduction was begun. It was Nathaniel Letton, and none other. Daylight had seen his face a score of times in the magazines and newspapers, and read about his standing in the financial world, and about his endowed University of Daratona. He, likewise, struck Daylight as a man of power, though he was puzzled in that he could find no likeness to Dowsett. Except in the matter of cleanness—a cleanness that seemed to go down to the deepest fibers of him—Nathaniel Letton was unlike the other in every particular. Thin to emaciation, he seemed a cold flame of a man. Not more than fifty, thatched with a sparse growth of iron-gray hair, he looked several times the age of Dowsett.

They drank—that is, Nathaniel Letton took mineral water served by the smoothly operating machine of a lackey who inhabited the place, while Dowsett took Scotch and soda and Daylight a cocktail. Leon Guggenhammer arrived in the midst of the drink, and ordered Scotch. Daylight studied him curiously. This was one of the great Guggenhammer family; a younger one, but nevertheless one of the crowd with which he had locked grapples in the North. Nor did Leon Guggenhammer fail to mention cognizance of that old affair. He complimented Daylight on his prowess—"The echoes of Ophir came down to us, you know. And I must say, Mr. Daylight—or, Mr. Harnish, that you whipped us roundly in that affair."

Leon Guggenhammer was young and fat. Not a day more than thirty, his face, save for the admirated puffy sacks under the eyes, was as smooth and fleshless as a boy's. The talk soon centered down to business. Dowsett broached the plan, aided by an occasional remark from the other two, while Daylight asked questions. When at last the proposition was, he was going into it with his eyes open. And they filled his eyes with the greatest vision of wealth he had in mind.

"I Must Say, Mr. Harnish, That You Whipped Us Roundly In That Affair"

"They will never dream you are with us," Guggenhammer interjected, as the outlining of the matter drew to a close, his handsome Jewish eyes flashing enthusiastically. "They'll think you are raiding on your own in proper buccaneer style."

"Of course, you understand, Mr. Harnish, the absolute need for keeping our alliance in the dark," Nathaniel Letton warned, gravely.

Daylight nodded his head.

"And you also understand," Letton went on, "that the result can only be productive of good. The thing is legitimate and right, and the only ones who may be hurt are the stock gamblers themselves. It is not an attempt to smash the market. As you see yourself, you are to bull the market. The honest investor will be the gainer."

"Yes, that's the very thing," Dowsett said. "The commercial need for copper is continually increasing: Ward Valley Copper, and all that it stands for—practically one-quarter of the world's supply, as I have shown you—is a big thing, how big, even we can scarcely estimate. Our arrangements are made. We have plenty of capital ourselves, and yet we want more. Also, there is too much Ward Valley out to suit our present plans. Thus we kill both birds with one stone. Not only will you bull Ward Valley, but you will at the same time gather Ward Valley in. This will be of inestimable advantage to us, while you and all of us will profit by it as well. And as Mr. Letton has pointed out, the thing is legitimate and square. On the eighteenth the directors meet, and, instead of the customary dividend, a double dividend will be declared."

"There will be all sorts of rumors on the street," Dowsett warned Daylight, "but do not let them frighten you. These rumors may even originate with us. You can see how and why clearly. But rumors are to be no concern of yours. You are on the inside. All you have to do is buy, buy, buy, and keep on buying to the last stroke, when the directors declare the double dividend. Ward Valley will jump so that it won't be feasible to buy after that."

"And one other thing, Mr. Harnish," Guggenhammer said, "if you exceed your available cash, or the amount you care to invest in the venture, don't fail immediately to call on us. Remember, we are behind you."

"Yes, we are behind you," Dowsett repeated.

Nathaniel Letton nodded his head in affirmation.

CHAPTER VIII.

Back at his hotel, though nearly two in the morning, he found the reporters waiting to interview him. Next morning there were more. And then, with blare of paper trumpet, was he proclaimed by New York. Close upon their heels, all tom-toms and wild bellowing, his picturesque figure strode across the printed sheet. The King of the Klondike, the head of the Arctic, the forty-million-dollar millionaire of the North, had come to New York. What had he come for? To trim the New Yorkers as he had trimmed the Tonopah crowd in Nevada?

They were prepared for him to play, and, when heavy buying of Ward Valley began, it was quickly decided that he was the operator. Financial gossip buzzed and hummed. He was after the Guggenhammers once more. The story of Ophir was told over again and sensationalized until even Daylight scarcely recognized it. Still, it was all grist to his mill. The stock gamblers were clearly befooled. Each day he increased his buying, and so eager were the sellers that Ward Valley rose but slowly. A wildly exciting time was his during the week preceding Thursday the eighteenth. Not only was he gambling as he had never gambled before, but he was gambling at the biggest table in the world for stakes so large that even the case-hardened habitues of that table were compelled to sit up. In spite of the unlimited selling, his persistent buying compelled Ward Valley steadily to rise, and as Thursday approached, the situation became acute. Something had to smash. How much Ward Valley was this Klondike gambler going to buy? How much could he buy? What was the Ward Valley crowd doing all this time? Daylight appreciated interviews with them that appeared—interviews delightfully placid and non-committal. Leon Guggenhammer even hazarded the opinion that this Northland Croesus might possibly be making a mistake. But not that they cared, John Dowsett explained. "It is purely gambling from beginning to end," were Nathaniel Letton's words; "and we refuse to have anything to do with it or to take notice of it in any way."

During this time Daylight had several secret meetings with his partners—one with Leon Guggenhammer, one with John Dowsett, and two with Mr. Howison. Beyond congratulations, they really amounted to nothing; for, as he was informed, everything was going satisfactorily. But on Tuesday morning a rumor that was disconcerting came to Daylight's ears. It was also published in the Wall Street Journal, and it was to the effect, on apparently straight inside information, that on Thursday, when the directors of Ward Valley met, instead of the customary dividend being declared, an assessment would be levied. It was the first check Daylight had received. It came to him with a shock that if the thing were so he was a broken man. And it also came to him that all this colossal operating of his was being done on his own money. Dowsett, Guggenhammer and Letton were risking nothing. It was a panic, shortlived, it was true, but sharp enough while it lasted to make him remember Holdsworthy and the brick-yard, and to impel him to cancel all buying orders while he rushed to a telephone.

"Nothing in it—only a rumor," came Leon Guggenhammer's throaty voice in the receiver. "As you know," said Nathaniel Letton, "I am one of the directors, and I should certainly be aware of it were such action contemplated." And John Dowsett: "I warned you against just such rumors. There is not an iota of truth in it—certainly not. I tell you on my honor as a gentleman."

Heartily ashamed of himself for his temporary loss of nerve, Daylight returned to his task. The cessation of buying had turned the Stock Exchange into a bedlam, and down all the line of stocks the bears were smashing. Ward Valley, as the apex, received the brunt of the shock, and was already beginning to tumble. Daylight calmly doubled his buying orders. And all through Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday morning, he went on buying, while Ward Valley rose triumphantly higher. Still they sold, and still he bought, exceeding his power to buy many times over, when delivery was taken into account. What of that? On this day the double dividend would be declared, he assured himself. The pinch of delivery would be on the shorts. They would be making terms with him.

And then the thunderbolt struck. True to the rumor, Ward Valley levied the assessment. Daylight threw up his arms. He verified the report and quit. Not alone Ward Valley, but all securities were being hammered down by the triumphant bears. As for Ward Valley, Daylight did not even trouble to learn if it had fetched bottom or was still tumbling. Not stunned, not even bewildered, while Wall Street went mad, Daylight withdrew from the field to think it over. After a short conference with his brokers, he proceeded to his hotel, on the way picking up the evening papers and glancing at the head-lines. BURNING DAYLIGHT CLEANED OUT, he read; DAYLIGHT GETS HIS; ANOTHER WESTERNER FAILS TO FIND EASY MONEY.

He pushed up to his rooms, ordered a Martini cocktail, took off his shoes, and sat down to think. After half an hour he roused himself to take the drink, and as he felt the liquor penetrating through his body, the fine nerve material from a slow, deliberate and flawless grain, [illegible] as it should be.

"Impressed, by gosh!" he muttered.

HOW TO SUCCEED

During the last few years, conditions in all lines of business, even professional life, have changed so completely that every man is waking up to the fact that in order to win success he must specialize and learn to do some one thing and do it well.

So it is with any article that is sold to the people. It must have genuine merit or no amount of advertising will maintain the demand for the article.

For many years we have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy. From the very beginning the proprietors had so much confidence in it that they invited every one to test it, free of cost, before purchasing.

It is a physician's prescription.

They have on file thousands of letters received from former sufferers who are now enjoying good health as a result of its use.

However, if you wish first to try a sample bottle, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention this paper. They will gladly forward you a sample bottle by mail, absolutely free.

Regular sizes for sale at all druggists—fifty cents and one-dollar.

Misleading Sneezes.

"How did you come on with your study of the Russian language?"

"Not well. While I was trying to pronounce a few words our family physician came along and forced me to take all kinds of medicine to break up a cold."

THE SAFE LAXATIVE FOR ELDERLY PEOPLE

Most elderly people are more or less troubled with a chronic, persistent constipation, due largely to lack of sufficient exercise. They experience difficulty in digesting even light food, with a consequent belching of stomach gases, drowsiness after eating, headache and a feeling of lassitude and general discomfort.

Doctors advise against cathartics and violent purgatives of every kind, recommending a mild, gentle laxative tonic, like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, to effect relief without disturbing the entire system.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the perfect laxative, easy in action, certain in effect and, withal, pleasant to the taste. It possesses tonic properties that strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels and is a remedy that has been for years the great standby in thousands of families, and should be in every family medicine chest. It is equally as valuable for children as for older people.

Druggists everywhere sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried it send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and he will be very glad to send a sample bottle for trial.

TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL

After Operation Failed to Help, Mrs. Kendrick Found that Cardui Made Her Well.

Jonesville, S. C.—"I suffered with womanly trouble," writes Mrs. J. H. Kendrick, in a letter from Jonesville, "and at times, I could not bear to stand on my feet.

The doctor said I never would be any better, and that I would have to have an operation, or I would have a cancer.

I went to the hospital, and they operated on me, but I got no better.

They said medicines would do me no good, and I thought I would have to die.

At last, I tried Cardui, and I began to improve, so I continued using it. Now, I am well, and can do my own work. I don't feel any pains. Cardui worked like a charm."

There must be merit in this purely vegetable tonic remedy for women—Cardui—when it will help such an apparently hopeless case as this. Its ingredients are mild herbs, with a gentle, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution.

If you suffer from any symptoms of womanly trouble, take Cardui. It will help you to get well.

Cardui goes to the spot—reaches the trouble—relieves the symptoms, and drives away the cause.

Have you tried it? If not, do so. It may be just what you need.

Millions for Anti-Tuberculosis Work.

Money to the amount of over $14,500,000 was spent in anti-tuberculosis work during the year 1911, according to the third annual statement of expenditures in the war against consumption issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The statement is based largely on reports received from anti-tuberculosis agencies in all parts of the United States.

By far the largest item of expense was that for treatment in sanatoria and hospitals, and for the erection of institutions of this kind, over $11,800,000 being spent for this purpose alone. Dispensaries for the examination and treatment of tuberculosis spent $850,000, and associations and committees in their educational campaign against tuberculosis spent $500,000. The remaining $1,300,000 was spent for treatment in open-air schools, prisons and hospitals for the insane, and also for the work of state and local boards of health against tuberculosis.

"The Memory Lingers"

W. J. BRYAN VOTED DOWN

BADLY WORSTED IN ENCOUNTER WITH NATIONAL CHAIRMAN MACK.

THE SESSION IS HEATED

Fight Precipitated by Bryan Prevents Choosing Convention City and Naming the Date.

Washington.—William J. Bryan made his fight in the Democratic National Committee and lost. He made Col. James M. Guffey, member of the committee from Pennsylvania, the issue, and the committee declined to unseat Colonel Guffey by a vote of 30 to 18. Mr. Bryan once appealed from a decision of Chairman Mack, and was defeated 33 to 13.

The committee session was marked by extreme bitterness of feeling. Once the lie was passed and blows seemed imminent. Mr. Bryan from first to last was the central figure, and the fight he precipitated at the very moment the committee was called to order lasted throughout the session.

So much time was devoted to the contested seats in the committee that matters of choosing a convention city, fixing the time of the gathering, and adopting a form of call to include the "permissive primary" plan of selecting delegates went over until later.

It was predicted that Baltimore would be the convention city. The representatives of that city proudly displayed a certified check for $100,000 as their bid for the convention. St. Louis seemed to hold second place.

The committee began its sitting with open doors, but as soon as Mr. Bryan began his fight they were closed and remained so.

It is said there was no mincing of words by any of the speakers, but at the end of the day apologies were offered and when adjournment was taken all members seemed outwardly to be on the best of terms.

Colonel Guffey hurled the lie at Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, who was contesting for the seat. Later Colonel Guffey declared his temper momentarily had gotten the better of him and he was sorry. Mr. Palmer said that although he had been thrown out of the committee, he would continue to labor untiringly for the party. Mr. Palmer had previously asserted heatedly that if it were not for Colonel Guffey's gray hairs, matters would have had a more personal aspect. Mr. Bryan, arraying himself against some of his friends of old, including National Chairman Norman E. Mack and Senator William J. Stone of Missouri, fought desperately to the last and had the committee in a turmoil of excitement. He had been greeted with cheers when he entered the room bearing the proxy of Nebraska.

Mr. Bryan inveighed bitterly against Colonel Guffey and is said to have been unsparing in his arraignment of the Pennsylvania member. The feud between the two men is of old standing. Representative Palmer had accused Colonel Guffey of consorting with the Republican "machine" in Pennsylvania and of disloyalty to his party. Mr. Bryan repeated all of this and more. At the end, it is said, he had no apologies to offer and undoubtedly he will carry on his fight against Colonel Guffey.

At one time during his impassioned appeal to the committee to rid itself of "Guffey and Guffeyism," Mr. Bryan went so far as to threaten "an appeal to the people" if the committee should decide against him. The threat had no effect. Mr. Bryan said that thrice he had been a candidate for the presidency and that 6,500,00 voters had stood back of him. They were all Democrats, he asserted, and it was to the Democracy that he would make his appeal.

"If this committee does not do the right thing," he declared, "the people will do the right thing."

Immediately the report spread that Mr. Bryan had threatened the organization of a third party. This came on top of the conference between Mr. Bryan and Senator LaFollette and was given credence in some quarters. Mr. Bryan, however, laid emphasis on the fact that it was the Democrats to whom he would carry his appeal, and the third party talk died away for the time being.

It was a wet day, and in consequence the guests had to stay indoors. The young couple started to talk of their baby.

"My baby had just cut his first tooth," said the father proudly.

"Indeed?" said the other. "Well, mine cut his long ago."

"Our baby," said the first, "is just beginning to talk."

"Ours," said the second, "cannot only talk, but read."

"Knows his letters already, does he?" said the first, with a note of jealousy in his voice.

"Oh, yes, indeed!" said the other. "And can figure like an expert accountant."

"Really?" said the first. "Then he must be older than mine. How old is your baby?"

"Mother," said the second, addressing his wife, "how old is Willie?"

"Nineteen," said mother.—Judge.

Reconnoitered.

Mamma was dressing when seven-year-old Freddy burst into the room with a loud "Boo!"

"Why, Freddie, dear," expostulated she, "you mustn't open my door without knocking. I mightn't have been dressed at all."

"Oh, this was all right," said Freddy, "I looked through the keyhole first."—Judge.

PITIFUL SIGHT WITH ECZEMA

"A few days after birth we noticed an inflamed spot on our baby's hip which soon began spreading until baby was completely covered even in his eyes, ears and scalp. For eight weeks he was bandaged from head to foot. He could not have a stitch of clothing on. Our regular physician pronounced it chronic eczema. He is a very able physician and ranks with the best in this locality, nevertheless, the disease began spreading until baby was completely covered. He was losing flesh so rapidly that we became alarmed and decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

"Not until I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment could we tell what he looked like, as we dared not wash him, and I had been putting one application after another on him. On removing the scale from his head the hair came off, and left him entirely bald, but since we have been using Cuticura Soap and Ointment he has as much hair as ever. Four weeks after we began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment he was entirely cured. I don't believe anyone could have eczema worse than our baby.

"Before we used the Cuticura Remedies we could hardly look at him, he was such a pitiful sight. He would fuss until I would treat him, they seemed to relieve him so much. Cuticura Soap and Ointment stand by themselves and the result they quickly and surely bring is their own recommendation." (Signed) Mrs. T. B. Rosser, Mill Hall, Pa., Feb. 26, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 29 K, Boston.

HAVE YOU SUSPECTED YOUR KIDNEYS?

There are two ways to tell whether you have weak kidneys.

The first is through the pains in the back and other outward signs. The second is by examination of the kidney secretions.

That is why physicians make such a careful examination when you apply for insurance, and if there is any sign of kidney trouble you are surely rejected.

Kidney disease is so dangerous that it is a bad mistake to overlook or neglect it, and if pain in the back, recurring headaches, or a fretful, nervous, tired condition makes you suspect some kidney trouble, take the trouble to watch the kidney secretions. Look for any of the following signs:

More or less than three and one half pints passed daily.
Too dark or too pale a color.
Passages too frequent, profuse, or much reduced, or scalding and painful.
Sandy, gritty or cloudy settlings.
Fat or oily-looking layer which gathers on the surface when allowed to stand, or a jelly-like thickening.
Staining of the linen or bad odor.

Temporary changes may occur for a time from things eaten, but if the changed appearance continues, your kidneys are out of order and need help. Neglect may prove serious.

Doan's Kidney Pills correct and regulate the kidney secretions, stimulate and heal sick kidneys, and thereby drive away backache, rheumatic pain, nervousness, dizziness, bloating and other results of kidney disease.

The following case is typical of the cures effected by Doan's Kidney Pills. Grateful testimony is the best evidence.

There are Two Ways to Find Out Whether the Kidneys are Weak or Sick

"Oh, what a pain!"

LOST 35 POUNDS.

Made Well by Curing the Weakened Kidneys.

Adelbert E. Perkins, No. 82 Mechanic Street, Danielson, Conn., says: "The pain and weakness in my back was simply agonizing. I often thought I would break in two. Then I began to pass gravel, and only those who have had this trouble can understand what I went through. Every time I passed a stone, it would tear its way through my kidneys until I thought I would die. For three years my kidneys were so tender I could not lie down without a pillow being placed beneath my back. Coupled with what I have told you, I had terrible headaches and dizzy spells which almost drove me crazy. I ran down in weight until I was only a shadow of my former self, having lost over thirty-five pounds. Sick, weak, and discouraged, I resolved to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial. I improved from the first and at the end of seven weeks, I was cured—cured to stay cured, which is proven by my being free from the disease for nearly three years."

PUBLIC FUNDS AID THE WORK

Gratifying Sign That the People Are Awake to Value of Fight Against Tuberculosis.

Compared with the expenditures for tuberculosis work in 1910, those of the past year are practically the same in the aggregate, but they are almost double those of 1909. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, in its third annual statement, points out, however, what it considers more significant than the aggregate expenditures, namely, that the percentage of money spent from public funds is greater in 1911 than ever before, being 66.2 per cent of the total. In 1909 only 53.5 per cent of the total expenditures was from public funds, and in 1910 it had increased to 62.6 per cent. In 1911 over $9,600,00 of the $14,500,000 spent was from federal, state, municipal or county funds. Since the chief work of the anti-tuberculosis associations is to urge the public authorities to provide for tuberculosis patients, and thus to assume the responsibility for stamping out this disease, the increased percentage of public money is regarded as a very favorable sign of progress.

Appropriations of over $10,000,000 for tuberculosis work in 1912 have already been made by state legislatures and municipal and county bodies. Of this sum about $4,700,000 is from state appropriations, and about $5,700,000 for county and municipal purposes. In addition to these sums, the federal government spends about $1,000,000 every year supporting its several special tuberculosis sanatoria.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. CLANTON PRESS

PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF CHILTON COUNTY AND HER PEOPLE

VOL 2. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 18, 1912. NO. 43

MR. ADAMS ANNOUNCES

WOULD BE COUNTY TREASURER. A CAPABLE MAN WHO HAS SEEN SERVICE.

We take pleasure in enrolling among the list of candidates who will seek the favor of the people at the coming democratic primary election the name of Mr. E. H. Adams of Thorsby, who seeks the office of County Treasurer. It would be unseemly in the Press to undertake to introduce Mr. Adams to the people of Chilton county; he has seen public service and discharged his duties to the full satisfaction of all the people. He is a man of progressive ideas and methods and never flinches at the discharge of duty, however disagreeable that duty may be. Having been connected with the office of Probate Judge for some years, he is naturally conversant with all the duties of the office which he seeks and will make a capable official in the event he is nominated.

Mr. Adams comes from a section which has not heretofore been furnishing a large number of democratic candidates, though that section is now almost solidly for the democracy—having learned through experience that democrats make no boasts but perform duty.

Aside from his other qualifications Mr. Adams is a man of fine address, a thorough conversationist and a practical man of business experience.

In presenting his name to the democracy the Press feels that we are giving to the general public the name of a man who, if nominated, will serve them faithfully and well.

COMPLIMENTARY TO MR. OWENS.

GOODS-ROADS ADVOCATE PRAISES WORK OF OVERSEER.

Editor Press:—

I notice in the papers of last week a few citizens want to call a meeting for the purpose of going back to the old system of working the roads. In most everything done the slogan is "FORWARD" but in this movement "BACKWARD" seems to be the prevailing idea with those who signed the call. But, my friends, maybe your trouble is in the overseer and yourselves also. How many of those who signed the call help the crew when they come your way? Whoever heard of stumps being removed under the old system? Of course the present system is not ideal; it ought to be amended so that the best men will be overseers regardless of how they vote. Let them pass examinations for the place just like the school system requires, and if he says he will dig a ditch along the side of the road down one of our sand hills or throw up a bank across the road he should be turned down. If any of the overseers are not giving satisfaction, perhaps they are incompetent. If such is the case just send them out to Beat Six and let them stay with Bob Owens a few days and learn how roads should be made. He grades his roads with about a five inch slope from the center to the shoulder, and not ditch, but shoulder. Of course it is slow, but we are to get more money in the Spring and Summer. Grade them up as he does, you who are dissatisfied, and I am sure you will like it better, always remembering tha great systems are not changed in a day.

Yours truly,
One for Goods Roads.

The 1913 calendar man is abroad in the land placing his orders for the coming year.

TRAFFIC CONSIDERABLY DELAYED

TRIFLING MISHAP CAUSES MUCH TROUBLE.

Monday night traffic on the L. & N. between Montgomery and Birmingham was considerably delayed by a trifling mishap to an arch-bar on one of the coal cars attached to a local freight.

The accident occurred one mile south of Thorsby, causing all north bound trains to be held at Clanton for ten or more hours, aud all south bound trains to be delayed at Jemison for the same length of time.

There were six trains side-tracked at Clanton awaiting the clearing of the track, which was considerably worsted by the accident, among them the fast through passenger, which was delayed here from ten o'clock at night till early Tuesday morning.

WHAT DID COL. ROOSEVELT SAY?

New York, Jan. 10.—Just what did Col. Roosevelt say as to his possible candidacy for the presidency in his speech at the Aldine club last night?

This is a vexing question in New York today. Reporters were barred from the gathering at the colonel's request and the account of his speech, given today by those who heard him, varied widely.

The first man to leave the club quoted Col. Roosevelt as saying:

"I am not a candidate for the presidency, but if nominated I will run."

The next man out declared Roosevelt had said:

"I am not a candidate; I will not be a candidate. I do not want to be a candidate."

Another man declared that all the colonel said was:

"I am the most misrepresented man in America."

The Chilton County School Improvement Association will hold an Educational Rally at Samaria, school house, on Friday evening, Jan. 19, 1912. Quite a number of good speakers will be present to address the people. Everybody is cordially invited to be present. Speaking will begin promptly at 7 o'clock.

Mabel Louise Jones, President Chilton County School Improvement Association.

NOTICE TO INTERESTED PARTIES

There will be another general mass meeting at the Court House in Clanton, on Saturday the 27th day of January 1912, at Ten o'clock in the morning for the purpose of arranging for the curtailment of the cotton crop for the coming season and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

All interested in the prosperity of the south, and especially of the cotton producer, are especially invited to attend.

This call is made at the suggestion of the Southern Cotton Congress and is in line with the policies of the Cotton Growers and Business Men's Association recently organized in Clanton.

MR. J. D. SIMS

ANNOUNCES FOR COMMISSIONER FROM FOURTH DISTRICT.

Along with the other announcements in the Press will be found that of Mr. J. D. Sims for the office of Commissioner from the Fourth District.

Mr. Sims needs no introduction to the people of Chilton county; he is familiarly known in almost every section of the county and wherever he is known he is held in high esteem.

As to the qualifications of Mr. Sims for the office he seeks it is unnecessary for the Press to speak, for everyone knows that when J. D. Sims undertakes a matter he always puts his whole hear into its accomplishment and succeeds even better than he himself anticipated.

His brand of democracy is of the simon pure variety; it knows no variableness, neither shadow of turning.

Being a successful farmer and business man he is well equipped for the discharge of the duties of the office to which he aspires. He knows the needs of the rural sections and will not hesitate to give those needs his undivided attention

Should the democracy make J. D. Sims its standard bearer for Commissioner from the Fourth District, the people of Chilton will secure the services of an able, efficient and conscientious servant.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF O. O. ROPER

SEEKS COMMISSIONERSHIP.

Along with several others will be found the announcement of Mr. Orrville O. Roper of Clanton, asking the democrats of the Fourth District to nominate him as the democratic candidate for commissioner from the Fourth District. Mr. Roper is a born hustler; he has never known what it is to be idle and is thoroughly acquainted with the duties and responsibilities of the office which he seeks. Being a business man as well as an agriculturist he is altogether capable of discharging the duties of the office and would make the people of Chilton a competent and painstaking Commissioner.

At this particular time, when road matters are agitating the minds of the banker, merchant, professional man and farmer, it would be well for democrats to think deeply and select for Commissioners men who are in touch with the people and who are competent to discharge the duties of the office; who will safeguard the interests of the county and give to the people the best results for the money expended.

We believe Mr. Roper to be such a man; the people can safely trust him to perform his duties without fear or favor.

YE BIVALVES FAT

TO BE SERVED SATURDAY. THE PRIDE of BON-SECOUR

All day Saturday next, at the Clanton Drug Co.'s place (the VanDerveer store,) the Ladies of the School Improvement Society, are to serve OYSTERS for the benefit of the School Improvement Fund.

This is labor of love on the part of these ladies and should receive the encouragement of every one in town.

Remember the place—Don't forget the date.

CLANTON'S NEW ENTERPRISE

TWO THRIFTY MEN DOING THINGS

In the past few days two of Clanton's energetic business men have inaugurated a new enterprise for the town that will eventually prove of material benefit to the town and county.

Messrs. P. T. Hinkle and W. W. Langley have combined their efforts and are now shipping to the outside world the best brand of pure pork sausage that can be made. It is strictly a home product and deserves more than passing notice. Aside from the fact that they are raising a large number of porkers, it will stimulate others to raise more meat at home for with the new institution well established it insures a home market for all the meat that can possibly be raised.

The Press man has tasted of the products of the new concern and unhesitatingly pronounces it of the "Blue Ribbon variety."

THE DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

ADDRESSES THE VOTERS. WHATEVLR YOUR POLITICS ACT ON THE SUGGESTION.

Dear Sir:—

At a recent meeting of this committee the undersigned were appointed to draft a letter to you and to others with reference to the payment of poll taxes. As you doubtless know, the law of this State provides that no person who is behind in the payment of poll tax can vote in any election held in the State. You are also acquainted with the fact, no doubt, that poll taxes must be paid on or before the FIRST day of FEBRUARY in each year to entitle the payee to vote. That day is fast approaching and unless your poll tax for the year has been payed we urge you to delay no longer in its payment. If possible come or send to the Tax Collector immediately upon receipt of this letter and settle your poll tax.

The present year is going to be one of great moment to the people of Chilton county; we will not only have to select several county officers but a Congrsssman from the State-at-large, a Congressman from this District and several important State officers are to be chosen. Then, too, we will have the selection of Presidential electors whose duty it shall be to cast the vote of this State in the selection of a President of our government. We are to determine by our votes whether or not we wish to live under a high protective tariff which protects no one except those of the north and west and leaves without protection the cotton growers of the south. The wool growers, the money barons, the railroad manipulators and those of the north who fix the price of your cotton are amply protected by this system of high protective tariff, but we who are the actual producers, have no protection under the present system of government and it is to this end that we are asking you to pay your poll tax and cast your vote with us at the coming primary and the General election.

We firmly believe, and are convinced, that if the farmers of the south will register their votes this year in favor of a low tariff which will allow the producers of various sections of this country and other countries to compete on a basis of equality our planters and merchants will reap a great benefit where previously they have had to bear the burden that others might derive the benefit.

The tariff, it is true, will not be so great an issue in our county, as the State will undoubtedly vote overwhelmingly for a low tariff man, regardless of how Chilton casts her vote; but we earnestly desire our county to get in line with the other counties of the State so that at all times we may have recognition at the hands of the State and National Administrations—a thing which we have not had for many years, and which has greatly retarded us in our growth and importance among the counties of the State. There is no county so well favored, geographically, as is ours and the one great reason why we do not forge to the forefront is that we have not been in line with the great State of which we are but a small part, in matters of politics and progressiveness.

Your committee desires to enlist the aid and influence of every white man in the county to the end that we may make known to the world that our county is ready and willing to support such measures as will bring relief to our farmers and peace and prosperity to our women and children. We believe yea, we even assert without the fear of successful contradiction that if Chilton county registers her choice with the Democrats this year, it will be but a few short months before her people will come into the birthright which is properly their own; but if we refuse to align ourselves with the dominant party in the State, or through carelessness or indifference, refuse to take our stand with that party, it will be many years before we shall be able to recover from the fearful mistake.

We have no personal interest in this matter that is not also your personal interest, but we have studied the matter from every point of view and we give it as our candid, unbiased opinion that no opportunity has ever been presented to the people of Chilton county which will or could be fraught with more good or evil to our citizens than is the opportunity which the Democracy presents this year—good if they cast their votes as the vast majority of the white citizens of the State are going to cast theirs—with the Democracy or evil, if they continue to align themselves with that party which has always stood for the money kings, monopolies and market manipulators and against the honest toilers of the South.

Again, we respectfully urge you to pay your poll tax and come with us—we will do thee good. If you have paid your tax, then see your neighbors and friends and urge them to do so and to cast their lots with us with the assurance that the day is dawning when our citizens shall be freed by the Democracy, from the shackles which the plutocrats of the Republican party have for so many years welded upon our honest toilers.

With assurances of personal regard, we are,

Yours sincerely,

CLANTON TO ORGANIZE AN UNDERWOOD CLUB

FRIENDS OF UNDERWOOD ACTIVE IN CHILTON.

So enthused have the citizens of Chilton become over the prospects of Hon. Oscar Underwood receiving the democratic nomination for president that they have determined to organize, at once, an Underwood club and to go actively to work in the interests of this popular Alabamian who will without doubt receive the united support of the Alabama delegation at the Baltimore convention.

The call for organization reads as follows:

We the undersigned citizens of Chilton county agree to meet at the Court House in Clanton, Alabama on Saturday night the 20th day of January 1912, at 7:30 for the purpose of organizing an Underwood Club in the interest of Hon. Oscar W. Underwood as a candidate for the presidency of the United States.

The above agreement is signed as follows:—

Thos. A. Curry, W. H. Foshee, D. Y. Johnson, H. T. Pipes, J. E. Gowan, T. C. McSwain, E. G. Hyman, J. A. Hester, W. H. Taylor, P. I. Hopkins, C. M. Cox, J. Watts Moore, G. C. Harris, J. R. MR. ADAMS ANNOUNCES

WOULD BE COUNTY TREASURER. A CAPABLE MAN WHO HAS SEEN SERVICE.

We take pleasure in enrolling among the list of candidates who will seek the favor of the people at the coming democratic primary election the name of Mr. E. H. Adams of Thorsby, who seeks the office of County Treasurer. It would be unseemly in the Press to undertake to introduce Mr. Adams to the people of Chilton county; he has seen public service and discharged his duties to the full satisfaction of all the people. He is a man of progressive ideas and methods and never flinches at the discharge of duty, however disagreeable that duty may be. Having been connected with the office of Probate Judge for some years, he is naturally conversant with all the duties of the office which he seeks and will make a capable official in the event he is nominated.

Mr. Adams comes from a section which has not heretofore been furnishing a large number of democratic candidates, though that section is now almost solidly for the democracy—having learned through experience that democrats make no boasts but perform duty.

Aside from his other qualifications Mr. Adams is a man of fine address, a thorough conversationist and a practical man of business experience.

In presenting his name to the democracy the Press feels that we are giving to the general public the name of a man who, if nominated, will serve them faithfully and well.

COMPLIMENTARY TO MR. OWENS

GOODS-ROADS ADVOCATE PRAISES WORK OF OVERSEER.

Editor Press:—

I notice in the papers of last week a few citizens want to call a meeting for the purpose of going back to the old system of working the roads. In most everything done the slogan is "FORWARD" but in this movement "BACKWARD" seems to be the prevailing idea with those who signed the call. But, my friends, maybe your trouble is in the overseer and yourselves also. How many of those who signed the call help the crew when they come your way? Whoever heard of stumps being removed under the old system? Of course the present system is not ideal; it ought to be amended so that the best men will be overseers regardless of how they vote. Let them pass examinations for the place just like the school system requires, and if he says he will dig a ditch along the side of the road down one of our sand hills or throw up a bank across the road he should be turned down. If any of the overseers are not giving satisfaction, perhaps they are incompetent. If such is the case just send them out to Beat Six and let them stay with Bob Owens a few days and learn how roads should be made. He grades his roads with about a five inch slope from the center to the shoulder, and not ditch, but shoulder. Of course it is slow, but we are to get more money in the Spring and Summer. Grade them up as he does, you who are dissatisfied, and I am sure you will like it better, always remembering the great systems are not changed in a day.

Yours truly,
One for Goods Roads.

TRAFFIC CONSIDERABLY DELAYED

TRIFLING MISHAP CAUSES MUCH TROUBLE.

Monday night traffic on the L. & N. between Montgomery and Birmingham was considerably delayed by a trifling mishap to an arch-bar on one of the coal cars attached to a local freight.

The accident occurred one mile south of Thorsby, causing all north bound trains to be held at Clanton for ten or more hours, aud all south bound trains to be delayed at Jemison for the same length of time.

There were six trains side-tracked at Clanton awaiting the clearing of the track, which was considerably worsted by the accident, among them the fast through passenger, which was delayed here from ten o'clock at night till early Tuesday morning.

WHAT DID COL. ROOSEVELT SAY?

New York, Jan. 10.—Just what did Col. Roosevelt say as to his possible candidacy for the presidency in his speech at the Aldine club last night?

This is a vexing question in New York today. Reporters were barred from the gathering at the colonel's request and the account of his speech, given today by those who heard him, varied widely.

The first man to leave the club quoted Col. Roosevelt as saying:

"I am not a candidate for the presidency, but if nominated I will run."

The next man out declared Roosevelt had said:

"I am not a candidate; I will not be a candidate. I do not want to be a candidate."

Another man declared that all the colonel said was:

"I am the most misrepresented man in America."

The Chilton County School Improvement Association will hold an Educational Rally at Samaria, school house, on Friday evening, Jan. 19, 1912. Quite a number of good speakers will be present to address the people. Everybody is cordially invited to be present. Speaking will begin promptly at 7 o'clock.

Mabel Louise Jones, President Chilton County School Improvement Association.

NOTICE TO INTERESTED PARTIES

There will be another general mass meeting at the Court House in Clanton, on Saturday the 27th day of January 1912, at Ten o'clock in the morning for the purpose of arranging for the curtailment of the cotton crop for the coming season and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

All interested in the prosperity of the south, and especially of the cotton producer, are especially invited to attend.

This call is made at the suggestion of the Southern Cotton Congress and is in line with the policies of the Cotton Growers and Business Men's Association recently organized in Clanton.

MR. J. D. SIMS

ANNOUNCES FOR COMMISSIONER FROM FOURTH DISTRICT.

Along with the other announcements in the Press will be found that of Mr. J. D. Sims for the office of Commissioner from the Fourth District.

Mr. Sims needs no introduction to the people of Chilton county; he is familiarly known in almost every section of the county and wherever he is known he is held in high esteem.

As to the qualifications of Mr. Sims for the office he seeks it is unnecessary for the Press to speak, for everyone knows that when J. D. Sims undertakes a matter he always puts his whole hear into its accomplishment and succeeds even better than he himself anticipated.

His brand of democracy is of the simon pure variety; it knows no variableness, neither shadow of turning.

Being a successful farmer and business man he is well equipped for the discharge of the duties of the office to which he aspires. He knows the needs of the rural sections and will not hesitate to give those needs his undivided attention

Should the democracy make J. D. Sims its standard bearer for Commissioner from the Fourth District, the people of Chilton will secure the services of an able, efficient and conscientious servant.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF O. O. ROPER

SEEKS COMMISSIONERSHIP.

Along with several others will be found the announcement of Mr. Orrville O. Roper of Clanton, asking the democrats of the Fourth District to nominate him as the democratic candidate for commissioner from the Fourth District. Mr. Roper is a born hustler, he has never known what it is to be idle and is thoroughly acquainted with the duties and responsibilities of the office, which he seeks. He is a business man as well as an agriculturist he is always able of discharging the duties of the office and will serve the people of Clanton's county faithfully and well.

At this particular time, when road matters are agitating the minds of the banker, merchant, professional man and farmer, it would be well for democrats to think deeply and select for Commissioners men who are in touch with the people and who are competent to discharge the duties of the office; who will safeguard the interests of the county and give to the people the best results for the money expended.

We believe Mr. Roper to be such a man; the people can safely trust him to perform his duties without fear or favor.

THE DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

ADDRESSES THE VOTERS. WHATEVLR YOUR POLITICS ACT ON THE SUGGESTION.

Dear Sir:—

At a recent meeting of this committee the undersigned were appointed to draft a letter to you and to others with reference to the payment of poll taxes. As you doubtless know, the law of this State provides that no person who is behind in the payment of poll tax can vote in any election held in the State. You are also acquainted with the fact, no doubt, that poll taxes must be paid on or before the FIRST day of FEBRUARY in each year to entitle the payee to vote. That day is fast approaching and unless your poll tax for the year has been payed we urge you to delay no longer in its payment. If possible come or send to the Tax Collector immediately upon receipt of this letter and settle your poll tax.

The present year is going to be one of great moment to the people of Chilton county; we will not only have to select several county officers but a Congrsssman from the State-at-large, a Congressman from this District and several important State officers are to be chosen. Then, too, we will have the selection of Presidential electors whose duty it shall be to cast the vote of this State in the selection of a President of our government. We are to determine by our votes whether or not we wish to live under a high protective tariff which protects no one except those of the north and west and leaves without protection the cotton growers of the south. The wool growers, the money barons, the railroad manipulators and those of the north who fix the price of your cotton are amply protected by this system of high protective tariff, but we who are the actual producers, have no protection under the present system of government and it is to this end that we are asking you to pay your poll tax and cast your vote with us at the coming primary and the General election.

We firmly believe, and are convinced, that if the farmers of the south will register their votes this year in favor of a low tariff which will allow the producers of various sections of this country and other countries to compete on a basis of equality our planters and merchants will reap a great benefit where previously they have had to bear the burden that others might derive the benefit.

The tariff, it is true, will not be so great an issue in our county, as the State will undoubtedly vote overwhelmingly for a low tariff man, regardless of how Chilton casts her vote; but we earnestly desire our county to get in line with the other counties of the State so that at all times we may have recognition at the hands of the State and National Administrations—a thing which we have not had for many years, and which has greatly retarded us in our growth and importance among the counties of the State. There is no county so well fovored, geographically, as is ours and the one great reason why we do not forge to the forefront is that we have not been in line with the great State of which we are but a small part, in matters of politics and progressiveness.

Your committee desires to enlist the aid and influence of every white man in the county to the end that we may [illegible] known to the world that our county is ready and [illegible] yea, we even assert without the fear of successful contradiction that if Chilton county registers her choice with the Democrats this year, it will be but a few short months before her people will come into the birthright which is properly their own; but if we refuse to align ourselves with the dominant party in the State, or through carelessness or indifference, refuse to take our stand with that party, it will be many years before we shall be able to recover from the fearful mistake.

Why He Couldn't Sit Down.

Harry, aged six, is an orphan; but an indulgent grandmother and kind maiden aunt have taken care of him. The first pair of knickerbockers were secured recently, and it was a proud moment for the boy when his aunt put them on him on Sunday morning and he was permitted to go to church with his grandmother. Naturally maiden aunts know very little about the arrangement of knickerbockers, and there was a suspicious fullness in front and an equally mystifying tightness in the back to be observed, as the little chap trudged happily along. In church Harry sat down, but did not appear comfortable and stood up. "Harry, sit down," whispered his grandmother. He obediently climbed back on the seat, but soon slipped off again. "Harry, you must sit down." "Grandma, I can't. My pants is choking me." She looked more closely than her dim sight had before permitted, and discovered the new little knickerbockers were on hind side before. Harry stood up during the remainder of the service.

A Hold-Up

An Oppressive Trust.

Before the Coffee Roasters' Association, in session at Chicago on Thursday, Thomas J. Webb, of Chicago, charged that there is in existence a coffee combine which is "the most monstrous imposition in the history of human commerce."

There is very slight exaggeration about this statement. It comes very close to being literally true. There is a coffee combine in Brazil, from which country comes the bulk of the coffee used in the United States, which is backed by the government of Brazil and financed by it, which compels American consumers, as Mr. Webb said, "to pay famine prices for coffee when no famine exists."

The worst thing about this is that the consumers of the United States have been compelled to put up the money through which this combine, to further cinch them, has been made effective. There were formerly revenue duties imposed upon all coffee entering the United States. Those taxes were denounced as an imposition upon the people; as taxing the poor man's breakfast table, and the like. The taxes were removed. Immediately thereafter Brazil imposed an export duty upon coffee up to the full amount of the former customs taxes in this country. The revenue which formerly went into the treasury of the United States was diverted to the treasury of Brazil. The poor man's breakfast coffee continued to cost him the same old price.

But this was only the commencement. The "valorization" plan was evolved in Brazil. Through this plan the government, using the revenues derived from the export duties for the purposes, takes all of the surplus crop in a season of large yields and holds it off the market, thus keeping the supply down to the demands of the market and permitting the planters to receive a much higher price than they would otherwise have done.

The United States consumes more Brazilian coffee than does the rest of the world. We are the best customers of Brazil, and Brazil buys little from us. Now Brazil is promoting, financing and maintaining a trust designed, and working effectively for the purpose, to compel American consumers to pay an exorbitant price for the coffee they use. What is the remedy?—Seattle Post-Intelligencer—Nov. 19, 1911.

Standard statistics of the coffee trade show a falling off in sales during the last two years of over two hundred million pounds. Authenticated reports from the Postum factories in this city show a tremendous increase in the sale of Postum in a like period of time.

While the sales of Postum invariably show marked increase year over year, the extraordinary demand for that well-known breakfast beverage during 1911 is very likely due to a public awakening to the oppression of the coffee trust.

Such an awakening naturally disposes the multitude who suffer from the ill effects of coffee drinking to be more receptive to knowledge of harm which so often comes as a result of the use of the drug-beverage, coffee.—Battle Creek Evening News—Dec. 19, 1911.

Economy to one's purse is not the main reason for using Postum.

It is absolutely free from any harmful substance, such as "caffeine" (the drug in coffee), to which so much of the nervousness, biliousness and indigestion of today are due. Thousands of former coffee drinkers now use Postum because they know from experience the harm that coffee drinking causes.

A SEVERE SICKNESS LEAVES THE KIDNEYS WEAK

After recovering from a severe spell of sickness some time ago, I was all run down and suffering from poor blood. I would have pains in my back and hips and my kidneys bothered me all the time. I started taking Swamp-Root upon the recommendation of a friend and found it was just what I needed. My blood became all right and after taking a few bottles, I was surprised at the effect it had on my kidneys. They were entirely cured and I have much to be thankful for that your great remedy did for me.

"I have a poem here entitled 'Alone with Nature,'" said the sallow young man with the long hair and the frayed trousers. "It is a personal impression."

"I have, and, oh, it is glorious—glorious!"

"Here's a dime. Get on a trolley car and ride as far as you can. Go back to nature and spend another hour or two alone with her. You say you plucked the hazel blossoms by the stream. If you are able to find any place where you can do that let me know. I want to watch you while you do it."

SPANISH CABINET RESIGNS IN BODY

CAUSED BY DIFFERENCE WITH HIS HIGHNESS, KING ALFONSO.

THE RADICALS ARE ACTIVE

Order for Execution of Strikers Causes a Cry to Be Raised Against the Government.

Madrid.—The Spanish cabinet, of which Jose Canalejos Y. Mendas was premier, has resigned.

The cabinet resigned as a result of the divergence of views with King Alfonso as to the advisability of commuting the death sentence of one of the rioters who murdered a judge and wounded several court officials in the town of Cullera, province of Valencia, last September.

The general strike at that time in Valencia and other provinces involved a plot to assassinate General Weyler, and the king was compelled to suspend the constitutional guarantee.

The trial of the strikers concerned in the Cullera murder has engrossed public attention to the exclusion of all else for some time past, thanks to the skillful campaign of the radicals, who seized upon the affair as a weapon to attack the government in the same way as they utilized the refusal to reprieve Francisco Ferrer, dictator of the modern school, who was executed in 1909, to bring about the downfall of the Maura cabinet.

Realizing that it was a sordid crime and that the accused men were impossible objects of sympathy, the radicals raised a false issue, accusing the government of all sorts of tortures and cruelty toward the prisoners. Consequently the agitation spread with great rapidity and caused grave concern to Premier Canalejas.

The rioters were first tried before a military court last month, and six of them were sentenced to death. The case then went to the supreme council of war and marine for revision, and the council condemned all seven prisoners to death. Numerous petitions in favor of a reprieve have flowed in ever since the first trial, and it was evident that the whole nation strongly desired that the men should not suffer the death penalty.

Premier Canalejos advised the king to exercise his prerogative in the case of the six prisoners, but held that the seventh should be made an example of in the interest of law and order. The agitation had by this time reached formidable proportions, the radicals issuing a decree calling for a general strike if Chuqueta was executed. The premier in his own words then realized that the exclusion of Chuqueta from a reprieve was a political blunder, and learning that the king was of the same opinion, he went with his colleagues to the palace, where the king declared that he favored a reprieve for Chuqueta.

King Alfonso urged him to reconsider his determination, but he remained firm.

$250,000 FIRE IN BIRMINGHAM.

Bell Telephone Company Almost Completely Out of Business.

Birmingham.—Damage roughly estimated at between $250,000 and $300,000 was caused by fire which broke out on Second avenue between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets. The estimate of the insurance is placed at $240,000 on the entire fire.

The firms damaged are:

Cable Piano Company, 1816-1818 Second avenue; loss, $30,000.

W. D. Colby Decorating Company; loss, $10,000.

E. B. Peddinghaus, photographer; loss, $8,000.

Alabama Wall Paper Company; loss, $5,000.

Birmingham Conservatory of Music; loss, $10,000.

Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company; loss, $150,000.

All of the firms except the Bell Telephone Company occupied a building owned by T. H. Molton and valued at about $45,000. The Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company owned and occupied its own building, which, with its contents, is valued at $300,000.

The telephone operators were taken out of the Bell building and the exchange abandoned shortly after the fire.

The exchange will be out of service ephone company.

Move Troops to Hawaii.

Washington.—Following close upon the alarming statement made by Maj. Gen. William H. Carter before the House Committee on Military Affairs, that 250,000 Japanese soldiers are now in Hawaii ready to wrest that invaluable possession from the United States, the War Department admitted that definite plans are now complete to equip and rush an entire division of troops, recruited to war strength, to those islands for permanent service.

Had to Put in Human Interest.

An old negro preacher, says the Atlanta Constitution, gave as his text: "De tree is known by its fruit, an' it's des impossible to shake de possum down."

After the benediction an old brother said to him:

"I never knowed befo' dat sich a text wuz in de Bible."

"Well," admitted the preacher, "it ain't set down dat way. I throwed in de possum to hit de intelligence of my congregation!"

IN AGONY WITH ITCHING

"About four years ago I broke out with sores on my arms like boils. After two months they were all over my body, some coming, and some going away. In about six months the boils quit, but my arms, neck and body broke out with an itching, burning rash. It would burn and itch, and come out in pimples like grains of wheat. I was in a terrible condition; I could not sleep or rest. Parts of my flesh were raw, and I could scarcely bear my clothes on. I could not lie in bed in any position and rest. In about a year the sores extended down to my feet. Then I suffered agony with the burning, itching sores. I could hardly walk and for a long time I could not put on socks.

"All this time I was trying everything I could hear of, and had the skill of three doctors. They said it was eczema. I got no benefit from all this. I was nearly worn out, and had given up in despair of ever being cured when I was advised by a friend to try Cuticura Remedies. I purchased Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent, and used exactly as directed. I used the Cuticura Remedies constantly for four months, and nothing else, and was perfectly cured. It is now a year, and I have not had the least bit since. I am ready to praise the Cuticura Remedies at any time. (Signed) E. L. Cate, Exile, Ky., Nov. 10, 1910.

IN LESS STRENUOUS TIMES

Explanation of the Difference Between Domestic Standards Now and Those of Long Ago.

In the Woman's Home Companion there is an interesting presentation of the difference that exists between the domestic standard of young married women of today and those of the past generation. How did the women of the middle class of a generation or two ago manage when they could not keep help? Following is the answer quoted from a Companion editorial:

"They lived according to their means; they did not set up impossible standards, and they knew much less about the science of bringing up children. They had no special style to keep up; gave the children a weekly bath; kept the table set between meals; did not serve their meals in courses, but put all the food on the table at once; confined their social affairs to evening calls and parties, and church suppers, at which they wore the same black silk dress for at least two seasons; in short, every woman did only what she could, and her friends made it easier for her by doing likewise."

RECOGNIZED THE ACTION.

Little Nell—I didn't know that they played "I Spy" in church, mamma.

Mamma—What do you mean, my child?

Little Nell—Why, the preacher said "Let's Play," and everybody held their hands up to their faces.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Prest., Buffalo, N. Y.

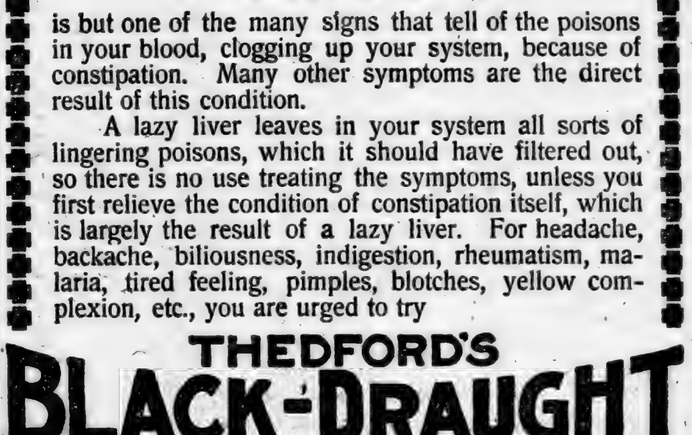
Headache

is but one of the many signs that tell of the poisons in your blood, clogging up your system, because of constipation. Many other symptoms are the direct result of this condition.

A lazy liver leaves in your system all sorts of lingering poisons, which it should have filtered out, so there is no use treating the symptoms, unless you first relieve the condition of constipation itself, which is largely the result of a lazy liver. For headache, backache, biliousness, indigestion, rheumatism, malaria, tired feeling, pimples, blotches, yellow complexion, etc., you are urged to try



THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

Pure, reliable, strictly vegetable, this popular liver remedy has been in successful use for more than 70 years.

Mrs. Hannah Wieneke, of Otterville, Ill., says: "From the time I was 10 years old, I had very bad sick headaches, quite often, and at times, I was simply blind. An old lady came to our house, and induced me to try Thedford's Black-Draught. In a little while, I was all right. It simply saved my life, and I can't praise it enough."

Ask for Thedford's. You will never regret it. At all drug stores. Price 25 cents.

Mr. W. J. Bryan of Nebraska is scarcely a factor in national politics now; whenever he opens his mouth he puts his foot into it and then gets severely squelched for the attempted acrobatic bout.

Now that Jos. O. Thompson, he of mighty power in republican politics in days agone, has openly declared for Roosevelt in preference to Taft, and has written Mr. Taft to that effect, we wonder what the Big Moguls of Chilton republicanism are going to do? They've either to turn their hands upon their wedding of a president or else refuse to follow the leadership of him whose toes they worshipped—Jody Thompson.

The appointment of Geo. M. Howle, of the Iconoclast, as one of Jury Commissioners of Jefferson county, by Gov. O'Neal came somewhat as a surprise to a large number of his friends throughout the state. While we have no objections personally to the appointment and doubt not that Mr. Howle is a good man for the place, still we are afraid that a certain phaze of Jefferson politics will soon be repeated. However, we understand that Mr. Howle will not qualify for the office because of legal restrictions.

The sentencing of young Mr. Richeson of Massachusetts to be electrocuted on May 19th, for the poisoning of his former sweetheart, is but a natural sequence of his diabolical crime. If men would learn that the law is at all times going to demand an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, they would, perhaps, value human life a fraction higher than it is now valued. As it is, the life of a blooded bull or a race horse seems more precious than does that of a man or a woman in the common walks of life.

We are presenting today the likeness of Congressman Blackmon, who will have no opposition in this district for re-nomination, and comparatively little opposition for re-election. In fact we do not believe any republican can be persuaded to take up such a forlorn hope. Mr. Blackmon has made an ideal Congressman and should have the united support of every voter within the district, and we believe he will receive a large majority of those votes regardless of how they usually vote.

HERE'S A PROPOSITION AS WHITE AS SNOW

Read all this adverisement and bring us the answer

We intended this week to enumerate some of the tremendous bargains which we have to offer to our friends and patrons but when we went to look for special inducements we discovered that everything in our stock is so low and the goods so fresh that we decided there was no particular line for us to emphasize" we mean every line we carry is an inducement within itself.

We trust we have been in business too long for it to be necessary for us to go into detail and tell you of tht tremendous stock we carry, the varied lines of merchandise found in our stores or the cash bringing prices that rule at our store.

That we do not believe to be necessary, so we are not going to worry you with prices, but now that the weather is getting a little cooler and cotton is rolling in fairly well we want to stimulate CASH trade just a wee bit; for that reason and for the purpose of showing that our heart is in the right place, and far the further purpose of creating a little friendly interest among our farmer friends we want to make the following proposition:

Read carefully and understand well

Billy Skizzicks had an eight gallon jug full of molasses. Sam McCook had a three galon and a five galon jug full of wind. Billy wanted to give Sam just exactly four gallons of the molasses. They had no other measures except the three jugs. How was Billy to tell when he had measured the molasses correctly, using nothing but the three jugs?

The first out of town customer presenting the correct solution to this problem and trading twenty dollars in CASH on or after the FIRST day of November will be given absolutely FREE a fifty pound sack of Fancy Patent Flour. Get busy with your pencil and figure on Billy and Sam.

SHORTEST ROUTE TO JAPAN

It is Along the Aleutian Islands, Which Stretch Out From Alaska Toward Asiatic Continent.

Few persons are aware that the shortest route from San Francisco to Japan is by way of Alaska. Nearly a thousand miles are saved to vessels trading with the Orient by coasting along the Aleutian Islands, rather than following the Hawaiian route.

The Aleutian Islands, which extend in a chain east and west for more than a thousand miles, are inhabited by the remnant of the Aleuts. Their war of the revolution closed just as the American Revolutionary war began. So patriotic were the Aleuts, so brave in their struggle for independence, that they succumbed to the Russians only after a conflict of nearly fifty years, and then simply because the race was almost exterminated in the struggle. While the Aleutian Islands must eventually form an important link in the commerce between the United States and the Orient, other islands link our country with the vast empire to the north. In the narrow Behring Straits lie two little islands, one occupied by Russia, the other by the United States, so that citizens of the two great nations live on respective islands within a few miles of each other.

CANNOT SHOW THEIR TEETH

Dentists at Disadvantage in the Matter of Advertising, Compared With Other Professions and Businesses.

"Men in every other profession and business have the advantage of dentists in the matter of advertising," said a man with forceps in his hand. "They can persuade good-looking young women to wear their goods for photographic purposes; the dentist cannot. The whitest, evenest set of false teeth ever made cannot tempt a woman to wear them and be photographed with her mouth wide open.

"Manufacturers of cosmetics and artificial hair are besieged by women who are willing to daub their faces with paint and powder and build their heads out with puffs and braids into any style of architecture desired for photographic advertisements. Neither do they balk at patent wearing apparel. The most absurd garment ever invented can find somebody to pose in it before the camera. But false teeth are universally blacklisted.

"Every woman who gets photographed with her mouth spread into a smile wants people to think that the teeth she shows are her own, and the dentist who would dare to label the picture 'These teeth made by Dr. Plank' would lay grounds for a libel suit."

His Book.

He was very old, and he scrambled into the "pay-as-you-enter" car with difficulty. Once safely inside he seated himself in the corner of the car and began to read.

The car bumped its way along Walnut street, past Broad, past Rittenhouse square. Not once did the old man look up. He was absolutely buried in his book, in which he gave the absorbed attention of a scholar.

At Fifty-fourth and Spruce streets the old man cast a startled glance out of the window, got up and hobbled to the front of the car. On the way he dropped his book and several passengers had a chance to see the title before it was picked up and given back to its owner.

The volume which had so absorbed the octogenarian was "Jack Spot, the Young Highway Robber; or, the Desperado of Devil's Gulch."—Philadelphia Times.

Pews at Cut Rates.

"A reduction of $3 a year in pew rent will fetch the bargain hunter every time," said a sexton. "Only last week a young woman who expects to make her home in this city concluded that of all city churches of this denomination she liked ours best and would take a pew here, but when she found she could get a pew that suited her about as well in another church for $3 a year less she let all other considerations go by the board and identified herself with that church.

"The cut rate pew hunter is a recognized feature of modern church life. Because a new member elects to join our congregation does not at all signify that he shares our religious convictions or likes the pastor and our service; it may mean that we charge less for the pew he likes than another church up the street."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Adjustable Picture Frames.

"Did you ever see," said a shopper, "among ornamental picture frames designed to stand on desk or table one oblong in shape that could be used either upright, as it would commonly be for a portrait, or lengthwise, as it would be for a landscape picture?

"You know it isn't easy to find small frames designed for landscapes; frames that are longer than they are tall, but this frame can be used either way. The support on the back the foot that you spread out to make the frame stand up, is supported on a disk in the back of the frame, a disk that can be turned so that this foot can be as readily used one way as the other, either upright or with the greatest length horizontal."

NEWS OF THE WEEK

LATE NEWS OF THE WORLD TERSELY TOLD.

SOUTH, EAST, NORTH AND WEST

Notes From Foreign Lands, Throughout the Nation and Particularly the Great South.

Southern.

As a sequel to the suspension of the Tishomino Banking company of Iuka and Belmont, Miss., James H. Faircloth, president of the institution, was shot and wounded by C. T. Jordan, a cattle buyer of Iuka, one of the depositors. It is not now thought the wound will prove serious. A general assignment has been made for the benefit of creditors and depositors. About $250,000 is involved. Inability to make collections is declared responsible.

The Sidney Lanier chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy, Macon, Ga., has launched a movement to erect a statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee on the field of Gettysburg beside the statue of Abraham Lincoln, which will be an important feature of the "Peace Memorial," for which congress has been asked to appropriate $500,000. Senator A. O. Bacon will be asked to propose the plan in the senate and Congressman Charles L. Bartlett to introduce it in the house.

The presidential race is officially on in Atlanta. The inevitable candidate's button has appeared upon the street. "Welcome Back Teddy," loudly proclaims the little button, and, although it is the first and only one yet seen in Atlanta, it attracted much attention. Theodore Roosevelt's familiar line of shining teeth is the first thing which catches one's eye, then the remainder of the familiar features dawn upon one, every line of the smiling features flagrantly exposed.

Charles W. Morse, the New York banker, was ordered transferred from Fort McPherson, Ga., to the army general hospital, at Hot Springs, Ark. President Taft and Attorney General Wickersham decided upon the transfer, believing special medical treatment was necessary. Because of his physical condition, Morse recently was transferred to Fort McPherson from the Atlanta penitentiary, where he was serving fifteen years

About fifty families, mostly women and children, seeking a temporary residence free from cerebro spinal meningitis, arrived in Austin, Texas, from north Texas points. A large number of families is said to have passed through en route to San Antonio, where the disease has not appeared. The state board of health decided to try to secure for distribution throughout Texas a supply of the New York board of health meningitis serum. It urged county attorneys to pirosecute the practicing of alleged healing of meningitis by unauthorized persons and also to prosecute delays in reporting or diagnosing meningitis by regular physcians. The disease was declared to be most prevalent among negroes. Twelve new cases in Dallas and five deaths have been reported to the city board of health. All these deaths were of white persons. Three of the new cases were negroes.

General.

With hardly an exception, there is a feeling of strong optimism among men best qualified to size up the business situation of the country. Men who a few months past were inclined to look at things through somewhat darkened glasses now are seeing clearer and in a more rossy light. From all the great industries news comes of a better business at present, and an outlook for still further improvement. Confidence has been a distinctive improvement in these lines, and it bears the mark of permanency. While the textile industry has probably suffered as much as any, with this year's enormous crop of cotton and with the consequent sharp declines in prices, the outlook in cotton manufacturing has been measurably improved.

To test the strength of Colonel Roosevelt in the South, Ormsby McHarg has been sent into the South, and is now in Alabama, in an effort to round up delegates to the next Republican convention for Roosevelt, according to report here. Before the last convention, McHarg was very active among the Taft workers. After the election Mr. McHarg was appointed assistant secretary of commerce and labor.

A statute of Andrew Carnegie is to be erected in Dunfermline, Scotland, in recognition of the iron master's benefactions to his natal city. The decidsion was reached at a meeting of the town council.

W. Morgan Shuster, deposed treasurer of Persia, will return to the United States in the near future.

For 24 hours Portland, Ore., was in the grip of a "silver thaw." The damage from the present storm is estimated at $200,000. When the "silver thaw" is on, rain is transformed into ice as soon as it touches any object.

"Oh! for an hour of Andrew Jackson!" This slogan, figuratively a wish for the resurrection of the tariff and economy policies of President Jackson, summarized the views of Gov. Judson Harmon of Ohio in a speech at East St. Louis. The governor attacked the financial policy of the three last Republican administrations as having increased the Federal outlay from one billion dollars every two years to more than a billion dollars each year.

Seven Turkish gunboats were sunk and large numbers of Turkish tars were drowned or killed in the first important naval engagement of the Turco-Italian war on January 7, according to an official account given out in Rome, Italy. The battle was fought out on the Red Sea. The Turks were preparing to convoy a military expedition which was to cross Egypt and join the Turkish forces in Tripoli. The number of Turkish sailors who were drowned was not given out. After the Italian ships had battered the Turkish war vessels with broadsides of shells and projectiles the Turk tars swarmed into the sea. Great numbers of them were picked up by small craft

After launching an anti-tipping crusade the Southern Hotel Men's association adjourned at Charlotte, N. C., after electing officers. The hotel men will issue an appeal to the traveling public in the South to help abolish the tipping system. To prove their sincerity in the crusade a committee of three was named to meet in the near future in Atlanta and attempt to enlist all hotel organizations in the South in the reform through amalgamation with the association.

William Twyman, a negro, considered insane, murdered his father at their home in Scottsville, a little village near Rochester, N. Y., shot dead a deputy sheriff, severely wounded three other deputies and slightly injured Sheriff Harley Hamil, the leaders in a posse of more than a hundred persons who endeavored to enter Twyman's house, in which he had barricaded himself. Twyman held the besiegers at bay for six hours until a one-pounder gun arrived on the spot.

"It does my heart good to think that I got ahead of John D. Rockefeller, my fellow millionaire, in that Lake Superior ore deal," Andrew Carnegie gloated thus in testifying before the house committee of inquiry in the United States Steel Corporation.

If the Japanese timekeepers and athletic trainers may be believed Western athletics will have to look to their laurels at the forthcoming Olympic games in which representatives of Japan will participate for the first time. Aspirants for the Olympic trip were recently tried out at Tokio with surprising results. One of the greatest surprises was the lowering of the Olympic world's record for the 25-mile Marathon race. Shiza Kaniurki set th emark at 2 hours 32 minutes.

Washington.

Four members of the Georgia delegations, Messrs. Brantley, Bartlett, Hardwick and Hughes, appeared before the rivers and harbors committee of the house in behalf of a waterway project which looks to the improvement of 450 miles of channel in the Oconee, Ocmulgee and Altamaha rivers at a cost of $600,000. The project has already been favorably reported, and it is claimed that a depth of four feet of water can be secured for the entire route. The district engineers wanted $155,000 for work the first year, but the board of engineers cut this estimate to $40,000, and the Georgia represestatives are seeking to have congress give at least $10,000 a year, and let that be used for securing whatever increased depth is possible.

Information which will lead to the standarization of the American cotton bale and to the uniformity of the cotton within the bale, is now being sought by the United States department of agriculture. "To bring about this uniformity will be a matter of education," sair Dr. B. T. Calloway, chief of the bureau of plant industtry. It seems to be generally agreed that the present tare-taken on American cotton is excessive; but the deplorable condition of the American cotton bale is responsible.

The movement for a fitting celebration in 1913 of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg took definite form when the Pennsylvania commission, having the matter in charge, appeared before the joint congressional committee and made public its plans. It is proposed to have the celebration extended over the first four days of July, and the most important feature will be the laying of the corner-stone of a great peace memorial to be erected by the nation at the entrance to the battlefield. Veterans from the Civil war are expected to attend from all over the country, South, as well as North, at the expense of the several states, and three stated have already taken action with this end in view.

Democratic leaders at the Jackson day dinner in Washington urged their followers to stop fighting each other and assail the common enemy, the Republican party, with a united front. Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, Speaker Champ Clark, William J. Bryan, William R. Hearst, Joseph W. Folk and other Democratic chieftains, who have differed in the past, joined in a unanimous plea for harmony for 1912, and predicted victory would follow. It was a tumultuous dinner in which prospective candidates for the presidential nomination shared honors.

STATE NEWS OF INTEREST

MINOR HAPPENINGS IN ALABAMA CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

POLITICS IN JEFFERSON

Payment of Poll Taxes Is Being Strenuously Urged Among the Voters.

With a referendum election on a contract between the city and the street railway company to be held the end of this month, Democratic primaries and convention in April and later, Republican conventions and then general elections in the fall in mind, politicians in Jefferson County, as well as other interests, are urging the payment of poll taxes before the 1st of February, when the tax becomes delinquent. The payment of poll taxes is a requirement for qualification as a voter in Jefferson County as well as in other parts of the State, and questions in sight, as well as local issues, are causing the interest to be taken in the payment of poll taxes. It is expected that no less than 6,000 people will pay the 1.5 before the end of the month, bringing the total up to above 13,000. Men over 45 years of age are not required to pay the poyy taxes

It is understood that plans looking to the rebulding of the Seventh District Agricultural School, which was destroyed by fire at Albertville with a loss of $15,000, will be commenced without delay. There were 400 pupils enrolled in the school, which was established in 1892. The school is being held in temporary quarters for the present. A building costing $50,000 may be erected.

The formers of the Baldwin County Producers' Corporation of Foley held a meeting in Bay Minette at which time the acreage of cucumbers to be grown during the coming season was ascertained and preparations made for the disposal of the crop that is estimated will be grown on the acreage guaranteed by the members.

The farmers of Cleburne have been called by their president, W. M. Evans of the Farmers' Education Union to meet in their beat chapter to elect delegates to the county convention on the 29th. The main purpose is an organized effort to have a shorter acreage in cotton, give more attention to stock and pasturage.

Colonel J. F. B. Jackson, aged 80 years, and one of Birmingham's oldest citizens, died from the shock sustained when he was struck by a street car at Seventh avenue. Colonel Jackson was one of the early industrial leaders of the Birmingham district.

While crossing a railroad track at the Terminal Station in Birmingham, Raymond W. Page, a clerk for the Pullman company, was accidentally run over and killed by a switch engine of the Alabama Great Southern Railroad.

Commissioner of Agriculture Kolb addressed the voters of Marshall County at the court house in Albertville on January 17 on the subject of good roads and the necessity of a bond issue. A good sized crowd was in attendance

Macon County officials are balanced with the State in their accounts, according to the report of Frank V. Evans, examiner of public accounts, made public from the governor's office.

The home and store with all the contents of T. J. Donovant, located six miles southwest of Marion, was burned. The loss is estimated at $3,500. There was no insurance.

The farmers of Hale County produced during the past season approximately 27,000 bales of cotton, or more than 10,000 bales in excess of the crop of last year.

The proposition of establishing an immense cane mill in Gadsden for making molasses is being seriously considered.

It was announced that at ane early date the Southern Railway would begin the erection of a freight depot at Selma.

At a meeting held at the court house in Gadsden, the Etowah County Farm Life Club was organized.

During the week of February 12 the federal court will hold a session in Gadsden.

Because of the sudden illness of Secretary Downs of the Etowah County Farmers' Union, who is the leader in the cotton acreage reduction movement, the meeting of the farmers and business men to consider this matter which was scheduled to be held in Gadsden January 15 has been again postponed. It is now the intention to hold the meeting on Saturday, January 27.

It was announced that Morgan County will work her convicts on the county roads.

Two white men, J. C. Perry and Albert Eatman, escaped from the city jail at Tuscaloosa.

The birthday of Gen. R. E. Lee January 19, will be fittingly celebrated with exercises at various places throughout the state.

The year 1911 was a record breaker for business in Opelika as shown by the healthy dividends declared by the banks of this thriving little city.

The store buildings and stocks of goods of Cleveland Bros., Smitherman Bros. and C. L. Palmer at Randolph were totally desetroyed by fire.

After being in session for several days the grand jury for the January term of the Lee County Court of Law and Equity returned a report returning 29 true bills.

Charged with renting stores to soft drink stands which are violating the state prohibition statutes, several prominent women of Decatur will be tried at the present term of the law and equity court of Morgan county.

Carl Miller, a hostler, was severely burned, and both engines were considerably damaged when Southern Railway engine No. 1625 sideswiped engine No. 286, the accident taking place in the yards of the Southern Railway in Anniston.

P. G. Bowman, former Tax Commissioner of Jefferson County, filed suit in the Circuit Court against the Birmingham Ledger Publishing Company, averring that in its issue of November 4 there was printed a false and falicious statement concerning him.

Gov. O'Neal again reprieved Sam Stoudemire, the Autauga County murderer, who was condemned to death several months ago. The negro had already been reprieved once, the further stay in his execution being for a freer investigation. His reprieve now expires February 2.

Governor O'Neal has appointed the Excise Commissioners of Brundidge, in Pike County, as follows: Frank Wood, Gus Hicks and A. J. Collins, Jr. J. E. Furlow, at the some time, has been appointed Excise Commissioner of Goshen to succeed Commissioner McDonald, resigned.

The Democratic Executive Committee of Clay County met at Ashland and decided to hold a double primary to nominate candidates for the offices of superintendent of education, treasurer, tax collector, tax assessor and four commissioners. The first primary will be held on April 1, the date of the State primary, and the second will be held on April 13.

Friends of the two men and a boy who were the victims of J. Lawrence Odom the past year near Citronelle, and who were shot to death by him, for which he was tried twice and convicted and given the death sentence, are raising a petition to the governor not to commute the death sentence imposed by the judge of the City Court of Mobile.

Four murder cases and one highway robbery case have been set down for trial in February at Gadsden. Claude Cheney, for the murder of Sam Snider at Alabama City, is set for February 5; Wiley Goforth, for the murder of Nicholas Shentzen, will be tried February 29; Bob Stiles, for the murder of Ernest But, will be tried February 12; the trial of Mark Smith for the murder of Turner Lewis at Alabama City was set for Jan. 15. It is also expected that the trial of J. Smith, charged with the murder of Patrolman Patterson, will be had at this term of court. Ward Hulgins, a white man, is to be tried on a charge of highway robbery.

One of the important features in connection with the recent Odd Fellows' convention held in Cullman, was the semi-annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Odd Fellows' Widows' and Orphans' Home, held at the office of the superintendent.

Among the various things discussed was the effort that is being made to make the home a permanent meeting place of the grand lodge of the State and the grand encampment. The proposition now is to erect a building 60x90 feet, three stories, of the same material that the home is composed of, the first floor of which will be used as a permanent meeting place of the grand lodges, the second story to be used as a dormitory, fitted up for taking care of the grand officers and the delegates to the grand lodge, the third floor will be used as a recreation hall for the delegates and the inmates of the home. The proposed new building will cost approximately $20,000 when completed.

Ransom Brookins, a negro sent to the asylum at Tuscaloosa from Etowah county, has escaped. Brookins was arrested on a charge of murder, having killed another negro. He was never tried because the jury considered that he was insane.

Conductor J. O. Allen, who was fatally wounded by the accidental discharge of a pistol at the office of the Birmingham Air Line Railway yardmaster's office at Chisholm, died in Montgomery.

Confidence has been a distinctive improvement in these lines, and it bears the mark of permanency. While the textile industry has probably suffered as much as any, with this year's enormous crop of cotton and with the consequent sharp declines in prices, the outlook in cotton manufacturing has been measurably improved.

To test the strength of Colonel Roosevelt in the South, Ormsby McHarg has been sent into the South, and is now in Alabama, in an effort to round up delegates to the next Republican convention for Roosevelt, according to report here. Before the last convention, McHarg was very active among the Taft workers. After the election Mr. McHarg was appointed assistant secretary of commerce and labor.

For 24 hours Portland, Ore., was in the grip of a "silver thaw." The damage from the present storm is estimated at $200,000. When the "silver thaw" is on, rain is transferred into ice as soon as it touches any object.

"Oh! for an hour of Andrew Jackson!" This slogan, figuratively a wish for the resurrection of the tariff and economy policies of President Jackson, summarized the views of Gov. Judson Harmon of Ohio in a speech at East St. Louis. The governor attacked the financial policy of the three last Republican administrations as having increased the Federal outlay from one billion dollars every two years to more than a billion dollars each year.

Seven Turkish gunboats were sunk and large numbers of Turkish tars were drowned or killed in the first important naval engagement of the Turco-Italian war on January 7, according to an official account given out in Rome, Italy. The battle was fought out on the Red Sea. The Turks were preparing to convoy a military expedition which was to cross Egypt and join the Turkish forces in Tripoli. The number of Turkish sailors who were drowned was not given out. After the Italian ships had battered the Turkish war vessels with broadsides of shells and projectiles the Turk tars swarmed into the sea. Great numbers of them were picked up by small craft

After launching an anti-tipping crusade the Southern Hotel Men's association adjourned at Charlotte, N. C., after electing officers. The hotel men will issue an appeal to the traveling public in the South to help abolish the tipping system. To prove their sincerity in the crusade a committee of three was named to meet in the near future in Atlanta and attempt to enlist all hotel organizations in the South in the reform through amalgamation with the association.

William Twyman, a negro, considered insane, murdered his father at their home in Scottsville, a little village near Rochester, N. Y., shot dead a deputy sheriff, severely wounded three other deputies and slightly injured Sheriff Harley Hamil, the leaders in a posse of more than a hundred persons who endeavored to enter Twyman's house, in which he had barricaded himself. Twyman held the besiegers at bay for six hours until a one-pounder gun arrived on the spot.

"It does my heart good to think that I got ahead of John D. Rockefeller, my fellow millionaire, in that Lake Superior ore deal," Andrew Carnegie gloated thus in testifying before the house committee of inquiry in the United States Steel Corporation.

If the Japanese timekeepers and athletic trainers may be believed Western athletics will have to look to their laurels at the forthcoming Olympic games in which representatives of Japan will participate for the first time. Aspirants for the Olympic trip were recently tried out at Tokio with surprising results. One of the greatest surprises was the lowering of the Olympic world's record for the 25-mile Marathon race. Four members of the Georgia delegations, Messrs. Brantley, Bartlett, Hardwick and Hughes, appeared before the rivers and harbors committee of the house in behalf of a waterway project which looks to the improvement of 450 miles of channel in the Oconee, Ocmulgee and Altamaha rivers at a cost of $600,000. The project has already been favorably reported, and it is claimed that a depth of four feet of water can be secured for the entire route. The district engineers wanted $155,000 for work the first year, but the board of engineers cut this estimate to $40,000, and the Georgia represestatives are seeking to have congress give at least $10,000 a year, and let that be used for securing whatever increased depth is possible.

Information which will lead to the standarization of the American cotton bale and to the uniformity of the cotton within the bale, is now being sought by the United States department of agriculture. "To bring about this uniformity will be a matter of education," sair Dr. B. T. Calloway, chief of the bureau of plant industry. It seems to be generally agreed that the present tare-taken on American cotton is excessive; but the deplorable condition of the American cotton bale is responsible.

The movement for a fitting celebration in 1913 of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg took definite form when the Pennsylvania commission, having the matter in charge, appeared before the joint congressional committee and made public its plans. It is proposed to have the celebration extended over the first four days of July, and the most important feature will be the laying of the corner-stone of a great peace memorial to be erected by the nation at the entrance to the battlefield. Veterans from the Civil war are expected to attend from all over the country, South, as wel las North, at the expense of the several states, and three stated have already taken action with this and in view.

Democratic leaders at the Jackson day dinner in Washington urged their followers to stop fighting each other and assail the common enemy, the Republican party, with a united front. Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, Speaker Champ Clark, William J. Bryan, William R. Hearst, Joseph W. Folk and other Democratic chieftains, who have differed in the past, joined in a unanimous plea for harmony for 1912, and predicted political victory would follow. It was a tumultuous dinner in which prospective candidates for the presidential nomination shared honors.

Then the grin died away, and his e grew bleak and serious. Leav- out his interests in the several stern reclamation projects (which re still assessing heavily), he was a ned man. But harder hit than this s his pride. He had been so easy. ey had gold-bricked him, and he nothing to show for it. The sim- st farmer would have had docu- nts, while he had nothing but a tleman's agreement, and a verbal at that. Gentleman's agreement! snorted over it. John Dowsett's ce, just as he had heard it in the phone receiver, sounded in his the words, "On my honor as a tleman." Returning to his hotel, he changed cabs as before, went up to his room, and with one more cocktail for a nightcap, went to bed and to sleep. In the morning he dressed and shaved, ordered breakfast and the newspapers sent up, and waited. But he did not drink. By nine o'clock his telephone began to ring and the reports to come in. Nathaniel Letton was taking the train at Tarrytown. John Dowsett was coming down by the subway. Leon Guggenhammer had not stirred out yet, though he was assuredly within. And in this fashion, with a map of the city spread out before him, Daylight followed the movements of his three men as they drew together. Nathaniel Letton was at his offices in the Mutual-Solander Building. Next arrived Guggenhammer. Dowsett was still in his own offices. But at eleven came the word that he also had arrived, and several minutes later Daylight was in a hired motor-car and speeding for the Mutual-Solander Building.

CHAPTER IX.

Nathaniel Letton was talking when the door opened; he ceased, and with his two companions gazed with controlled perturbation at Burning Daylight striding into the room. The free, swinging movements of the trail-traveler were unconsciously exaggerated in that stride of his. In truth, it seemed to him that he felt the trail beneath his feet.

"Howdy, gentlemen, howdy," he remarked, ignoring the unnatural calm with which they greeted his entrance. He shook hands with them in turn, striding from one to another and gripping their hands so heartily that Nathaniel Letton could not forbear to wince. Daylight flung himself into a massive chair and sprawled lazily, with an appearance of fatigue. The leather grip he had brought into the room he dropped carelessly beside him on the floor.

"I've sure been going some," he sighed. "We sure trimmed them beautifully. It was real slick. And the beauty of the play never dawned on me till the very end. It was pure and simple knock down and drag out. And the way they fell for it was amazin'."

Letton made a dry sound in his throat. Dowsett sat quietly and waited, while Leon Guggenhammer struggled into articulation.

"You certainly have raised Cain," he said.

Daylight's black eyes flashed in a pleasant way.

"Didn't I, though!" he proclaimed, jubilantly. "And didn't we fool 'em! I was teetotally surprised. I never dreamed they would be that easy.

"And now," he went on, not permitting the pause to grow awkward, "we all might as well have an accounting. I'm pullin' West this afternoon on that blamed Twentieth Century." He tugged at his grip, got it open, and dipped into it with both his hands. "But don't forget, boys, when you-all want me to hornswoggle Wall Street another flutter, all you-all have to do is whisper the word. I'll sure be right there with the goods."

His hands emerged, clutching a great mass of stubs, check-books, and brokers' receipts. These he deposited in a heap on the big table, and dipping again, he fished out the stragglers and added them to the pile. He consulted a slip of paper, drawn from his coat pocket and read aloud:

"Ten million twenty-seven thousand and forty-two dollars and sixty-eight cents is my figurin' on my expense. Of course that-all's taken from the winnings before we-all get to figurin' on the whack-up. Where's your figures? It must a' been a mighty big clean-up."

The three men looked their bepuzzlement at one another. The man was a bigger fool than they had imagined, or else he was playing a game which they could not divine.

Nathaniel Letton moistened his lips and spoke up.

"It will take some hours yet, Mr. Harnish, before the full accounting can be made. Mr. Howison is at work upon it now. We—ah—as you say, it has been a gratifying clean-up. Suppose we have lunch together and talk it over. I'll have the clerks work through the noon hour so that you will have ample time to catch your train."

Dowsett and Guggenhammer manifested a relief that was almost obvious. The situation was clearing. It was disconcerting, under the circumstances, to be pent in the same room with this heavy-muscled, Indian-like man whom they had robbed. That remembered complacently the many inches of his strength and technique in which Letton could only put him, oh! long enough for them to escape into the filled world outside—this office door would be well; and Daylight showed all the signs of being out of

"I'm real glad to hear that," he said. "I don't want to claim that you-all have done me proud, giving me in on this deal. I just do appreciate it without being able to express my feelings. But I am sure almighty curious, and I'd like terrible to know, Mr. Letton, what your figures of our winning is. Can you-all give me a rough estimate?"

Nathaniel Letton did not look appealingly at his two friends, but in the brief pause they felt that appeal pass out from him. Dowsett, of sterner mold than the others, began to divine that the Klondiker was playing. But the other two were still under the blandishment of his child-like innocence.

"It is extremely—er—difficult," Leon Guggenhammer began. "You see, Ward Valley has fluctuated so, er—"

"That no estimate can possibly be made in advance," Letton supplemented.

"Approximate it, approximate it," Daylight counselled, cheerfully. "It don't hurt if you-all are a million out one side or the other. The figures'll straighten that up. But I'm that curious I'm just itching all over. What d'ye say?"

"Why continue to play at cross purposes?" Dowsett demanded abruptly and coldly. "Let us have the explanation here and now. Mr. Harnish is laboring under a false impression, and he should be set straight.

By this time Letton was stiffened by the attitude Dowsett had taken, and his answer was prompt and definite.

"I fear you are under a misapprehension, Mr. Harnish. There are no winnings to be divided with you. Now don't get excited, I beg of you. I have but to press this button . . ."

Far from excited, Daylight had all the seeming of being stunned. He looked at Dowsett and murmured:

"It was your deal, all right, and you-all dole them right, too. Well, I ain't kicking. I'm like the player in that poker game. It was your deal, and you-all had a right to do your best. And you done it—cleaned me out slicker'n a whistle."

He gazed at the heap on the table with an air of stupefaction.

"And that-all ain't worth the paper it's written on. Gol dast it, you-all can sure deal 'em 'round when you get a chance. Oh, no, I ain't a-kicking. It was your deal, and you-all certainly done me, and a man ain't half a man that squeals on another man's deal. And now, the hand is played out, and the cards are on the table, and the deal's over, but . . ."

His hand, dipping swiftly into his inside breast pocket, appeared with the big Colt's automatic.

"As I was saying, the old deal's finished. Now it's my deal, and I'm a-going to see if I can hold them four aces."

mother a sprinkling-cart. You-all move your chair alongside, Guggenhammer; and you-all Dowsett, sit right there, while I just irrelevantly explain the virtues of this here automatic. She's loaded for big game, and she goes off eight times. She's a sure hummer when she gets started.

"Preliminary remarks being over, I now proceed to deal. Remember, I ain't making no remarks about your deal. You done your darndest, and it was all right. But this is my deal, and it's up to me to do my darndest. In the first place, you-all know me. I'm Burning Daylight—savvee? Ain't afraid of God, devil, death, nor destruction. Them's my four aces, and they sure copper your bets. Look at that there living skeleton. Letton, you're sure afraid to die. Your bones is all rattling together you're that scared. And look at that fat Jew there. This little weapon's sure put the fear of God in his heart. He's yellow as a sick persimmon. Dowsett, you're a cool one. You-all ain't batted an eye nor turned a hair. That's because you're great on arithmetic. And that makes you-all dead easy in this deal of mine. You're sitting there and adding two and two together, and you-all know I sure got you skinned. You know me, and that I ain't afraid of nothing. And you-all adds up all your money and knows you ain't a-going to die if you can help it."

"I'll see you hanged," was Dowsett's retort.

"Not by a damned sight. When the fun starts, you're the first I plug. I'll hang all right, but you-all won't live to see it. You-all die here and now while I'll die subject to the law's delay—savvee? Being dead, with grass growing out of your carcasses, you won't know when I hang, but I'll sure have the pleasure a long time of knowing you-all beat me to it."

"You surely won't kill us?" Letton asked in a queer, thin voice.

Daylight shook his head.

"It's sure too expensive. You-all ain't worth it. I'd sooner have my chips back. And I guess you-all 'd sooner give my chips back than go to the dead-house."

A long silence followed.

"Well, I've done dealt. It's up to you-all to play. But while you're deliberating, I want to give you-all warning: if that door opens and any one of you guesses lets on there's anything unusual, right here and then I sure start plugging. They ain't a soul 'll get out of the room except feet first."

LAW'S INJUSTICE MADE PLAIN

Farmer's Grievance Was That Story Once Accepted Should Not Remain Good.

A story is being told at the expense of an old English farmer who was recently called upon to explain why he had failed to take out a license for a favorite fox terrier dog. "'E's nobbut a puppy," the defendant remarked, in response to a question as to the animal's age. "Yes, yes! So you say. But how old is he?" "Oh, weel, I couldn' tell to a bit," was the reply. "I never was much good at remembering dates, but 'e's nobbut a puppy." On the other hand, it was maintained that the animal in question was a very, very old-fashioned puppy, and the magistrate inflicted the usual fine. Shortly afterward the farmer was met by a friend who wanted to know how he had fared at the police court. "Nobbut middlin'," was the reply. "Did they fine you?" "Yes," responded the victim; "an' 'ang me if I can understand it! Last year an' the year afore that I told the same tale about the same dog, an' it wos allus good enough afore! Who's been tamperin' wi' the law sin' last year?"

SEVERAL LETTERS COMBINED

PROF. HICKS WRITES OF MANY MATTERS OF INTEREST

The Press has received from its good friend, Prof. Hicks, of the Clanton Academy, several letters of interest to the general public which, without consulting him, we take the liberty of combining into one news item.

Note of Interest to Young Folks; An Original Idea With Money Attachment.

First, he wishes to call the attention of the young people to the fact that he is now organizing a "Boys' Corn Club" and a "Girls' Tomato Club." Already a large number have joined these clubs, but the idea has gone out that they must be students at the Academy to become members.

This is not true; anyone who wishes to join, regardless of whether or not they are students. are invited to join. He wishes to obtain the names of a large number of young men and young ladies residing in close proximity to Clanton who will enlist in this laudable work.

It will prove a source of pleasure, as well as of financial assistance to those who become members. If you are not personally interested, call the attention of others to his wants.

County Teachers and Young Peoples' Reading Circle; Date Set for Assembly and Work.

Second, he wishes the county school teachers and Young Peoples' Reading Circle to know that Saturday, the third day of February, has been selected as the day for a meeting to be held in Clanton. This date is selected because of a general convenience to a majority of the teachers.

Every member is urged to exert his or her best efforts to secure a large attendance, as matters of importance will come up for consideration. Think

The Press is requested to announce that the silk quilt made by the ladies of the Baptist Improvement Society, and which was on display at the recent County Fair, will be raffled off at Alred's Drug store next Saturday night. All who are interested will please be on hand to guard their interests in the crazy thing, whether silk crazy or crazy silk.

Incidentally the writer also requests us to call further attention the fact that on Friday afternoon, the ladies of the Daughters of the Confederacy are to have an entertainment at the Clanton School house from two to three o'clock. Everybody is invited. Hon. J. O. Middleton will make an address on this occasion which, of itself, will be more than worth the visit to the school.

Notice Foreclosure Mortgage Sale.

State of Alabama, County of Chilton.

Default having been in the payment of the debt secured by a certain mortgage, executed to the undersigned, on the 27th day of November, 1911, by R. H. Martin and his wife, M. L. Martin, said mortgage being recorded in the Probate office of Chilton county, at Clanton, Alabama, in book 120, on page 145.

In order to pay the debt secured by said mortgage, I will, under the power of sale, as set out in said mortgage, I will proceed to sell on during the legal hours of sale, at Maplesville, Chilton county, Alabama, at public outcry, to the highest and best bidder, for cash, the following described real estate as the property of R. H. Martin and his wife, M. L. Martin, situated, lying and being, in the town of Maplesville, county of Chilton, State of Alabama, towit:

One lot of land in the town of Maplesville, Alabama, bound as follows: On the east, by the right of way of the Southern, and Mobile & Ohio Railroad, where they cross each other in said town. On the north and west and south, by Mrs. N. E. Goodwin's property, together with a complete gin plant thereon, as existed at the date of execution of said mortgage. The above described land consists of 1-4 10 acres.

Said sale is for the purpose of paying said mortgage with all expenses attached there-to, in foreclosing same.

Aspirants for Congressman From State at Large.

There are now five avowed candidates in the field for Congressman from the State at large, viz:

Hons. Jno. W. Abercrombie, Victor B. Atkins, H. Y. Brooke, I. W. Hill and Kyle Price.

While all are elegant gentlemen, and each would make an ideal congressman, still the PRESS favors the candidacy of Hon. V. B. Atkins, believing that he combines more of the necessary requisites for a successful career in the National Capitol than any of the others. Then. too, he is from our own district, and it would be a distinct advantage to us to have him. While Mr. Atkins has made no formal announcement of his platform, he has given out a few of the planks which will go to make that platform, every one of which are in keeping with safe and sane democracy and any one of which would make a strong platform for any candidate.

In brief he has announced the following, which sounds good to us:—

I advocate National Government aid for public highways.

I favor the continued improvement of the rivers and harbors and the development of the facilities afforded through them for industrial progress.

I believe Congress should regulate the cotton exchanges so that better protection can be given the cotton grower in the sale and marketing of his crop.

I am convinced that "Tariff for Revenue Only" should be the Democratic slogan of battle.

The special attention of our readers is called to the advertisement appearing in this issue of the Wonderful Rainbow Fertilizers and Acid Phosphates.

These goods are far ahead of everything else on the market, and it will pay anyone to look into them before making their purchases.

The manufacturers have had over thirty years experience which enables you to get the best goods you can find on the market.

BALD HEADS NOT WANTED

Baldness is too Generally Considered a Sign of Advanced Age.

A bald-headed person does not have an equal chance with one blessed with a healthy head of hair, because baldness is too generally accepted as an indication of age. Many large corporations have established an age limit, and refuse to take men over 35 years of age as new employees.

Probably 65 per cent of baldheaded people may regain a good head of healthy hair if they will follow our advice and accept our offer. We have a remedy that we positively guarantee to grow hair on any head, unless the roots of the hair are entirely dead; their follicles closed, and the scalp has become glazed and shiny. We want people to try this remedy at our risk, with the distinct understanding that unless it does exactly what we claim it will, and give satisfaction in every respect, we shall make no charge for the remedy used during the trial.

We know exactly what we are talking about, and with this offer back of our statements no one should scoff, doubt our word, or hesitate to put our remedy to an actual test.

We want every one in Clanton who is suffering from any scalp or hair trouble; dandruff, falling hair or baldness to try our Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We want them to use it regularly—say till three bottles have been used and if it does not eradicate dandruff, cleanse and refresh the scalp. tighten the hair in its roots, and grow new hair. we will return every cent paid us for the remedy for the mere asking. There is no formality expected, and we exact no obligation from the user whatever.

We are established right here in Clanton, and make this offer with a full understanding that our business success entirely depends upon the sort of treatment we accord our customers, and we would not dare make the above offer unless we were positively certain that we could substantiate in every particular. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. Upchurch Drug Co.

Chlorosis
Green Sickness

Delicate girls who are approaching the age of womanhood are usually subject to this disease. They are pale because the blood is weak and watery. Their complexion has a sickly greenish cast which gives the disease its name. They have no vitality and if exposed to any unusual excitement, excessive labor or cold dampness are liable to contract some disease that will disastrously effect their whole future lives. It is a most critical period. The right remedy to relieve this condition and bring back the rosy hue of health is

DR. SIMMONS
Squaw Vine Wine

It is a palatable remedy, a fine, pleasant tasting medicine. Its agreeable flavor, however, is no criterion of its efficacy. It does the work expected of it more promptly than the harsh, bitter tasting medicines. It begins the restorative process with the first dose and if used for a reasonable period, the misery, weakness and pallor disappear, the spirits rise, the appetite becomes good, the sleep sound and restful and the thin, vitiated blood is revitalized and goes coursing through the veins, carrying new life, strength and energy to all parts of the body.

PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF CHILTON COUNTY AND HER PEOPLE

VOL 2. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 25, 1912 NO. 44

GEN. ROBT. E. LEE'S

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED AT HIGH SCHOOL.

Quite a number of Clanton people were present to enjoy the unusually attractive program rendered in honor of Lee's birthday at the Clanton High School on Friday, January 19, 1912. The auditorium was profusely decorated with small Confederate flags. A number of beautiful ferns and potted plants were artistically arranged on the stage. Conspicuous at the back of the stage and draped in the folds of the flag which he loved above everything else, was a large portrait of Gen. Lee.

The exercises were opened with Gen. Lee's favorite song, that grand old hymn, "How Firm a Foundation." As the hymn closed Rev. W. M. Olive invoked God's blessing on the land and the people for whom our hero fought. Master Wilburt Hayes in his splendid address gave a cordial welcome to the assembled guests. After the welcome address Misses Watson and Foshee sang tha hymn of the battle-field, "Tenting To-night." "The Sword of Lee," Father Ryan's noble tribute to a noble man, was delivered with fervor by Master Burton Higgins. This was followed by a violin solo by Mrs. J. H. Middleton.

The event of the afternoon, an address on Gen. Lee, was delivered by our distinguished townsman, Mr. J. O. Middleton. With every thought clothed in language at once simple, elevated and beautiful, the grand old hero shrouded in grey beneath the willows of defeat never received a prouder or nobler tribute than that paid him by Mr. Middleton.

At the close of Mr. Middleton's address, Miss Willie Belle Sartor recited "The Conquered Banner" in which Father Ryan has voiced the sentiments of the South in regard to its flag.

The exercises were closed with Dixie and a closing prayer by Rev. R. J. Mills

UNDERWOOD CLUB ORGANIZED

An Enthusiastic Gathering.

Last Saturday night at the Court house, there was organize an Underwood Club, for the purpose of pushing the condidacy of Hon. Oscar W. Underwood for the presidency. All over the state these clubs are being organized, but none, perhaps, are more enthusiastic than is the club organized in Clanton. It is the purpose of the club to push the organization in every precinct in the county, to the end that every voter in the democratic primary shall cast his vote for Mr. Underwood.

Hon. Tipton Mullins was unanimously elected as President of the club, and Mr. Barney Roberts was chosen as Secretary.

A committee consisting of Senator Thos. A. Curry, S. A. Latham, and F. M. Wood were appointed to draft resolutions, which appear below.

These resolutions were hurriedly prepared by the committee, but speak in no uncertain tones the sentiments of those present at the meeting. While the committee was out preparing the resolutions, all the candidates present were given an opportunity to speak, and each of them took advantage of the opportunity.

One of the principle features of the evening was an address by Mr. E. E. Calloway. This young man tho' a recent convert to democracy, is a thorough convert and his address was full of wisdom and was received with much enthusiasm by those present.

The resolutions adopted are, a follows:

Whereas Alabama has, in the person of Oscar W. Underwood of Jefferson county, a gentleman of exceptional capabilities.

And whereas. by his admirable leadership of the dominant party in the House of Representatives, he has shown superior wisdom in thehandling of matters of state. And whereas it is the intention of the friends ot Mr. Underwood to present his name to the democracy of the United States at the democratic convention which is to assemble in Baltimore, as a suitable condidate for the democrats to nominate for president.

And whereas we are firmly convinced that Mr. Underwood would, if elected be a Chief Executive of whom the entire United States could be proud.

Therefore be it Resolved:—

That we as an Underwood Club heartily endorse the candidacy of Mr. Underwood, and that we use every honorable means within our power, both as acl ub, and as individuals, to bring about the nomination ofMr. Underwood as the democratic standard bearer.

Be it further resolved, that we invite all democrats of Chilton county to unite with us in our efforts to further the candidacy of our favorite, and that to this end we respectfully request that Underwood clubs be organized in each precinct in this county, and that, whether at home or abroad, we use every means possible to enlist our friends and acquaintances in the cause of Mr. Underwood's candidacy.

NO CAUSE TO DOUBT

A Statement of Facts Backed by a Strong Guarantee.

We guarantee immediate and positive relief to all sufferers from constipation. In every case where our remedy fails to do this we will return the money paid us for it. That's a frank statement of facts and we want you to substantiate them at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhœa, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies are unsurpassable and ideal for the use of children, old folks and delicate persons. We cannot too highly recommend them to all sufferers from any form of constipation and its attendant evils. That's why we back our faith in them with our promise to money back if they do not give entire satisfaction. Three sizes: 12 tablets 20 cents, 36 tablets 25 cents and 80 tablets 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Clanton only at our store, The Rexall Store. The Opelika Drug Co.

ANOTHER SENSATION SPRUNG.

FEARFUL CHARGES BROUGHT BY DAUGHTERS AGAINST FATHER.

Chilton county is soon to furnish to the legal world another sensational rape case, and if reports now circulating upon the streets are true, and there seems to be no reason to doubt them, it will nauseate the most callous and cause most people to believe that human passions and tastes are far below the average brute.

The Press hesitated for some time before publishing the facts as ascertained in the case, because the details are so repulsive we felt that they had no place in a family paper—and we are going to avoid as much of the detail as possible, contenting ourselves with giving a few of the sickening facts and resting it with interested ones to delve into the details as they see fit.

Last Thursday a young woman came into Clanton and swore out a warrant for William Peters, a white man, stating that she was the daughter of Peters and that he had assaulted her with criminal intent—that as a matter of fact these assaults had become frequent and that on the last occasion she was compelled to leave home to avoid further molestation by her father. A second warrant was also sworn out by a married daughter, charging her father with the diabolical crime.

It was reported on the streets that a third daughter—somewhat younger than either of the other two, had also been assaulted, but being of tender age was afraid to leave home and was therefore compelled to submit to such treatment on the part of her father.

With these warrants in hand, sworn out by the flesh, blood and bone of the father, the Sheriff proceeded to make the arrest and William Peters now rests behind the fetid walls of a county prison awaiting trial on a charge so black, so repulsive, so loathsome that one hates to dwell upon it.

MR. ROY FITTS WANTS TO BE ASSESSOR

A STANTON DEMOCRAT.

Last week in the Press appeared the announcement of Mr. Roy E. Fitts of Stanton as a candidate for the democratic nomination for County Tax Assessor. The announcement came to us after half of the paper had been printed so that we had no opportunity to make more than mere mention of his candidacy.

Mr. Fitts is a young democrat of purest ray serene; he has seen service and that service has counted for much in democratic circles. Though a young man he has always aligned himself with democracy and has never shown disposito balk when his party spoke.

Being a business man of rare qualities he is fully capable of filling the office to which he aspires and the people of Chilton would make no mistake in selecting him as the Tax Assessor of this county.

TEMPERANCE DAY

An act of the Legislature, approved Aug. 19, 1909, requires that "One day in each scholastic term of the public schools shall be set apart to be known as Temperance Day, when a suitable program shall be prepared to the end that the children of Alabama may be taught the evils of intemperance."

In compliance with that statute, the State Superintendent has set Friday, Feb. 16, 1912, to be recognized in the public schools as Temperance Day. Let all the teachers by some program of their own making observe the spirit and the letter of this law.

While children should be taught to be temperate in all things, special emphasis should be placed in the program on the evils of strong drink.

J. W. Moore, Co. Supt.

ANOTHER THORSBY DEMOCRAT

COMES OUT FOR OFFICE.

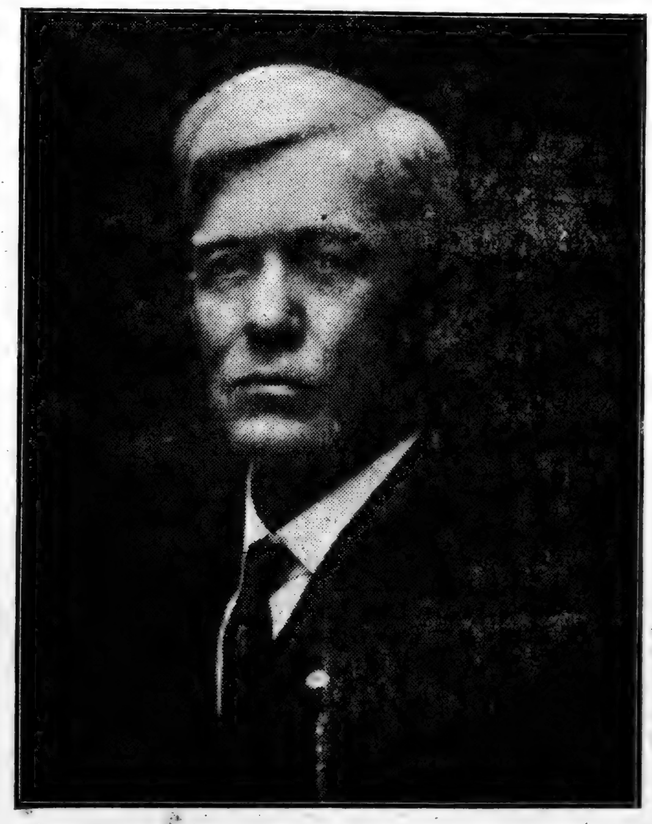
Elsewhere will be found the announcement of Mr. John R. Parnell, as a candidate for nomination to the office of Tax Assessor.

It is needless for the Press to say that Mr Parnell is a wheelhorse, for all who know him well are acquainted with this fact, and those who do not know him will soon find out that he knows what it means to hustle. There is no balkign in Mr. Parnell's democracy: he stood four square in this county when there were but few who imitated him; he bided his time, confident that when the final analysis come, Chilton county peolpe would pronounce unqualifiedlyfor democracy

Mr. Parnell is a Chilton man from birth; he is a successful business man and farmer of Thorsby, and, having shown rare business qualities in his own private affairs, has no hesitancy in asking the people of Chilton to permit him to serve them in the capicity of Tax Assessor.

There is no more important office in the county than that of Assessor, and should the people of Chilton select Mr. Parnell as their choice for this office, we believe that they will have selected a servant who will give entire satisfaction to all the people, regardless of political affiliation.

A UNION OF HEARTS



Soldiers Home.

A pretty wedding occurred in this vicinity today, Mr. Thos. E. Morehead, Commissary on the South Side Row, and Mrs. Winnie Mangum being the contracting parties. Mrs. Mangum was the widow of a Comrade who died here last year. Mr. Morehead is 67 years of age and Mrs. Mangum 55. The happy couple were congratulated on their union by all the old veterans. They are both active, industrious and cultivated.

Surely nothing but happiness will be their lot as they journey along through the remaining years of this life. Mr. Morehead applied and received an honorable discharge as a member the Home, and left on the evening train to visit friends in Pike county.

Peace, success and an unbroken chain of happiness is the wish of all of their friends with whom they have been associated. Rev. G. A. Hornaday officiated. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Mr. Thos. Smith.

Mrs. J. P. VanDerveer left Monday morning for a visit of some weeks to her daughter, Mrs. Dr. [illegible] at Montgomery.

HON. VICTOR B. ATKINS

Candidate for Congressman from the State-at-Large.

A Sterling Democrat; a worker and a plain man of the Common People. Alabama could select no better Congressman.

Sheriff's Sale.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Circuit Court. Spring Term, 1911.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the said Court of said county, Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I, as Sheriff of said county, was commanded to make the sum of one hundred and seventy-seven and 60-100 dollars, principal and interest, and the sum of six and 50-100 dollars, costs, the amount of a certain judgment and costs therein obtained at the said term of said Court of said county, Alabama, in favor of Teague & Sons against R. H. Martin, out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of R. H. Martin. Now, therefore, I, as Sheriff of said county, under and by virtue of the within execution, have on this the 19th day of January, 1912, levied upon the following described real estate as the property of R. H. Martin, to-wit:

One lot of land in the town of Maplesville, Alabama, bounded as follows: On the east by the right of way of the Southern and Mobile & Ohio railroads, where they cross each other in said town of Maplesville, Ala., and on the North, West and South by Mrs. N. E. Goodwin's property containing, one and one fourth (1 1-4) acres, together with a complete gin plant thereon. Also the following described land (except the school lot of one eighth (1-8) of an acre, beginning at a certain point on the east boundary line of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's line in the town of Maplesville, Ala., said certain point being South eighty one degrees fifteen minutes west (1132) feet from an iron pin on the West edge of the right of way of the Southern railway, known as South-east corner of lot No. 3 in the survey of the "Town of Cuba," running thence from said certain point north eighty one degrees fifteen minutes east 262 feet to the South-west corner of a one acre lot owned by R. H. Martin; thence North-west 200 feet along said one acre lot; thence North eighty one degrees fifteen minutes 220 feet along said one acre lot to the North-west corner of the Boykin lot; thence North eleven degrees west along a lot owned by R. H. Martin 200 feet to a point South eighty one degrees fifteen minutes West three hundred and ninety eight and four tenths feet to East boundary of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's land; thence South four hundred one and sixth tenths feet along said East boundary to point of beginning, containing two and nine tenths acres in Section 21, Township 21, Range 12 East, all of said lands being located in the town of Maplesville, Ala.

Therefore, according to said command, I will expose for sale at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named R. H. Martin, in and to the above described property, on THE 12th DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1912, during the legal hours of sale, at Clanton, Alabama, in front of the Court House door.

This 19th day of January, 1912.

R. L. JONES, Sheriff.

MISS WATSON'S RECITAL

Tomorrow (Friday) night at the Academy, Miss Watson will tender to her pupils, and for the pleasure of the people of Clanton, a recital that will prove of more than passing interest. Miss Watson is a musician of rare ability and such progress have her pupils made since she has been in charge of the musical department of the academy that every one interested should attend this initial recital and thereby encourage not only Miss Watson but her pupils as well.

GAINES, HAYES AND JONES

APPOINTED REGISTRARS

The Board of Appointment, consisting of the Governor, the Auditor and the Commissioner of Agriculture announced the appointment of Messrs. R. H. Gaines, Lee Hayes and Bluford Jones as County Registrars. Messrs. Gaines and Jones have been serving as Registrars heretofore; Mr. Hayes takes the place of Mr. P. M. Moore, deceased.

Notice of Mortgage Sale.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in that certain mortgage executed by S. S. Chandler and wife M. E. Chandler, on the 19th of February, 1900, to L. Pattillo, and recorded in Book No. 53 on page 267 of mortgage records in the Probate office of Chilton county, Alabama, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder, for cash, at the Court House door in the town of Clanton, county of Chilton and State of Alabama, on the

during the legal hours of sale, the following described real estate conveyed by said mortgage to-wit:

The Nw 1-4 of the Nw 1-4, Section 32, Township 20 north of Range 13 east, containing 40 acres more or less, in Chilton county, Alabama.

This sale will be made for the purpose of satisfying the debt secured by said mortgage and the cost of the sale, including a reasonable attorney's fee, default having been made by the mortgagee therein and the coudition of said mortgage having been broken.

L. PATTILLO, Mortgagee.

Southern.

The New Orleans cotton exchange, through its president, E. J. Glenny, issued a very strong appeal in the form of a letter addressed to bankers, shippers and others interested to renew the fight against the bureau for the validation of cotton bills of lading which grew out of the Liverpool conference last year.

Charles W. Morse, New York financier, who has served two years of a sentence of fifteen years in the Federal prison at Atlanta, is now a free man. It is extremely doubtful whether Morse will ever leave Georgia alive. He is suffering from three diseases regarded as incurable, and the end may come at any time. However, he may live for a year under favorable conditions. Mrs. Morse came to Atlanta as the special messenger of the government bearing the official commutation papers which make her husband a free man.

In the opinion of many economists of Alabama, the best task that the senate of Alabama could undertake would be to institute or establish a school for the turning out of legislators. It is considered that perfect familiarity with the laws will enable the state to have passed such bills as will be both beneficial and wise.

Senator Hoke Smith and Representative Bartlett, both of Georgia, are working on what they believe to be a brand new plan for helping the cotton farmers of the South through the regulation of the New York Cotton exchange. They propose to introduce a bill in congress, and press for its passage, requiring the exchange to deliver the same grade of cotton that is sold on future contracts in the exchange.

Harmony reigns with the Democratic organizations in Tennessee. The Vertees and Barton state committees reached an agreement. The Vertrees overtures to the Barton committee were accpted with some amendmnts. Under the compromise plan the state primary of April 27 will be held under a primary board of three members named by the Vertrees committee, three named by the Barton committee, and a seventh named by the other six.

Nurserymen attending the Texas Land Exposition, which is being held at Houston, Texas, say that young citrus fruit stock in Texas was killed by the recent cold weather, while the more mature—of more than a year's growth—was but slightly damaged. The damage was far less than expected, they say. The permanence of the orange industry in Texas has been successfully demonstrated in the recent cold weather, the nurserymen declare.

General.

The dispute in the cotton trade at Manchester, England, which culminated in a lock-out affecting about 300,000 men on December 27, has been settled. The question was the employment of non-union labor. The operatives by a two to one vote agreed

Explanation of the rise in the price of fresh meat following the period of financial depression in 1907 was given in the trial of the ten Chicago packers. It was shown by the government that the practice of crediting the beef account with the value of the hides, amounting to about $3.60 an animal, was discontinued. The result was to increase the test cost of beef and to make it possible for the packers to raise the price of fresh meat without showing excessive profits.

Sixty cents a pound for butter was said to be the price to which retail dealers in Chicago looked forward. Quotations reached 47 cents, the highest in the city's market history. This additional burden on the cost of living was blamed by the storekeepers to scarcity resulting from the recent severe weather conditions, but other persons were not slow to ascribe the advance to an alleged trust, which has been under investigation by the Federal authorities.

Dr. George A. Zeller, superintendent of the Illinois state hospital at Bartonville, expressed the belief in a lecture that a great psychic wave of conscience and remorse is sweeping the country.

W. C. McDonald, Democrat, has just been inaugurated governor of New Mexico.

Major Bruce, an American attached to the gendarmie, was fired upon as he was proceeding from the barracks to his residence, says a dispatch from Teheran, Persia. His assailant was concealed in a house. The bullet went wide.

A statement given out by the Persian government denies that it has threatened to punish the American customs officials. A copy of a letter shown by M. Mornard, the treasurer-general, to Mr. Cairns on the subject is appended. This alleged copy, however, bears a different signature from the original and differs in other respects. It is generally believed that the government is trying to induce Americans to leave the country.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt declared that he was not "discussing pipe dreams" when he was asked about a report from Indianapolis to the effect that he was favored by steel interests for the presidential nomination. "That is a depth of tomfoolery to hich I cannot go," he said. "Have you read Mr. Carnegie's testimony before the house committee?" he was asked. "I did not know he testified," Colonel Roosevelt replied, smiling.

Horrible conditions prevailing among the peasantry of southeastern Russia are depicted in a telegram from a doctor in Orenburg. The doctor says the starving peasantry in the government of Orenburg, on the river Ural, are selling their children to the Khirgez nomads in the government of Saratox. Many of the people in the vicinity have died

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., will this week sever his connection with the campaign against white slavery, in which he has been actively engaged for more than two years. He plans, it is said, to turn his attention to another kind of public service.

Washington.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the chemistry bureau of the United States department of agriculture and storm center of the food administration last summer, is given a clean bill of health in the report of the house committee that investigated the charges and countercharges. The committee sustains Doctor Wiley all along the line, except on some unimportant details.

For the first time in history the way has been opened for state banks and trust companies to become "United States depositaries." Owing to the view of the treasury department, any financial institution in America—national or state bank or trust company—holding postal savings deposits or other government funds, may assume that title without legal impediment.

How the people of the United States may have saved for themselves millions of dollars annual in the operation of their governmental machinery was outlined by President Taft in a message to congress on "economy and efficiency in the government service." "What the government does with nearly $1,000,000,000,000 each year," said the president, "is as of as much concern to the average citizen as is the manner of obtaining this amount of money for the public use." Probably the most radical proposal advanced by the president in the message was that all administrative officers of the government in the departments at Washington and in the field be put under the civil service.

Whether Senator Albert J. Cummins of Iowa will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency will be discussed and very probably determined at a meeting of the Iowa delegation in congress which will be called immediately upon the return of Senator Kenyon from the West. Mr. Kenyon is said to be in Chicago in connection with the packers' trial, and probably will be in Washington within a few days. Senator Cummins meantime refused to discuss the reports.

The state department has served notice on President Gomez that the United States will intervene in Cuba if further attempts are made by the veteran organization to nullify the law prohibiting interference of the military in political affairs in Cuba. The news of threatened intervention by the United States in Cuban affairs, coming without the least warning, caused intense excitement in the clubs and cafes of Havana, while in all places of public gathering it was the absorbing topic of discussion. Astonishment and resentment against American interference were mingled ith very general incredulity. President Gomez, seen at the palace, said: "I am convinced that no occasion has yet arisen for any intimation of intervention. I believe that the Washington governments attitude is based on an erroneous view of conditions in Cuba, arising from distorted and greatly exaggerated reports from Havana."

The sight of a Democrat presiding over the deliberations of a Republican senate probably will be a common sight during the remainder of the present session. This peculiar situation was virtually insured when Senator Gallinger announced that he would not at this time press his motion for the election of a president pro-tempore of the senate. Senator Bacon has been occupying the chair during the absence of Vice President Sherman.

Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel wrote to Chairman Henry of the house of representatives rules committee that he had no facts that would aid in the inquiry into the so-called shipping combine. He referred to reported combinations of foreign steamship lines with certain railroads. Attorney General Wickersham, because of other official business, was unable to attend the meeting of the committee which began hearings on the proposed sweeping investigation of the so-called money, shipping and harvester trusts.

Between Hundred and Hundred and Fifty Miners Apply for Certificates.

Between 100 and 150 applicants for first and second-class mine foremen certificates and fire boss certificates for work in the Alabama coal mines were presented at the semi-annual examinations held in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium in Birmingham, commencing January 22. The examinations were conducted under the auspices of the State Mining Board, which is headed by Charles H. Nesbitt, chief state mine inspector of the state. Inasmuch as there is expectation that during the next few years the development in the coal-bearing section of the state will be on a big scale, big positions in the mining work promise to be numerous, and the men with experience are getting ready to secure these jobs. The state laws regulating mining are stricter now than they ever were.

The Lee county democratic executive committee met in Opelika pursuant to the call of the chairman, T. D. Samford. The committee endorsed the candidacy of Oscar Underwood, congressman from Alabama, for the democratic nomination for president in 1912, and I. W. Hill, state superintendent of education and former principal of the Opelika public schools, for congressman-at-large from Alabama.

According to Anniston attorneys, the recent decision of the Alabama supreme court in the case of the Ide cotton mill, appealed from Anniston, where it was heard in the circuit court, will have a far-reaching effect in that it establishes the right of the tax-payer to appeal from the assessment of the tax commissioner and at the same time denies the right of appeal to the state.

The scholarship which has been awaiting the Calhoun county boy who grew the most corn on an acre of Calhoun county soil was awarded to Robert Lusk, who lives near Jacksonville, by Attorney Ross Blackmon, the donor, at the meeting of the Boys' Corn Club at the county court house in Anniston.

Meagre reports reached Carrollton of a storm which visited Reform, a station on the Mobile and Ohio railroad ten miles north of that place, unroofing the Baptist church and several other buildings. One negro house was struck by lightning and burned to the ground.

It is rumored in New Decatur that within the next few days a petition is likely to be circulated in that city asking for a commission form of government. For some months past there has been more or less talk of a commission form of government for New Decatur.

Blount county is for Underwood for president. Petitions have been circulated over the county, and a large per cent. of the democratic voters have signed petitions asking for Underwood's name to be put on the ticket in the primary election.

According to the new Polk directory for 1912, Montgomery has a total population of 48,840 persons, which is an increase of 6,265 over the total shown in January, 1911, when the directory for the past year was issued.

Mrs. Alphese Gholson died at her home in Uniontown after an illness of several weeks. She was about 70 years old at the time of her death. She has been a resident of Uniontown for almost her entire life.

Fire broke out in the jewelry establishment of H. J. Tippett, in Ozark, which resulted in damage to the amount of $2,000 to the building and contents.

Miss Carrie Lou Edwards, aged 13, and a student in the second grade in the Shawmut school, was married to Arthur Grast, aged about 35.

At a meeting of farmers at Prattville the project for a packing house in Montgomery was endorsed.

The contract for a new jail in Dale county was let.

The Huntsville cotton mill resumed operations.

Death was the sad portion of the little 4-year-old girl of R. S. Fuller, of Daisyville, from an unusual cause. Early in the morning the was found in a room unconscious, with an unstopped whiskey bottle by her side. One of the smaller children said she had discovered the whiskey in the house and drank some of it. Though physicians did what they could to revive her, their efforts were futile.

An Underwood club is to be organized at Jasper.

At Mobile the jury in the case of Perry L. Broom, charged with violating the white slave act, returned a verdict of guilty.

W. E. McCord was killed in Birmingham, when a switch engine passed over him, severing his head from his body.

Executive clemency has been extended to John Gilmore, a Dale county negro, who was sent up in 1909 for assault to murder. His sentence is nearly completed.

Inclement weather for the past few weeks has been very costly to farmers of Dallas county, particularly those living in the vicinity of Marion Junction. Tons of the finest hay had not been removed from the fields, and the recent rains have caused quantities to decay.

Disguised as a restaurant waiter, carrying on his arm a tray with empty dishes, Special Police Officer J. F. Watson, of Montgomery, successfully raided the Railroad club here and arrested six well-dressed young men, who, with a number of others, were engaged in a sociable poker game.

After cutting every telephone and telegraph wire in the town yeggmen blew open the safes of the Western of Alabama railroad ticket office, the store of B. E. Walker and the post-office at Milstead, twenty-seven miles east of Montgomery, obtaining, it is reported, large amount of silver and currency.

Accounts and vouchers in the offices of seven Butler county officials, in so far as they relate to the state, were reported upon to Governor O'Neal by Assistant Examiner of Public Accounts Charles L. Towne. The accounts are generally found to be correct, though several errors are reported upon.

H. B. Dunn, flagman in the employ of the Southern Railway, running between Mobile and Selma, was shot and instantly killed as the train was passing Wagar, Ala. The shooting is said to have been done by Ada Keebler, a school girl, who, it is alleged, was firing at the train with a rifle. The killing was accidental. Dunn leaves a widow and one child, residents of Thomasville, Ala.

Twenty-one white persons and twenty-two negroes, of Montgomery county, will receive state teachers' certificates, this number having been successful in passing the December examinations. Two of the whites are men, while nineteen are women; nine of the negroes are men, and thirteen are women. Butler county had twenty-four successful contestants, six whites and eighteen negroes. Of the six whites, three are male, of the eighteen negroes, nine are male.

New Hope, a newly incorporated town in the eastern part of Madison county, now has the most stringent liquor laws of any town in the state. The bootleggers have been so pestiferous out there in that neighborhood that in framing laws for the protection of the community, the council adopted an ordinance which makes it unlawful to carry more than one bottle or jug of whisky. No one will be allowed to drive through town with two receptacles of liquor.

Gov. Emmet O'Neal, Watt T. Brown and Prof. J. B. Hobdy are some of the distinguished men who attended the annual banquet of the Gadsden Business Men's club on January 24.

Plates were laid for 100 guests and the banquet was held in the Printup hotel. Charles P. Smith, of the firm of Smith-Echols-Burnett, was toastmaster. Representatives of all the large industrial plants of the city were present and the banquet was the most auspicous ever held by a commercial organization in this city.

Resolutions were passed endorsing Underwood for president, at a meeting of the democratic executive committee of Elmore county.

At a mass meeting of the farmers of Etowah county held in Gadsden for the purpose of encouraging the reduction of the acreage to be planted in cotton this season, the proposition was unanimously endorsed. A permanent organization was effected with R. E. Downs as chairman and W. R. Phillips as secretary. Beat meetings will be held throughout the county on January 27, when committees will be named to take written pledges from the farmers to curtail the crop to the extent proposed, and another mass meeting for further consideration of the subject will be held in Gadsden on February 2.

Mark Smith, charged with the murder of Turner Lewis, his brother-in-law, was found guilty and sentenced to serve 10 years in the penitentiary. Smith shot and killed Lewis while the latter was in bed at Alabama City. Lewis had threatened to kill his wife and the other members of the Smith family. Young Smith, returning home from the navy and finding the state of affairs, hunted up Lewis and shot him almost without warning. The unwritten law was a strong factor in the case.

ROBBING THE PEOPLE

TRUTH ABOUT THE LEVY OF EXTORTIONATE TAXES.

Surely, When the Facts Are Known, the Voters Will Awake and Realize the Injustice of the Present Wool Schedule.

Difference in cost of production at home and abroad with a reasonable profit is the measure of protection which Mr. Taft is always insisting upon.

It was supposed that the tariff board would give us precise information on this subject, but it does not do so. Probably it is not to be had.

Of one thing we may be certain, however, and that is that the cost of production here will be higher than it is abroad as long as manufacturers are encouraged to depend upon favoring laws rather than upon their own enterprise and sagacity. There is nothing like a public subsidy to take energy out of an industry or a man.

One reason why it is not easy to determine the difference in the cost of production here and abroad is that the thing produced here is not like that produced elsewhere. Our cheaper woolens are notoriously shoddy. Few working people in the United States ever wore a woolen garment or slept under a woolen blanket.

It is only by adulteration of woolens that many of our people are able to clothe themselves decently at all. Most of the price comparisons that we see are of shoddy here and of all-wool elsewhere. Otherwise the difference would be so great that popular wrath would be uncontrollable.

When we consider the thousands of millions which the people have paid to foster this industry it is interesting to note the fact that after forty years of monopolistic protection 63 per cent. of the 35,000 employes of the wool manufacturers are of foreign birth, many of them imported, no doubt, for the purpose.

With our ports practically closed to foreign wools and woolens by prohibitory duties, what a mockery it is to pretend that there can be no relief from these extortionate taxes except as it may be measured out daintily and grudgingly with the entire approval of the plunderers who have long fattened upon them!

On the showing made by the tariff board and on the admissions of the president himself, it would seem that no assault upon the corrupt and oppressive wool schedule could be too violent or too reckless to be ultimately in line with justice.

Theodore Roosevelt has applied the short and ugly word to many a man—and made it stick. But we notice nowadays that when he brands any particular story as an infamous falsehood the principal result is a general laugh of incredulity.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Did Roosevelt Sell Out to Steel?

If Colonel Roosevelt is starting to run, this is the best time to settle the question of whether the steel trust contributed $500,000 to his campaign fund in 1904.

Congress has an investigating committee already constituted which has power to summon the necessary witnesses to settle the issue for all time. A thorough airing and publicity should be given to the list of contributions, nominal, disguised or anonymous, received for Colonel Roosevelt by the late Cornelius Bliss.

If the steel trust, which received a special dispensation from Roosevelt to take over Tennessee Coal and Iron, thus illegally establishing a monopoly, had previously made to him the biggest campaign contribution in presidential history, public knowledge of the fact would simplify matters at this juncture.

Congress should either relieve the public mind of this query or relieve the people from Roosevelt imposition, once and for all.

Unfit.

Even the devout Tribune balks at the Roosevelt suggestion that court decisions be submitted to popular vote to be affirmed or rejected. It asks plaintively: "Why have a constitution at all if the people may vote at any time whether they will abide by it or not?" Exactly. But if the Tribune had carefully studied the Osawatomie speech it would have known that we have outgrown the notion of constitutions and checks and balances and all that nonsense imposed upon us by the feeble-minded fathers of the republic. History counts for nothing! Experience is worse than worthless because it is misleading.

If the Tribune denies this, the Tribune is guilty of a characteristic and peculiarly infamous falsehood. It is unfit for the blessings of government by the Little Father.

Taft's Interminable Position.

By vetoing the wool revision bill Mr. Taft threw the tariff again into a presidential campaign. On the plea that he favored a philosophic, scientific tariff he has created a situation where nothing is more improbable. The democratic denial the country admits from partisan impulse when it sees in his power to grant it, and all for the purpose of making Democrats try to agree on features of the tariff in a manner which every public question is compromised by opposing extremes.

VOTERS MUST BE ON GUARD

Interests That Long Have Enjoyed Surplus Measures of Protection Need Watching.

President Taft as the head of the party of protection must have realized, when he sent in his message on the wool tariff, that he was attacking the "citadel of protection." While the tone of the message was most moderate, the act was itself one of great boldness. During his seven years as president Theodore Roosevelt never dared to move against this monstrous schedule or any other. The protectionist who assails "the citadel of protection" must be a man of undoubted courage. This is specially true in the case of Mr. Taft, for he knows precisely the influences that will oppose him. For he has told us that it was a combination between the western wool growers and the eastern manufacturers that forced the present schedule on the country under threat of defeating the entire bill.

This same conspiracy is still alive, and it will of course pull every string to defeat any wool tariff sufficiently low to give the people any relief. It is said that one of the members of the combination, Senator Smoot, is preparing a bill based on the report of the tariff board. We would not judge his bill or any other in advance of its presentation to the public. But surely it may fairly be said that any bill coming from the inner circle of the wool crowd should be viewed with the gravest suspicion. Men who have for forty years been struggling to get all they could in the way of taxes, may be trusted to yield nothing except as it is wrung from them.—Indianapolis News.

What Job?

One of the editors of the Outlook has taken pains to explain that if Mr. Roosevelt is ever elected president again, "it will not be because he seeks or wants the office, but because the country wants him to perform a certain job."

What job?

What problem of government is there that Theodore Roosevelt could solve more successfully than William H. Taft, or Woodrow Wilson, or Judson Harmon, or Oscar W. Underwood, or even Robert M. La Follette?

Would he enforce the Sherman law better than Mr. Taft has enforced it? When he was president he never enforced it half so well.

Would he do more to bring about tariff reform to reduce the cost of living? When he was president he never lifted a finger to lighten the burden of extortionate protection.

Would he go further toward destroying the partnership between government and Big Business? It is unnecessary to ask such a question in regard to the president who invited Harriman to the White House in the closing days of the campaign and who licensed the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the steel trust.

Would he send the "malefactors of great wealth" to jail? While he was president nobody was ever sent to jail for violating the anti-trust law. Nobody was ever criminally prosecuted for violating the anti-trust law.

Would he do more for domestic peace and tranquility, would he do more to promote the general welfare, than Taft has done? The great industrial achievement of his administration was a panic that threw 2,000,000 men out of work.—New York World.

His Limit of Progress.

Senator Cummins of Iowa is supposed to be a progressive, but he is one of the most elusive of the whole group. He is a terrible enemy of the high tariff when there is no chance of legislation; when there is, he ambles back to the standpat reservation. A newspaper that is supposed to represent him advised Mr. Roosevelt a year and a half ago to keep out of progressive movement, as he was not the real thing and was more of a hindrance than a help to the Republicans who are progressing. He now announces that the Iowa delegation to the national convention will be for the president if he himself does not enter the arena as a candidate. If he knows what he is talking about the Iowa Republicans are willing to progress as far as he, wherever that may be, or the president, but they will not progress to the Roosevelt or La Follette points.

Democratic.

Boasting in Michigan of the success of progressive Republican legislation in Wisconsin, Senator La Follette said: "Not one of these progressive laws has been overturned by the supreme court of the state."

Why could not the gentleman, who professes to be looking for a party better than his own, have had the candor to state that the Wisconsin supreme court is now, and for many years has been, Democratic?

My heart is full of gratitude to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my health."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider Well This Advice.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

TOO EXCITING FOR CROKER

Ex-Tammany Chief, Like So Many Others, Succumbed to the Fascination of Stevenson.

The ideas of Richard Croker do not run on bookish lines. Regretting this circumstance and considering that a taste for literature, once inculcated, might be a source of pleasure in his advanced years, a journalistic friend who crossed the Atlantic with the one-time chieftain of Tammany hall not long ago cornered him in the steamship library one evening and obtained a reluctant permission to read "Treasure Island" to him.

Much to his friend's encouragement, Mr. Croker listened with unfeigned interest until the lights went out and apparently enjoyed the narration of the exciting events of John Morgan, Billy Bones, Black Dog, John Silver and the others. Wherefore, finding Mr. Crocker in the library the next evening, the journalist again produced his volume of Stevenson and drew up a chair. But the one-time Tammany chieftain lifted a protesting hand.

"Don't read that book to me any more," he said. "I couldn't get to sleep last night for thinking about those fellows."

The Problem of Evil.

"Mother," asked four-year-old Gerald, "who made all the burglars and the cops and the Indians and the mosquitoes and those bad things?"

"Why," replied his mother, slightly taken aback, "I suppose God did, dear."

"Well, mother," said the boy, with a puzzled look in his blue eyes," what do you suppose he made 'em for?"

SURPRISED DOCTOR.
Illustrating the Effect of Food.

The remarkable adaptability of Grape-Nuts food to stomachs so disordered that they will reject everything else, is illustrated by the case of a woman in Racine, Wis.

"Two years ago," she says, "I was attacked by a stomach trouble so serious that for a long time I could not take much of any sort of food. Even the various kinds prescribed by the doctor produced most acute pain.

"We then got some Grape-Nuts food, and you can imagine my surprise and delight when I found that I could eat it with a relish and without the slightest distress.

"When the doctor heard of it he told me to take several small portions each day, because he feared I would grow tired of it as I had of all other food.

"But to his surprise, (and that of everybody else), I did not tire of Grape-Nuts, and became better day by day, till, after some weeks, my stomach entirely recovered and I was able to eat anything my appetite craved.

"My nerves, which had become so weakened that I feared I would become insane, were also restored by the Grape-Nuts food in connection with Postum which has become our table beverage. I appreciate most gratefully and thankfully the good that your food preparations have done me, and shall be glad to answer any letters inquiring as to my experience." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Don't forget to pay your POLL TAX.

But seven more days remain in which to pay POLL TAX.

We are presenting this week the likeness of Hon. V. B. Atkins of Dallas, who is a candidate for Congress from the State-at-large. Last week we announced that the Press would espouse the cause of Mr. Atkins in his aspirations to be a national representative. We believe that his platform is such as will commend him to all thinking democrats.

The Seay Distributor and Oat Drill.

Believing the Seay is the best we have seen, we do not buy any other make. It regulates the quantity of Fertilizer by Lever and Ratchet, and wet or dry it will distribute the Fertilizer. Buy one and if it does not do what we claim for it return it and get your money.

We sold about SEVENTY-FIVE last season and not one of them was returned. All we ask is that you give it a fair test.

Gamble Hardware Co.

Mr. Atkins is an able politician, a first-class business man and a gentlemen of large experience in legislative matters. He has made a great success of his own personal affairs; was three times elected as Mayor of his home city and is now State Senator from his home county. Those who know him best delight to honor him.

We believe that if elected to Congress he will make a signal success in national politics and will give Alabama Democrats no cause to regret having chosen him as their Congressman from the State-at-large, but that on the contrary, when the state is re-districted, he will be unanimously chosen as the standard bearer of the district into which his county is placed.

Foley Kidney Pills

always give satisfaction because they always do the work. J. T. Shelnut, Bremen, Ga., says: "I have used Foley Kidney Pills with great satisfaction and found more relief from their use than from any other kidney medicine, and I've tried almost all kinds. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers for kidney and bladder trouble." Upchurch Drug Co.

ANOTHER WRECK

L. & N. RAILROAD UNFORTUNATE.

Another wreck occurred just north of Clanton Thursday morning at 3:45, when a through freight crashed into a local derailing several cars and completely demolishing the caboose.

The engineer and fireman saw the danger in time to jump and got off with few bruises.

Just where the fault lies could not be ascertained at this writing, but it is certain that no fault attaches to Supervisor H. T. Pipes. This is the fifth wreck that has occured in his division within two weeks and in no instance has there been any fault attached to him or his men; in every case it seems, there has been something wrong with the cars.

Do you know that fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, and require no internal treatment whatever? Apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely and see how quickly it gives relief. For sale by all dealers.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound "Cures In Every Case."

Mr. Jas. McCaffery, Mgr. of the Schlitz Hotel, Omaha, Neb., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, because it cures in every case. "I have used it myself and I have recommended it to many others who have since told me of its great curative power in diseases of the throat and lungs." For all coughs and colds it is speedily effective. Upchurch Drug Co.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound

is a reliable family medicine. Give it to your children, and take it yourself when you feel a cold coming on. It checks and cures coughs and colds and croup and prevents bronchitis and pneumonia. UpchurchDrug Co.

Medicines that aid nature are always most effectual. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It allays the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Thousands have testified to its superior excellence. Sold by all dealers.

Chas. Durham, Lovington, Ill., has succeeded in finding a positive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear thro' on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Foley Kidney Pills. After he had taken them two days we could see a change and when he had taken two thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." Upchurch Drug Co.

Fever Sores.

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all dealers.

THE NEW TWO STORY BRICK FOSHEE BUILDING.

INDIAN GIRLS — PAST AND PRESENT

THE Indian girl is progressing in accordance with the example set by her white sisters. Indeed, it is a question whether the Indian girls are not, in many respects, advancing more rapidly than their prototypes among the palefaces. However, it must not be inferred that the present-day trend of culture and education and progress among the Indian girls is a parallel as to aims and purposes with that which prevails among her fair-complexioned cousins. Quite the ntrary, as a matter of fact. For instance, it y be cited that, generally speaking, the Indian rls of the present give far less thought to shions in dress than do feminine members of e white race. Similarly they are not exercised er suffrage and they do not place such stress the development of musical accomplishments. But, on the contrary, the twentieth century In-an girls are devoting their energies to a mas-ry of cookery and sewing and the other essen-ls of successful home-making to which, in the timation of some old-fashioned folks, the white rls of the period are giving all too little atten-on. At the same time, many of the red-skin lles are not content to ignore the social accom-lishments which are supposed to enhance the at-ractiveness of modern young women. Accord-gly at the Indian School at Carlisle, Pa., and her large institutions of this kind we find the ughters of the forest crowding the classes in usic, painting, drawing, dancing, modern ath-tics, etc., and even behold these descendants of e savages developing marked dramatic ability amateur theatrical entertainments of various nds.

Every person is forced to admit of the wisdom d benefits of the "white man's education" for me Indians. The remarkable life stories of me of the self-made Indians who have, after quiring the white man's book learning, adopted e white man's mode of life, amply attest the ccess of the transformation in individual cases. here is, however, and perhaps always will be difference of opinion as to the wisdom of at-mpting to fix the Anglo-Saxon standards for e entire rising generation of America's native ribes. Oddly enough there seems to be more idespread belief in such a policy for the Indian irls than for the young men of the tepees.

We say, oddly, because when new conditions ve confronted an uncivilized or semi-civilized ople it has usually been the men who have ac-ustomed themselves to the new order of things ore readily than the women. In the case of ost Indian clans, however, the women have oven more amenable to the exactions of the w life wherein seems to lie the only salvation the entire Indian life. Various reasons have en advanced in explanation of this, one of the ost plausible being that it has not been as dif-cult for the Indian girl to forego such pleasures she enjoyed in her old life as it has been for e young brave to forsake the excitement of e chase and the care-free nomadic life and to ttle down in a fixed habitation with the irksome onotony of the white man's life. Also, it is im-ossible to overlook the influence exerted by the xample of the considerable number of Indian omen who have married white settlers in Okla-oma and other parts of the west.

Even at the outset of her career in the conven-onal environment of the age the Indian girl has any advantages over her brother who com-letes his education at the same time. It not in-requently happens that a young man of Indian lood graduates with honors from some Indian chool only to find no opportunities awaiting him ommensurate with his ability. Small wonder hat in some instances the young man re-ort to the ideals and mode of life of their fore-athers. The Indian girl, on the other hand, can e sure that when she finishes a school course hat includes domestic economy there is a place awaiting her. She will never have any difficulty in obtaining a well-paid position in domestic service, for the instructors at our Indian schools have more applications than they can accept from responsible families eager to secure competent Indian girls as household helpers. Some of the applicants even suggest the possibility of adopting a young Indian girl if one be found to fulfil expectations.

Or, if the Indian girl of the present day, upon completing her education, elect to try for a livelihood in some one of the artistic pursuits she seems to have advantages over her brother fully as marked as under the circumstances above mentioned. The Indian brave, in his native state, does not show aptitude for any form of artistic handicraft unless it be the fashioning of bows and arrows. But the Indian women have traditional skill in bead work, in feather work and in leather work and the Indian women of the southwest have for countless generations excelled in pottery manufacture, in rug weaving and in basket manufacture. When an Indian girl is enabled to use such talents in accordance with the knowledge of modern art ideals which a school education gives her, it goes without saying that she has ready to hand a very agreeable and very remunerative means of livelihood.

School teaching is another vocation which opens to the educated Indian girls a future that is virtually closed to the redskins of the sterner sex. There are in the United States a large and constantly increasing number of Indian schools,—that is, primary grade schools for the education of the younger Indian children on the reservations,—and it is coming about that almost all of the teachers in these schools are Indian young women who have qualified for the work at Carlisle or other schools and by courses in normal schools. Indeed the success of great numbers of these young Indian women school teachers in earning their livelihood by brain work while so many of the Indian young men of the period must depend upon manual labor for their earnings emphasizes as does nothing else the change that has come about in the status of Indian women. It is under such circumstances, a complete reversal of conditions over those that obtained in the long ago when the Indian women were compelled to do all of the hard labor, whereas the men were responsible only for the lighter tasks,—or, perhaps, devoted themselves exclusively to warfare and the chase.

There is little doubt that one explanation of the success which so many twentieth century Indian girls are making in various fields of endeavor is found in the heritage of good health which has come to them from generations of healthful ancestors, and the influence of their own early training and out-door life. Particularly would this explanation account for the splendid constitutions possessed by so many Indian girls and which have stood them in good stead in many exacting vocations, for instance, in nursing. Great numbers of Indian girls have qualified as trained nurses and the services of most of them are in constant demand at $100 a month.

The Indian baby, strapped to a board or securely packed in an elongated basket woven for the purpose, can neither kick nor squirm and this proves an advantage which is far-reaching in its effect in later life. Similarly is there no danger that the child will attempt to walk at an earlier age than is desirable. From earliest childhood the average Indian girl has been subjected to that rigorous outdoor life which results in making them almost perfect physically. For instance, there may be cited the method followed in giving an Indian child a bath,—a weekly event. The mother visits some convenient pool or stream and the young member of the household, after being loosened from her odd cradle, is placed in shallow water to kick and splash to her heart's content. In due course the dripping youngster is lifted from the water and, instead of being tenderly dried with soft linen, is simply hung to the bough of some convenient tree, by means of a cloth tied around the waist, and there dries in the air and the sunshine while the mother stands by, looking with approving eyes upon the progress of this heroic hardening process.

In the old days the Indian girls accepted at tender age the traditional lot of Indian women—that of pack horse, and it was nothing unusual in the average Indian camp to see wee girls toiling along with bundles of wood, etc., almost as large as themselves. This condition yet obtains to a considerable extent, although it is not as universal as formerly. The capacity of the Indian girls for hard work, however, finds daily amplification in every walk of life which they have entered. Incidently, it may be mentioned that whatever influence civilization may exert upon the young women in whose veins courses Indian blood she never seems to lose that love of ornaments and bright colors which characterizes all children of the wilderness and which the Indian girl will indulge not in her native day costumes even though they be continued in accordance with the most extravagant styles.

OVER SEA RAILROAD OPENS AT KEY WEST

STEEL HIGHWAY RUNNING OVER ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY-SIX MILES OF WATER.

MANY NATIONS REPRESENTED

Completion of "Railroad Over the Sea" Marks Epoch in Railroad Construction.

Miami, Fla.—The completion of one of the greatest engineering feats of the present age was celebrated when the first great "railroad over the sea," the Key West extension of the Florida East Coast railway, was formally opened. By using the Florida Keys as stepping stones, this steel highway runs over 156 miles of salt water, from a point a few miles south of Miami to the island city of Key West.

A special train bearing American and foreign dignitaries was sent over the remarkable construction as the feature of the exercises formally commemorating the putting into service of the extension. Many of the foreign embassies and legations sent representatives to take part in the celebration, at the invitation of President Taft, among them Italy, Mexico, Portugal, Costa Rico, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Salvador and Uruguay.

The United States armored cruisers Washington and North Carolina and the scout cruisers Salem and Birmingham, representing the United States navy, and the Portuguese cruiser Aramada participated in the celebration.

The completion of the work on the extension marks an epoch in railroad engineering as important as will be the opening of the Panama canal in the history of shipping. It is the same thing reversed. In the one case ships are made to climb mountains; in the other railway trains are made to run over the sea.

In construction this feat is considered the greatest accomplishment of its kind in the world. The entire line to Key West extends a distance of 156 miles, nearly half of which is over open water. Forty-two keys, or islands, are crossed in this stretch.

Consummation of it marks the realization of a dream of Henry M. Flagler, Standard Oil magnate and one of the foremost figures in the financial life of the nation. He has had the idea constantly in mind ever since the Spanish-American war excitement, when he conceived the proposition of making traffic communication between the United States and Cuba easier and more practical. The project will shorten the time from Florida mainland to Cuba by almost 20 hours.

The actual work was begun in 1905. It was then that the blue prints called for by Mr. Flagler were submitted to him by engineers. The president of the road glanced at them, and, turning to J. R. Parrott, vice-president and general manager of his railway, and his right-hand man in all of his Florida undertakings, said:

"All I want to know is whether the road can be built."

"Yes, it can," replied Mr. Parrott.

"Then go ahead and build it," Mr. Flagler directed.

The engineers' estimates were that the feat would cost $15,000,000. It has cost much more than that, and the officials of the road several times were obliged to negotiate loans of millions in order to insure its completion.

The new road will make Key West for all practical purposes a part of the mainland, and its harbor one of the most important in the United States, after the opening of the Panama canal, being as it is on the direct route from the open ocean to the great new artificial artery of commerce.

Also the extension is the last link at the south of the great through railroad service along the Atlantic coast. It will now be possible to take a train in Maine and, sitting in the same car, travel all the way to the southernmost point on the eastern coast of North America.

ALLEN TAX COMMISSIONER.

Governor, After Careful Deliberation, Fills Vacancy in Jefferson County.

Montgomery.—Capt. Joe V. Allen of Birmingham, secretary of the Alabama Coal Operators' Association, was named tax commissioner of the county of Jefferson by Gov. Emmet O'Neal. The office to which Capt. Allen is appointed is considered one of the most lucrative in the State.

DR. WEBSTER GETS A LIFE SENTENCE

Oregon, Ill.—Dr. Harry Elgin Webster, the young physician who pleaded guilty to having murdered his bigamous wife in the woods near here, was sentenced to life imprisonment. The crime to which Dr. Harry E. Webster confessed was the murder of his third and bigamous wife, Mrs. Bessie Kane Webster, who was stabbed to death in a stretch of woods near the home of his parents in Dixon, Ill., on the morning of September 10, 1911.

BIG RAILROAD MEN KILLED IN WRECK

FIVE ARE DEAD AS RESULT OF FATAL COLLISION IN ILLINOIS.

HARAHAN ONE OF VICTIMS

Representatives of Prominent Families Dead—Seminole Limited Is the Hardest Loser.

Decatur, Ill.—Four persons were killed in the private car of F. O. Melecher, second vice-president of the Rock Island railroad at Kinmundy, Ill. Among the dead is J. T. Harahan, Sr., former president of the Illinois Central.

The dead are:

J. T. Harahan, Sr., former president of the Illinois Central.

F. O. Melcher, second vice-president of the Rock Island.

E. B. Pierce, general solicitor.

E. E. Wright, attorney of Memphis.

Engineer Payne of Seminole.

The private car was attached to the Seminole Limited No. 25, which was standing, taking water, when No. 3 struck it, the engine of No. 3 plowing all the way through the private car.

Centralia, Ill.—James T. Harahan, former president of the Illinois railway, and Second Vice-President F. O. Melcher of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway, with other occupants of Mr. Melcher's private car, were killed when the car telescoped in a collision at Kinmundy, Ill., north of here. The car was attached to the Seminole Limited, which was standing at the station when No. 25, another fast passenger train, ran into it from the rear. The other occupants of the car were E. E. Wright, an attorney of Memphis, Tenn., and E. B. Pierce, general solicitor for the Rock Island.

Train No. 25 was due at Kinmundy at 11:52 o'clock. No. 3, which does not stop there, usually passes through at about 12:30 a. m. They are scheduled to pass each other at Centralia at 12:55 a. m.

In addition to the four persons in the private car who were instantly killed, Engineer Payne, of the Seminole, also was killed. His home is in Champaign, Ill. His fireman escaped by jumping, but was badly injured.

The private secretary to Mr. Melcher, who also was on the privat car, was the only occupant to escape death. It is said, however, that he is seriously injured.

Passengers in the cars ahead of the private car were shaken up, but none of them were injured.

Memphis, Tenn.—Eldridge E. Wright was a son of Gen. Luke E. Wright, former secretary of war, and made his home in this city. He was about 30 years of age, and leaves a widow in Memphis, who was formerly Miss Zimmes, daughter of Rafael Zimmes, of Memphis.

Chicago.—Frank Otis Melcher, who was born in Maine in 1864, and graduated from Tufts College in 1887, entered the railway service as an assistant in the engineers' corps of the Pittsburg railway.

He was, successively, instrument man, assistant engineer, chief engineer, division superintendent and general superintendent on this line.

E. P. Pierce, general solicitor of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, had his offices in the Rock Island station here. His home is in Highland Park, a suburb of Chicago.

James T. Harahan was born at Lowell, Mass., in 1843. He worked his way in the railroad world from water boy to president. His first employment was with the Orange and Alexandria railroad at Alexandria, Va. Subsequently he was with the Nashville and Decatur railroad at Nashville, Tenn., with which he held various positions. He then became superintendent of the Louisiana and Northern railroad, with headquarters at New Orleans.

For many years he was general manager of the Illinois Central railroad, being made its president in November, 1906, after the late E. H. Harriman secured control of the road from Stuyvesant Fish. He was retired by the Illinois Central on a pension a few months ago. He was succeeded as president by C. H. Markham.

Suicides Over United States.

Washington.—Fewer people committed suicide during 1910 than in 1909, according to the latest statistics on the subject announced by Dr. Cressy L. Wilbur, chief statistician for vital statistics of the United States Census Bureau. The death rate from suicide for 1910 was 16 per 100,000 population, according to the Census Bureau's death registration area, which comprises about one-half of the country's population and covers 22 states and a number of larger cities in other states.

BURNING DAYLIGHT

By JACK LONDON

AUTHOR OF "THE CALL OF THE WILD," "WHITE FANG," "MARTIN EDEN," ETC.

(Copyright, 1910, by the New York Herald Company.)
(Copyright, 1910, by the MacMillan Company.)

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and, amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned.

CHAPTER IX.—Continued.

A long session of three hours followed. The deciding factor was not the big automatic pistol, but the certitude that Daylight would use it. Not alone were the three men convinced of this, but Daylight himself was convinced. He was firmly resolved to kill the men if his money was not forthcoming. It was not an easy matter, on the spur of the moment, to raise ten millions in paper currency, and there were vexatious delays. A dozen times Mr. Howison and the head clerk were summoned into the room. On these occasions the pistol lay on Daylight's lap, covered carelessly by a newspaper, while he was usually engaged in rolling or lighting his brown-paper cigarette. But in the end, the thing was accomplished. A suit-case was brought up by one of the clerks from the waiting motor-car, and Daylight snapped it shut on the last package of bills. He paused at the door to make his final remarks.

"There's three several things I sure want to tell you-all. When I get outside this door, you-all'll be set free to act, and I just want to warn you-all about what to do. In the first place, no warrants for my arrest—savvee? This money's mine, and I ain't robbed you of it. If it gets out how you gave me the double cross and how I done you back again, the laugh 'll be on you, and it'll be sure an almighty big laugh. You-all can't afford that laugh. Besides, having got back my stake that you-all robbed me of, if you arrest me and try to rob me a second time I'll go gunning for you-all, and I'll sure get you. No little fraidcat shrimps like you-all can skin Burning Daylight. If you win you lose, and there'll sure be some several unexpected funerals around this burg. Just look me in the eye, and you-all'll savvee I mean business. Them stubs and receipts on the table is all yourn. Good day."

As the door shut behind him, Nathaniel Letton sprang for the telephone, and Dowsett intercepted him.

"What are you going to do?" Dowsett demanded.

"The police. It's downright robbery. I won't stand it. I tell you I won't stand it."

Dowsett smiled grimly, but at the same time bore the slender financier back and down into his chair.

"We'll talk it over," he said; and in Leon Guggenhammer he found an anxious ally.

And nothing ever came of it. The thing remained a secret with the three men. Nor did Daylight ever give the secret away, though that afternoon, leaning back in his stateroom on the Twentieth Century, his shoes off, and feet on a chair, he chuckled long and heartily. New York remained forever puzzled over the affair; nor could it hit upon a rational explanation. By all rights, Burning Daylight should have gone broke, yet it was known that he immediately reappeared in San Francisco possessing an apparently unimpaired capital. This was evidenced by the magnitude of the enterprises he engaged in, such as, for instance, Panama Mail, by sheer weight of money and fighting power wrestling the control away from Shefftly and selling out in two months to the Harriman interests at a rumored enormous advance.

CHAPTER X.

Back in San Francisco, Daylight quickly added to his reputation. In ways it was not an enviable reputation. Men were afraid of him. He became known as a fighter, a fiend, a tiger. His play was a ripping and smashing one, and no one knew where or how his next blow would fall. The element of surprise was large. He balked on the unexpected, and, fresh from the wild North, his mind not operating in stereotyped channels, he was able in unusual degree to devise new tricks and stratagems. And once he won the advantage, he pressed it remorselessly. "As relentless as a Red Indian," was said of him, and it was said truly.

He was a free lance, and had no friendly business associations. Such alliances as were formed from time to time were purely affairs of expediency, and he regarded his allies as men who would give him the double-cross or ruin him if a profitable chance presented. In spite of this point of view, he was faithful to his allies. But he was faithful just as long as they were and no longer. The treason had to come from them, and then it was 'Ware Daylight.

The business men and financiers of the Pacific coast never forgot the lesson of Charles Klinkner and the California & Altamont Trust Company. Klinkner was the president. In partnership with Daylight, the pair raided the San Jose Interurban. The powerful Lake Power & Electric Lighting corporation came to the rescue, and Klinkner, seeing what he thought was the opportunity, went over to the enemy in the thick of the pitched battle. Daylight lost three millions before he was done with it, and before he was done with it he saw the California & Altamont Trust Company hopelessly wrecked, and Charles Klinkner a suiside in a felon's cell.

So it was that Daylight became a successful financier. He did not go in for swindling the workers. Not only did he not have the heart for it, but it did not strike him as a sporting proposition. The workers were so easy, so stupid. It was more like slaughtering fat, hand-reared pheasants on the English preserves he had read about. The sport, to him, was in waylaying the successful robbers and taking their spoils from them. The grim Yukon life had failed to make Daylight hard. It required civilization to produce this result. In the fierce, savage game he now played, his habitual geniality imperceptibly slipped away from him, as did his lazy Western drawl.

He still had recrudescences of geniality, but they were largely periodical and forced, and they were usually due to the cocktails he took prior to mealtime. In the North he had drunk deeply and at irregular intervals; but now his drinking became systematic and disciplined. It was an unconscious development, but it was based upon physical and mental conditions. The cocktails served as an inhibition. Without reasoning or thinking about it, the strain of the office, which was essentially due to the daring and audacity of his ventures, required check or cessation; and he found, through the weeks and months, that the cocktails supplied this very thing. They constituted a stone wall. He never drank during the morning, nor in office hours; but the instant he left the office he proceeded to raise this wall of alcoholic inhibition athwart his consciousness. The office became immediately a closed affair. It ceased to exist. In the afternoon, after lunch, it lived again for one or two hours, when, leaving it, he rebuilt the wall of inhibition. Of course, there were exceptions to this; and, such was the rigor of his discipline, that if he had a dinner or a conference before him in which, in a business way, he encountered enemies or allies and planned or prosecuted campaigns, he abstained from drinking. But the instant the business was settled, his everlasting call went out for a Martini, and for a double-Martini at that, in a long glass so as not to excite comment.

The Cocktails Served as an Inhibition.

Into Daylight's life came Dede Mason. She came rather imperceptibly. He had accepted her impersonally along with the office furnishing, the office boy, Morrison, the chief, confidential, and only clerk, and all the rest of the accessories of a superman's gambling place of business. Had he been asked any time during the first months she was in his employ, he would have been unable to tell the color of her eyes. From the fact that she was a demi-blonde, there resided dimly in his subconsciousness a conception that she was a brunette. Likewise he had an idea that she was not thin, while there was an absence in his mind of any idea that she was fat. And how she dressed, he had no idea at all. He had no trained eye in such matters, nor was he interested. He took it for granted, in the lack of any impression to the contrary, that she was dressed somehow. He knew her as "Miss Mason," and that was all, though he was aware that as a stenographer she was quick and accurate. He watched her leaving one afternoon, and was aware for the first time that she was well-formed, and that her manner of dress was satisfying. He knew none of the details of woman's dress, and he saw none of the details of her neat shirt waist and well-cut tailor suit. He saw only the effect in a general, sketchy way. She looked right. This was in the absence of anything wrong or out of the way.

"She's a trim little good-looker," was his verdict, when the outer office door closed on her.

The next morning, dictating, he concluded that he liked the way she did her hair, though for the life of him he could have given no description of it. The impression was pleasing, that was all. She sat between him and the window, and he noted that her hair was light brown, with hints of golden bronze. A pale sun, shining in, touched the golden bronze into smouldering fires that were very pleasing. He discovered that in the intervals, when she had nothing to do, she read books and magazines, or worked on some sort of feminine fancy work. Passing her desk, once, he picked up a volume of Kipling's poems and glanced bepuzzled through the pages.

"You like reading Miss Mason?" he said, laying the book down.

"Oh, yes!" was the answer, "very much."

Another time it was a book of Wells', "The Wheels of Chance."

"What's it all about?" Daylight asked.

"Oh, it's just a novel, a love-story."

She stopped, but he still stood waiting, and she felt it incumbent to go on.

"It's about a little Cockney draper's assistant, who takes a vacation on his bicycle, and falls in with a young girl very much above him. Her mother is a popular writer and all that. And the situation is very curious, and sad, too, and tragic. Would you care to read it?"

"Does he get her?" Daylight demanded.

"No; that's the point of it. He wasn't—"

"And he doesn't get her, and you've read all them pages, hundreds of them, to find that out?" Daylight muttered in amazement.

Miss Mason was nettled as well as amused.

"But you read the mining and financial news by the hour," she retorted.

"But I sure get something out of that. It's business, and it's different. I get money out of it. What do you get out of books?"

"Points of view, new ideas, life."

"Not worth a cent cash."

"But life's worth more than cash," she argued.

"Oh, well," he said, with easy masculine tolerance, "so long as you enjoy it. That's what counts, I suppose; and there's no accounting for taste."

Despite his own superior point of view, he had an idea that she knew a lot, and he experienced a fleeting feeling like that of a barbarian face to face with the evidence of some tremendous culture. To Daylight culture was a worthless thing, and yet, somehow, he was vaguely troubled by a sense that there was more in culture than he imagined.

Again, on her desk, in passing, he noticed a book with which he was familiar. This time he did not stop, for he had recognized the cover. It was a magazine correspondent's book on the Klondike, and he knew that he and his photograph figured in it, and he knew, also, of a certain sensational chapter concerned with a woman's suicide, and with one "To Much Daylight." After that he did not talk with her again about books. He imagined what erroneous conclusions she had drawn from that particular chapter, and it stung him the more in that they were undeserved. He pumped Morrison, the clerk, who had first to vent his personal grievance against Miss Mason before he could tell what little he knew of her.

"She comes from Siskiyou County. She's very nice to work with in the office, of course, but she's rather stuck on herself—exclusive, you know."

"How do you make that out?" Daylight queried.

"Well, she thinks too much of herself to associate with those she works with, in the office here, for instance. She won't have anything to do with a fellow, you see. I've asked her out repeatedly, to the theater and the chutes and such things. But nothing doing. Says she likes plenty of sleep, and can't stay up late, and has to go all the way to Berkeley—that's where she lives. But that's all hot air. She's running with the University boys, that's what she's doing. She needs lots of sleep, and can't go to the theater with me, but she can dance all hours with them. I've heard it pretty straight that she goes to all their hops and such things. Rather stylish and high-toned for a stenographer, I'd say. And she keeps a horse, too. She rides astride all over those hills out there. I saw her one Sunday myself. Oh, she's a high-flyer, and I wonder how she does it. Sixty-five a month don't go far. Then she has a sick brother, too."

"Live with her people?" Daylight asked.

"No; hasn't got any. They were well to do, I've heard. They must have been, or that brother or hers couldn't have gone to the University of California. Her father had a big cattle-ranch, but he got to fooling with mines or something, and went broke before he died. Her mother died long before that. Her brother must cost a lot of money. He was a husky once, played football, was great on hunting and being out in the mountains and such things. He got his accident breaking horses, and then rheumatism or something got into him. One leg is shorter than the other, and withered up some. He has to walk on crutches. I saw her out with him once—crossing the ferry. The doctors have been experimenting on him for years, and he's in the French Hospital now, I think."

All of which side-lights on Miss Mason went to increase Daylight's interest in her. Yet, much as he desired, he failed to get acquainted with her. He had thoughts of asking her to luncheon, but his was the innate chivalry of the frontiersman, and the thoughts never came to anything. He knew a self-respecting, square-dealing man was not supposed to take his stenographer to luncheon. Such things did happen, he knew, for he heard the chatter gossip of the club; but he did not think much of such men and felt likely for the girls.

PRACTICAL HELP FOR POOR

Man Undoubtedly Had Great Scheme, Although There Was a Slight Obstacle in the Way.

In the den which opened off the living room the man was roaring soulfully his own modernized version of an old song, "If I had but ten millions a year, Gaffer Green, if I had but ten millions a year—"

"What would you do with it?" his sister interrupted, less for purposes of information tan in pursuit of quiet.

"One thing, anyhow, Sis," he broke off with unexpected earnestness. "I'd establish a system of free laundries for the poor. New Yorkers are wonderfully clean people, all things considered, but you can't go around much without realizing that more laundry work and bathing would be an immense benefit in some directions."

"But how would you manage it? Who would be the beneficiaries? How could you discriminate?"

"All that would have to be considered, of course. Now, you work out the details. Sis, and I'll go out and try to scrape up the ten millions."—New York Press.

THE PEEVISH CHILD NEEDS TREATMENT

When a child sulks drowsily, or is fretful, it is usually due to some slight disorder of the digestive organs, and a mild laxative is very often all that is necessary to restore cheerfulness and buoyancy of spirits.

In cases where the use of a gentle, effective laxative stimulant is indicated, many of the best physicians are now prescribing Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This preparation is admittedly the perfect laxative, being mild, yet positive in its action on the bowels, and far preferable to violent cathartics and purgative waters. It is very pleasant to the taste and is an ideal remedy to regulate and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels. Its easy, natural action makes it especially desirable in the case of children, a dose at bed-time being sure to have the desired result next morning, with no attendant unpleasantness or discomfort.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists everywhere in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried this splendid remedy, write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., for a sample. He will be very glad to send a trial bottle without any expense to you whatever.

The Thin Girl's Temper.

No thin woman can afford to lose her temper. "Nothing," says a good authority, "will make you so angular or give your face such an undesirable look as the free indulgence of your own will." A girl who was thin to a really painful degree gained 30 pounds in 60 days on the following regime: Twelve hours' sleep a day; a well-ventilated and cold room to sleep in, with plenty of fresh air all night; light down coverlets for warmth and hot-water bags at the feet if they are cold; loose, light clothing at all times, with plenty of space about the chest, shoulders and waist; a diet of cereals, cocoa, fresh fruits or starchy vegetables, potatoes, beans, etc., milk and cream—everything of a warming, fat-producing nature in the way of food; warm baths, though not too frequently.

Her Logic.

It was the week before Christmas. Emery and his younger sister, Mildred, were debating very seriously the reality of Santa Claus.

"There isn't any Santa Claus," said Emery, with finality.

"Why, there must be," insisted his sister. "How could they make pictures that look just like him?"

MRS. SCOTT WELL AGAIN

Good News from Martin Tells of Timely Recovery. Details Regarding the Case.

Martin, Tenn.—Mrs. Gennie Scott, of this city, says: "For years, I was troubled, more or less, with womanly troubles. Sometimes I would have shortness of breath, and smothering spells. I tried several doctors, but they only gave me temporary relief.

At last I tried Cardui, the woman's tonic, and found it to be the medicine suiting my case. I was quickly relieved by it, and now, for the first time in years, I am very well, and enjoy good health.

I praise Cardui for these good results. I recommend the medicine to my friends, because I know it is good, safe and reliable. It helped me wonderfully, and I can truthfully say that Cardui is the best medicine I have ever taken."

Be sure that Cardui, the woman's tonic, will bring you help, if you will use it regularly, and for a reasonable length of time.

You know you can depend on Cardui, because you have read of so many who are enthusiastic in its praise. Cardui has stood the test of time, the supreme test of merit.

Cardui is successful. It has been found to relieve womanly pain and build up womanly strength. Try Cardui. It will help you.

During the year 1911 the greatest percentage of increase among the different forms of anti-tuberculosis work was among the open-air schools for anemic and tuberculosis children. On January 1, 1911, there were only 29 open-air schools in operation or provided for in the entire country. On January 1, 1912, there were 91, an increase of 214 per cent. Sixty-two new schools have been established or provided for the past year. This entire number of open-air schools have been established since January 1, 1907.

FOREIGN SECRETARY UPHELD

Sir Edward Grey's Anglo-German Negotiations Approved and His Resignation Not Tendered.

London.—Those well-informed in British state affairs say that it was the intention of Sir Edward Grey, Great Britain's foreign secretary, to resign his post unless supported in his Anglo-German negotiations. His statement on the subject, which was submitted to parliament recently was approved, and the crisis safely passed. Sir Edward has been secretary of state for foreign affairs since 1905.

Irish nationalists are playing a waiting game in parliament. Members of the usually turbulent little band which sits below the gangway of the house of commons have kept themselves in hand so far, although they are deeply interested in the insurance bill which is occuying all the time of the house.

William O'Brien and his handful of followers sometimes try to excite their fellow countrymen by engaging in sarcasm at their expense, but without success. The nationalist benches are quietly waiting for 1912, "Ireland's year," as they call it.

While the rankers of the nationalist party are doing missionary work in the lobby, the leader, John Redmond, is busy explaining home rule to the people of England. Mr. Redmond's campaign already has extended from Scotland in the north to the extreme south of England. The colonial secretary, Lewis Harcourt, accompanied him in the midlands, and at other places ministers and liberal leaders have sat with him on the platform.

Press reports of the meetings record very few interuptions of the Irish leader.

Mr. Redmond and other Irish members impress upon their audiences that what Ireland demands is not separation, but "the right of managing its own affairs in a subordinate place, subject to the supremacy of the imperial parliament, a demand that never has been made by any community of white men in the empire and refused except in the case of Ireland".

GIANT ROCK LIKE A SPIRE

deemed equal in natural beauty to that of the Royal gorge.

The Gunnison river dashes through this wild canyon with such impetuousness that it is beaten to foam amidst the ragged bowlders. The canyon walls are pleasingly colored and are constantly opening and closing to the view. Chipeta falls dashes down a lofty wall and the tremendous splinter of the Curecanti needle pierces to the clouds. It is a region of wild and rugged beauty.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

They Are Closely Observing Public Health Conditions.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that the reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of applicants do not even suspect that they have the disease.

He states that judging from his own experience and reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has probably been more successful in relieving and curing these diseases than any remedy known. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly an herbal compound and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes—fifty cents and one-dollar.

However, if you wish first to test its wonderful merits, send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle, absolutely free. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

DISFIGURED WITH CRUSTS

"Some time ago I was taken with eczema from the top of my head to my waist. It began with scales on my body. I suffered untold itching and burning, and could not sleep. I was greatly disfigured with scales and crusts. My ears looked as if they had been most cut off with a razor, and my neck was perfectly raw. I suffered untold agony and pain. I tried two doctors who said I had eczema in its fullest stage, and that it could not be cured. I then tried other remedies to no avail. At last, I tried a set of the genuine Cuticura Remedies, which cured me of eczema when all else had failed, therefore I cannot praise them too highly.

"I suffered with eczema about ten months, but am now entirely cured, and I believe Cuticura Remedies are the best skin cure there is." (Signed) Miss Mattie J. Shaffer, R. F. D. 1, Box 8, Dancy, Miss., Oct. 27, 1910.

"I had suffered from eczema about four years when boils began to break out on different parts of my body. It started with a fine red rash. My back was affected first, when it also spread over my face. The itching was almost unbearable at times. I tried different soaps and salves, but nothing seemed to help me until I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. One box of them cured me entirely. I recommended them to my sister for her baby who was troubled with tooth eczema, and they completely cured her baby." (Signed) Mrs. F. L. Marberger, Drehersville, Pa., Sept. 6, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

Valor and Discretion.

"What is the difference between valor and discretion?" remarked Mrs. Brown, looking up from the paper in which she had been reading the leading article on the operations in Tripoli.

"Valor," replied Brown, "is bawling into the ear of a champion pugilist the assertion that he is a ruffian you could knock into fits."

"And discretion?"

"Is doing it over the telephone."

He Did Not Wonder.

One of the worthies of a Fife village happened to be working in his garden with a very small spade, when a neighbor came on the scene and remarked: "Man, Jamie, that's a gey wee spade ye're working wi'. Ma laddies have bigger spunes for suppin' their parritch wi'."

Without glancing up, "Jamie" replied: "Ma mannie, I dinna winder at it when I see their faither's mouth."—Tit-Bits.

MEAN TRICK PLAYED BY FATE

Chances Are That Statesman Had a Hard Time Explaining Matters to His Wife.

The story is that it happened about like this:

A representative from Indiana came on to Washington when congress started up, and engaged comfortable living quarters before his wife arrived. She reached there some time later on a Saturday night. The next morning she said:

"Now, Ralph, we'll go to church, of course. Which church have you been attending?"

"Wh-er-uh, which one, you say?" repeated the congressman. "Why, there's a mighty nice little church down here just a couple of blocks. It's such an easy walk that I've been going there rather than to some of the more fashionable churches."

"All right, if you feel at home there, that's where we'll go," said the congressman's wife. "We haven't much time, anyhow."

So they put on their things and went to the little church down the street.

When they got inside they made a startling discovery.

They were the only white people in the church.—Philadelphia Leader

RACKED WITH PAIN.

An Awful Siege of Dropsy and Rheumatism.

Mrs. Emma V. Harms, 508 S. Jefferson St., Mobile, Ala., says: "I was so racked with pain I almost went frantic. My elbow joints got stiff, knees swelled and I could not raise my hands. The merest touch made me scream. I sat in a chair for five months, and for over a year I did not see the street. Nobody thought I would recover. I improved, however, after I began taking Doan's kidney pills and was soon well.

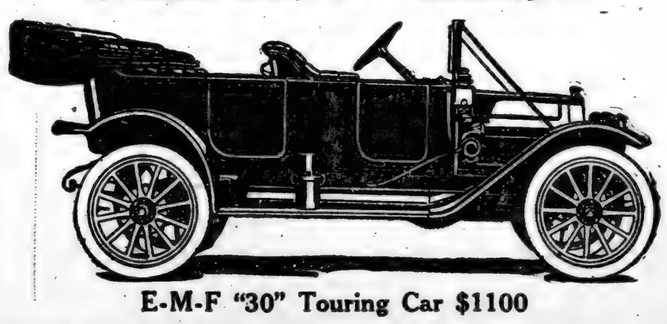
The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach



A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy of KNOWN COMPOSITION. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. E-M-F "30" OLDEST—BEST

E-M-F "30" Touring Car $1100

NOW IS THE TIME TO CHOOSE. New cars are ready. This year the basis of our automobile show advertising is found in these words: "The Oldest Car in the Show." Some might think we are exhibiting one of our famous racing cars, such as Old Bullet, for example, renowned throughout the South since her many victories at Atlanta. But that is not what we mean.

THE E-M-F "30", wherever exhibited, is "the oldest car in the show" because in all important points, questions of design, quality, construction and power, the car is what it was when we first put it on the market. Appearances have been improved; little conveniences added, but it is the car we have been building for four years and it has won and held a great reputation. When you buy an E-M-F "30", you purchase a car of assured quality. You take no chances. You know what you are getting.

MANUFACTURERS OF LESS POPULAR CARS constantly attempt to obscure this by directing attention to novel and untried features. Beware! Did you ever consider how important in an automobile is not only the power of every part, but the proper relation of all the parts. You are concerned not alone whether an intake manifold, for example, seems well designed. But whether the carburetor which mixes the gas and air, the intake manifold which carries it and the valves which admit it to the cylinders all operate perfectly together. That's the final and unescapable test. How does the whole car work?

HOW WELL DOES THE E-M-F "30" WORK? We state this bold question because every car ought to have to answer it. We urge you to ask it. Ask us if you like and we will tell you the simple truth as we know it. Better still, ask your friends or acquaintances who can tell you of their first-hand experiences. The deeper you probe into the reputation of E-M-F "30" cars, the more certainly will you be convinced that the car is right.

WE MAKE COMPARISONS WITH CONFIDENCE. Any new and important feature in automobile construction will be on our E-M-F "30" car as soon as tests have proved it in the right form for use. We are constantly experimenting and know more today about self-starters and other ideas of the hour than half the manufacturers who have adopted them. Just as soon as they are right, we will have them. Meanwhile, make every comparison and judge for yourself. In all that makes an automobile stout, comfortable, easy to control, wonderfully durable, the E-M-F "30" has no equal under double its price.

Ask your local dealer or send for catalogue "F".

MRS. SCOTT WELL AGAIN

Good News from Martin Tells of Timely Recovery. Details Regarding the Case.

Martin, Tenn.—Mrs. Gennie Scott, of this city, says: "For years, I was troubled, more or less, with womanly troubles. Sometimes I would have shortness of breath, and smothering spells. I tried several doctors, but they only gave me temporary relief.

"At last I tried Cardui, the woman's tonic, and found it to be the medicine suiting my case. I was quickly relieved by it, and now, for the first time in years, I am very well, and enjoy good health.

"I praise Cardui for these good results. I recommend the medicine to my friends, because I know it is good, safe and reliable. It helped me wonderfully, and I can truthfully say that Cardui is the best medicine I have ever taken."

Be sure that Cardui, the woman's tonic, will bring you help, if you will take it regularly, and for a reasonable length of time.

You know you can depend on Cardui, because you have read of so many who are enthusiastic in its praise. Cardui has stood the test of time, the supreme test of merit.

Cardui is successful. It has been found to relieve womanly pain and build up womanly strength. Try Cardui. It will help you.

Use Value of Open-Air Schools.

During the year 1911 the greatest percentage of increase among the different forms of anti-tuberculosis work was among the open-air schools for anemic and tuberculosis children. On January 1, 1911, there were only 29 open-air schools in operation or provided for in the entire country. On January 1, 1912, there were 91, an increase of 214 per cent. Sixty-two new schools have been established or provided for the past year. This entire number of open-air schools have been established since January 1, 1907.

FOREIGN SECRETARY UPHELD

Sir Edward Grey's Anglo-German Negotiations Approved and His Resignation Not Tendered.

London.—Those well-informed in British state affairs say that it was the intention of Sir Edward Grey, Great Britain's foreign secretary, to resign his post unless supported in his Anglo-German negotiations. His statement on the subject, which was submitted to parliament recently was approved, and the crisis safely passed. Sir Edward has been secretary of state for foreign affairs since 1905.

Irish nationalists are playing a waiting game in parliament. Members of the usually turbulent little band which sits below the gangway of the house of commons have kept themselves in hand so far, although they are deeply interested in the insurance bill which is occuying all the time of the house.

William O'Brien and his handful of followers sometimes try to excite their fellow countrymen by engaging in sarcasm at their expense, but without success. The nationalist benches are quietly waiting for 1912, "Ireland's year," as they call it.

While the rankers of the nationalist party are doing missionary work in the lobby, the leader, John Redmond, is busy explaining home rule to the people of England. Mr. Redmond's campaign already has extended from Scotland in the north to the extreme south of England. The colonial secretary, Lewis Harcourt, accompanied him in the midlands, and at other places ministers and liberal leaders have sat with him on the platform.

Press reports of the meetings record very few interuptions of the Irish leader.

Mr. Redmond and other Irish members impress upon their audiences that what Ireland demands is not separation, but "the right of managing its own affairs in a subordinate place, subject to the supremacy of the imperial parliament, a demand that never has been made by any community of white men in the empire and refused except in the case of Ireland".

GIANT ROCK LIKE A SPIRE

Curecanti Needle in Black Canyon Rises to a Height of 1,600 Feet Above Surroundings.

Gunnison, Colo.—An enormous splinter of rock, the Curecanti needle, is an isolated mountain spire rising to the height of 1,600 feet above the Black canyon of the Gunnison in Colorado. The Gunnison canyon is deemed equal in natural beauty to that of the Royal gorge.

The Gunnison river dashes through this wild canyon with such impetuousness that it is beaten to foam amidst the ragged bowlders. The canyon walls are pleasingly colored and are constantly opening and closing to the view. Chipeta falls dashes down a lofty wall and the tremendous splinter of the Curecanti needle pierces to the clouds. It is a region of wild and rugged beauty.

Four-Year-Old Firebug.

Chicago.—Arrested, charged with starting a fire in an alley, a four-year-old "miscreant" told the sergeant the 200-pound policeman who made the pinch was "a big story-teller" and was released.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

They Are Closely Observing Public Health Conditions.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that the reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of applicants do not even suspect that they have the disease.

He states that judging from his own experience and reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has probably been more successful in relieving and curing these diseases than any remedy known. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly an herbal compound and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes—fifty cents and one-dollar.

However, if you wish first to test its wonderful merits, send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle, absolutely free. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

DISFIGURED WITH CRUSTS

"Some time ago I was taken with eczema from the top of my head to my waist. It began with scales on my body. I suffered untold itching and burning, and could not sleep. I was greatly disfigured with scales and crusts. My ears looked as if they had been most cut off with a razor, and my neck was perfectly raw. I suffered untold agony and pain. I tried two doctors who said I had eczema in its fullest stage, and that it could not be cured. I then tried other remedies to no avail. At last, I tried a set of the genuine Cuticura Remedies, which cured me of eczema when all else had failed, therefore I cannot praise them too highly.

"I suffered with eczema about ten months, but am now entirely cured, and I believe Cuticura Remedies are the best skin cure there is." (Signed) Miss Mattie J. Shaffer, R. F. D. 1, Box 8, Dancy, Miss., Oct. 27, 1910.

"I had suffered from eczema about four years when boils began to break out on different parts of my body. It started with a fine red rash. My back was affected first, when it also spread over my face. The itching was almost unbearable at times. I tried different soaps and salves, but nothing seemed to help me until I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. One box of them cured me entirely. I recommended them to my sister for her baby who was troubled with tooth eczema, and they completely cured her baby." (Signed) Mrs. F. L. Marberger, Drehersville, Pa., Sept. 6, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

Valor and Discretion.

"What is the difference between valor and discretion?" remarked Mrs. Brown, looking up from the paper in which she had been reading the leading article on the operations in Tripoli.

"Valor," replied Brown, "is bawling into the ear of a champion pugilist the assertion that he is a ruffian you could knock into fits."

"And discretion?"

"Is doing it over the telephone."

He Did Not Wonder.

One of the worthies of a Fife village happened to be working in his garden with a very small spade, when a neighbor came on the scene and remarked: "Man, Jamie, that's a gey wee spade ye're working wi'. Ma laddies have bigger spunes for suppin' their parritch wi'."

Without glancing up, "Jamie" replied: "Ma mannie, I dinna winder at it when I see their father's mouth."—Tit-Bits.

It's easier for a young man to write a satisfactory love letter during courtship than it is to write a satisfactory check after marriage.

MEAN TRICK PLAYED BY FATE

Chances Are That Statesman Had a Hard Time Explaining Matters to His Wife.

The story is that it happened about like this:

A representative from Indiana came on to Washington when congress started up, and engaged comfortable living quarters before his wife arrived. She reached there some time later on a Saturday night. The next morning she said:

"Now, Ralph, we'll go to church, of course. Which church have you been attending?"

"Wh-er-uh, which one, you say?" repeated the congressman. "Why, there's a mighty nice little church down here just a couple of blocks. It's such an easy walk that I've been going there rather than to some of the more fashionable churches."

"All right, if you feel at home there, that's where we'll go," said the congressman's wife. "We haven't much time, anyhow."

So they put on their things and went to the little church down the street.

When they got inside they made a startling discovery.

They were the only white people in the church.—Philadelphia Leader

ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR A GOOD STOMACH

This Offer Should Be a Warning to Every Man and Woman.

The newspapers and medical journals recently have had much to say relative to a famous millionaire's offer of a million dollars for a new stomach.

This great multi-millionaire was too busy to worry about the condition of his stomach. He allowed his dyspepsia to run from bad to worse until in the end it became incurable.

His misfortune serves as a warning to others.

Every one who suffers with dyspepsia for a few years will give everything he owns for a new stomach.

Dyspepsia is commonly caused by an abnormal state of the gastric juices, or by lack of tone in the walls of the stomach. The result is that the stomach loses its power to digest food.

We are now able to supply certain missing elements—to help to restore to the gastric juices their digestive power, and to aid in making the stomach strong and well.

We know that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are a most dependable remedy for disordered stomachs, indigestion, and dyspepsia.

We want you to try them and will refund your money if you are not more than satisfied with the result.

Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. The Upchurch Drug Co.

Morning Sickness

Many women suffer this misery. It makes its appearance so regularly that they learn to expect it and arrange their household work accordingly. Few women think of seeking medical help to get rid of it for good. If women only knew of the power and effectiveness of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine they would not be without it a moment longer than it would take to get it from the drug store. It is a splendid remedy for all nausea or sickness of the stomach. The first dose settles the stomach and makes the patient feel better. Additional doses act on the female generative system, strengthening weakened organs, regulating the habits, restoring tone and strength in every part of the body. It is essentially a woman's remedy prepared expressly to meet the need of women who suffer from the ailments common to their sex.

AMP FOSHEE FOR COMMISSIONER

EXPERIENCE SEEKS WORK

The anouncement of Mr. W. H. oshee Jr., better known as HAMP" Foshee, as a candidate r County Commissioner from the ourth District will bring gladness many democratic hearts and nsternation to those of the oppotion. For years Mr. Foshee has een a democratic wheel horse; ever knowing what it was to balk refuse to "carry more than his wn part." When the dark days ere upon us Mr. Foshee used s talent and means to cheer en's hearts and to urge them on battle; when success finally rowned his efforts he retired ask- g that others be honored with ffice rather than himself, but ow he wants to be County Comisioner, not for the revenues to e derived from the office, but hat he may accomplish some good or those in his section of the ounty. Perhaps no man in the ounty has had more experience n bridge and road building than as this ardent democrat. He is hard worker, attentive to duty nd loyal to his friends. If demnocracy could see fit to honor im with the nomination which he eeks he will make the county an fficer of the highest rank, and emocracy could not honor itself more than by honoring this man.

MR. E. E. CALLOWAY IS SECRETARY

URY COMMISSION TAKES ACTION.

The newly appointed Jury Commission of Chilton County, composed of Messrs W. C. Dyer, J. A. Mahan and W. D. Spigener, organized on last Monday morning in the office of Senator Thos. A Curry Thev were in session but a short time and nothing except routine business was transacted.

Mr. E. E. Calloway was unanimously elected as Secretary to the Commission and will go to work at once making out lists and otherwise discharing the duties of the office to which he was elected.

MR. GRAFF SIMS

ANNOUNCES FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

In another column of this paper will be found the announcement of Mr. Graff Sims, of Mountain Creek, who seeks the office of County Commissioner.

Mr. Sims has been urged by a number of friends to announce for office and has had the matter under advisement for some time but did not come to a final conclusion until the latter part of last week.

He has made a signal success of his own affairs; is now holding the office of Justice of the Peace and gives eminent satisfaction with those who have to deal with his office It is a little peculiar, and may prove somewhat confusing to voters, as there are two candidates in the field seeking the same office from the same district whose names are the same. Mr. Jas. D. Sims of Fairview announced for this office some weeks ago and now comes Mr. Julius Degraffenreid Sims, Mountain Creek, who asks his friends for their suffrage. The latter is better known as Graff Sims, hence he announces under this name. No better man lives in Chilton county and no more loyal a democrat lives upon earth than is Graff Sims; if nominated for the office which he seeks he will give to the people of Chilton county its affairs of which they shall be perfectly satisfied. He comes from a section of the county which has not been honored heretofore, in recent years, but which has nevertheless been loyal to the party.

A NEW RICHMOND

IN THE POLITICAL FIELD
MR. W. W. COBERN
ANNOUNCES

The democratic voters of Chilton county will be hard to please if each and every one of them cannot select a condidate to suit their own individual tastes. Mr. W. W. Cobern who announces for the nomination for TAX COLLECTOR in another column is a democrat who has never heretofore sought office.

Wherever duty demanded he dared to go; whenever there was work to be accomplished he rolled up his sleeve and volunteered for service.

Now he comes forward and asks the support of his friends for the nomination to the office of tax Collector.

There is nothing more indicitive of the spirit of democracy than the unanimily with which sterling party workers are now asking for recognition at the hands of their friends.

Mr. Cobern is a man of business affairs; he knows the people and is known of them. If elected for the office which he seeks he will, without doubt, make the people of his home county a model officer.

By the way, Mr. Cobern was born and reared in Chilton county; he expects to make it his home for the remainder of his life.

Already his candidacy is attracting friends to him and he who wins the nomination over him will have to get busy and keep busy.

MR. HENRY C. YOUNG

DESIRES OFFICE AS CORONER

THE PRESS takes pleasure in announcing to the Democratic voters of Chilton county that Mr. Henry C. Young has offered for Coroner of the county. There is perhaps no more important office in the county and yet it is one which seems never to be sought. The Coroner, very much like the Sheriff, stands between the people and the commission, he is the only officer who can serve a paper upon the Sheriff and in case of the death of the Sheriff assumes the duties of the office. It is highly necessary, then, that a good man—good in all respects—should be chosen to fill this office. No better man could be found than is Mr. Young. He has seen yoeman service in his party, has never held office but has always responded gladly and cheerfully to the call of his party when service was to be performed.

Mr. Young is past middle life and hence his experience with men and affairs qualify him to a high degree for the successful administration of the office he seeks. This office is one of small emolument but is necessary and when a man of Mr. Young's known character offers for it the people should have no hesitancy in making his election unanimous.

Reasons Enforced

FOR TAX ASSESSOR

MR. E. L. THORNTON OF MOUNTAIN CREEK UNFURLS HIS BANNER.

The announcement found elsewhere in this paper, that Mr. E. L. Thornton will be candidate for Tax Assessor will be hailed with delight by his many friends throughout the county.

For a number of years Mr. Thornton has been a member of the democratic executive committee and has labored for the best interest of the party. He is a consciencious business man, a painstaking gentlemen of the old school who believes that what is worth doing is worth doing well. Above all he is a christian gentleman whose watchword is duty—duty to his fellow men, duty to himself and duty to God; therefore, he will, if nominated make an ideal officer. In his letter to the PRESS requesting his announcemen the states:—"If nominated and elected I shall devote my time to the duties of the office and do all within my power to give to the people of the county satisfactory service." Those who know Mr. Thornton realize that these are not idle words spoken at random; he means them and much more.

No more capable man could be found in the country to fill the office to which he aspires and democracy would make no mistake in selecting him to be their standard bearer in the race for Assessor.

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF ALABAMA

I am a candidate for congressman, from the State at Large, subject to the will of the democratic party. I take opportunity to solicit your support, and lay before you matters of general interest for which I desire to work if I shall be honored by representing in the Sixty-third Congress the people of this commonwealth. In laying before you these matters, it is not my desire to assume unto myself the privilege of issuing, writing, or promulgating a platform ahead of my party, as I do not know or accept any other doctrines than those declared by the Democratic and Conservtive party, both State and National.

It is my desire to accomplish something for the good of our people in the National Legislative body along the lines which I now take pleasure in submitting to you.

1st, I am convinced hat the high cost of living with other ills from which our people are now suffering, is caused by the Republican doctrine of a high Protective Tariff, which fosters and creates monopolies and trusts, bringing together large consolodated capital, which still floates under the guize of infant industries, and which, from the protection afforded by the National government, has become so powerful and rich that they not only boldly disregard our law, but, in truth, absolutely dictate to the government itself, thereby gradually sapping the life blood from the people and making us poorer and poorer. I believe that a Tariff for Revenue only—a Democratic doctrine, time-tried, true and triumphant—would not only provide ample funds for governmental expenses, but would conserve the best interest of manufacturer, producer and consumer alike.

2. Much has been said in public addresses and through the press of the Southern States about the importance of the improvement of the waterways and the construction of deep water harbors. I believe that the development of the South depends largely upon the improvement of these waterways, and I favor the improvement of the Coosa river from Wetumpka to Rome, Ga., and the Tennessee river from Florence to Guntersville, Ala., and the Warrior river from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham, Ala., and the Alabama river from Montgomery to Mobile, Ala., and the Tombigbee river from Demopolis to Mobile, Ala., and the Mobile river from Mobile to the Gulf of Mexico, and the Chattahoochee river from Columbus, Ga., to Apalachicola, Fla., and the Coosa river from Rome, Ga., to Gadsden, Ala., and the Black Warrior river from Tuscaloosa to Cordova, Ala., and the Big Warrior river from Cordova to Jasper, Ala., and the Tombigbee river from Demopolis to Columbus, Miss., and the Tombigbee river from Columbus, Miss., to Pickensville, Ala., and the Tombigbee river from Pickensville to Fulton, Miss., and the Tombigbee river from Fulton, Miss., to Iuka, Miss., and the Tombigbee river from Iuka, Miss., to Florence, Ala., and the Tennessee river from Florence to Decatur, Ala., and the Tennessee river from Decatur to Guntersville, Ala., and the Tennessee river from Guntersville to Chattanooga, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Knoxville, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Knoxville, Tenn., to Kingsport, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Kingsport, Tenn., to Bristol, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Bristol, Tenn., to Abingdon, Va., and the Tennessee river from Abingdon, Va., to Big Stone Gap, Va., and the Tennessee river from Big Stone Gap, Va., to Middlesboro, Ky., and the Tennessee river from Middlesboro, Ky., to Cumberland Gap, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Cumberland Gap, Tenn., to Harrogate, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Harrogate, Tenn., to Jellico, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Jellico, Tenn., to Oneida, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Oneida, Tenn., to Rockwood, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Rockwood, Tenn., to Kingston, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Kingston, Tenn., to Loudon, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Loudon, Tenn., to Lenoir City, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Lenoir City, Tenn., to Knoxville, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Knoxville, Tenn., to Sevierville, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Sevierville, Tenn., to Newport, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Newport, Tenn., to Morristown, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Morristown, Tenn., to Greeneville, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Greeneville, Tenn., to Johnson City, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Johnson City, Tenn., to Elizabethton, Tenn., and the Tennessee river from Elizabethton

Southern.

The farmers of the South made gratifying progress in developing rural telephone systems during the past year, according to reports of the Southern Bell Telephone company covering the seven states in which it operatese. On December 31, 1911, there were 29,537 farmers' telephones connected with exchanges and toll stations of the Bell system in these states. Of these telephones 7,775 were added during the year 1911, an increase of 30 per cent. over the year 1910.

Joseph M. Brown was inaugurated governor of Georgia for the second time. For the first time in almost a quarter of a century the general assembly met in special session for the purpose of canvassing returns from an election for governor and to inaugurate this official. Consolidation of the recent election returns showed that Governor Brown received 28,852 votes for governor, as against 300 for A. M. Castleberry, the Socialist candidate.

Machine politics won a sweeping victory in the city of New Orleans in the Democratic primary election, and returns from the country parishes showed that John T. Michel, the administration candidate for governor, had a commanding lead over his two opponents. The work of the administration of Gov. Jared Y. Sanders in increasing the price of saloon license and the ridding of New Orleans of racing told against him in his campaign for the nomination for the United States senatorial seat now held by Senator Thornton. The returns indicated that he would have to run over with Congressman Broussard.

The house of representaives of the South Carolina legislature adopted the report of the judiciary committee recommending that most of Governor Blease's veto message on the so-called libel bill be expunged from the journal of the house. The vote to expunge the portions of message reflecting on the integrity of the press of the state was 86 to 26. This is said to be the first time that any portion of a governor's message has been expunged.

Although the work of the European diplomatic chancelleries has been prosecuted actively in Constantinople and Rome during the past few days in an attempt to find a way to peace between Italy and Turkey, no basis has yet been found. In reply to suggestions from various embassies, Turkey answers that the powers, if they want peace, should induce Italy to make concessions, as Turkey cannot accept the spoliation she has suffered without redress Rome, on the other hand, responds to the hints of the foreign chancelleries that the only remedy for the present situation is that pressure be put by the powers on the porte. The representatives of the powers declare that if pressure were brought to bear on the porte through the ambassadors, and the porte should resist—as everything appears to indicate would be the case—either the powers would have to withdraw and suffer humiliation or have recourse to coercion.

Edward Grosscup, chairman of the New Jersey Democratic committee, issued a statement declaring that Governor Wilson would have a majority of the New Jersey delegates to the Democratic national convention and practically a solid vote in the delegation.

A petition to dissolve the American Telephone and Telegraph company on the ground that it is a monopoly in violation of the provisions of the Sherman law was made public in New York. According to the petition the American Telephone and Telegraph company, which controls the Western Union Telegraph company and eight subsidiary telephone companies, is one of the largest financial concerns in the world, and it now dominates the telephone business of the country.

The Standard Oil company announced an advance of 25 points in the price of refined petroleum, making refined in cases 9.35 cents per gallon; ditto, in tanks, or bulk, 4.35; and standard white in barrels, 7.6.

Dr. Harry Webster of Chicago was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Bessie Webster.

District Attorney Blakeley of Pittsburg, Pa., announced that the trial of Rev. W. D. McFarland, preacher from Cedar Creek, Tenn., to answer to an indictment connecting him with the death of his secretary, Elsie Cox, would begin February 6.

Six American-built biplanes are carrried by the revolutionary army advancing on Pekin, according to a cablegram received by the Chinese Free Press in San Francisco. The aeroplanes are manned by Chinese aviators.

The Franco-Italian incident arising from the seizure of the French steamers Manouba and Carthage by Italian war vessels was settled satisfactorily to both nations.

Willingness of foreign bankers and cotton buyers to modify the plans for safeguarding export cotton bills of lading to meet objections of the Southern cotton shippers is expressed in a statement given out by H. Kern, chairman of the Liverpool bill of lading committee.

Membership of the churches of the United States increased by 594,000 last year, according to statistics prepared by Dr. H. K. Carroll, formerly director of the religious census. The increase is less than 1.7 per cent.

The silence which Colonel Roosevelt has maintained regarding discussion of his possible renomination was unbroken. To all questions Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had nothing to say. When asked to comment upon the declaration of Governor Hadley of Missouri he declared he had not read what the governor said.

The subject of the detention of 29 Turks said to be members of the Red Crescent society by the Italian authorities, who captured them on the French steamer Manouba, was fully discussed at conferences between Premier Giolitti, Foreign Minister Marquis di San Giuliano of Italy and the French ambassador to Italy, Camille Barrere. Italy maintains her right to capture and search ships of neutral stations suspected of carrying contraband of war.

Louis Kuehnle, Republican leader of Atlantic City, N. J., who was recently convicted of unlawfully participating in the award of a contract to a company in which he was a member of the Atlantic City water commission, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment at hard labor and to pay a fine of $1,000. Thomas McWevitt and George Amole were sentenced to six months and three months in jail.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa issued a statement announcing his indorsement of the presidential candidacy of his colleague, Senator Albert B. Cummings. He said he had been earnestly for President Taft and would continue to support him if a suitable candidate had not appeared from his own state.

Operations for appendicitis, thought to have been perfected several years ago, when one and a half inch incisions were found to be adequate, have ben still further simplified according to an announcement made to surgeons of the Cleveland Academy of Medicine. This sets forth that an incision of but three-fourths of an ich is ecesshrdlu etaoin cmfwyp pp jtptj necessary, permitting the patient to leave the bed within 24 hours after the operation.

Governor Hadley of Missouri, in a statement, said he favored the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt as the Republican presidential candidate. "From information that has recently come to me from all parts of the state," says Governor Hadley, "I am convinced a large majority are in favor of the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt as our candidate for president."

Washington.

Absolving Colonel Harvey from all blame in connection with the suggestion that Thomas F. Ryan, the New York financier, might be induced to finance Governor Wilson's campaign, Col. Henry Watterson made public the correspondence that has recently passed between himself and Senator Tillman. Recently Colonel Watterson stated that he would not notice the suggestion that Ryan's name was at the bottom of the Harvey-Wilson break until it was put forward by some responsible person. Senator Tillman took up the cudgels and charged that Colonel Watterson had concealled material facts in connection with the incident. This resulted in the correspondence between Tillman and Wattercon, which has been made public.

Friends of the administration were surprised at the announcement that Governor Hadley of Missouri had come out in support of the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt. Governor Hadley's support had been counted upon by political advisers of President Taft. When Hadley was in Washington several weeks ago it was announced that he had practically pledged himself to support Taft.

"I am for Taft as strong as a man can be," declared Postmaster General Hitchcock at the white house. "I did not realize until a day or two ago how far those stories about my alleged differences with the president had gone. I probably shall have something to say on the subject." Mr. Hitchcock manifested indignation that his loyalty had been questioned. "It is an insult for any one to think that I have been disloyal to the president," said the postmaster general.

Liquor interests won a far-reaching victory in the United States Supreme court by a decision that railroads must carry beer when offered for transportation into "dry" counties of another state. The decision affected particularly shipments from Indiana into Kentucky. Justice Lurton, who announced the court's decision, also laid down some limitations on the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission. In upheld the action of shippers in going before judicial tribunals to test the validity of the laws rather than to the commission.

WITHDRAWS FROM THE RACE

Judge Almon Decides to Quit Race in Eighth Congressional District.

Hon. E. B. Almon, speaker of the house of representatives, has withdrawn from the race for congress against Congressman William Richardson in the Eighth district. Judge Almon was in the race only about ten days. Mr. Almon in his withdrawal letter said that while he had met with much encouragement in his own county, where he had the endorsement of the people and the press, he had found in other portions of the district many of his friends had committed themselves to one of the other candidates, not knowing that he would enter the race. He is reluctant, the letter further says, to embarrass his friends who had committed themselves to other candidates. Capt. Sam Blackwell, of Decatur, is now opposing Judge Richardson.

Sunday school work is progressing smoothly and going forward steadily in many parts of the state, is the statement made by Mr. D. W. Sims, general secretary of the Alabama Sunday School Association while in Montgomery, who further stated that the institutes held by the field workers of the Association were being as well, if not better, attended this winter than ever before at this season of the year.

Investigation made by Pure Food and Drug Clerk C. H. Billingsley, in the department of agriculture, has led him to the announcement that the 20,000 oysters destroyed in Montgomery several days ago did not come from Mobile, as had been reported, but from a point in Mississippi. He makes the statement in order that the bivalve producers of the Gulf City might be cleared of the charge of handling tainted sea food.

To show the splendid educational spirit that prevails on Sand mountain, Arab, a little country cross-roads town 30 miles from Albertville, guaranteed $12,000 for the county high school in case it is located there. When Governor O'Neal and other members of the state board to locate the county high school reached Arab, they found the entire population for miles around there to greet them.

Alabama produced in 1911 1,712,443 tons of pig iron, a hundred thousand and more tons than was announced during the first week of the month, when the collaboration of the figures was began on. The record shows that in 1906 this state produced 1,674,848 tons; in 1907, 1,686,674; in 1908, 1,397,014; in 1909, 1,763,617; in 1910, 1,939,147; in 1911, 1,712,443 tons.

The first financial statement prepared by the Jefferson county board of excise commissioners has been given to the public by Chairman W. C. Agee, in which it is shown that Birmingham has been paid in revenue for whiskey and beer alone $104,010. That amount is said to be in excess of the revenue secured from the former management of saloons.

Prompted by a fit of madness to avenge a quarrel, in which he had been engaged with Jim Brown, a big pistol in the possession of Bob Glass was brought into play in Montgomery, with the result that Bob Wilson, an innocent bystander, was killed, while the man aimed at sustained only a flesh wound of the lower chin. All were negroes.

Members of the Supreme Court deny that an opinion barring those "not learned in the law" from membership in the Board of Revenue or Commissioners' Court of any county in the State has been handed down by that body. An examination of opinions and records on file in the clerk's office failed to show any such decree.

E. B. Leedy was killed in Birmingham, when a telephone pole on which he was working fell, pinning him to the ground. Leedy's neck was broken, and death was almost instantaneous.

Sixty-five persons from Jefferson county passed the state teachers' examination held in December. Forty-two of these are whites, and 23 are negroes. Only seven of the 42 whites are males, while five of the 23 negroes are males.

It was announced that the contracts for the construction of the new double track of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, between Black Creek Junction, a few miles north of Birmingham, and Decatur, had been let.

Acting upon the advice of counsel, fish dealers of Birmingham have decided to defy the Alabama Oyster Commission in its effort to make them send in a report of all sea food products received and sold in 1911, and a monthly report on the same order for 1912.

Will Freeman, a young man of Lowe Village, was probably fatally stabbed by Harvey Graves, a married man. Freeman is in the city hospital at Huntsville with deep wounds in the back and neck. It is stated that Graves had been abusing his wife and Freeman remarked that any man who would treat a woman that way was a coward.

H. Scuyler Floyd, a well known young man of Birmingham, announced that he was a candidate for congressman-at-lareg, subject to the primary held in April. His anouncement was determined upon after a conference with some of the leading men of the city. Mr. Floyd was reared in Limestone county. His father was a pioneer of that section, being one of the most prominent planters in north Alabama.

Citizens of Cullman will not stand for an increase in the telephone rates in that city by the Southern Bell company. Immediately after the reading of the notice sent out by Vice President Hoxey of the telephone company, that the increased rates would be effective after February 1, a resolution, unanimously adopted, asked that the citizens of Cullman, subscribers to the system, notify the company to discontinue service.

At a meeting of all of the normal schools in Alabama, at which Gov. Emmet O'Neal presided, the decision was reached that a landscape engineer shall be employed who will make the grounds, buildings and general surroundings of the various state institutions of learning conform to a uniform system.

Judge Milo Abercrombie, of Tuskegee, who is probate judge of Macon county, bears a unique distinction. At the capitol he received a voucher for $12, an amount of money owed to him by the state due to his overpaying mortgage taxes by that sum. Judge Abercrombie was heartily congratulated for not being on the other side of the ledger.

The temporary absence from the State of a voter does not relieve him from the payment of poll tax during the years he is away, if he wishes to hold his privilege to vote upon his return, according to an opinion given out by the attorney general. The opinion was rendered upon request of A. H. Glasgow, Probate Judge of Cleburne County. If, however, the removal from the State was with the bona fide intention of a change of residence, the opinion holds, the voter would not be liable for the tax during the years of non-residence.

FRENZIED MOB LYNGHES NEGRO

ANGRY MEN WERE IN FUNERAL PROCESSION OF NEGRO'S VICTIM.

BODY RIDDLED WITH BULLETS

Negro Was Handcuffed and in Charge of Officers When Funeral Procession Took Place.

Bessemer, Ala.—Friends of Joseph Gagliano, a prominent Italian who was foully murdered on the night of January 26, frenzied at the sight of the handcuffed negro suspected of having committed the crime, leaped from the ranks of the funeral procession and shot John Chandler to death.

The negro fell with his weight to the ground, and while Deputy Parker was endeavoring to prevent the rescue of the man believed to have killed his prisoner, other Italians fired a score of shots into the negro's prostrate body. With gore dripping from 20 wounds, the corpse was carried to an undertaking establishment. Louis Gagliano, brother of the dead Italian, was arrested, charged with murder.

City Detective Ross, from a stray bullet which in a flattened shape rebounded from the pavement, received a flesh wound in the right leg.

It was the most sensational occurrence in the history of this city. For half an hour the most prominent corner of Bessemer was the scene of wildest excitement. Women shrieked shrilly in a strange tongue. Possibly for the preservation of life, desperate men struggled. From every section citizens, aroused by the sound of shot, came running. Under the feet of the veritable mob, its blood dyeing crimson the pavement, was the body of Chandler, about whose wrists the law had clamped its chain. In prominent view all the while was the coffin containing the remains of the dead Italian of its vengeance for whose death the law had just been deprived.

When peace was restored, the funeral procession moved onward. With their own peculiar rites, the Italians deposited in the earth the ashes of Gagliano.

DRIVEN BY CONSCIENCE.

Man Surrenders to California Police for Murder in Kentucky.

Eureka, Cal.—Suffering remorse for a murder committed, he says, 19 years ago in Kentucky, J. W. Gray, who came here from Texas, surrendered to the local police. By a strange chance a man was found here who had knowledge of the tragedy and he identified Gray.

According to Gray, he was a deputy sheriff at Sand Hill, near Mammoth Cave, in Kentucky, in 1893. He says he was sent to arrest a man named Ross Simmons. A fight followed. Simmons, Gray says, passed a knife to his sister, who stabbed Gray several times in the back. Thereupon Gray drew his revolver and shot Simmons. He fled from Kentucky and wandered over the country.

Gray is now about 40 years old. He carries letters and telegrams which show that he has been in touch with relatives in Kentucky recently.

Morse Removed to Hotel.

Atlanta, Ga.—Charles W. Morse, the New York banker, whose prison sentence was recently commuted by President Taft, left the army hospital at Fort McPherson. He was brought to a downtown hotel, where he will stay until he is able to be moved elsewhere. It is probable he will be taken to some Florida resort.

Woman Is Sheriff.

Lebanon, Mo.—Mrs. Nancy Hayes Williams of this city was appointed sheriff by the County Court to serve until a special election on February 17, when a successor to her husband, Sheriff J. W. Williams, who died last week, will be elected.

Announces for Governor.

Nashville, Tenn.—Walter S. Falkner, attorney general of the Eighth Judicial Circuit, announced for the Democratic nomination for governor. He advocates leaving the liquor question to the whole vote of the State.

Pellagra Caused 363 Deaths.

Washington.—Pellagra caused 363 deaths in the Census Bureau's death registration area during 1910, of which 263 of the victims, or 71.5 per cent, were females.

Mississippi River Claims 12.

Cairo, Ill.—Twelve persons are reported to have been lost when a rowboat in which they were crossing the Mississippi river from Bird's Point, Mo., to Cairo was caught in an ice jam. They were being ferried across to the Cotton Belt railway station here.

Searching parties which were immediately sent out when the news reached here have been unable to find any trace of the four boats or the passengers.

Southern.

The farmers of the South made gratifying progress in developing rural telephone systems during the past year, according to reports of the Southern Bell Telephone company covering the seven states in which it operatese. On December 31, 1911, there were 29,537 farmers' telephones connected with exchanges and toll stations of the Bell system in these states. Of these telephones 7,775 were added during the year 1911, an increase of 30 per cent. over the year 1910.

Joseph M. Brown was inaugurated governor of Georgia for the second time. For the first time in almost a quarter of a century the general assembly met in special session for the purpose of canvassing returns from an election for governor and to inaugurate this official. Consolidation of the recent election returns showed that Governor Brown received 28,852 votes for governor, as against 300 for A. M. Castleberry, the Socialist candidate.

Machine politics won a sweeping victory in the city of New Orleans in the Democratic primary election, and returns from the country parishes showed that John T. Michel, the administration candidate for governor, had a commanding lead over his two opponents. The work of the administration of Gov. Jared Y. Sanders in increasing the price of saloon license and the ridding of New Orleans of racing told against him in his campaign for the nomination for the United States senatorial seat now held by Senator Thornton. The returns indicated that he would have to run over with Congressman Broussard.

The house of representatives of the South Carolina legislature adopted the report of the judiciary committee recommending that most of Governor Blease's veto message on the so-called libel bill be expunged from the journal of the house. The vote to expunge the portions of message reflecting on the integrity of the press of the state was 86 to 26. This is said to be the first time that any portion of a governor's message has been expunged.

General.

Although the work of the European diplomatic chancelleries has been prosecuted actively in Constantinople and Rome during the past few days in an attempt to find a way to peace between Italy and Turkey, no basis has yet been found. In reply to suggestions from various embassies, Turkey answers that the powers, if they want peace, should induce Italy to make concessions, as Turkey cannot accept the spoliation she has suffered without redress. Rome, on the other hand, responds to the hints of the foreign chancelleries that the only remedy for the present situation is that pressure be put by the powers on the porte. The representatives of the powers declare that if pressure were brought to bear on the porte through the ambassadors, and the porte should resist—as everything appears to indicate would be the case—either the powers would have to withdraw and suffer humiliation or have recourse to coercion.

Edward Grosscup, chairman of the New Jersey Democratic committee, issued a statement declaring that Governor Wilson would have a majority of the New Jersey delegates to the Democratic national convention and practically a solid vote in the delegation.

A petition to dissolve the American Telephone and Telegraph company on the ground that it is a monopoly in violation of the provisions of the Sherman law was made public in New York. According to the petition the American Telephone and Telegraph company, which controls the Western Union Telegraph company and eight subsidiary telephone companies, is one of the largest financial concerns in the world, and it now dominates the telephone business of the country.

The Standard Oil company announced an advance of 25 points in the price of refined petroleum, making refined in cases 9.35 cents per gallon; ditto, in tanks, or bulk, 4.32, and standard white in barrels, 7.6.

Dr. Harry Webster of Chicago was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Bessie Webster.

District Attorney Blakeley of Pittsburg, Pa., announced that the trial of Rev. W. D. McFarland, preacher from Cedar Creek, Tenn., to answer to an indictment connecting him with the death of his secretary, Elsie Cox, would begin February 5.

Six American-built biplanes are carrried by the revolutionary army advancing on Pekin, according to a cablegram received by the Chinese Free Press in San Francisco. The aeroplanes are manned by Chinese aviators.

The Franco-Italian incident arising from the seizure of the French steamers Manouba and Carthage by Italian war vessels was settled satisfactorily to both nations.

Willingness of foreign bankers and cotton buyers to modify the plans for safeguarding export cotton bills of lading to meet objections of the Southern cotton shippers is expressed in a statement given out by H. Kern, chairman of the Liverpool bill of lading committee.

Membership of the churches of the United States increased by 594,000 last year, according to statistics prepared by Dr. H. K. Carroll, formerly director of the religious census. The increase is less than 1.7 per cent.

The silence which Colonel Roosevelt has maintained regarding discussion of his possible renomination was unbroken. To all questions Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had nothing to say. When asked to comment upon the declaration of Governor Hadley of Missouri he declared he had not read what the governor said.

The subject of the detention of 29 Turks said to be members of the Red Crescent society by the Italian authorities, who captured them on the French steamer Manouba, was fully discussed at conferences between Premier Giolitti, Foreign Minister Marquis di San Giuliano of Italy and the French ambassador to Italy, Camille Barrere. Italy maintains her right to capture and search ships of neutral stations suspected of carrying contraband of war.

Louis Kuehnle, Republican leader of Atlantic City, N. J., who was recently convicted of unlawfully participating in the award of a contract to a company in which he was a member of the Atlantic City water commission, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment at hard labor and to pay a fine of $1,000. Thomas McWevitt and George Amole were sentenced to six months and three months in jail.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa issued a statement announcing his indorsement of the presidential candidacy of his colleague, Senator Albert B. Cummings. He said he had been earnestly for President Taft and would continue to support him if a suitable candidate had not appeared from his own state.

Operations for appendicitis, thought to have been perfected several years ago, when one and a half inch incisions were found to be adequate, have ben still further simplified according to an announcement made to surgeons of the Cleveland Academy of Medicine. This sets forth that an incision of but three-fourths of an ich is ecesshrdlu etaoin cmfwyp pp jtptj necessary, permitting the patient to leave the bed within 24 hours after the operation.

Governor Hadley of Missouri, in a statement, said he favored the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt as the Republican presidential candidate. "From information that has recently come to me from all parts of the state," says Governor Hadley, "I am convinced a large majority are in favor of the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt as our candidate for president."

Washington.

Absolving Colonel Harvey from all blame in connection with the suggestion that Thomas F. Ryan, the New York financier, might be induced to finance Governor Wilson's campaign, Col. Henry Watterson made public the correspondence that has recently passed between himself and Senator Tillman. Recently Colonel Watterson stated that he would not notice the suggestion that Ryan's name was at the bottom of the Harvey-Wilson break until it was put forward by some responsible person. Senator Tillman took up the cudgels and charged that Colonel Watterson had concealled material facts in connection with the incident. This resulted in the correspondence between Tillman and Wattercon, which has been made public.

Friends of the administration were surprised at the announcement that Governor Hadley of Missouri had come out in support of the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt. Governor Hadley's support had been counted upon by political advisers of President Taft. When Hadley was in Washington several weeks ago it was announced that he had practically pledged himself to support Taft.

"I am for Taft as strong as a man can be," declared Postmaster General Hitchcock at the white house. "I did not realize until a day or two ago how far those stories about my alleged differences with the president had gone. I probably shall have something to say on the subject." Mr. Hitchcock manifested indignation that his loyalty had been questioned. "It is an insult for any one to think that I have been disloyal to the president," said the postmaster general.

Liquor interests won a far-reaching victory in the United States Supreme court by a decision that railroads must carry beer when offered for transportation into "dry" counties of another state. The decision affected particularly shipments from Indiana into Kentucky. Justice Lurton, who announced the court's decision, also laid down some limitations on the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission. He upheld the action of shippers in going before judicial tribunals to test the validity of the laws rather than to the commission.

WITHDRAWS FROM THE RACE

Judge Almon Decides to Quit Race in Eighth Congressional District.

Hon. E. B. Almon, speaker of the house of representatives, has withdrawn from the race for congress against Congressman William Richardson in the Eighth district. Judge Almon was in the race only about ten days. Mr. Almon in his withdrawal letter said that while he had met with much encouragement in his own county, where he had the endorsement of the people and the press, he had found in other portions of the district many of his friends had committed themselves to one of the other candidates, not knowing that he would enter the race. He is reluctant, the letter further says, to embarrass his friends who had committed themselves to other candidates. Capt. Sam Blackwell, of Decatur, is now opposing Judge Richardson.

Sunday school work is progressing smoothly and going forward steadily in many parts of the state, is the statement made by Mr. D. W. Sims, general secretary of the Alabama Sunday School Association while in Montgomery, who further stated that the institutes held by the field workers of the Association were being as well, if not better, attended this winter than ever before at this season of the year.

Investigation made by Pure Food and Drug Clerk C. H. Billingsley, in the department of agriculture, has led him to the announcement that the 20,000 oysters destroyed in Montgomery several days ago did not come from Mobile, as had been reported, but from a point in Mississippi. He makes the statement in order that the bivalve producers of the Gulf City might be cleared of the charge of handling tainted sea food.

To show the splendid educational spirit that prevails on Sand mountain, Arab, a little country cross-roads town 20 miles from Albertville, guaranteed $12,000 for the county high school in case it is located there. When Governor O'Neal and other members of the state board to locate the county high school reached Arab, they found the entire population for miles around there to greet them.

HENRY WATTERSON MAKES STATEMENT

FINAL STATEMENT THE MOST STINGING OF ALL YET MADE.

"ISSUE IS AS TO WHO LIED"

Charges That New Jersey Executive Dare Not Face Facts—Has Evidence.

Washington.—In a statement issued "intended to bring a distasteful episode" to an end, so far as he was concerned, Col. Henry Watterson declared that the issue with Wilson was solely as to who had "lied." Watterson said he "had evidence conclusively to show" that Gov. Wilson had lied, and charged that the New Jersey executive "dared not face the facts."

Col. Watterson declined to make public any proofs in his possession. He denied that Thomas F. Ryan had ever been approached for campaign contributions for Gov. Wilson, but stated that the matter had been talked over with Gov. Wilson and the latter had "expressed the fear" that if the knowledge of a contribution from Mr. Ryan got abroad it might do more harm than good.

Col. Watterson's statement, addressed "To the Democrats of the United States," in part, follows:

"The time limit set upon my stay in the national capital being about to expire, and Gov. Wilson having refused my offer as to the issue of veracity he has raised between us, to submit proof of the truth of my averment to party associates competent to judge both of its character and the expediency of its publication, I shall bring this most distasteful episode to a close as far as I am concerned.

"The claim that I must rush into print with this proof emanates either from the perverse or the malignant. I have it, am ready under proper supervision to produce it, and can not be asked in reason to do more. If I should publish it the very men who are demanding that I shall will be the first to accuse me of reckless disregard of what they would call party prudence and private rights. The sole issue is whether I have lied, as Gov. Wilson says I have, or he has lied, which I have engaged conclusively to show. He dare not face the facts."

Concluding, Col. Watterson said:

"The niche vacated by Gov. Wilson I shall not undertake to fill. I hold nothing in reserve, am backing no other aspirant, advancing on other interest. I shall go to my winter home in Florida, beyond the reach of the telegraph believing I have done my duty.

"HENRY WATTERSON."

Wilson Is Silent.

Thenton, N. J.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson refused to make any statement in reply to the one issued by Col. Henry Watterson. The governor said he would first read the matter given out by Col. Watterson carefully before deciding whether to make any reply.

FIGHT AGAINST PORK BARREL SUCCESSFUL

Washington.—There will be no appropriation for battleships or public buildings at this session of congress.

This was the decision of the democrats of the house after a spirited caucus.

Elimination of a battleship appropriation was a surprise, the caucus having been called to consider a $100,000,000 public building bill recommended by the committee on public buildings and grounds. Representative Burnett, of Alabama, however offered an amendment to a resolution to dispense with the public buildings bill that no battleship appropriation be reported to the house. Representative Hobson, of Alabama, headed the attack on the amendment, but it was passed 88 to 26.

The saving resulting from this action of the caucus is estimated by the democratic leaders to aggregate about $40,000,000. $24,000,000 to be required for two modern battleships and $16,000,000 for public buildings. The cost of public buildings, however, there may be some appropriation for emergencies.

NOT ALTOGETHER HIS FAULT

Verdict Brought in by Jury Certainly Was Not Flattering to the Accused.

A Wheeling (W. Va.) lawyer says that he has heard many queer verdicts in his time, but the quaintest of these was that brought in not long ago by a jury of mountaineers in a scarcely settled part of that state.

This was the first case for the majority of the jury, and they sat for hours arguing and disputing over it in the little room at the rear of the court room. At last they straggled back to their places, and the foreman, a lean, gaunt fellow, with a supremely solemn expression, voiced the general opinion.

"The jury don't think that he done it, for we allow he wa'n't there, but we think he would have done it if he'd had the chance."—Harper's Magazine.

IMPROVEMENT IN THE JOBBING TRADE

Especially Poor Reports From Cotton Growing States of South—Railroads Doing More.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

Favorable weather has facilitated business operations in jobbing and retail lines, which report more or less improvement. But on the whole, trading and convers conservatism is very suspicious, particularly in the farming sections. It is conceded that trading will be late in developing. However, better weather conditions have enabled traveling salesmen to get about more readily and as a result jobbings have been favored with a fair volume of mail orders. Staple lines are in most marked demand, groceries, provisions and footwear presenting the best appearance. In the country leading markets domestic cotton goods show more life, while worsted yarns are firmer and more active.

Especially poor reports come from the cotton growing States of the South, where the holding of low-priced cotton has made for a scarcity of money, which in turn prevents farmers from settling their last season's debts, and consequently requests for extensions are numerous New business in iron and steel is lighter in volume and some reports indicate that specifications, though declared to be satisfactory, have actually fallen off a little. The railroads are doing more, thanks to better weather and the large movement of coal, which two factors have reduced the amount of idle rolling stocks. Collections are slow to fair, with the majority of the reports indicating tardiness.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending January 25 were 436, against 361 last week, 345 in the like week in 1911, 295 in 1910, 311 in 1909 and 359 in 1908.

Business failures in Canada for the week number 37, which contrasts with 40 last week and 33 in the like week of last year.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending January 25 aggregated 3,043,494 bushels, against 2,941,579 last week and 2,132,513 this week last year. For the 30 weeks ending January 25 exports are 96,507,598 bushels, against 70,841,516 in the like period last year. Corn exports for the week are 1,740,752 bushels, against 1,462,388 last week and 1,831,343 in 1911. For the 30 weeks ending Januaray 25 corn exports are 19,031,264 bushels against 19,261,143 last year.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The situation in business is of a mixed and varied character. While there is a lessened demand for iron and steel products—a natural reaction from the November and December activity, the volume of business is well maintained in spite of the falling off in new railroad buying.

New business includes additional orders for about 200,000 tons of rails. There is under negotiations in eastern market 60,000 tons of plates and shapes for vessels, and contracts have been placed for two large freighters for delivery on the lakes next summer. There is still a lack of complete confidence in the trade, and consumers in many instances restrict purchases to immediate needs. Prices are slightly irregular, there being an advance in wire products of $1 per ton and iron bars have strengthened now, being quoted at $1.30, Pittsburg, while steel bars are still available at $1.15.

On the whole, plates are not so firm, and $1.15, Pittsburg, is being shaded. Open hearth and Bessemer billets are steady at $20, and sheet bars at $21, Pittsburg. Specifications for tin and sheet bars are heavy. The coke output for the week was 407,185 tons, the largest total for 18 months.

Trading in the dry goods market showed noticeable expansion this week. Demand for cotton goods was more general, and while there was some tendency towards conservatism, there was good buying in all standard lines and little or no complaint was made regarding prices.

Miscellaneous trade is holding up steadily, but bids from China are too low to induce business. Red Sea trading is good in small lots. In woolen goods, western jobbers report improved conditions, and are buying more freely in the primary markets. In overcoating, chinchillas, shetlands and mixed rought fancies are being well taken.

New rough woolens in suitings are ordered and some mills have sold and withdrawn. In dress goods the demand for nearby shipments of serges, whipcords and fancies is noticeable. Silks are in more liberal request and both cotton and woolen yarns are in fair demand.

Visiting footwear buyers have operated liberally in spring and summer goods in the Boston market, and a fair business is being received through traveling salesmen.

Trifle Wobbly.

"I am going to blow out my brains," said he.

"Well," she said after a moment's reflection, "perhaps they'll stand a little inflation, Horace. They've always struck me as being a trifle wobbly."—Harper's Weekly.

Who the Heathen Be.

Father Bernard Vaughan was condemning a somewhat acrimonious religious argument.

"Disputes of this kind," he said, "remind me forcibly of a little girl.

"'What are the heathen, Jenny?' her Sunday school teacher asked this little girl.

"'The heathen,' the child replied, 'are people who don't quarrel over religion.'"

Real Woman-Hater.

A will of a confirmed woman-hater, writes Virgil M. Harris in "Ancient Curios and Famous Wills," is that of a rich old bachelor who had endured much from attempts made by his family to put him under the yoke of matrimony, and who wrote: "I beg that my executors will see that I am buried where there is no woman interred, either to the right or to the left of me. Should this not be practicable, I direct that they purchase three graves, and bury me in the middle one of the three, leaving the two others unoccupied."

GRAND TO LIVE

And the Last Laugh is Always the Best

"Six months ago I would have laughed at the idea that there could be anything better for a table beverage than coffee," writes an Ohio woman, "now I laugh to know there is.

"Since childhood I drank coffee freely as did the other members of the family. The result was a puny, sickly girl; and as I grew into womanhood I did not gain in health, but was afflicted with heart trouble, a weak and disordered stomach, wrecked nerves and a general breaking down till last winter, at the age of 38, I seemed to be on the verge of consumption.

"My friends greeted me with 'How bad you look! What a terrible color!' and this was not very comforting.

"The doctors and patent medicines did me absolutely no good. I was thoroughly discouraged.

"Then I gave up coffee and commenced Postum. At first I didn't like it, but after a few trials and following the directions exactly, it was grand. It was refreshing and satisfying. In a couple of weeks I noticed a great change.

"I became stronger, my brain grew clearer, I was not troubled with forgetfulness as in coffee times, my power of endurance was more than doubled.

"The heart trouble and indigestion disappeared and my nerves became steady and strong.

"I began to take an interest in things about me. Housework and homemaking became a pleasure. My friends have marveled at the change and when they enquire what brought it about I answer 'Postum,' and nothing else in the world." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

If you havn't paid your poll tax today is your last chance.

Would it not be well for the City Fathers to meet sometime this year?

THE PRESS is carrying more announcements this week than usual, but we presume they are about all in now and we can give more space to other news next week.

We are publishing this week a part of the excellent speech made last Friday at the R. E. Lee celebration by Mr. J. O. Middleton. Space forbids that we publish it in full, but next week it will be concluded. We hope every reader of THE PRESS will read every word of it.

The politicians of Georgia have about decided to drop their former favorite son for the presidency and take up Hon. Oscar W. Underwood. This is not only a patriotic but an extremely wise movement. If the South is ever to furnish a candidate for the presidency, 1912 is the best time to do it and Oscar Underwood is the man to be the candidate.

The North has shown an admirable disposition to forget sectional lines; it is the men of the South now who seem to be bringing the imaginary line forward as an objection to Southern men.

We heard a fellow say the other day that he was awfully anxious to vote for a certain friend of his in the coming primary election, but that his poll tax was so far in arrears that he could not afford to pay up. He was a young man too. We reminded him of the fact that next year he would be even further in arrears and that it would not be an election year, and, therefore, there would be no particular incentive for him to discharge his duty as a tax payer. Along in the Fall, when others are voting for president, congressmen, state and county officers, that same young man will go around "cussin" his luck and saying he "just overlooked paying his poll tax," yet, he will be the first fellow to promise some candidate his enthusiastic support. Such promises are not worth the breath it takes to express them. PAY YOUR POLL TAX TODAY and get in line. It's your DUTY to do it.

HELPFUL HINTS ON HAIR HEALTH

Scalp and Hair Troubles Generally by Carelessness

Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a microbe which also produces baldness. Never use a comb or brush belonging to some one else. No matter how cleanly the owner may be, these articles may be infected with microbes. which will infect your scalp. It is far easier to catch hair microbes than it is to get rid of them, and a single stroke of an infected comb or brush may well lead to baldness. Never try on any body else's hat. Many a hat-band is a resting place for microbes.

If you happen to be troubled with dandruff, itching scalp, falling or baldness, we have a remedy which we believe will completely relieve these troubles. We are so shure of this that we offer it to you with the understanding that it will cost you nothing for the trial if it does not produce the results we claim. This remedy is called Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. we honestly believe it to be the most scientific of scalp and hair troubles and we know of nothing else that equals it for effectiveness, because of the results it has produced in thousands of cases.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is devised to banish dandruff, restore natural color when its loss has been brought about by disease, and make the hair naturally silky, soft and glossy. It does this be cause it stimulates the hair follicles, destroys the germ matter, and brings about a free, healthy circulation of the blood, which nourishes the hair roots, causing them to tighten and grow new hair. We want everybody who has any trouble with hair or scalp to know that we think that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is the best hair tonic and restorative in existence, and no one should scoff at or doupt this statement until they have put our claim to a fair test, with the understanding that they pay us nothing for the remedy if it does not full and complete satisfaction in every particular. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remidies in Clanton only our store—The Rexall Store, Upchurch Drug Co.

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli, and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and, amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco, where he meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer.

CHAPTER XI.

Daylight was in the thick of his spectacular and intensely bitter fight with the Coastwise Steam Navigation Company, and the Hawaiian, Nicaraguan, and Pacific-Mexican Steamship Company. He stirred up a bigger muss than he had anticipated, and even he was astounded at the wide ramifications of the struggle and at the unexpected and incongruous interests that were drawn into it. Every newspaper in San Francisco turned upon him. It was true, one or two of them had first intimated that they were open to subsidization, but Daylight's judgment was that the situation did not warrant such expenditure. Up to this time the press had been amusingly tolerant and good-naturedly sensational about him, but now he was to learn what virulent scurrilousness an antagonized press was capable of. Every episode of his life was resurrected to serve as foundations for malicious fabrications. Daylight was frankly amazed at the new interpretation put upon all that he had accomplished and the deeds he had done. From an Alaskan hero he was metamorphosed into an Alaskan bully, liar, desperado, and all-around "bad man." The whole affair sank to the deeper deeps of rancor and savageness. The poor woman who had killed herself was dragged out of her grave and paraded on thousands of reams of paper as a martyr and a victim to Daylight's ferocious brutality.

He was like a big bear raiding a bee-hive, and, regardless of the stings, he obstinately persisted in pawing for the honey. He gritted his teeth and struck back. Beginning with a raid on two steamship companies, it developed into a pitched battle with a city, state and continental coast line. Allied with him, on a splendid salary, with princely pickings thrown in, was a lawyer, Larry Hegan, a young Irishman with a reputation to make, and whose peculiar genius had been unrecognized until Daylight had picked up with him. It was Hegan who guided Daylight through the intricacies of modern politics, labor organization, and commercial and corporation law. It was Hegan, prolific of resource and suggestion, who opened Daylight's eyes to undreamed-of possibilities in twentieth-century warfare; and it was Daylight, unfeeling, accepting, and unhesitating, who planned the campaigns and prosecuted them. With the Pacific coast, from Puget Sound to Panama, busting and bursting, and with San Francisco furiously shooting its own crew-serving stalwarts overboard, all this excitement of scrapping it seemed to Daylight was but the natural concomitant of his fifty-first birthday.

A Sudden Envy of This Young Fellow Came Over Daylight.

It was not much of a blow at first. A Christian Endeavor convention was being held in San Francisco, a row was started by Express Drivers' Union No. 927 over the handling of a small heap of baggage at Ferry Building. A few heads were broken, a score of arrests made, and the baggage was delivered. No one would have guessed that behind this petty wrangle was the fine Irish hand of Hegan, made potent by the Klondike gold of Burning Daylight. It was an insignificant affair at best—or so it seemed. But the Teamsters' Union took up the quarrel, backed by the whole Water Front Federation. Step by step, the strike became involved. A refusal of cooks and waiters to serve scab teamsters or teamsters' employers brought out the cooks and waiters. The butchers and meat-cutters refused to handle meat destined for unfair restaurants. The combined Employers' Associations put up a solid front, and found facing them the 40,000 organized laborers of San Francisco. The restaurant bakers and the bakery wagon drivers struck, followed by the milkers, milk drivers and chicken pickers. The building trades asserted its position in unambiguous terms, and all San Francisco was in turmoil.

But still, it was only San Francisco. Hegan's intrigues were masterly, and Daylight's campaign steadily developed. The powerful fighting organization known as the Pacific Slope Seaman's Union refused to work vessels the cargoes of which were to be handled by scab longshoremen and freight handlers. The union presented its ultimatum, and then called a strike. This had been Daylight's objective all the time. Every incoming coastwise vessel was boarded by the union officials and its crew sent ashore. And with the seamen went the firemen, the engineers and the sea cooks and waiters. Daily the number of idle steamers increased. It was impossible to get scab crews, for the men of the Seamen's Union were fighters trained in the hard school of the sea, and when they went out it meant blood and death to scabs. This phase of the strike spread up and down the entire Pacific coast, until all the ports were filled with idle ships, and sea transportation was at a standstill. The days and weeks dragged out, and the strike held. The Coastwise Steam Navigation Company and the Hawaiian, Nicaraguan, and Pacific-Mexican Steamship Company were tied up completely. The expenses of combating the strike were tremendous, and they were earning nothing, while daily the situation went from bad to worse, until "peace at any price" became the cry. And still there was no peace, until Daylight and his allies played out their hand, raked in the winnings, and allowed a goodly portion of a continent to resume business.

Daylight's coming to civilization had not improved him. True, he wore better clothes, had learned slightly better manners, and spoke better English. But he had hardened, and at the expense of his old-time, whole-souled geniality. Even his human affiliations were descending. Playing a lone hand, contemptuous of most of the men with whom he played, lacking in sympathy or understanding of them, and certainly independent of them, he found little in common with those to be encountered, say at the Alta-Pacific. In point of fact, when the battle with the steamship companies was at its height and his raid was inflicting incalculable damage on all business interests, he had been asked to resign from the Alta-Pacific. The idea had been rather to his liking, and he had found new quarters in clubs like the Riverside, organized and practically maintained by the city bosses.

One week-end, feeling heavy and depressed and tired of the city and its ways, he obeyed the impulse of a whim that was later to play an important part in his life. The desire to get out of the city for a whiff of country air and for a change of scene was the cause. Yet, to himself, he made the excuse of going to Glen Ellen for the purpose of inspecting a brickyard which Holdsworthy had sold him. He spent the night in the little country hotel, and on Sunday morning, astride a saddle horse rented from the Glen Ellen butcher, rode out of the village. The brickyard was close at hand on the flat beside the Sonoma Creek.

Resolving to have his fun first, and to look over the brickyard afterward, he rode up the hill, prospecting for a way cross-country to get to the knoll. He left the county road at the first gate he came to and cantered through a hayfield. The grass was waist-high on either side the wagon-road, and he sniffed the warm aroma of it with delighted nostrils. At the base of the knoll he encountered a rickety-down rabbit-and-rider fence.

"It Sure Beats Country Places and Bungalows at Menlo Park," He Communed Aloud.

He threaded its way among the knolls. Here he found no passage out for his horse, and leading the animal, he forced his way up the hillside. On the crest he came through an amazing thicket of velvet-trunked young madrones, and emerged on an open hillside that led down into a tiny valley. The sunshine was at first dazzling in its brightness, and he paused and rested, for he was panting from the exertion. Not of old had he known shortness of breath such as this, and muscles that so easily tired at a stiff climb. A tiny stream ran down the tiny valley through a tiny meadow that was carpeted knee-high with grass and blue and white nemophila.

Crossing the stream, Daylight followed a faint cattle trail over a low, rocky hill and through a wine-wooded forest of manzanita, and emerged upon another tiny valley, down which filtered another spring-fed, meadow-bordered streamlet.

"It sure beats country places and bungalows at Menlo Park," he communed aloud; "and if ever I get the bankering for country life, it's me for this every time."

An old wood-road led him to a clearing, where a dozen acres of grapes grew on wine-red soil. A cow-path, more trees and thickets, and he dropped down a hillside to the southeast exposure. Here, poised above a big forested canyon, and looking out upon Sonoma Valley, was a small farmhouse. With its barn and outhouses it snuggled into a nook in the hillside, which protected it from the west and north. It was the erosion from this hillside, he judged, that had formed the little level stretch of vegetable garden. The soil was fat and black, and there was water in plenty, for he saw several faucets running wide open. Forgotten was the brickyard. Nobody was at home, but Daylight dismounted and ranged the vegetable garden, eating strawberries and green peas, inspecting the old adobe barn and rusty plow and harrow, and rolling and smoking cigarettes while he watched the antics of several broods of young chicks and the mothers hens.

Nothing could satisfy his holiday spirit now but the ascent of Sonoma Mountain. And here on the crest, three hours afterward, he emerged, tired and sweaty, garments torn and face and hands scratched, but with sparkling eyes and an unreasoned sentiment of expansion. He felt the illicit pleasure of a schoolboy playing truant. The big gaming table of San Francisco seemed very far away. But there was more than illicit pleasure in his mood. It was as though he were going through a sort of cleansing bath. No room there for all the perfidies and meannesses and [illegible] the city, and all its interests.

Daylight cast about for a trail, and found one leading down the side opposite to his ascent. Circling the base of the knoll, he picked up with his horse and rode on to the farmhouse. Smoke was rising from the chimney, and he was quickly in conversation with a nervous, slender young man, who, he learned, was only a tenant on the ranch. How large was it? A matter of one hundred and eighty acres, though it seemed much larger. This was because it was so irregularly shaped. Yes, it included the clay-pit and all the knolls, and its boundary that ran along the big canyon was over a mile long. Oh, yes, he and his wife managed to scratch a living without working too hard. They didn't have to pay much rent. Hillard, the owner, depended on the income from the clay-pit. Hillard was well off and had big ranches and vineyards down on the flat of the valley. The brickyard paid ten cents a cubic yard for the clay. As for the rest of the ranch, the land was good in patches, where it was cleared, like the vegetable garden and the vineyard, but the rest of it was too much up-and-down.

"You're not a farmer," Daylight said.

The young man laughed and shook his head.

"No; I'm a telegraph operator. But the wife and I decided to take a two-years' vacation, and . . . here we are. But the time's about up. I'm going back into the office this fall after I get the grapes off."

As Daylight listened, there came to him a sudden envy of this young fellow living right in the midst of all this which Daylight had traveled through the last few hours.

"What in thunder are you going back to the telegraph office for?" he demanded.

The young man smiled with a certain wistfulness.

"Because we can't get ahead here. . . ." (He hesitated an instant); "and because there are added expenses coming. The rent, small as it is, counts; and besides, I'm not strong enough to successfully farm the place. If I owned it, or if I were a real farmer like you, I'd ask nothing better. Nor would the wife." Again the wistful smile hovered on his lips. "You see, we're coming boys, and city-bred boys with cities for a few years, we think it best we live this country life. We've planned to get ahead enough, and then some day we'll buy a patch of land and stay with it. . . .

THESE SIX LETTERS

From New England Women

Prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Does Restore the Health of Ailing Women.

Boston, Mass.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from hemorrhages (sometimes lasting for weeks), and could get nothing to check them. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound (tablet form) on Tuesday, and the following Saturday morning the hemorrhages stopped. I have taken them regularly ever since and am steadily gaining.

"I certainly think that every one who is troubled as I was should give your Compound Tablets a faithful trial, and they will find relief."—Mrs. GEORGE JUDY, 903 Fifth Street, South Boston, Mass.

Letter from Mrs. Julia King, Phœnix, R.I.

Phœnix, R.I.—"I worked steady in the mill from the time I was 12 years old until I had been married a year, and I think that caused my bad feelings. I had soreness in my side near my left hip that went around to my back, and sometimes I would have to lie in bed for two or three days. I was not able to do my housework.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me wonderfully in every way. You may use my letter for the good of others. I am only too glad to do anything within my power to recommend your medicine."—Mrs. JULIA KING, Box 382, Phœnix, R.I.

Letter from Mrs. Etta Donovan, Willimantic, Conn.

Willimantic, Conn.—"For five years I suffered untold agony from female troubles causing backache, irregularities, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk up stairs without stopping on the way. I was all run down in every way.

"I tried three doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them but seemed to suffer more. The last doctor said it was no use for me to take anything as nothing would restore me to health again. So I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and by taking seven bottles of the Compound and other treatment you advised, I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. ETTA DONOVAN, 763 Main Street, Willimantic, Conn.

Letter from Mrs. Winfield Dana, Augusta, Me.

Augusta, Me.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured the backache, headache, and the bad pain I had in my right side, and I am perfectly well."—Mrs. WINFIELD DANA, R.F.D. No. 3, Augusta, Me.

Letter from Mrs. J. A. Thompson, Newport, Vt.

Newport, Vt.—"I thank you for the great benefit Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I took eight bottles and it did wonders for me, as I was a nervous wreck when I began taking it. I shall always speak a good word for it to my friends."—Mrs. JOHN A. THOMPSON, Box 3, Newport Center, Vermont.

Letter from Miss Grace Dodds, Bethlehem, N.H.

Bethlehem, N.H.—"By working very hard, sweeping carpets, washing, ironing, lifting heavy baskets of clothes, etc., I got all run down. I was sick in bed every month.

"This last Spring my mother got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and already I feel like another girl. I am regular and do not have the pains that I did, and do not have to go to bed. I will tell all my friends what the Compound is doing for me."—Miss GRACIE B. DODDS, Box 133, Bethlehem, N.H.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Feed Your Crops Available Potash

Insoluble plant foods are cheap in the beginning but may be dear in the end. We feel good when we hear that the soil contains enough Potash to raise 5000 crops, but we feel tired when we discover that it will take 1000 years or so to make it available. We will be converted into plant food ourselves long before that.

POTASH The acids derived from green manure may make insoluble phosphate of lime more available. But the feldspathic Potash in the soil is less soluble in these acids than in the slightly alkaline waters of the best soils. A little soil Potash becomes available yearly, but not enough to provide for profitable crops.

Crops have two periods of Potash hunger. One just after germination and the other when starch formation is most rapid—when the grain is filling. Rational fertilization requires ample available Potash at these periods and if you provide it you will find that Potash Pays. Send for our pamphlet on making fertilizers.

Rheumatic Pains quickly relieved

Sloan's Liniment is good for pain of any sort. It penetrates, without rubbing, through the muscular tissue right to the bone—relieves the congestion and gives permanent as well as temporary relief.

Here's Proof.

A. W. LAY of Lafayette, Ala., writes:—"I had rheumatism for five years. I tried doctors and several different remedies but they did not help me. I obtained a bottle of Sloan's Liniment which did me so much good that I would not do without it for anything."

THOMAS L. RICE of Easton, Pa., writes: "I have used Sloan's Liniment and find it fine—fine for rheumatic pains."

Mr. G. G. JONES of Baldwins, L.I., writes:—"I have found Sloan's Liniment pure excellence. I have used it for broken sinews above the knee cap caused by a fall, and to my great satisfaction I was able to resume my duties in less than three weeks after the accident."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

HAZING NOW ENDED

No Case Is Developed In West Point for Months.

CREDIT DUE GENERAL MILLS

After Others Failed He Succeeded in Breaking Up the System, for Which Has Been Substituted a Better Method of Discipline.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—Word has come to the war department from West Point that notwithstanding the fact that it holds the largest class of new cadets which has reported to the institution, the members have not been hazed, either in camp or in the barracks. For some months there have been no developed cases of hazing of the newcomers. Recently Brig. Gen. Albert L. Mills was ordered to take command of the department of the gulf, with headquarters at Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga. It is probable that the news that there has been no hazing at West Point is of particular interest to General Mills.

When the Spanish war broke out Mills was a first lieutenant in the First cavalry. He was given the rank of captain as an assistant adjutant general of volunteers. While on this staff duty he was in the thick of the fight in front of Santiago. He showed heroism that day that won him a medal of honor, an appointment to West Point as superintendent, with the rank of colonel, and later a promotion to the grade of brigadier general, a promotion that advanced him over the heads of several hundred senior officers.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Mills is the man who broke up hazing at West Point. The system passed bewailed by every graduate of the academy, except the man who gave it its death blow. Possibly way down in his heart General Mills was sorry that he was able to do what many a soldier before him had failed to do, but it was a matter of duty, and hazing was drum-headed and driven out of the camp.

The scars of war are on General Mills, but conspicuous as was his field service, it is probable that the fight against the time-recognized, if not time-honored "plebe deviling" institution, will outlive the other service in the memory of the army and the country. "Bracing" has succeeded hazing at West Point. A plebe is no longer asked to recite the "Psalm of Life," with appropriate gestures, to his humiliation, and to the delight of a host of unconscionable yearlings, but he gets the military end of the strenuous life as no plebe ever got it before, and the perfunctory soldier duties at the academy were always soul-trying and body-racking.

Others Failed to Stop Hazing.

When Albert L. Mills went to the Military Academy as its superintendent he was only a captain, though the position of chief of the school carried with it the temporary rank of colonel. The list of his predecessors at West Point carried the name of some of the most distinguished soldiers of the American army. Lee, Schofield, Howard and Merritt are four of the names that come to the memory. Lee could not, or did not, stop hazing. Under Schofield six cadets were dismissed for hazing in a single summer, but hazing went on. Merritt tried his hand at rooting out the practice. He dismissed a Chicago boy summarily on the charge of deviling a plebe sentinel, but hazing went on.

General Howard was probably the only superintendent that the military academy ever had who did not believe in his heart that a certain kind of hazing was a good thing for the hazed. Rich men's sons came to West Point, the most democratic school on the footstool, and gave evidence that they thought they were better than the sons of poor men. It didn't take long to induce them to change their viewpoint. The yearlings changed it for them. There never was the brutal hazing at West point that there was at Annapolis. The sea school brand was indefensible. Howard tried to kill all forms of hazing and failed.

Before General Mills had been in the academy long there were several cases of severe hazing, and, mindful of his duty, he campaigned against an enemy that had overcome his predecessors as no enemy had overcome them in warfare. Mills routed the well-intentioned foe, but he took care that a system of discipline should be installed which would do the regenerating work that the better kind of hazing had done before.

Great Diplomatic Reception.

This is the season of the society whirl. It makes no difference whether one is invited or not invited, he cannot keep away from the receptions and the balls and the parties; that is, keep away from them in the sense that he must not know about them, for the streets are thronged nightly with uniformed comers and goers and their begowned wives, daughters and sweethearts. President Taft has just given the greatest diplomatic reception ever seen in Washington. The crowd of attendants was tremendous and it was gloriously bedecked and bedizened gathering. It was foreign night with an American environment—the guests were about equally divided between aliens and natives.

The diplomats are a picturesque set and in the main their wives and their sisters and their daughters are beautiful, something which cannot be said for all of the diplomatic servants' brothers and fathers, if one is to go above the always beautiful

About nine-tenths of the diplomats in Washington are aristocrats, or think that they are, and this amounts to the same thing. [illegible] them are titled, and those that haven't anything in front of their names have a string of post titles to make up.

The diplomatic reception was attended by more people than have been at the White House on any occasion for years, except of course on the occasion of the New Year's day reception when the latch string hangs out to the world.

Military Attaches a Fine Lot.

Most of the military attaches of the European governments did not need ramifications of uniform and equipment to make them physically presentable. In fact, if some of the English, Russians and Germans would take off some twenty or thirty pounds of decorations, strip off eighteen or twenty yards of fur lining and take a roll or two in their sashes—those of them who wear sashes—they would appear to a more militant advantage. Fully the half of them are magnificent specimens of manhood. It must be that some of the countries pick their men because of their physical fitness.

There was a throng of Japanese officials in the White House on the night of the diplomatic reception. They are small men, but they are of perfect carriage, and, as an American officer said recently, "they always have a 'ready' look." There is no lesson in geniality which the Japanese have not learned. At any rate, this statement is true of the Japanese officials. They are favorites in Washington life. It is said of them that it is impossible not to like them, even though prejudice and determination try to have their own way in the matter.

Won't Shovel Away Snow.

The Capital has had more than its share of snow in the last week or two. The streets are in a fearful condition and no one attempts to clean as much as a path along the sidewalk abutting on his property. The snow comes and lies and there it stays until the sun melts it. The government insists that property holders keep their sidewalks and their pavements free from dirt, and the city ordinarily is beautifully clean, but as for snow and ice, with their attendant slipping dangers, congress does not seem to care a whit.

Washington is governed by congress. Congress is its mayor and its city council. In some ways Washington is well governed; in other ways it isn't. Every winter there is a long-drawn-out row in the senate, and sometimes in the house, over the matter of a law to force the people to remove the snow from the sidewalks in front of their residences. The law has never passed. Once it was upon the district statute books, but it was wiped out never apparently to be restored.

The result is that after a snowstorm in Washington sidewalks are in a fearful state. Only the most public-spirited citizens clean their sidewalks. The rest of the people wade through their own snow and their neighbors' snow and prefer the discomfort of it all to the two minutes' exertion which it would take to shovel the snow from their walks.

Visitors to the state, war and navy department building miss the models of the big ships which once stood in the hallways. There are one or two models still in existence, but they are of the smaller gunboats and they lack the interest which attaches to the big turreted vessels with their guns which, even in model form, are frowning and savage looking enough.

No inquiry personally has been made as to why the models of the ships have been sent into the closet. It may be that the authorities did not care to have them inspected at close range by representatives of foreign governments.

Army Uniform Exhibit.

In the hallway of the army part of the state, war and navy building there are wax figures of men clothed one after the other in the uniforms of the service since revolutionary days. These wax figures are pretty well done, inasmuch as they are not ghastly looking, nor "faddery," as are some of the wax figures that one sees in store windows.

By far the most picturesque of the uniforms are those which were worn in the revolutionary days. Of course the uniforms shown in the war department are spick and span and made for the show occasions. It is not at all likely that many of the soldiers of the revolution had such fine duds to wear as these to be seen in Mr. Stimson's department. The buff and the blue are beautiful, much more beautiful than some of the uniforms which follow.

The officers of the regulation wore deerskin on their bodies and coon skins on their heads. These uniforms are shown with the others, and they add to the picturesqueness of the display. It might be said, however, that the present field uniform of the United States troops is by far the most comfortable and serviceable of all that have been used since the American [illegible] existence.

RETIRED GEORGIA PLANTER'S ADVICE TO KIDNEY SUFFERERS

Regarding the wonderful curative merits of your Swamp-Root, I cannot say too much. After suffering severely for three years or more with [illegible] was finally induced to try Swamp-Root through a testimonial I read in one of the newspapers. I was in such a condition that I was obliged to arise from my bed six or eight times every night. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and before it was used I felt so much relief that I purchased a one-dollar bottle, and by the time this was taken the aching pains had left my back, and I could sleep the whole night through. I am a retired planter, 70 years of age, and owing to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, I am in the best of health and feel like a boy. I am always glad to recommend Swamp-Root to those who are in need of it.

Sincerely yours,
C. E. USSERY,
Bowersville, Ga.

Personally appeared before me, this 8th of September, 1909, C. E. Ussery, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

BABY'S HAIR ALL CAME OUT

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head. All the hair came out and his head was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him blood medicine, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had it about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura.

"I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. E. Harmon, [illegible], Atoka, Tenn., Sept. 16, 1909. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

Putting It Plainly.

"What did the banker's daughter say when you asked her to marry you?"

"She said I would have to go to her father. He held the block in my proposition."

Man of the Present.

"A man has to be up-to-date to do anything nowadays."

"Yes," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "When I find it desirable not to dwell entirely on the past."

BURN BUILDING TO KILL GERM

Only Way to Get Rid of Them, and Occasion Was Made a Good Object Lesson.

A ramshackle building in [illegible] Salem was recently burned at the request of the local anti-tuberculosis league, because it was said to be alive with tuberculosis germs and could not be properly fumigated.

For days before the building was burned huge placards announcing the hour of destruction and giving reasons for the burning were hung about in prominent places. Among other things, the placards said: "Within the past 1 months two men who sold fruit, etc., here have died of tuberculosis, but unconsciously left millions of tuberculosis germs by careless spitting. The building is so open that it cannot be effectively fumigated. The only practical means of disinfecting is by fire."

At the appointed hour, while millions of tuberculosis germs were being burned, 5,000 pamphlets telling how to prevent consumption, were distributed to the crowd looking on.

BALTIMORE IS COMING TO THE FRONT

The Baltimore Bargain House Completes Mammoth Structure

The New 12-story Baltimore Bargain House Building, Baltimore, Md.

The Baltimore Bargain House has just completed a 12-story building, which covers one-third of an immense city block, with an estimated floor space of 240,000 square feet.

The site is the corner of Baltimore and Liberty Streets and running back to Garrett Street.

This building, added to the adjoining buildings which the B. B. H. Salesrooms now occupy, extends over almost 85 per cent. of the entire block.

All combined the B. B. H. buildings cover almost three large city blocks. This includes the building mentioned above and their big Fayette Street building, their Clothing Factory, their Warehouse at Scott, Stockholm and Wicomico Streets (which in itself takes up an entire block), and other buildings about the city of Baltimore.

In 1911 the Sales of the B. B. H. amounted to $13,345,789.55. This statement was sworn to before a Notary before being published.

This makes them the Fourth Largest Wholesale House in any one city doing business throughout the United States.

Taking into consideration that they have No Traveling Salesmen, they sell MORE Goods than any other Wholesale House in America, in any one city, without the aid of Drummers.

As before stated, the main business of the B. B. H. is located at the corner of Baltimore and Liberty Streets, running through to Fayette Street, which is considered the best location in Baltimore.

The special feature of their New Building is the improved mechanical devices for handling their immense volume of business, which they claim will reduce their expense of handling the business materially in comparison to what it costs their competitors today to handle their business with laborers.

They attribute the biggest part of their success in business to the fact that they have always handled their business more economically than any Other House and thereby they have been enabled to live up to their famous motto, "MORE GOODS FOR SAME MONEY—SAME GOODS FOR LESS MONEY."

The architecture of the building and the magnificence of its interior finish make it one of the handsomest Wholesale Houses in America.

We congratulate Baltimore and the Baltimore Bargain House upon its wonderful achievement. We look upon Baltimore as the chief Southern City and we are proud of her and anything she does in the way of expansion in the line of business.

Fishes Survived Drought.

A curious drought survival by fishes is reported from France. The ditch or moat of Monaco, completely dried up last summer, although usually a canal three miles long and fifty feet wide, with five feet of water. All carp, tench, perch and pike disappeared, leaving dry mud. A recent sudden rainfall, however, supplied a little water, and the fishes were actually seen rising—as lively as ever—from the mud in which they had buried themselves.

An Old Field Weed.

Many seeing that old field weed, the mullein stalk, never consider the good it is accomplishing in easing lung troubles. It presents in Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullein the finest known remedy for coughs, croup, colds, consumption, Whooping Cough, etc.

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "But I have whittled him out of business and his knife is not going across my path. Now two may play at that game with it."

Broke Down

"It would be hard to tell," says Mrs. Tebe Talbott, of Lantz, W. Va., "how much I suffered from womanly troubles. I had pains all over, and got so weak, I could scarcely walk across the room. Thanks to taking Cardui, I began to improve right off. Now I can do my housework, and am feeling very well."

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK FOR CLANTON

SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN IN THIS SECTION

Postmaster Dudley received notice late last week that the Clanton postoffice had been designated as one of the offices in the state which would be made a Postal Savings Bank by the department.

The notice give out no especial information further than that a postal officer would visit Clanton in the next few days to give full instruction and to put the bank in operation. This department of the postoffice will begin operations some time in the near future, perhaps, about the latter part of the month.

This will afford the small wage earner an opportunity to put away his savings, no matter how small they may be, and feel perfectly secure because he has the United States government behind him.

Deposits in amounts of TEN CENTS or more will be received and entered to the credit of the depositor just as is done by the banks of the country. This departure from the old rule, and the selection of Clanton as one of the postal savings stations, shows the importance and growth of the Clanton office and the estimation in which this particular section is held as a thrifty money saving community.

But few of the postoffices of the state have thus far been designated as postal savings institutions.

Mountain Creek

Dear Mr. Editor:

In spite of the long continued spell of unusually severe weather, the Camp of veterans at this place (No 1711) U. C. V., determined to celebrate the 19th, inst. R. E. Lee's birthday, impressively.

This we were enabled to do by the help of our friends, Mrs. Dow and her sister, Miss Alice Miller, who came up from Montgomery to renew their acquaintance with the officials and inmates; they rendered a program, which, for variety and beauty, could be enjoyed, as it was most thoroughly, by every one who heard or saw it, but, outside the pale of description. To say that all were very much pleased, would be "to paint the lily or to gild refined gold."

Mr. John W. Sandford Jr., son our retired Brigadier General, whom, in all love and revere, delivered the address which gave us somewhat the breeding, training and making, of the man, whom we followed from the bedside of his sick mother, himself administering each dose of medicine, and lifting her in and out of the carriage, and in short, giving her his personal attention, rather than entrust her to others. That same personal attention to duty, marked him at West Point, in Mexico, making him, at the end of that war, the foremost military man in his country. Then to witness the struggle to sacrifice this position for the cause of his state and the weaker side. "Duty is the Sublimest Word in the English Language." This is the spring of all his actions.

But I cannot attempt to follow our orator. As a token of their appreciation, at the termination of his address, Comp 1711, U. C. V., unanimously chose him as their first honorary member.

Morning Sickness

Many women suffer this misery. It makes its appearance so regularly that they learn to expect it and arrange their household work accordingly. Few women think of seeking medical help to get rid of it for good. If women only knew of the power and effectiveness of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine they would not be without it a moment longer than it would take to get it from the drug store. It is a splendid remedy for all nausea or sickness of the stomach. The first dose settles the stomach and makes the patient feel better. Additional doses act on the female generative system, strengthening weakened organs, regulating the habits, restoring tone and strength in every part of the body. It is essentially a woman's remedy prepared expressly to meet the need of women who suffer from the ailments common to their sex.

VOL 2. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1912 NO. 46

ADDRESS OF HON. J. O. MIDDLETON

AT R. E. LEE CELEBRATION—A MASTERFUL DELIVERY.

man's part for his suffering country, that he had the glory of being a Confederate Soldier, and who feels a just, proud and glowing consciousness in his bosom when he says unto himself: "I was a follower of Robert E. Lee."

Was this because he wielded patronage and power? No, he could not have appointed a friend to the smallest office. And while he could bestow no emolument upon any of his followers, the slightest intimation of his wish amongst his own people carried an influence which the autocrat never possessed, and his approval of conduct or character was deemed an honor and was an honor which out vied stars and crosses and titles of kings. Did he gain wealth? No, it thrust itself upon him, but he refused its companionship because his people could not have its company. What he had he gave to a weak cause and home itself was offered upon the altar of his country, but he has left a great and imperishable legacy to us and our heirs forever. The heart of a man is his perpetual kingdom; there he reigns transcendant and we exclaim, "O King live forever." Did he possess rank? No, he was not even a citizen. The country which gave the right of suffrage to the alien ere he could read or understand its laws, denied to him the privilege of a ballot. He had asked amnesty and had been refused He had not been tried, but had been convicted. He forgave, but was unforgiven. He died a paroled prisoner of war in the calm of peace five years after the war ended—died the foremost and noblest man of a Republic which proclaims itself "the land of the free and the home of the brave," himself and his Commander in Chief, constituting its most conspicious political slaves. But as the oak stripped of its foliage by the winter blast, then and then only stands forth in solemn and mighty majesty against the wintry skies, so Robert E. Lee stripped of every rank that man could give him, towered above the earth and those around him in the pure sublimnity and strength of that character which we can only contemplate when we lift our eyes from earth and see it dimmed against the heavens. Did he save his country from conquest? No, he saw his every foreboding evil verified. He came to share the miseries of his people. He shared them, drinking every drop of sorrow's cup His cause was lost, and the land for which he fought lives not among the nations. But the voice of history echoes the poet's song:

"Ah! realm of tombs!, but let it bear
This blazon to the last of time;
No nation rose so white and fair
Or fell so free from crime."

There is a rare exotic that blooms once in a century and then it fills the sight with beauty and the air with fragrance. In each of the two centuries of Virginia's state-hood, there has sprung from the loins of her heroic race a son whose name and deeds shall bloom throughout the ages. Each fought for liberty and independence, each against a people of his own race, and each against the forms of established power, George Washington fought, and won, against a kingdom whose seat of government was a thousand miles away, whose soldiers had to sail in ships across the deep, and found in the boundless areas of his own land his strongest fortification. Above beyond the reach of detraction is the glory of his name. Robert E. Lee made a fiercer and a bloodier fight against greater odds and at a greater sacrifice, and lost—against the greatest nation of modern history, armed with steam and electricity and all the appliances of modern science. A nation which mustered her forces at the very threshold of his door. But his life teaches the grand lesson of how manhood can rise transcendant over adversity and is itself alone under God preeminent; the grander lesson, because as sorrow and misfortune are the common lot, he who bears them best is made of sterner stuff and is the nobles and greatest exemplar. He lived to see deeply laid the foundation and firmly built the pedestal of his great glory, and to catch the murmur of those voices which would rear high image and bear his name and fame to remote ages and distant nations. The brave and true of every land paid him tribute. The first soldiers of foreign climes saluted him with eulogy, and the scholar decorated his page with dedications to his name; the artist enshrined his form and features in noblest work of brush and chizel; the poet rhymed the heroic pathos of his name in tender and lofty strain; enmity grew into friendship before his noble bearing and humanity itself tended him with all human sympathy.

And now he has vanished from us forever. But can it be said that a hand full of dust which rests beneath the marble shaft on Virginia's hill, is all that is left of him? No! The ages answer as they rise from the gulfs of time where lay the wrecks of kingdoms and states, holding up in their hands as their only trophies, the the names of those who have wrought for man in the love and fear of God, and in love unfearing for their fellow man. The present bending over his tomb answers no! The future answers no! As the breath of the morning fans its radiant brow, and its soul drinks in sweet inspiration from the lovely life of Lee. No! the very heavens echo, as melt into their depths the ords of reverent love that voiced the hearts of men to the twinkling stars.

And now my friends I return to you my heartfelt thanks for the gracious attention which you have accorded me, and if I have said one word or uttered one syllable to impress upon the minds and hearts of the students of the Clanton High School the noble character of Robert E. Lee, or to engender amongst them the desire to emulate his splendid example, then I shall drink consolation at the fountain of duty done and feel that, at least upon this occasion, I have served my state. And again I would express my deep and sincere appreciation of the high honor conferred upon me by the fair Daughters of the Confederacy and the Faculty and Students of the Clanton High School in inviting me to participate with them on this occasion, and if I knew where, amongst hanging bowers or blooming flowers, there gurgled the waters of that delectable fountain so vainly sought after by the early Spaniards who explored this country, I would present a fair bumper of its life giving waters to the lips of each and bid them drink eternal bloom.

ALL DAY SINGING

An all day singing will take place at the Court House on Sunday, February 18th, next. Services will begin promptly at ten o'clock, or as near that hour as possible.

Prof. H. M. Eagle will lead the singing, which insures good music and a pleasant occasion.

Every one is invited to come and bring a well filled basket.

W. O. PERRY

COMMISSIONER FROM THIRD DISTRICT HAS HAD EXPERIENCE IN OFFICE.

The PRESS carries in its columns this week the announcement of Mr. W. O. Perry, of Stantop, who asks the people of Chilton to nominate him as Commissioner from the Third District of the county

The people of the west side are unanimous in their demands for good roads, and for other county improvements, and they have casted about until they found a man who would represent their views and put them into execution. Mr. Perry is a man of wide experience and of business sagacity; he has served as a Commissioner in Perry county—one of the most progressive counties in the State — and, therefore, knows thoroughly the business of the office to which he seeks nomination.

While for a time he lived in Perry county, he has always been a close neighbor to Chilton, residing within a few miles of the line between the two counties. He is a man of large family, has made a success in life in every line and will make a success of his administration of the office of County Commissioner.

No man can have a more forceful endorsement than that of the people among whom he lives, and this Mr. Perry seems to have.

MR. GULLEDGE ON GOOD ROADS

Editor Press:—

Being a good roads enthusiast, I will begin by saying let us have a Chilton county demonstration along that line and as others are offering suggestions along the line of good or bad roads, and some are going to the Commissioners' Court on the 12th inst to offer to wipe out or take other steps against the present mode of using the road fund, I now suggest as many as can (and I hope all can) attend on the 12th and let us have a good roads old fashioned Methodist love feast. If so I will then and there "make a move, if I can get a second," and if "carried" will guarantee one good road from line to line across Chilton county. What you say, boys? Come on now and get busy; "jine" while time and opportunity awaits you. Again, I want to appeal to our farming friends to get busy for the boll weevil which is headed this way and will "see you later" sure. They should get in touch with boll weevil districts and become educated as to how to pay present debts after the weevil comes, and learn to live without debt even before they get here.

All should read H. S. Doster's lettor in the Advertiser of Jan. 28th. Think of the Chilton county man's credit being cut to $25. And yet many places in the infested districts have to live to under this limit. Be careful, boys. Learn the lesson "before it is everlastingly too late." Raise less cotton and more to eat. Get on the old "Bachelor Brogan" to plough in and leave off the accustomed tooth-pick patent leather shoe, which so many have on these days even on the mill yard, in the mining camp and in the field. Fix up your old harness, repair your old wagons, buggies and plow stocks; make your single trees and hoe and axe handles; make "cush" out of the cold corn bread left over; "bile" lye hominy; "run your hens uphill" to make them lay instead of going in debt for "chicken food," and do any and all else to save your cash, for ye know not when the enemy of man shall come in the shape of Mr. Boll Weevil. Besides the world is going at a rate it can't afford. Better take up while we can. Get you good mares and cows; good hogs; some good or bad land, even if latter is on credit, and then get the best thing on earth—a good wife, and then, and not until then, boys, will you ever prosper. At least you will not know the true enjoyment of real life. What will say to this "Amen?"

F. A. Gulledge.

If Mr. Editor desires to comment as above, I would like it. G.

P. S. It appears from the number of applicants for the office of county commissioner from the old fourth district that there must be great riches in store for the lucky man.

"graft." They are all good men and would not "stand for" that.

I learn Verbena is to offer a candidate for Superintendent this week. We imported one from Clanton just to be in style. F. A. G.

MR. JUDSON STROCK

A FORMER OFFICIAL AGAIN SEEKS OFFICE.

In another column will be found the announcement of Mr. Judson Strock, of Verbena, as a candidate for Superintendent of Education of Chilton county.

Mr Strock does not require an introduction to the people of this county; he is too well and too favorably known to Chilton citizens to require more than the mere mention of his name, and this is especially true of the teachers of the county.

Mr. Strock served formerly as Superintendent of Education, and a most excellent officer he made, too. His experience as a teacher, as an officer and his wide acquaintance, coupled with his well-known character for doing things at the right time and in the right way fit him peculiarly for the office which he seeks.

He is a graduate of Howard college—one of the best in the South—and has had many years experience in the school room.

In his letter requesting his announcement he states that if elected it is his purpose to give his time to the duties of the office, visiting the several schools of the county and making such suggestions and arrangements for the advancement of the school system of the county as he thinks proper and wright.

As modest as a girl, as straight forward as an arrow in its flight, as attentive to businss as an ant, Mr. Strock will doubtless receive the enthusiastic support of a large number of friends for the office which he seeks that would not be accorded to any other man.

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Stanton, Ala., Feb. 5, '12

You no doubt read my announcement in last week's paper. I took this step at the earnest solicitation of many of my friends. I am no politician, have never claimed to be; I served my people in Perry county as commissioner and also two terms in the State Legislature, but in every instance the matter was left entirely with my friends and I was placed in office by the people.

I have been in this county eleven years and served on the School Board five years of this time. Many of you know me, and if I am elected, will serve you to the very best of my ability.

Let it result as it may, in the election, no man will appreciate the favors more than myself.

W. O. Perry.

FROM MR. STROCK

Editor of the Press:

Announcing as a candidate for Superintendent of Education, I would like to give some of my views of the office.

Knowing the responsibility that rests on the Superintendent, and the peculiar duties, I reluctantly entered the race for the place. And too, as the candidate is wont to say, my friends are largely responsible for my announcement. But for this act of theirs I by no means of their fault.

The Superintendent of course would, as officers and others, want for all things that will be for the best discharges his duty his work for the cause of education should be felt.

I regard it as his duty to look into the welfare of every school under his supervision. I think he should keep in as close touch as practicable with every school in the county. There should be the most cordial relations existing between the Superintendent and the other school officials. These and other minor duties devolve on the County Superintendent of Education.

If nominated and elected to the office it is my purpose to give a good portion of my time to the duties of the office. I will visit annually the schools of the county as I have intimated. I expect to give a great deal of time to study on educational subjects that I may be better able to discharge my duty.

In conclusion, if nominated I will appreciate the honor conferred on me. The office is sufficiently remunerative to justify a discharge of one's duty connected with it.

The party owes me nothing. No man owes me one cent politically. If I can in behalf of the cause of education claim your support I do so. I have no other claim to make on the voters of the county. Vote for the good of your country.

Respectfully,
Judson Strock.

MR. GREEN RETHERFORD

SEEKS NOMINATION FOR COLLECTOR.

The PRESS carries this week the announcement of Mr. Green D. Retherford as a candidate for Tax Collector.

The friends of Mr. Retherford need not be told of his qualities or his fitness for the office he seeks, for they are all well acquainted with the character of the man and know that he is in every way worthy. To those who have but a slight acquaintance with him it might be well to say that last year he made the race for Commissioner when there was small hope of success, and when he himself, thought that he was making a fruitless race. Nevertheless he came in one small vote of being elected; his friends realizing the character of the man rallied to his support and tho' he was defeated by the narrowest margin possible his candidacy brought him out as a prominent factor in democratic politics of the county. He has always been a democrat; has known no other political creed and works for no other party. Having made a success of his personal affairs since his youth he now comes before the people and asks that he be given a place of honor in the party for which he has always labored and fought. Mr. Retherford comes from a section of the county that has not so far presented any other candidates; those who defeat him in his race for office will have no time to tarry on the way or to rest on their oars.

He says he intends to make a systematic campaign and to make all his competitors sit up and take notice.

HON. A. C. SMITH.

ATTORNEY AT LAW.

In this issue of the PRESS appears the professional card of Hon. A. C. Smith, to which we call the attention of our readers.

For some months Mr. Smith has been associated with Hon. Tipton Mullins but on the first of the month removed to his old offices in his own building where he has fitted up a suit of rooms that would do credit to a much larger city. Here he will continue the practice of his profession.

Mr. E. E. Calloway is now a student in the office and will be a full fledged lawyer himself, after which the two will form a copartnership under the firm name of Smith & Calloway.

Mr. Smith has been practicing at the Chilton bar for a number of years and is so well and favorably known as a thorough student of the law, a careful and painstaking attorney, and withal so courteous a gentleman that the PRESS takes a pleasure in carrying his card in its columns.

NEAR A SERIOUS CONFLAGRATION

Monday near the noon hour cries were heard at the east end of the business section of Main street announcing that the Gamble Hardware building was on fire. Immediately a large concourse of men gathered and went diligently to work to extinguish the flames which work was accomplished in a very few minutes with but little damage.

For sometime the origin of the fire was a mystery as a can of paint sitting on the floor near the east wall of the building exploded without any apparent cause. After the excitement was over Mr. Jones, who is manager in charge made an investigation and descovered that an old fire place on the east side of the building which had been abandoned, was primarily the cause. A stove pipe running from the center of the building enters the flue on the east side, but it appears, the workmen when they made the opening in the chimney for the use of the stove failed to stop the lower part of the chimney. This permitted trash and soot to accumulate at the bottom near where the paints were placed. Monday being an extremely cold day a large fire was made in the stove and sparks, it seems, dropped down igniting the accumulation of trash; the heat from this causing the paint to explode.

For a time it looked as if a serious fire would have to be fought but prompt action on the part of those present prevented more than a slight damage. Ten or fifteen dollars will cover the entire loss.

A WORD OF APOLOGY

AN UNFORTUNATE OVERSIGHT EXPLAINED.

In last week's PRESS appeared, along with several others, the announcement of Mr. W. O. Perry of Stanton, as a candidate for nomination as Commissioner from the Third district. The PRESS undertook to say something with reffernce to the candidacy of all the other candidates and our readers no doubt noticed that Mr. Perry's name was not mentioned except in the column of announcements! The editor prepared a notice o. his candidacy, hung it on the hook for the printers, the printers set it in type and placed it upon the galley, made proof of it and put it where it was ready for the forms. The day on which the forms were made was dark and gloomy; the lights were poor and the make up man over looked the article with reference to Mr. Perry's candidacy. It was a mistake, an error, but one which is liable to occur at any time to the best of printers. He regrets his error, the editor regrets the occurrence but what can remedy it?

In this week's paper appears what the editor had to say about Mr. Perry and we hope all will read it, for having known him for some years we are prepared to repeat that he would make Chilton a model officer if chosen to represent the Third district in the Commissioners Court.

We make this explanation to the public and this apology to Mr. Perry because we think it due both; we would not for a moment have anyone think we are "playing favorites" in a democratic primary election, and without the explanation it would seem to some; perhaps, that we were.

When democrats speak the PRESS falls in line; if our candidates are chosen we dare fight for them with all our vigor; if other candidates are made the choice of the people we give them the same loyal support as if we had espoused their cause from start to finish. Democrats all look alike to us after they all get our enthusiastic support.

Edward Schweitzer, a Macon, Ga., demonstrator for a fire apparatus company, went down to Central Park Park on business, and while there he sought to feed peanuts to a leopard that is a part of a circus wintering in Macon. Before he could withdraw his hand from between the bars, the leopard had seized upon it, like a piece of meat, and bit it off at the wrist.

B. E. McLin, state commissioner of agriculture of Florida, after a most strenuous day spent in inspecting exhibits at the fair in Orlando, fell dead while delivering an address in Elks' hall. Mr. McLin hesitated in his speech, then sank to the floor. He was dead when assistance reached him. For twelve years he had held office as the head of the state agricultural department and was noted as having first effected pure food inspection laws in Florida.

The Hamburg-American Line steamer Alleghaney, which left New York for Central America and the West Indies, sank 75 miles east-northeast of Cape Henry, off the Virginia coast, after a collision with the British steamer Pomaron, according to wireless dispatches received in New York City. The Pomaron, with the passengers and crew of the Alleghaney on board, and convoyed by the revenue cutter Onondaga, is making slowly for port, the messages ran.

Another unfortunate class A submarine of the British navy, two of which had sunk previously, and on board two others of which various members of their crew had been killed or injured in explosion, went to the bottom of the sea at the entrance to Spithead, with a loss of fourteen lives—four lieutenants and ten members of the crew. Not one of the ship's company escaped. The catastrophe was the result of a collision with the British gunboat Hazard.

A mysterious quadruple murder in which two men and two women were killed was revealed by the discovery of the bodies of the victims in a tenement house in the heart of Lawrence, Mass.

Absolute denial of alleged violations of the anti-trust law is made by the United States Steel Corporation, its subsidiaries and directors, in their answers, which were filed in the United States district court in Trenton, N. J., to the government's dissolution suit. The effect of its organization, the corporation declares, has been to cheapen production, effect economies and increase foreign trade from $8,000,000 to $60,000,000 annually within ten years.

That Col. Theodore Roosevelt would no more decline to take the nomination for president than he would decline to enlist, if needed, in time of war, is the opinion of Lawrence F. Abbott, one of the editors of The Outlook, contained in a letter received by Edward C. Stokes, former governor of the state of New Jersey. The name of Judson Harmon of Ohio was filed as a presidential candidate in Nebraska for the Democratic primaries, while that of William J. Bryan was withdrawn.

A curfew law for husbands was advocated by Robert B. Glenn, former governor of South Carolina, in a speech in Chicago on the subject, "The Country's Need of Sterling Men and Women." "The man who stays away from his family at night is the most contemptible creature on earth," he said. "I wish we had a curfew law for husbands—a law that would make every husband stay at home from 8 in the evening until six o'clock the next morning.

Reviewing the achievements of his administration before the Columbus Glee club at Columbus, Ohio, President Taft drew the line sharply between the old line Republicans and the Progressives of his party and practically declared that the time was at hand when the "denunciation" of the Progressives must cease, and when the nation will demand facts. He had not the slightest doubt, he said, the Republican party would win.

J. B. Snoddy, one of eight persons charged with whitecapping Harvey McFarland, a farmer, was found guilty in Bloomington, Ind. The penalty is a term of from two to ten years in prison. This is the first conviction on a whitecapping charge, although midnight floggings have been common in the hill country of southern Indiana. It was so apparent that a whitecap organization existed in Monroe county that Governor Marshall detailed attorneys to assist in the prosecution.

The garrison of Juarez, across the river from El Paso, Texas, rose in revolt and in half an hour the mutineers were in possession of the city. Looting and promiscuous shooting prevailed for hours. The commander of the garrison was thrown into prison with the chief of police, while other prisoners were released. An Italian surgeon holding a commission in the Mexican army, said he had counted fifteen dead, including two Americans—a man and a boy 12 years old. The boy was lying in the street, having been shot through the breast. As near as can now be ascertained, the uprising was due to a report printed in a Chihuahua newspaper, which arrived in Juarez, stating that Gen. Pascual Orozco, one of the leaders of the Madero revolution, had resigned his military position at Chihuhua, and to the discharge of 100 men of the Juarez garrison. The dismissal of these troops was taken as confirmation of the Orozco report.

It is understood that immediate abdication of the Chinese throne has been decided upon, as a result of the conference between the empress dowager, Prince Chun, the ex-regent and Prince Ching, the ex-premier, in accordance with conditions laid down by the Republicans namely, that the imperial family and princes are to retain their empty titles.

President Taft sent to congress his promised message on Alaska and the public domain in general. President Taft urges an international inquiry into the high cost of living. He asks authority to invite the nations of the world to a conference in Washington or elsewhere to make plans for the investigation of the high cost of living.

Prosecution of express companies for overcharging shippers was indicated by Commissioner Lane, at the express rate hearing, to be the intention of the interstate commerce commission. The testimony and figures thus far presented by the commission's investigators tend to indicate a belief on the part of the interstate commerce commission that the express companies should adopt a flat rate applicable to various zones to be established either voluntarily by the companies or by orders of the interstate commerce commission.

The Borah child labor bill, after it had been amended so as to prohibit the invasion of privates residences in quest of information, was passed by the United States senate, 54 to 20. The bill authorizes the creation of a bureau in the department of commerce and labor for the collection of information pertaining to the welfare of children and child life. Special authority is given to investigate questions of infant mortality, the birth rate, orphanages, juvenile courts, desertion, diseases, accidents, occupation, legislation and kindred subjects.

Abandonment of the program for two battleships this year brought out a statement from Secretary of the Navy Meyer. The action of the Democratic caucus also caused activity in the Democratic ranks in congress, with the result that another caucus to reconsider the matter will probably be called. Secretary Meyer arraigned the action of the Democratic caucus as "giving another illustration of government by snap judgment." He asserted that "the Monroe doctrine is as big as the navy and no bigger," and that the United States, guaranteeing the neutrality of the Panama canal, must be prepared to make good its pledge.

After lying dormant in larvae for 60,000,00 years, two mosquitoes were born in Washington a day or two ago. Also, it being ascertained that they were yellow fever mosquitoes just like the ones found in Central America, they were immediately executed. Under treatment the larvae promptly developed into mosquitoes.

CONDITIONS ARE IMPROVING

Report of Chief Mine Inspector Nesbitt Shows Six Fatalities During the Month of January.

The report of Chief Mine Inspector Nesbitt shows that there were six fatalities in the mines of the State during the month of January. The number is about the average, but twice as large as for December.

It can be stated, however, that conditions are gradually improving and not near so many deaths in the mines are reported now as a few years ago.

Those who were killed in the mines were Lee Johns, killed January 8 at Pratt No. 5 of the Tennesse Coal Company; Archie Avery, in Blocton mine No. 7 on January 11, Tennessee Company; Albert Halley, Pratt No. 3, January 11, Tennessee Company; Tom Berry, Northport mine, January 18, Northport Coal Company; Charles Caldwell, convict, Lucile mine, January 22, Red Feather Coal Company; John Willard, Chickasaw mine, Walker County, January 29, Gallagher and Lang, operators.

Having laid in wait for several hours with the hope of shooting the man whom he charged with unlawfully harboring his sister for immoral purposes, Alvin Hooper, aged 11 years, has confessed to the murder of Asa King, aged 35, whom he shot from ambush near Piedmont. The boy does not seem to realize the gravity of his act, although he states that he had intended to kill Buck King, brother of Asa King, as it was at the former's home that his sister was being held.

John Crosswhite, a young farmer, residing two miles north of Leighton, 28 years old, surrendered to the sheriff of Colbert County after having shot and killed Spencer Brawley, a negro of the same neighborhood. There were no witnesses to the tragedy, the dead negro and the young white man who did the killing being the only persons present.

The Hartselle Cooperage Company have been succeeded by the Hartselle Stave and Heading Company, and will double their capacity during 1912. They are now manufacturing 40,000 staves per week and employ from 40 to 50 men with a payroll of $50,000 yearly besides affording a market the year round for pine timber which grows in abundance in this county.

The Alabama coal market is strong and steady. A year ago the bottom of the market dropped out about the middle of the month, due to the weather, in part. This year the weather has been very favorable, but other causes have contributed to the stiffness of the market.

Industrial plants to be established at an early date are as follows: Boat plant, Mobile, Ala.; cotton mill, Uniontown, Ala.; furnace, $300,000, Birmingham district; by-products coke ovens, $1,000,000, Birmingham district; metal products plant, Birmingham, Ala.

The schools of Etowah County will have more money than usual this year because of the heavy payment of poll taxes. It is estimated that the receipts this year will reach $3,000, which is almost twice as much as that received last year.

Russell County commissioners are preparing for a survey of the Crawford road for grading and piking. It is understood that a working force will begin construction upon it at an early date. The road will be constructed from Girard to the Lee County line.

Fire completely destroyed the general merchandise store of W. B. Phillips on the Huntsville road near Florence. Loss, $10,000.

Mrs. J. O. Renfroe of near Phoenix City, accidentally shot and killed herself with a rifle which she was handing her husband.

The annual death rate of Florence for the past year has been compiled by the city physician and reported as 11.54 per 1,000 inhabitants.

James P. Espey, a prominent man employed by the Cahaba Coal Company at Coalmont, was killed by being caught in the large fly wheel of the air compressor.

All but two members of the present year's graduating class of Spring Hill College, near Mobile, were expelled from the famous institution for insubordination.

Chris Weuhle, aged 48 years, a former resident of Chicago, committed suicide at Foley, in Baldwin county, by hanging himself from a rafter of his barn with a half-inch rope.

Gov. O'Neal appointed John Lewis of Guntersville jury commissioner of Marshall County. Dr. J. L. Jordan and S. T. Smith were appointed by the governor pension examiners of Marshall County.

Announcement was made that a company which proposes to develop water powers of three Alabama rivers has placed $1,000,000 of its stock in London, England, and will expend $20,000,000 or more in the development that it contemplates.

J. W. Elliott, aged 39 years, a coal miner, was arrested at Yolande mines in Tuscaloosa County and brought to the county jail in Birmingham and locked up on a charge of murder, the allegation being that he shot and killed Lawrence B. Evans October 3, 1911, at Lewisburg, in Beat 22.

The Birmingham and Chattanooga Railway, to run from Birmingham through Jefferson, St. Clair, Calhoun, Etowah, Marshall, Jackson, De Kalb and Dade County, Ga., and Chattanooga, Tenn., was incorporated by J. M. Spradlin and W. W. Shortridge with the secretary of state.

That the Southern Railway, through its president, W. W. Finley, would establish agricultural scholarships in the state agricultural colleges of Alabama for deserving boys living along the lines of that company, the Mobile and Ohio and the Alabama Great Southern was announced in Birmingham by the executive department.

W. W. Shotridge, secretary of the Marshall County Good Roads Association, reports that the petitions asking the county commissioners to call a bond election for $135,000 are being signed freely and will easily have enough names on them to justify the commissioners in calling the election. The petitions will be presented on February 12.

Attorney General Robert C. Brickell is in Jasper taking evidence in the case of the Northern Alabama Railway Company vs. the State Railroad Commission. The case grew out of proceedings filed by the company to enjoin the State Railroad Commission from compelling them to erect a union depot at Jasper, an order to this effect having been issued by the commission several months ago.

Sam Stoudenmire, a negro, escaped hanging through the action of Gov. Emmet O'Neal in commuting his sentence to life imprisonment. Stoudenmire was convicted in Autauga County for the murder of another negro, the trouble arising over a woman. The convicted man was to have been hanged at Centerville, where he is imprisoned. The commutation comes after several reprieves had been granted.

According to a decision handed down by Judge M. M. Screws in the inferior court of Montgomery, section 33½ of the new State revenue code is valid and the exemption of Confederate veterans is permissible under the Alabama constitution. The opinion brings to a close in this particular court the test case fought several days ago when C. L. McLendon, an attorney, was fried for not paying the $5 license tax which the section of the revenue law puts upon all professional men, such as lawyers, doctors, electrical engineers, dentists and all specialists in any particular line. An appeal will be taken to the Supreme Court for a final ruling on the validity of the section.

A letter, in which it is declared that more deaths from causes unknown occur in Birmingham than anywhere else in the United States, has been received by Dr. Nelson, of that city, from Prosser L. Wilbur, chief statistician of the government with offices at Washington. Mr. Wilbur comments at length upon the meetings stating as to private physicians. STEEL MAINTAINS ITS RECENT GAINS

Retail Business Influenced by Weather Conditions.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Money market conditions gave the key to the whole business situation. The great accumulation of surplus funds in New York have made it about the cheapest money market in the world, and has enabled it to loan at least $150,000,000 abroad, making this country for the time being a powerful creditor nation. This is a condition of immense strength. In a situation which would permit the development to the fullest extent of this country's industrial and commercial possibilities all this credit placed abroad would be needed at home, and the money market, while it displays a notable potential strength, represents a degree of repression in business here. The iron and steel trade, while still operating somewhat below full capacity, fairly maintains its recent gains.

The strike at Lawrence causes some trade repression in textiles, but wool is fairly active. The Philadelphia hosiery and underwear dealers report an improved demand, and Baltimore clothing trade experiences a pronounced gain in orders from the South. Several of the large Western trade centers report an encouraging outlook for the spring trade. Copper is weaker. Retail business is now influenced largely by weather conditions, which in most sections have not been favorable to active distribution.

Bookings in iron and steel during January were nearly equal to shipments. Active capacity has been still further added to, and it is estimated that blast furnaces of the leading producers are now an 80 per cent. rate. Orders in the hands of the larger concerns at Pittsburg insure activity for fully three months, and considerable business is held in abeyance, especially in railroad material. Prices show very little change, although slight irregularity has appeared.

In dry goods business is of fair proportions, although not reaching the dimensions anticipated a week ago. Except with China export trade in prints and brown and bleached cloths continues fair. Cotton yarns are firmer and silks are being sold in moderate quantities.

New England shoe factories are quite well supplied with orders and many of them have contracts sufficient to last for several weeks.

Business shows some improvement, although buyers are still operating close to present needs. Leather conditions are not entirely satisfactory, and, despite the activity in hides, business in nearly all varieties of finished leather is quiet.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

Trade and industry are not moving in consonance with highly keyed anticipations, but in general business tends to expand, following a relatively quiet period in January. Visiting buyers are not making heavy purchases, being content to buy frequently and in small lots to cover only actual requirements and not to anticipate them in a speculative sense.

Staples are in most require and the leading dry goods markets display a comparatively good uplift with prices on some makes of goods tending to harden. Road salesmen were achieving irregular success results throughout cotton growing sections of the South and some parts of the Southwest offsetting comparatively good developments elsewhere.

No market spurt is expected until weather conditions become more settled, but consumptive demands are sufficiently heavy to prevent stocks from accumulating and in lines that are relatively depressed, lumber manufacturing for instance, outputs have been curtailed to such an extent that stocks can not accumulate.

Shoe buyers are cautious, largely because prices are expected to go higher; supplies of leather are light, production being below normal; cotton goods are firm, worsted yarns are firmer, silks are steadier and the strike situation in New England has improved. New business in finished steel is somewhat short, but mill operations are increasing, and in the South the pig iron situation has improved. Coal is in good request, an actual shortage in supplies being noted in Alabama.

Business failures in the United States for the week ended February 2, 312, against 436 last, 290 in the like week of 1911, 232 in 1910, 286 in 1909 and 372 in 1908.

Business failures in Canada for the week number 31, which compares with 37 for last week and 37 for the same week in 1911.

Corn exports for the week are 1,964,060 bushels, against 1,170,752 last week and 3,368,010 in 1911. For the 31 weeks ending February 1 corn exports are 80,995,324 bushels, against 22,538,153 last year.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending February 1 aggregated 3,167,489 bushels, against 3,043,496 last week and 2,328,476 this week last year. For the 31 weeks ending February 2 exports are 99,685,067 bushels, against 73,169,96[illegible] in the like period last year.

Trenton, N. J.—Charles D. Clayton who shot and killed Charles Lippincott, a policeman of Asbury Park, was found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to life in the state prison.

STEEPLEJACK CLIMBS HIGH

Goes to the Top of Tall Flagstaff in Zero Weather and Straightens Rod Supporting Ball.

Chicago.—Edmond Von Kaenel, steeplejack, the other afternoon climbed the flagstaff on the city hall with the aid of a double-looped five-eighths inch rope, straightened the rod which supports the twenty-two inch ball and descended, sixty-five feet to the roof, in safety. "It's ten degrees colder on top of that flagstaff than down here," said Von Kaenel as he coiled up his ropes. That meant that the temperature on the city hall top was four degrees below zero. The halyards of the flag pole had become bent so that the brass ball on top leaned far to one side. Von Kaenel has been married two years. His wife is with him. He says that she has become used to his risking his life and does not mind his tasks any longer. It is impossible for the steeplejack to get insurance, but he was insured in one company in his boyhood, and the policy holds good. If all the buildings and flagstaffs he has climbed were to be put together they would reach seventy miles in the air. Von Kaenel ran away to sea at fifteen and has been climbing masts and poles ever since. "I can go all over the Singer building in New York with a trunkful of ropes, 2,800 feet," he declared, "and never employ a scaffold." The only fall that Von Kaenel has ever had was last summer, when, overheated, he fell from the roof of the Euclid Avenue Baptist church in Cleveland, John D. Rockefeller's church.

PRINCESS MAY MARRY SOON

Emperor's Daughter Reported Engaged to Grand Duke Albert Frederick of Mecklenburg-Strelitz.

Berlin.—The betrothal of Princess Victoria Luise, only daughter of Emperor William, to Grand Duke Adolph Frederick of Mecklenburg-Strelitz will soon be announced, according to a report published here. The marshal of the imperial court denied a similar report published last June.

The kaiser has always said his daughter should marry the man of her choice.

The grand duke is one of the best known of the younger German explorers. He distinguished himself in 1903 by helping rescue several of a party he had led to the center of Brunse in German East Africa. All were wounded with lava, and some became unconscious.

Plans "Maze Pole" Building.

New York.—Samuel Green has filed plans for the erection of the "Maze Pole" building, which is to cost $150,000. It will be eighteen stories high, on a tiny lot which gave it its name. The Wendels, who pay $2,250,000 for four Fifth avenue and Tuxedo street for a playground, put the plot on sale. The new building is to be occupied

SENATOR ALDRICH'S PET

—De Mar in the Philadelphia Record.

AT THE DANGER POINT

NATION DRIFTING AWAY FROM PRINCIPLES OF FOUNDERS.

Republican Party, Swollen With Too-Long-Continued Power, Seems About to Inaugurate an Era of Caesarism.

It is to be noted that not one of the president's objections to Postmaster General Hitchcock's plan to add the telegraphs to the postal service is based on principle.

To this colossal scheme of centralization he opposes only the theory that the time is not well chosen. In his view this mighty stride toward empire is not wrong and dangerous. It is merely inexpedient and inopportune.

While he does not touch upon the point, the president's friends advance the further idea that Mr. Hitchcock's enterprise is personally hostile to him and favorable to the candidacy of Mr. Roosevelt.

The same conditions exist in the Republican party relative to a third term. It is always a Republican who seeks to break down the unwritten law on that subject. No Republican of importance opposes the third term as a matter of principle. It is resisted not because it is wrong and dangerous, but because of its effects upon somebody's personal ambitions and interests.

Mr. Taft's memorandum on the subject of government telegraphs clearly foreshadows the time when the project will be perfectly feasible and desirable.

Those Republicans who now object to a third term because it will interfere with their plans plainly enough establish the inference that some day the first step toward a presidency for life may safely be taken.

Some day, then, we shall have a third term; some day a steward of the public welfare; some day the government ownership of telegraphs, railroads and all the means of production; some day a court of big business that shall rule the land, and some day a near monarch and a near aristocracy to serve as figureheads.

That is to say, all these things will appear some day unless the only political party in America that is pledged to democratic justice and equality is commissioned by the people to restore and to maintain a Republican form of government at Washington.

No matter how sure a nation may be of its liberties, it cannot forever contemplate Caesarism, empire, centralization, privilege and plunder without loss of character, loss of independence and loss of courage.

When the consolidation of political power into the hands of the few begins and when trusted leaders familiarize millions with the idea that revolution is tolerable if it can be deferred for a season the day may be nearer at hand than most people suppose.

If the political party which is patiently and approvingly considering all these high designs of the ambitious and the spectacular is ever to be put out of power and taught some plain Americanism the work must be done this year.

We have had warnings enough of the mischief that it expects to do SOME DAY.—St. Louis Republic.

Congress may be asked to suspend the potato tariff for six months because of an apparent shortage. Quite so. Because of the coal famine after the strike, congress temporarily removed the coal tariff—on a quality mined only in the United States.

$10,000 Was "In Days Roosevelt."

And now we have the testimony of Mr. Harriman's biographer that the $250,000 raised by Mr. Harriman was not raised "in the name of Roosevelt" and that Roosevelt has insisted, just to put it mildly, that the party committees should be raised by the same committees as were Republican.

HIGH-TARIFF FALLACY PROVED

Fundamental Error in the Idea That All Country's Industries Should Be Protected.

"The protective tariff," says an authority on the subject, "was adopted in the single purpose, and has been maintained in no other legitimate purpose than to promote manufacturing in a country that was given chiefly to agriculture."

Accepting that statement of the case as sound and correct, what perversions have marked the policy of the advocates of such protective tariff in these latter days!

Now, the claim of the high-tariffites is that all industries should be protected.

In the old "Rollo books," the futility, the absolute nonsense, of endeavoring to force a boat to move in the water by blowing upon the sail with bellows placed in the stern was shown. And the experiment of the man who would try to lift himself by his bootstraps is among the traditional failures.

This idea of protecting all industries is the idea of protecting one industry and its workers against another and its workers.

It is a policy in accord with the folly of trying to make the boat move by wind from the bellows behind the sail. It is a nation-wide illustration of the results of the bootstrap experiment.

Democrats In Harmony.

The talk of Democratic quarrels is dying out. Democratic quarrels there yet may be, and while the enemy wrangles with itself, the Republicans may allure the bird of victory to perch upon their banners. But if Republican leadership, as is supposed, is largely represented by the politicians and office holders who winter at Washington, there is already a serious realization among the head men of the party that faith in success this year must be pinned to other prospects. As has been sometimes pointed out during the last twelve months, the numerous Republican prophesies of Democratic dissensions operated to Democratic benefit. General expectation of factional fighting was disappointed. The status of harmony was thus emphasized to the country. It was so with the Democratic conduct of affairs in the national house during the extra session.

Statesmanship's Turn Now.

The country realizes more and more that what it wants is a constructive man, and Roosevelt, for his high qualities, is not primarily constructive. He is a talker, a great, a vivid, an entertaining talker, phrase maker, lecturer, preacher, exhorter to righteousness. He has his uses; but those special things the country needs and desires the next four years are the things that Roosevelt has no great gift for.

Roosevelt is not deficient on the moral side. His deficiency, which the country is measuring, is an intellectual, a constructive, a practical deficiency. The country wants four years of applied progression, not four more years of ardent, well-meant and unfruitful agitation. The work of the agitator is done. The day of the constructive statesman is at its noon.—Minneapolis Journal.

Ship Subsidy Cure Evil.

Surely, piracy on the high seas is hero, play, as compared with the suffering that this nation has undergone the last forty years cursed by our protective tariff for infant industry, and the most detestable revolts are the making of 10,000 millionaires at the expense of 10,000,000 wage workers.

Lyn Turned to High Tariff.

The Lynn (Massachusetts) permits American machine manufacturers to import machinery which they claim is necessary to enable them to compete with foreign manufacturers, but refuses the same privilege to shoe manufacturers. Lynn has an immense shoe industry, and is made up largely of shoe workers. Lynn turned to high tariff

HELP CAME JUST IN TIME

Lady in Pierce Relates An Experience of Interest to all Girls and Women.

Pierce, Neb.—Mrs. Dollie Schilowsky, of this place, says: "Cardui did me so much good! I had dreadful backache and dizziness, and suffered from pains in my eyes and in the back of my head, as well as low down in my body.

Sometimes, it seemed like I would die with the pain. I was compelled to see the doctor, but he did not help me.

At last, I began to take Cardui, and three bottles gave me great relief. My health is getting better every day.

I can recommend Cardui to suffering women, for it helped me wonderfully. It is a wonderful medicine."

Other women, who suffer as Mrs. Schilowsky did should learn from her what to do, to be relieved. Take Cardui.

For women's pains, for female troubles, for nervousness, for weakness, it is the best remedy you can use, the most reliable you can obtain.

For over 50 years, Cardui has been helping weak and miserable women back to health and happiness. These many years of success prove its merit.

Pure, strictly vegetable, perfectly harmless, Cardui is sure to help and will leave no disagreeable after-effects. Try it.

H. C. YOUNG.

If you don't like this weather go to——Key West, Florida.

All of the counties seem to be following the lead of Chilton and are forming Underwood Precinct Clubs.

McCall, of Massachusetts, in a speech in the House last week against Roosevelt, gave the figures and quoted Teddy quite extensively on the matter of a third term. It's dangerous to put a man in as Chief Excutive for three terms, and McCall did not hesitate to say so.

Shiver! shiver! shiver! if you want to, but look pleasant; just think of the backbone and spare ribs this weather is saving and the 'skeetersit it is putting out of Commission.

With more than twenty candidates out for the six offices to be filled at the coming election, it would not appear to the casual observer that democrats are scarce in Chilton or that they are the least bit afraid. Does it strike you that way friend?

Up and at 'em boys, we have them on the run.

What difference does all this Wilson-Watterson-Harvey-Tillman controversy make anyhow? Underwood is going to be nominated and elected.

Quit boys, it's useless and unseemly. Be good children and get on the band wagon while the time is ripe.

Another split in the O'Neal official family!

How sad to contemplate that a governor cannot hold his friends. Pitts of Dallas, now says he prefers straight out prohibition—the genuine kind—rather than that one firm of whiskey dealers shall control the entire output. We'uns told you so.

CONFIDENCE

We Back up Our Statements with Our Personal Reputation and Money.

We are so positive that we can relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine free of all cost if it fails.

We think that it is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with chathartic drugs. Cathartics may do much harm. They may cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels, and make constipation more chronic.

Constipation is often accompanied and, may be caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or colon. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those parts and restore them to a heathier activity.

The discovery of the active principle of our remedy involved the labor of skillful research chemists This remedy produces results such as are expected from the best of the best-known intestinal tonics, and is particularly prompt in its results.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are exceedingly pleasant to take and are ideal for childreh. They apparently act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels, having, it would seem, a neutral action on other organs or glands. They do not purge or cause inconvenience. If thay do not positively cure chronic or habitual constipation and thus relieve the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, your money will be refunded. Try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. BURNING DAYLIGHT

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and, amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco where he meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer. He makes large investments and gets into the political ring. For a rest he goes to the country.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

Daylight could not persuade himself to keep to the traveled roads that day, and another cut across country to Glen Ellen brought him upon a canyon that so blocked his way that he was glad to follow a friendly cowpath. This led him to a small frame cabin. The doors and windows were open, and a cat was nursing a litter of kittens in the doorway, but no one seemed at home. He descended the trail that evidently crossed the canyon. Part way down, he met an old man coming up through the sunset. In his hand he carried a pail of foamy milk. He wore no hat, and in his face, framed with snow-white hair and beard, was the ruddy glow and content of the passing summer day. Daylight thought that he had never seen so contented looking a being.

"How old are you, daddy?" he queried.

"Eighty-four," was the reply. "Yes, sirree, eighty-four, and spryer than most."

"You must a' taken good care of yourself," Daylight suggested.

"I don't know about that. I ain't loafed none. I walked across the plains with an ox team and fit Injuns in '51, and I was a family man with seven youngsters. I reckon I was as old then as you are now, or pretty nigh on to it."

"Don't you find it lonely here?"

The old man shifted the pail of milk and reflected.

"That all depends," he said oracularly. "I ain't never been lonely except when the old wife died. Some fellers are lonely in a crowd, and I'm one of them. That's the only time I'm lonely, is when I go to 'Frisco. But I don't go no more, thank you 'most to death. This is good enough for me. I've been right here in this valley since '54—one of the first settlers after the Spaniards."

The old man chuckled, and Daylight rode on, singularly at peace with himself and all the world. It seemed that the old contentment of trail and camp he had known on the Yukon had come back to him. He could not shake from his eyes the picture of the old pioneer coming up the trail through the sunset light. He was certainly going some for eighty-four. The thought of following his example entered Daylight's mind, but the big game of San Francisco vetoed the idea.

CHAPTER XII.

Instead of returning to the city on Monday, Daylight rented the butcher's horse for another day and crossed the head of the valley to its eastern hills. As on the previous day, just for the joy of it, he followed cattle-trails at haphazard and worked his way up toward the summits. Coming out upon a wagon road that led upward, he followed it for several miles, emerging in a small, mountain-encircled valley, where half a dozen poor ranchers farmed the wine-grapes on the steep slopes. Beyond, the road pitched upward. Dense chaparral covered the exposed hillsides, but in the creases of the canyons huge spruce trees grew, and wild oats and flowers.

Late in the afternoon he broke through, and followed a well-defined trail down a dry canyon. The dry canyon gave place to one with a slender ribbon of running water. The trail ran into a wood-road, and the wood-road emerged across a small flat upon a slightly-traveled country road. There were no farms in this immediate section, and no houses. The soil was meager, the bed-rock either close to the surface or constituting the surface itself. Manzanita and scrub-oak, however, flourished and walled the road on either side with a jungle growth. And out a runway through this growth a man suddenly scuttled in a way that reminded Daylight of a rabbit.

He was a little man, in patched overalls; bareheaded, with a cotton shirt open at the throat and down the chest. The sun was ruddy-brown in his face, and by it his sandy hair was bleached on the ends to peroxide blonde. He signed to Daylight to halt, and held up a letter.

"If you're going to town, I'd be obliged if you mail this," he said.

"I sure will." Daylight put it into his coat pocket. "Do you live hereabouts, stranger?"

But the little man did not answer. He was gazing at Daylight in a surprised and steadfast fashion.

"I know you," the little man announced. "You're Elam Harnish—Burning Daylight, the papers call you. Am I right?"

Daylight nodded.

"Well, I'm glad I wrote that letter this afternoon," the little man went on, "or else I'd have missed seeing you. I've seen your photo in the papers many a time, and I've a good memory for faces. I recognized you at once. My name's Ferguson."

"Do you live hereabouts?" Daylight repeated his query.

"Oh, yes. I've got a little shack back here in the bush a hundred yards and a pretty spring, and a few fruit trees and berry bushes. Come in and take a look. And that spring is a dandy. You never tasted water like it. Come in and try it."

Walking and leading his horse, Daylight followed the quick-stepping, eager, little man through the green tunnel and emerged abruptly upon the clearing, if clearing it might be called, where wild nature and man's earth-scratching were inextricably blended. It was a tiny nook in the hills, protected by the steep walls of a canyon mouth. Here were several large oaks, evidencing a richer soil. The erosion of ages from the hillside had slowly formed this deposit of fat earth. Under the oaks, almost buried in them, stood a rough, unplaned cabin, the wide veranda of which, with chairs and hammocks, advertised an out-of-doors bedchamber. Daylight's keen eyes took in everything. The clearing was irregular, following the patches of the best soil, and every fruit tree and berry bush, and even each vegetable plant, had the water personally conducted to it. The tiny irrigation channels were everywhere, and along some of them the water was running.

Ferguson looked eagerly into his visitor's face for signs of approbation.

"What do you think of it, eh?"

Hand-reared and manufactured every blessed foot. Daylight laughed, but the joy and indignation that shone in his eyes contented the little man.

"What do you think of it, Eh?"

"What Do You Think of It, Eh?"

"Why, it's heaven," Daylight finally said. "I never knew there was such a place in all the world. I'll bet you've got the prettiest spring in the whole valley."

"Sure thing," Ferguson agreed. "Come on and look at it. Come on and look at the spring."

"It's sure a hummer," was Daylight's verdict, after due inspection and sampling, as they turned back for the house.

The interior was a surprise. The cooking being done in the small, lean-to kitchen, the whole cabin formed a large living-room. A great table in the middle was comfortably littered with books and magazines. All the available wall space, from wall to ceiling, was occupied by filled bookshelves. It seemed to Daylight that he had never seen so many books assembled in one place. Skins of wildcat, 'coon and deer lay about on the pine-board floor.

Daylight found himself charmed and made curious by the little man. Why was he hiding away here in the chaparral, he and his books? So it was, when between them they had washed and wiped the dishes and put them away, and had settled down to a comfortable smoke, that Daylight put his question.

"Look here, Ferguson. Every since we got together, I've been casting about to find out what's wrong with you, to locate a screw loose somewhere, but I'll be danged if I've succeeded. What are you doing here, anyway?"

Ferguson frankly showed his pleasure at the questions.

"First of all," he began, "the doctors wound up by losing all hope for me. Gave me a few months at best, and that, after a course in sanitariums and a trip to Europe and another to Hawaii. They tried electricity and forced feeding and fasting. I was a graduate of about everything in the curriculum. They kept me poor with their bills, while I went from bad to worse. The trouble with me was twofold; first I was a born weakling; and next, I was living unnaturally—too much work, and responsibility and strain. I was managing editor of the Times-Tribune in San Francisco, and I wasn't strong enough for the strain. Of course my body went back on me; and my mind, too, for that matter. It had to be bolstered up with whisky, which wasn't good for it any more than was the living in clubs and hotels good for my stomach and the rest of me. So I quit, quit everything, absolutely, and came to live in the Valley of the Moon—that's the Indian name, you know, for Sonoma Valley. I lived in the lean-to the first year; then I built the cabin and sent for my books. I never knew what happiness was before, nor health. Look at me now and dare to tell me that I look forty-seven."

"I wouldn't give a day over forty," Daylight confessed.

"Yet the day I came here I looked nearer sixty and that was fifteen years ago."

"It's sure a hummer," was Daylight's verdict, after due inspection and sampling, as they turned back for the house.

whom the lust for power had long since died.

It was not until ten o'clock that Daylight parted from Ferguson. As he rode along through the starlight, the idea came to him of buying the ranch on the other side of the valley. There was no thought in his mind of ever intending to live on it. His game was in San Francisco. But he liked the ranch, and as soon as he got back to the office he would open up negotiations with Hillard.

The time passed, and he played on at the game. San Francisco's attitude toward Daylight had undergone a change. While he, with his slashing buccaneer methods, was a distinct menace to the more orthodox financial gamblers, he was nevertheless so grave a menace that they were glad enough to let him alone. He had already taught them the excellence of letting a sleeping dog lie.

Dede Mason was still in the office. He had made no more overtures, discussed no more books. He had no active interest in her, and she was to him a pleasant memory of what had never happened, a joy, which, by his essential nature, he was barred from ever knowing. Yet, while his interest had gone to sleep and his energy was consumed in the endless battles he waged, he knew every trick of the light on her hair, every quick definite mannerism of movement, every line of her figure as expounded by her tailor-made gowns. Several times, six months or so apart, he had increased her salary, until now she was receiving ninety dollars a month. Beyond this he dared not go, though he got around it by making the work easier. This he had accomplished after her return from a vacation, by retaining her substitute as an assistant. Also, he had changed his office suite, so that now the two girls had a room by themselves. The more he saw of her, and the more he thought he knew of her, the more unapproachable did she seem to him. But since he had no intention of approaching her, this was anything but an unsatisfactory fact. He was glad he had her in his office, and hoped she'd stay, and that was about all.

Daylight did not improve with the passing years. The life was not good for him. He was growing stout and soft, and there was unwonted flabbiness in his muscles. The more he drank cocktails, the more he was compelled to drink in order to get the desired result, the inhibitions that eased him down from the concert pitch of his operations. And with this went wine, too, at meals, and the long drinks after dinner of Scotch and soda at the Riverside. Then, too, his body suffered from lack of exercise; and, from lack of decent human associations, his moral fibers were weakening. Never a man to hide anything, some of his escapades became public, such as speeding, and of joy-rides in his big red motor car down to San Jose with companions distinctly sporty—incidents that were narrated as good fun and comically in the newspapers.

Destruction of Rats.

An East Africa publication contains a description of a method of destroying rats, followed in Java, in which carbon bisulphate is employed. In carrying out the method a small quantity, usually about half a teaspoonful of the carbon bisulphide is poured into the rat hole and after waiting a few moments to let the liquid evaporate the mixture of air and vapor is lighted; a small explosion resulting and firing the hole with subsequent gas, killing the rats instantly. Such a process, practiced openly might be objectionable under some circumstances but change of danger from fire resulting from the explosion, and a fine for its careless application [illegible]

OF THE AGE OF CHIVALRY

Fat Victim of Cupid Bashfully Acknowledges Real Reason for His Act of Heroism.

The smallest boy had broken throught the ice and the fat boy was crawling to his rescue.

"Come back, Fatty!" the other boys shrieked. "You'll bust it all in, an' den youse'll both be drowned!"

But the fat boy, flat on his stomach and spread out to his widest extent, ignored these warning cries and steadily crept toward the black hole and Tommy's clinging fingers.

Once the ice made a cracking sound and the watchers yelled with dismay. But the fat boy did not halt. Nearer and nearer he came, and finally his outstretched hands caught those clinging fingers and drew the small boy, little by little, onto the firmer ice and so to safety.

"What did youse do it fer, Fatty?" one of the boys tearfully remonstrated.

"Aw," replied the hero, "I knew what I lost in weight I made up in wideness, see?"

Then his face softened.

"Besides," he bashfully said, "I'm sweet on Tommy's sister!"

Ready for Anything.

A popular neighbor had just passed to the great beyond in a rural Pennsylvania community and the undertaker stood at the door of the home, when he heard the following remarks by the minister:

"Mine bredren und sisters, Joe Thomas he iss dead. Maybee Joe Thomas he go to heaven up I no know, und maybe Joe Thomas he go to hell down I no know, but, mine bredren und sisters, we must be brebared to meet him."

THE CARELESS GROCER

Blundered, and Great Good Came of It.

A careless grocer left the wrong package at a Michigan home one day and thereby brought a great blessing to the household.

"Two years ago I was a sufferer from stomach troubles, so acute that the effort to digest ordinary food gave me great pain, and brought on a condition of such extreme nervousness that I could not be left alone. I thought I should certainly become insane. I was so reduced in flesh that I was little better than a living skeleton. The doctors failed to give me relief and I despaired of recovery.

"One day our groceryman left a package of Grape-Nuts food by mistake, so I tried some for dinner. I was surprised to find that it satisfied my appetite and gave me no distress whatever. The next meal I ate of it again, and to be brief, I have lived for the past year almost exclusively on Grape-Nuts. It has proved to be a most healthful and appetizing food, perfectly adapted to the requirements of my system.

"Grape-Nuts is not only easily digested and assimilated, but I find that since I have been using it I am able to eat anything else my appetite fancies, without trouble from indigestion. The stomach troubles and nervousness have left me, I have regained my plumpness and my views of life are no longer despondent and gloomy.

"Other members of my family, especially my husband, (whose old enemy, the 'heart-burn,' has been vanquished), have also derived great benefit from the use of Grape-Nuts food and we think an morning meal complete without it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

PECULIAR AFTER EFFECTS OF GRIP THIS YEAR.

Leaves Kidneys in Weakened Condition

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of grip which has visited so many homes. The symptoms of grip this year are very distressing and leave the system in a run down condition, particularly the kidneys which seem to suffer most, as every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to more serious sickness, such as dreaded Bright's Disease. Local druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root is a great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, and, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, free by mail, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it. Regular size bottles 50 cts. and $1.00. For sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.

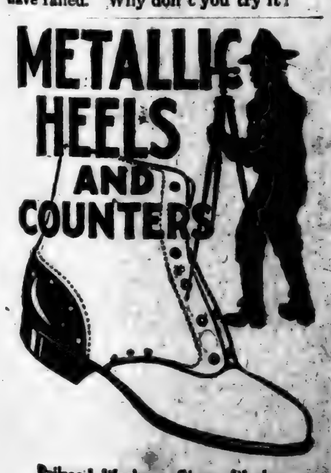
SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY



How Mrs. Bethune was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own housework, work in the garden and entertain company and enjoy them, and can walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the week. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl, and tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

HOLDING TROOPS READY FOR DUTY

GENERAL WOOD ISSUES ORDERS TO COMMANDERS OF ARMY POSTS.

PROTECTING THE AMERICANS

Mexico Proposes to Employ Same Drastic Measures of Diaz in Restoring Peace.

Washington.—To meet any emergency that might arise in connection with the unsettled conditions in Northern Mexico, General Leonard A. Wood, chief of staff of the United States army, issued orders to commanders of several army posts throughout the country to hold their troops in readiness for duty along the border.

General Duncan, in command of the department of Texas, was instructed "to use his own judgment" in moving the troops under him in enforcing neutrality laws or strengthening the various garrisons along the international line. General Wood was at the war department most of the day arranging for a possible troop movement of extensive proportions such as took place last spring when the Madero revolution occurred in Mexico.

It is not believed, however, from advices received from Mexico that the situation there is in any way as serious as during the last outbreak, but to protect American interests along the boundary and enforce strict neutrality the government has adopted the usual precautions.

To Employ Drastic Methods.

Mexico City.—Without blare of trumpet and without official proclamation, the federal government proposes to employ the drastic methods of Diaz in restoring peace. Immediate application of this new policy will be the nation's only apprisal of it. This is the substance of a statement made by a cabinet minister.

TEN MEN BELIEVED TO HAVE PERISHED

Oystermen Swept Into Icy Waters During Gale.

Tilghmans, Md.—Ten oyster men are believed to have been drowned in the Choptank river when their boats were carried into the open waters in the ice jam that began to move with the gale that swept over Tilghmans Island.

The ice boat Annapolis up to a late hour had found no trace of the bats or men. The missing boats are:

Launch and dredging boat of W. S. Covington, wharf agent at Tilghmans Island. On the launch and dredge were four men.

Launch and dredge of the Tilghmans Packing Company and her crew of three men.

Launch of Capt. A. P. Mister with three men aboard.

Five other launches caught in the swirling ice and water managed to fight their way through the buffeting cakes and made clear water.

DEATH STALKS IN PATH OF NIAGARA

Three Meet Death in Sea of Ice—Four Reach Shore.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—The great ice bridge that has choked the river channel between the cataract and the upper steel arch bridge below the falls for the last three weeks, broke from its shoring and went down the river taking with it to their death a man and woman believed to be Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Stanton of Toronto, Canada, and Burrell Heacock, 17 years old, of Cleveland, Ohio. Four other persons were on the ice at the time, but managed to get ashore in safety.

Charles Overbeck Dead.

Philadelphia.—Charles C. Overbeck, one of the founders of the republican party in Philadelphia and a survivor of the committee which campaigned for the election of John C. Fremont in 1856, died at his home here. He was 90 years old.

Capt. J. F. Johnston Dead.

Asheville, N. C.—Capt. James F. Johnston, aged 84 years, brother of United States Senator Johnston of Alabama, died here of paralysis. He formerly lived at Birmingham, Ala.

Philadelphia Has a Conflagration.

Philadelphia.—Fires early destroyed three large factory buildings in the block bounded by Wood, Vine, Eighth and Franklin streets, causing a loss of more than a million dollars.

Miss Harrison Married.

Washington.—Miss Marthena Harrison, granddaughter of William Henry Harrison, was married to Harry A. Williams, Jr., of Norfolk. Miss Harrison wore her mother's wedding gown trimmed with rose old lace left her by her grandmother, Mrs. Benjamin Harrison. Her only ornament was a diamond pendant from one of Mrs. Harrison's earrings. Jacqueline M. Miss Harrison. The other earring, to the bridegroom, is to Miss Mary Lodge McKee of New York, Miss Harrison's other granddaughter.

JUST A LITTLE TOO HASTY

Mr. Newlywed Resented What He Considered Impertinence, but the Joke Was on Him.

They were on their wedding tour, and imagined that every civility given them related to their new condition of servitude.

Having stopped at a way station, the bridegroom was approached by the station agent, who asked:

"Are you going to take the next train?"

"It's none of your business," retorted the bridegroom, indignantly, as he guided the bride up the platform, where they condoled with each other over the impertinence of some of the natives.

Onward came the train, its vapor curling from afar. It was the last to their destination that day—an express. Nearer and nearer it came at full speed; then in a moment it whizzed past and was gone.

"Why in thunder didn't that train stop!" yelled the bridegroom.

"Cos you said 'twarn't none of my bizness. I has to signal if that train's to stop."

WOMEN AND HEALTH.

Women are beginning to realize more fully that good health is not to be found in the use of cosmetics and face powders. The appearance of health may follow facial treatment, but health itself lies much deeper than the surface.

Most important to the health of every woman is regularity of the bowels and digestive organs. The weary eyes, bad breath, frequent headaches, pimples and general air of lassitude, is in most every case due to constipation or indigestion, or both. There are various remedies prescribed for this condition, but the easiest, most pleasant and certainly effective, is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known to druggists as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This simple remedy is far preferable to harsh salts and cathartics and violent purgative waters that disturb the whole system without affording more than temporary relief.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a tonic laxative, mild in its action, pleasant to the taste and positive in its effect, strengthening the muscles of stomach and bowels so that after a short time these organs regain the power to perform their natural functions without assistance.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists everywhere in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried it, write for a sample to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.; he will gladly send a trial bottle without any expense to you whatever.

Both Wrong.

A ludicrous story is told of an Edinburgh, bailies, whose studies in natural history seems to have been limited. The following case came before him one day:

A man who kept a ferret having to go into the country, left the cage with the ferret in charge of a neighbor till he should return. The neighbor incautiously opened the cage door, and the ferret escaped. The owner was very angry, and brought a claim against him for damages.

The following was the decision of the learned bailie: "Nae doot," he said to the neighbor; "nae doot ye was wrang to open the cage door; but," he added, turning to the owner, "ye was wrang, too. What for did ye no clip the brute's wings?"

HOUSEWORK IS A HEAVY BURDEN

When Kidney Troubles Keep You in Misery Day and Night

The woman who "keeps house" has enough to do when she is in good, sound health, but if she is weak, tired all the time, and suffering from morn to night with an aching back, house-work becomes a heavy burden.

Many women who were afflicted in this way say that Doan's Kidney Pills have made life easier for them.

Women are subject to kidney disease. The clothing they wear, the work they do, the worry and strain of bearing and rearing children, the lack of proper exercise; all tend to it.

Backache, bearing-down pains, headache, dizzy spells, faintness, fits of "blues," and other troubles often thought to be peculiar to the sex, are found frequently in kidney disease. When any one of these ills appears, together with a discolored condition of the kidney secretions, with passages too frequent, scanty or burning, just make up your mind that your kidneys are weak, and be quick to help them.

Doan's Kidney Pills have helped a great many weak women through the trying times when kidney disease means so much added misery. They do not disturb the stomach or bowels and contain no poisonous, dangerous nor habit-forming drugs. Doan's are harmless for children too.

"I just can't get up!"

The following case is typical of the cures effected by Doan's Kidney Pills. Grateful testimony is the best evidence.

SCREAMED WITH PAIN.

A Connecticut Woman's Awful Suffering.

Mrs. Selina Jones, 200 Main St., Ansonia, Conn., says: "I began to have kidney trouble about 1898. An inflammation of the bladder set in. I had cutting, dragging backaches; pain through the loins and sides and soon got into a state of weakness, languor and general depression. My limbs were so sore and tender I could hardly bear the pressure of the bed clothing. I bloated badly and my ankles swelled. I noticed a continual ringing in my ears and specks flitted before my eyes. The kidney secretions were unnatural and very irregular. At times I fairly screamed with pain. I became so weak and sick, that I was put to bed and stayed there three months under doctor's treatments. I grew worse constantly, and my family was entirely discouraged. Beginning with Doan's Kidney Pills, I was surprised at their effect. In less than a week, kidney weakness and inflammation of the bladder disappeared. In three weeks I was up and soon resumed my housework. I think the use of Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life."

No Waves.

A young mother who still considers Marcel waves as the most fashionable way of dressing the hair was at work on the job.

The precocious child was crouching on its father's lap, the baby fingers now and then sliding over the smooth and glossy pate which is father's.

"No waves for you, father," remarked the Little One. "You're all beach."

PIMPLES COVERED HIS BACK

"My troubles began along in the summer in the hottest weather and took the form of small eruptions and itching and a kind of smarting pain. It took me mostly all over my back and kept getting worse until finally my back was covered with a mass of pimples which would burn and itch at night so that I could hardly stand it. This condition kept getting worse and worse until my back was a solid mass of big sores which would break open and run. My underclothing would be a clot of blood.

"I tried various remedies and salves for nearly three years and I was not getting any benefit. It seemed I was in eternal misery and could not sleep on my back or lean on a chair. I was finally given a set of the Cuticura Remedies and inside of two weeks I could see and feel a great relief. I kept on using Cuticura Soap, Ointment and also the Resolvent, and in about three or four months' time my back was nearly cured and I felt like a new being. Now I am in good health and no sign of any skin diseases and I am fully satisfied that Cuticura Remedies are the best ever made for skin diseases. I would not be without them." (Signed) W. A. Armstrong, Corbin, Kan., May 26, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

We Guarantee to Relieve Dyspepsia. If We Fail the Medicine Costs Nothing.

To unquestionably prove to the people that indigestion and dyspepsia can be permanently relieved and that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will bring about this result, we will furnish the medicine absolutely free if it fails to give satisfaction to any one using it.

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the high degree of scientific skill used in devising their formula as well as to the care exercised in their manufacture, whereby the well-known properties of Bismuth Subnitrate and Pepsin have been combined with Carminatives and other agents.

Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin are constantly employed and recognized by the entire medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The Pepsin used in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is carefully prepared so as to develop its greatest efficiency. Pepsin supplies to the digestive apparatus one of the most important elements of the digestive fluid. Without it the digestion and assimilation of food are impossible.

The Carminatives possess properties which aid in relieving the disturbances and pain caused by undigested food. This combination of these ingredients make a remedy invaluable for the complete relief of indigestion and dyspepsia.

We are so certain of this that we urge you to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets on our own personal guarantee. Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store—The Rexall Store. Upchurch Drug Co.

ATTENTION BAPTIST MINISTERS

On the 21st day of Feb. 1912, at the Baptist church in Clanton, there is to be a meeting of the Baptist ministers of Chilton county and each minister who reads this is urgently requested to be present.

The purpose of the meeting is to know each other better, to talk over matters of especial interest to the cause of Christ and if possible to formulate plans by which we can better do the work of the Lord. Please do not treat this matter lightly as very much depends upon it.

Fraternally yours,

DR. SIMMONS
Squaw Vine Wine
A Palatable Medicine especially prepared to relieve and cure the diseases which affect women

This excellent medicine is not only successful in conquering the painful and prostrating diseases that attack the female generative system but it is exceptionally pleasant to take. The usual rule that the nastier the medicine the more effective it is, is reversed in the case of Squaw Vine Wine. It is one of the pleasantest of medicines. The fresh juice of a well ripened sweet orange is not more agreeable. It is indeed a happy combination of sweet herbs compounded with just enough spirits to keep it fresh and active in its medicinal effect. Poor, tired mothers, worn out with the cares of a family and household, and suffering from those distressing aches, bearing down pains and nervousness which women only know, revive wonderfully under its strengthening and exhilirating influence. It eases pain, strengthens weakened parts, corrects irregularities, builds up a strong, vigorous body, restores brightness to the eye and color to the cheeks.

CLANTON PRESS

PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF CHILTON COUNTY AND HER PEOPLE

VOL 2. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1912 NO. 48

MR. HARMON L. DAVIS

ANNOUNCES FOR TAX ASSESSOR.

Among the list of announcements in this week's Press will be found that of Mr. Harmon L. Davis, who seeks the nomination as Tax Assessor.

Mr. Davis is a life-long democrat, never having voted any other ticket since his majority. He is forty-six years of age and more than twenty-five of these years has been spent in Chilton county as a teacher. Perhaps he is the oldest teacher in the county in term of active service. Mr. Davis is in every way qualified to fill the arduous duties of the Assessor's office and can be relied upon, if nominated, to give the people of the county efficient and conscientious service.

His wide acquaintance throughout the county will make him a formidable candidate, and though he will be unable to make an active campaign because of his school duties, still he is going to make the other candidates for the office which he seeks sit up and take notice. Before the first day of April arrives those opposing him will know that he is in the race.

KILLED BY FREIGHT TRAIN

DURWOOD WELLS OF JEMISON. BODY BADLY MANGLED.

News was received here Sunday morning of the death of Mr. Durwood Wells, of Jemison, as the result of having fallen between the cars of a moving freight train at that place. Just how the accident occurred no one seems to know, but from the best information obtainable it appears that the young man had gotten on one of the freight cars and because of a sudden jerk was thrown between two of the moving cars. He caught the axle and swung on to it as best he could trying to save his feet and legs from going under the wheels, but that proved an impossible task. One leg was cut off just above and the other just below the knee.

The young man suffered intense agony from the accident and lingered a few short hours before death relieved him of his suffering.

Mr. Wells was a young man of perhaps fourteen years, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wells, to whom the entire community extend sympathy in this hour of bereavement.

A BAD NEGRO BITES THE DUST

IN SELF DEFENCE SHERIFF JONES SHOOTS EMMETT WATERS

Sheriff Bowen L. Jones went to Maplesville last Friday to return with his wife who had been visiting relatives in that section.

While there he heard of a negro named Emmett Waters, who had been boot-legging whiskey in the vicinity of Maplesville. It seems that Emmett and his wife had parted and that the woman had "taken up" with another man.

While Emmett was walking about plying his trade he encountered his wife's paramour and proceeded to beat him up with a pistol; the negro ran and Emmett shot at him several times, two of the bullets entering the body. With two deputies, Sheriff Jones started in pursuit of Waters and encountered him near the corner of his home bokding a pistol in his hand.

When accosted he asked who it was that wanted him and when informed that it was the Sheriff he opened fire on the posse, one ball striking Mr. Duke's hat and knocking it from his head. Immediately the Sheriff opened fire. the first oall going wild; the second shot staggered the negro but he continued to fire; the third shot laid him low, but even after having fallen to the ground he tried to raise himself and fire again. One bullet entered the breast near the heart and so unnerved the negro that his aim was poor, otherwise the Sheriff or one of his deputies might now be numbered among the dead. The negro stretched for a moment or two then dropped over dead.

His deeds had brought him to a horrible and untimely end.

Sheriff Jones is receiving the congratulations of his friends upon his escape as well as upon the trueness of his aim.

SINGING AT CLANTON.

Prof. Eagle Gives Musical Recital.

The singing at Clanton last Sunday was largely attended by people from various parts of the county and seemed to be greatly enjoyed by all present.

Notwithstanding the fact that an organ had not been placed in the Court House, which made the services begin a little late, the day was thoroughly enjoyed. Owing to unfavorable weather on Saturday, it was thought best by those having the entertainment in charge not to undertake to place an organ in the Court House. Judge Reynolds gave Prof. Eagle and his class a hearty welcome to the M. E. church; after a song, prayer was offered by Bro. Boulden and the audience was entertained by Prof. James Franklin and others until adjournment at noon for dinner and refreshments.

After dinner, owing to a previous appointment for other services at the church, Prof. Eagle was heartily welcomed back to the Court House, where the people were entertained by as fine singing as possibly could have been had. We hope it will please Prof. Eagle to visit us again. We extend to Prof. Eagle and his class our sincere thanks for their fine singing and we thank the audience for their earnest attention.

We also wish to express our thanks to the M. E. church for its kindness and to the court officials for their interest in the day's services.

We regret to hear of some reflections on account of the services being delayed; this ought not to be. There had been sufficient arrangements for the services except the absence of an organ in the court room—which I have explained above. This could have been remedied in a very few minutes.

We hope there will be nothing charged to the county officials for this delay as they are all entirely innocent of any such charges. The Sheriff was not notified of the services as he was absent the greater part of the week; Judge Deason was at the Court House on time to make the welcome address as requested, so there was no occasion for any reports to have gone out or any remarks to have been made. I would respectfully request that should any one wish to find fault, that the blame be placed upon my shoulders. This is your privilege and not to my hurt. Yours for the truth.

W. Y. Keel.

JEMISON.

Mr. C. W. Adams is spending a few days here with relatives.

Mrs. Mann of Birmingham visited her mother, Mrs. Lowe, this week.

Miss Norma Patton of Maryville, Tenn., will give a recital at the school house, Feb. 26. Admission 15 and 25 cents.

Bro. Carson, pastor of the Baptist, church gave us two excellent sermons Sunday.

Miss Rosa Adams returned Saturday from Atlanta.

Many friends will regret to learn of the intended removal of Bro. Ormand and family to Valley Grove, Ala.

With sympathy in his bereaved ones of our town. During the month of February Mrs. Sarah Shaw, Mrs. Jake McClendon and Durwood Wells have been called to their eternal home.

Think it not unkind when affliction befall thee; it is all for the best that they are sent. God calls those whom He loveth, and why should He not claim His own jewels to shine in His house, though our own be made dreary? It may seem hard under such circumstances to say that it is "all for the best." The human heart is prone to give over to grief and lamentations, but wait, soon, when like the tired Pilgrim thou shalt fall sick and weary, He will take you home to rejoice in finding friends from whom you have been separated. Then how true will be the saying that "it was all for the best."

MAPLESVILLE

We people of Maplesville are yet watching and waiting for something to be done toward improving our two swamp roads. We feel that we have done our duty in placing the matter before our Commissioners, and we are wondering when they will act? We are for good roads. Bonds? Yes; we are ready. Anything for good roads! Let us not go back to the old system, however, as some of our eastern friends in the county are advocating. Our overseers are doing splendid work, and with more money they could accomplish untold good.

We are offering two of our best citizens for commissioner in the Third District, either of whom would make a capable officer.

Despite our bad roads, Maplesville continues to grow.

Mr. Tipton Mullins spent several days here recently, having his property laid off in small lots; judging from the number of lots, Clanton will soon have to sit back and watch us grow. Mr. J. W. Lawrence is now erecting a brick store between the bank and the Maplesville Drug Co's. building.

A few days ago the Jefferson Powder Company conducted an experiment on Mr. Parnell's place, illustrating the subsoiling of land with dynamite. Under the supervision of Mr. T. U. Culver, an experiment farm will be conducted in this place; one acre will be planted in cotton and one acre in corn.

Mr. Luck Seale is in receipt of a letter from Congressman Fred L. Blackmon in Washington, asking what laws would be suitable for Maplesville. Mr. Seale suggests to Mr. Blackmon that a law compelling people in Maplesville to work would do great good.

Dr. Parnell is constantly improving his part of the town, having just completed a neat residence for the Walker brothers, who have lately moved here from Plantersville.

Our town was saddened by the death of Mrs. Waterworth on Friday, Feb. 2nd. She had almost completed her eighty-third year. Accompanied to the last resting place by a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives; the remains were enterred in the Maplesville cemetery.

Mr. Henry Latham brought in from Shoults community a negro, charged with an attempt to stifle others in a camp car by burning red pepper on a hot stove; he was preparing to bring his prisoner to Clanton to jail. As he neared the "hobo-stand" he noticed that a hot hand-to-hand fight between two men was in progress. He left the negro to separate the combatants, and while engaged in this Chrstian act, his prisoner freed himself from his bonds, and "after departing" down Crumpton Avenue, began a trip on the M & O Railroad toward Montgomery, giving that road the prettiest illustration of speed it had ever witnessed. Mr. Latham sincerely regrets the loss of his prisoner.

Mr. G. P. Whitesell has purchased the Plant and Penton lots from Mr. R. H. Martin, and now can be reckoned one of our permanents.

Miss Ida Bilbro of Montgomery, spent the week-end here with her brother, Mr. J. F. Bilbro, our popular young Methodist minister.

Judge B. O. Glover, after so many years of single blessedness, has decided to enter matrimony. He was successful in interesting in himself Miss Emily Dyer, a young lady of Stanton. The happy couple are now domiciled at the Glover residence.

DEATH OF MR. W. W. JONES.

A PROMINEN CITIZENT GONE TO HIS REWARD.

The sad intelligence of the death of Mr. W.W. Jones, one of Chilton's prominent citizens, was brought to Clanton Monday night.

Mr. Jones was the father of Messrs J. C. and Claud Jones of this city, whose first intimation of their father's illness was conveyed to them over the phone Monday night just after nightfall.

Mr. Jones was in the sixty-fourth year of his age and had been enjoying extremely good health up to an hour before his death. He attended the usual duties about his home and was sitting by the fire in conversation with his wife when suddenly she noticed that there was something strangely wrong with her husband. Knowing that he had before suffered from heart trouble she immediately 'phoned to Clanton for a physician; Doctor Hopkins and Mr. J. C. Jones rushed to the residence immediately, but before they could reach the home Mr. Jones had breathed his last.

Death was peaceful and he met it with Christian resignation; the Death Angel called while he was sitting in pleasant conversation by the fire.

Mr. Jones is survived by a wife and nine children.

The funeral took place Wednesday morning at the family residence, the services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Olive. Interment was had at the Mullins cemetery on Yellow Leaf, where the parents of Mr. Jones are buried.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank my friends and acquaintances for their many expressions of friendship, and for the aid given and tendered during the sickness and death of my beloved wife.

Thankfully,
G. W. Shaw.

Jemison, Feb. 19, 1912.

"J. D."

The above is a likeness of J. D. Sims of Fairview, who is a candidate for County Commissioner from the Fourth district.

Mr. Sims, while not seeking notoriety through the columns of the newspapers, wishes all voters of the county to know that he is making an active campaign for the office which he seeks.

The Press has tried to secure photographs of all the candidates so that we could present them to the people of the county. But for some reason most of them are hesitant about producing the photos. Perhaps it is because they are afraid that a photo presented through the public print might cost them a few votes; perhaps, its because the "old lady" objects to having a likeness of her hubby scattered broadcast; perhaps, its because—well, just because. Nevertheless the Press intends to secure the likeness of each successful candidate as soon after the primary as possible and present them to the people of the county so that they may see just what class of men the democracy is presenting to them for election.

"J. D.", as he is best known by his friends, is a splendid fellow; he is a wheel-horse when it comes to active campaign work, and his friends predict that he who wins over him will have to labor mightily.

The above cut does not do Mr. Sims entire justice, for he is really a fine looking man; however, it is clear enough to show the honesty of purpose and the sincerity of heart which shines forth in his face.

Judge W. F. Wilkinson, State Examiner of Public Accounts, is in Clanton investigating the books of the various county officials.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

LATE NEWS OF THE WORLD TERSELY TOLD.

SOUTH, EAST, NORTH AND WEST

Notes From Foreign Lands, Throughout the Nation and Particularly the Great South.

Southern.

The Barbour County (Ala.) Underwood club now has over one thousand members. This was the statement made by C. S. McDowell, president of the hlub. The different vice presidents throughout the county have been circulating membership lists in every beat and these have been readily signed by the voters.

Representatives of 16 Southern states and officials of railroad and transportation companies met in Baltimore to discuss plans for the agricultural development of the South and the immigration question as affecting that section. The states represented were: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Maryland, Tennessee, North Carolina, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

Patriotism was the keynote struck by the Southeastern Division of the Ad Men's Club of America at its session in Atlanta. About two hundred men, interested in publicity, from the Rio Grande to the Atlantic coast, assembled for the meeting. They did not talk about themselves. They talked about what they had done, might do and would do for their particular city and section and gave their fellows the benefit of their advice. Thomas E. Basham of Louisville, Ky., declared that every city in the South should appropriate a fund for advertising itself and its resources. He held that every city in the South is worthy of advertising. Throughout the entire program the note resounded.

That he murdered Gov. William Goebel of Kentucky, in cold blood, at Frankfort in January, 1900, was the dying declaration of James Gilbert, ex-feudist of Breathitt county, Kentucky, who was fatally wounded in a pistol fight with a bartender, at Helena, Ark. The name of James Gilbert did not appear in the proceedings of the Goebel trial and persons who were in close touch with the Frank tragedy were not impressed with the Gilbert confession.

Mann Hamilton, a negro, identified by Mrs. John Bell as the man who attacked her at her home near Starkville, Miss., and after clubbing her about the head with an iron bar, threw her into a well, was hanged by a mob near Starkville. Mrs. Bell is probably fatally wounded. She was found in the well, which contained only several feet of water, by her 10-year-old son when he returned from school. Posses were immediately organized and Hamilton was captured.

Shorn of its "injunction feature," and delayed in taking effect, the Erickmann-Osborne-Carlisle anti-race bill law was accepted by the house of representatives of the South Carolina legislature, and was ordered enrolled as an act, the senate having passed it in amended form. The bill now goes to the governor for approval. The fight on the racing bill eliminated the provision making violation of the law a common nuisance abatable by injunction proceedings.

General.

Former State Senator Frank J. Gardner of race track legislation fame, who was arrested and locked up in New York City, charged with conspiracy to gain control of the half-million dollar estate of Samuel E. Haslett, an aged recluse, through a power of attorney which Haslett is alleged to have repudiated. Gardner, who, a year ago, was acquitted of a charge of attempting to bribe State Senator Otto G. Foelker, in connection with the anti-race track legislation, pleaded not guilty.

Believing that all the insurrectos against the government are largely a result of the publication of sensational news, President Madero of Mexico and his cabinet have appealed to the permanent commission in congress to suspend that article of the constitution providing for a free press and have been given a negative reply. The commission was asked also to authorize the extension of the zone in which the suspension of personal guarantees are operative. This, too, was refused.

For the first time in twenty-seven years Seneca Lake near Elmira, N. Y., is frozen over completely, the last gap of open water having been closed People along the lake are feeding the wild ducks.

Andrew Carnegie is confined to his home in New York City with a severe cold.

Chicago Methodist preachers decided to appeal to President Taft to improve alleged vice conditions at Washington, D. C., after hearing an address by Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts. Doctor Crafts said conditions in Washington were a disgrace to the nation.

Prominent Democrats from all parts of Chicago thronged at the Hotel Sherman, where the headquarters of Speaker Clark's presidential campaign have been opened. It has been the liveliest presidential headquarters that have been opened in Chicago.

Gifford Pinchot, in a signed statement, announces that he has withdrawn his support from Senator LaFollette's presidential candidacy, and that he will hereafter advocate the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Pinchot declares that the events of the last month have made it apparent that Senator LaFollette's candidacy will neither hold the Progressive Republicans together as a fighting force, nor prevent the nomination of "a reactionary Republican."

The United States government arrested in cities from New York to Savannah to Denver at least forty-one, almost all of the fifty-four men indicted in the dynamite conspiracy cases. It took into custody within a few hours practically the entire official staff of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, including the chief officers, the members of the executive board and about twenty business agents and former business agents. These included Frank M. Ryan, the president; John T. Butler of Buffalo, N. Y., the first vice president, and Herbert S. Hookin, the second vice president, and successor to J. J. McNamara as secretary-treasurer.

Twenty-five thousand dollars in currency was stolen from a taxicab in the heart of the New York business district by progressive highwaymen, who sprang into the vehicle and overpowered W. F. Smith and Frank Wardell, messengers of the East River National bank at 680 Broadway. Both messengers were badly injured and the robbers escaped with the money, $15,000 in five dollar bills and $10,000 in one hundred dollar bills.

The Rock Hill plan of cotton reduction was indorsed by the Southern Merchants' convention at their meeting in Atlanta. The convention deemed it unwise to encourage the production of a large crop in 1912, because another bumper crop would certainly sell for a very low price, which, in turn, would cause general and serious demoralization in business. Another 16,000,000-bale crop of cotton will bankrupt half the farmers in the state and and hundreds of merchants, said a speaker.

The Chinese national assembly unanimously elected Yuan Shi Kai president of the republic and then decided that the provsiion capital shall be Nanking. Dr. Sun Yat Sen's resignation of the presidency of the Chinese republic was accepted by the national assembly on condition that both he and the present cabinet hold office until the new president and cabinet take over their duties. The national assembly afterwards passed a resolution paying great tribute to Doctor Sun.

Promising the new state a "golden rule" administration, George W. P. Hunt was inaugurated as governor of Arizona, accompanied by a number of newly elected state officials and a few close friends, Governor Hunt, who began life in Arizona 25 years ago as a waiter in a small mining camp restaurant, walked to the capitol, about a mile from the center of that city, where the ceremonies took place. Governor Hunt is a Missourian, and 50 years old.

Reduction of boll weevils in the cotton belt during 1911 undoubtedly had an important bearing on the production of the record cotton crop, in the opinion of W. D. Hunter of the bureau of entomology. In a report on the movement of the Mexican cotton boll weevil, Mr. Hunter says: "During 1911 the boll weevil was greatly reduced in numbers throughout its entire range. This resulted from a combination of climatic influences extending over a period of three years.

Washington.

A grave diplomatic situation between the United States and Colombia has been precipitated by the publication of a letter which Senor Pedro Nel Ospina, the Colombian minister, has written to Acting Secretary Huntington Wilson of the state department, suggesting that it might be "inopportune" for Secretary Knox to visit Colombia during his projected tour of Central America. Inasmuch as the letter, admittedly, is the personal expression of the minister, written without having communicated with his government, it was received at the state department in the nature of a personal insult to this government.

Adj. Gen. Fred C. Ainsworth, who was relieved of his office on charges assumed to be those of conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline, was placed on the retired list on his own application. This precludes the possibility of a courtmartial. President Taft approved General Ainsworth's application because of the officer's thirty-seven years of service.

Alleged political influence of Maj. Beecher B. Ray, the army paymaster, who is declared to have enjoyed frequent changes of station and immunity from various troubles because of the influence of President Taft, was again a subject of investigation before the house. Paymaster General Whipple testified that Major Ray has established a record in the service for frequent changes in station. In thirteen years he had been successively stationed at 13 points; whereas, the average assignment of a paymaster at any station is between three and four years.

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and, amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco where he meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer. He makes large investments and gets into the political ring. For a rest he goes to the country. Daylight gets deeper into high finance in San Francisco, but often the longing for the simple life nearly overcomes him. Dede Mason buys a horse and Daylight meets her in her saddle trips. One day he asks Dede to go with him on one more ride, his purpose being to ask her to marry him.

CHAPTER XIV.—Continued.

He hung almost gleefully upon her actions in anticipation of what the fractious Bob was going to get. And Bob got it, on his next whirl, or attempt, rather, for he was no more than half-way around when the quirt met him smack on his tender nose. There and then, in his bewilderment, surprise and pain, his fore feet, just skimming the road, dropped down.

"Great!" Daylight applauded. "A couple more will fix him. "He's too smart not to know when he's beaten."

Again Bob tried. But this time he was barely quarter around when the doubled quirt on his nose compelled him to drop his fore feet to the road. Then, with neither rein nor spur, but by the mere threat of the quirt, she straightened him out.

Dede looked triumphantly at Daylight.

"Let me give him a run?" she asked.

Daylight nodded, and she shot down the road. He watched her out of sight around the bend, and watched till she came into sight returning. She certainly could sit her horse, was his thought, and she was a sure enough hummer. God, she was the wife for a man! Made most of them look pretty slim. And to think of her hammering all week at a typewriter. That was no place for her. She should be a man's wife, taking it easy, with silks and satins and diamonds (his frontier notion of what befitted a wife beloved), and dogs and horses, and such things.

But the quarry was doomed to pass out of his plans for a time, for on the following Sunday he rode alone. No Dede on a chestnut sorrel came across the back-road from Berkeley that day, nor the day a week later. As the third week drew to a close and another desolate Sunday confronted him, Daylight resolved to speak, office or no office. And as was his nature, he went simply and directly to the point. She had finished her work with him, and was gathering her note pad and pencils together to depart, when he said:

"Oh, one more thing, Miss Mason, and I hope you won't mind my being frank and straight out. You've struck me right along as a sensible-minded girl, and I don't think you'll take offense at what I'm going to say. You know how long you've been in the office—it's years, now, several of them, anyway; and you know I've always been straight and aboveboard with you. I've never what you call—presumed. Because you were in my office I've tried to be more careful than if—if you wasn't in my office—you understand. But just the same, it don't make me any the less human. I'm a lonely sort of a fellow—don't take that as a bid for kindness. What I mean by it is to try and tell you just how much those two rides with you have meant. And now I hope you won't mind my just asking why you haven't been out riding the last two Sundays?"

She played nervously with a pencil for a time, as if debating her reply, while he waited patiently.

"This riding," she began; "it's not what they call the right thing. I leave it to you. You know the world. That's the trouble. It's what the world would have to say about me and my employer meeting regularly and riding in the hills on Sundays. It's funny, but it's so. I could ride with one of the clerks without remark, but with you—no."

"Look here, Miss Mason," said Daylight. "I know you don't like this talking over of things in the office. Neither do I. It's part of the whole thing, I guess; a man ain't supposed to talk anything but business with his stenographer. Will you ride with me next Sunday, and we can talk it over thoroughly then and reach some sort of a conclusion. Out in the hills is the place where you can talk something besides business. I guess you've seen enough of me to know I'm pretty square. I—I do honor and respect you, and. . . and all that, and I . . . " He was beginning to flounder, and the hand that rested on the desk blotter was visibly trembling. He strove to pull himself together. "I just want to harder than anything ever in my life before. I—I—I can't explain myself, but I do, that's all. Will you—Just next Sunday? Tomorrow?"

Nor did he dream that her low acquiescence was due, as much as anything else, to the beads of sweat on his forehead, his trembling hand and his all too-evident general distress.

"Of course, there's no way of telling what anybody wants from what they say." Daylight rubbed Bob's rebellious ear with his quirt and pondered with dissatisfaction the words he had just uttered. They did not say what he had meant them to say. "What I'm driving at is that you say flatfooted that you won't meet me again, and give your reasons, but how am I to know they are your real reasons? Mebbe you just don't want to get acquainted with me, and won't say so for fear of hurting my feelings. Don't you see? I'm the last man in the world to shove in where I'm not wanted. And if I thought you didn't care a whoop to see anything more of me, why I'd clear out so blamed quick you couldn't see me for smoke."

It had been a happy day. Daylight had met her on the back-road from Berkeley, and they had had hours together. It was only now, with the day drawing to a close and with them approaching the gate of the road to Berkeley, that he had broached the important subject.

"I Could Ride With One of the Clerks Without Remark, but With You—No."

She began her answer to his last contention, and he listened gratefully.

"But suppose, just suppose, that the reasons I have given are the only ones?—that there is no question of my not wanting to know you?"

"Then I'd go on urging like Sam Scratch," he said quickly. "Because, you see, I've always noticed that folks that incline to anything are much more open to hearing the case stated. But if you did have that other season up your sleeve, if you didn't want to know me, if—if, well, if you thought my feelings oughtn't to be hurt just because you had a good job with me. . . ." Here, his calm consideration of a possibility was swamped by the fear that it was an actuality, and he lost the thread of his reasoning. "Well, anyway, all you have to do is to say the word and I'll clear out. And with no hard feelings; it would be just a case of bad luck for me. So be honest, Miss Mason, please, and tell me if that's the reason—I almost got a hunch that it is."

"Oh, but that isn't fair," she cried. "You give me the choice of lying to you and hurting you in order to protect myself by getting rid of you, or of throwing away my protection by telling you the truth, for then you, as you said yourself, would stay and urge."

Daylight smiled grimly with satisfaction.

"I'm real glad, Miss Mason, real glad for those words."

"But they won't serve you," she went on hastily. "They can't serve you. I refuse to let them. This is our last ride, and . . . here is the gate."

Ranging her mare alongside, she bent, slid the catch, and followed the opening gate.

"No; please, no," she said, as Daylight started to follow.

Humbly acquiescent, he pulled Bob back, and the gate swung shut between them. But there was more to say, and she did not ride on.

"Listen, Miss Mason," he said, in a low voice that shook with sincerity; "I want to assure you of one thing. I'm not just trying to fool around with you. I like you, I want you, and I was never more earnest in my life. There's nothing wrong in my intentions or anything like that. What I mean is strictly honorable—"

But the expression of her face made him stop. She was angry, and she was laughing at the same time.

Dede Mason had quick, birdlike ways, almost flitting from mood to mood; and she was all contrition on the instant.

"Forgive me for laughing," she said across the gate. "It wasn't really laughter. I was surprised off my guard, and hurt, too. You see, Mr. Harnish, I've not been . . ."

She paused, in sudden fear of completing the thought into which her birdlike precipitancy had betrayed her.

"What you mean is that you've not been used to such sort of proposing," Daylight said: "a sort of on-the-run, 'Howdy, glad-to-make-your-acquaintance, won't-you-be-mine' proposition."

She nodded and broke into laughter, in which he joined, and which served to pass the awkwardness away. He gathered heart at this, and went on in greater confidence, with cooler head and tongue.

"There, you see, you prove my case. You've had experience in such matters. I don't doubt you've had slathers of proposals. Well, I haven't, and I'm like a fish out of water. Besides, this ain't a proposal. It's a peculiar situation, that's all, and I'm in a corner. I've got enough plain horse-sense to know a man ain't supposed to argue marriage with a girl as a reason for getting acquainted with her. And right there was where I was in the hole. Number one, I can't get acquainted with you in the office. Number two, you say you won't see me out of the office to give me a chance. Number three, your reason is that folks will talk because you work for me. Number four, I just got to get acquainted with you, and I just got to get you to see that I mean fair and all right. Number five, there you are on one side the gate getting ready to go, and me here on the other side the gate pretty desperate and bound to say something to make you reconsider. Number six, I said it. And now and finally, I just do want you to reconsider."

He was such a boy, this big giant of a millionaire who had half the rich men of San Francisco afraid of him. Such a boy! She had never imagined this side of his nature.

"I Like You, I Want You and I Never Was More Earnest in My Life."

"How do folks get married?" he was saying. "Why, number one, they meet; number two, like each other's looks; number three, get acquainted; and number four, get married or not, according to how they like each other after getting acquainted. But how in thunder we're to have a chance to find out whether we like each other enough is beyond my savvee, unless we make that chance ourselves. I'd come to see you, call on you, only I know you're just rooming or boarding, and that won't do."

"It's getting late now, anyway," Daylight hurried on, "and we've settled nothing at all. Just one more Sunday, anyway—that's not asking much—to settle it in."

She gathered the reins into her hand preliminary to starting.

"Good night," she said, "and—"

"Yes," he whispered, with just the faintest touch of imperativeness.

"Yes," she said, her voice low but distinct.

At the same moment she put the mare into a canter and went down the road without a backward glance, intent on an analysis of her own feelings.

CHAPTER XV.

Life at the office went on much the way it had always gone.

In spite of their high resolve, there was a very measurable degree of the furtive in their meetings. In essence, these meetings were stolen. They did not ride out brazenly together in the face of the world. On the contrary, they met always unobserved, she riding across the many-gated backroad from Berkeley to meet him halfway. Nor did they ride on any save unfrequented roads, preferring to cross the second range of hills and travel among a church-going farmer folk who would scarcely have recognized even Daylight from his newspaper photographs. He found Dede a good horsewoman—good not merely in riding, but in endurance. There were days when they covered sixty, seventy, and even eighty miles; nor did Dede ever claim any day too long, nor—another strong recommendation to Daylight—did the hardest day ever see the slightest chafe of the chestnut sorrel's back. "A sure enough hummer," was Daylight's stereotyped but ever enthusiastic verdict to himself.

His lifelong fear of woman had originated out of nonunderstanding and had also prevented him from reaching any understanding. Dede on horseback, Dede gathering poppies on a summer hillside, Dede taking down dictation in her swift shorthand strokes—all this was comprehensible to him. But he did not know the Dede who so quickly changed from mood to mood, the Dede who refused steadfastly to ride with him and then suddenly consented, the Dede in whose eyes the golden glow forever waxed and waned and whispered hints and messages that were not for his ears. In all such things he saw the glimmering profundities of sex, acknowledged their lure, and accepted them as incomprehensible.

For the first time in the history of athletics the Chinese are to compete with other nations at the Olympic games of 1912. In the track and field sports the students of the University of Shanghai for three years have been coached by an Englishman.

FOR EVERY FAMILY MEDICINE CHEST

To the head of every family the health of its different members is most important, and the value of an agreeable laxative that is certain in its effect is appreciated. One of the most popular remedies in the family medicine chest is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is known to druggists and physicians as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This preparation is mild and gentle in its action on the bowels, yet positive in its effect. A dose of Syrup Pepsin at night means relief next morning, while its tonic properties tone up and strengthen the muscles of stomach, liver and bowels so that these organs are able in a short time to again perform their natural functions without help.

Druggists everywhere sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried this simple, inexpensive, yet effective remedy, write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and ask for a sample bottle. Dr. Caldwell will be glad to send it without any expense to you whatever.

AS SCHEDULED.

Mr. Booze—Well—hic—you married me for better or worse—hic—didn't you?

Mrs. Booze—Yes, and I got the worst of it.

But Mamma Didn't.

Little Mabel was always tumbling down and getting hurt, but as soon as her mother kissed the bumped forehead Mabel would believe it cured and cease crying. One day she accompanied her mother to the Union depot, and while they were seated in the crowded waiting room an intoxicated man entered the door, tripped over a suitcase, and fell sprawling on the floor. The attention of every one was attracted to the incident, and in the sudden silence following the fall Mabel called out:

"Don't cry, man. Mamma 'll kiss oo, and 'en oo 'll be all right."—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Man and the Place.

Andrew Carnegie was giving advice on a recent Sunday to one of the younger members of the Rockefeller Bible class.

"I am ar advocate of early marriages," he said. "The right man, in the right place, at the right time, is a very good saying, and, to my mind, the right man in the right place at the right time is unquestionably a husband reading to his wife on a winter's night beside the radiator."

Mean People.

Henry Russell, the head of the Boston opera, was describing his foreign tour in search of talent.

"They were mean people," he said of the singers of a certain city. "I could do no business with them. They thought only of money."

Mr. Russell smiled.

"They were as bad as the man who discovered the Blank theater fire.

"The first intimation the box office had of this fire came, at the end of the third act, from a fat man who bounded down the gallery stairs, stuck his face at the ticket window and shouted breathlessly:

"'Theater's afire! Gimme me money back!'"

THE DOCTOR HABIT
And How She Overcame It.

When well selected food has helped the honest physician place his patient in sturdy health and free from the "doctor habit," it is a source of satisfaction to all parties. A Chicago woman says:

"We have not had a doctor in the house during all the 5 years that we have been using Grape-Nuts food. Before we began, however, we had 'the doctor habit,' and scarcely a week went by without a call on our physician.

"When our youngest boy arrived, 5 years ago, I was very much run down and nervous, suffering from indigestion and almost continuous headaches. I was not able to attend to my ordinary domestic duties and was so nervous that I could scarcely control myself. Under advice I took to Grape-Nuts.

"I am now, and have been ever since we began to use Grape-Nuts food, able to do all my own work. The dyspepsia, headaches, nervousness and rheumatism which used to drive me fairly wild, have entirely disappeared.

"My husband finds that in the night work in which he is engaged, Grape-Nuts food supplies him the most wholesome, strengthening and satisfying lunch he ever took with him." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

"OUR WIVES"

"Our Wives," a comedy by home talent, will be presented at the School Auditorium on Friday evening, March 1. Proceeds to go to the School Improvement fund. Admission 15 and 25 cents. The biggest show you've ever seen. Come and get acquainted with "Our Wives."

On the following Friday night (March 8th) the ladies of the School Improvement Association will give another entertainment at the school to which all are especially invited. The ladies are trying to raise funds for the necessary improvement and equipment of the academy; each lady of the association has agreed to raise one dollar by her own efforts, using means not heretofore employed and of which she is to inform no one till Friday night, March 8th, at which time she is to tell to her associates and to the audience, in rhyme, the manner employed in raising the funds. Besides this novel entertainment, there will be songs, recitations and other modes of entertainment. Let all who can encourage this work of the ladies by attendance upon these exercises and by liberal contributions.

A GREAT DISCOVERY

Certain Ingredients That Really Promote Hair Growth When Properly Combined

Resorcin is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Napthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which destroys the germs which rob the hair of its natural nourishment, and also creates a clean, healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Pilocarpin, although not not a coloring matter of dye, is a well-known ingredient for restoring the hair to its natural color, when the loss of hair has been caused by a disease of the scalp.

These ingredients in proper combination, with alcohol added as a stimulant and for its well-defined nourishing properties, perhaps the most effective remedy that is known for scalp and hair troubles.

We have a remedy which is chiefly composed of these ingredients, in combination with other extremely invaluable medicinal agents. We guarantee it to positively cure dandruff and to grow hair, even though the scalp in spots is bare of hair. If there is any vitality left in the roots, it will positively cure baldness, or we will refund your money. If the scalp has a glazed, shiny appearance, it's an indication that baldness is permanent, but in other instances we believe baldness is curable.

We want every one troubled with scalp disease or loss of hair to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. If it does not cure dandruff and grow hair to the satisfaction of the user, we will without question or quibble return every cent paid us for it. We print this guarantee on every bottle. It has effected a positive cure in 93 per cent of cases where put to a practical test.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is entirely unlike, and we think, in every particular, better than anything else we know of for the purpose for which it is prescribed. We urge you to try this preparation at our entire risk. Certainly we know of no better guarantee to give you. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Clanton only at our store—The Rexall Store. The Upchurch Drug Co.

TO THE TEACHERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

We had a very interesting meeting of the Reading Circle at Clanton on last Saturday. For the convenience of teachers, and that we may accomplish more, we have divided the county into seven districts as follows:

Maplesville district, J. L. Johnson, Secretary, Maplesville.

Verbena district, G. C. Arant, Secretary, Cooper.

Stanton district, Howard Roper, Secretary, Stanton.

Fairview district, Cecil E. Harris, Secretary, Clanton, Route 3.

Jemison district, C. M. Williams, Secretary, Jemison.

Thorsby district, Wm. T. Bean, Secretary, Clanton, Route 4.

Clanton district, W. L. Hicks, Secretary, Clanton.

The teachers may have their membership with the district most convenient to themselves. The secretary of each district will furnish any necessary information to members and will mention from time to time. You will greatly aid your secretary to notify him at once, stating where you prefer having your membership. We hope that each member will co-operate in every way with the secretary of his district in making the local circles a success as this is a matter being emphasized by the County Board, not only of Chilton but of all counties of the State.

The books are "Scisson's Essentials of Character," 90c;" "Class Room Management," Bagley, $1.10; Gilbert's, "The School and its Life," $1.20. These are to be finished during the months of February, March and April and are to be read in the order named. You can secure them from Loveman, Joseph & Loeb, Birmingham.

Let me again urge that every teacher do his or her full duty in this matter, as a progressive teacher cannot afford to neglect.

Yours very truly,
W. L. Hicks,
Sec'y Chilton county.

A NEW MODERN HOTEL

STEAM HEAT, WATER WORKS, ALL MODERN CONVENIENCES

During the visit of Mr. M. C. Craver here, mention of which appears eleswhere, he purchased of Dr. Earl Gowan, a handsome lot on First Avenue and Seventh Street, upon which he proposes to erect at once, a handsome three story brick hotel with all modern improvements. The hotel will contain about fifty sleeping rooms besides lobby, dining rooms, kitchen and other necessary apartments Work on the building will begin just as soon as the architect completes his plans.

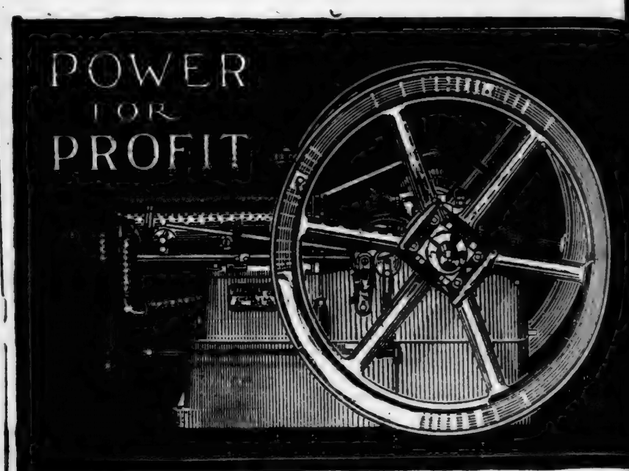
SAINT PATRICK'S DAY EDITION

The ladies of the School Improvement Society have about concluded arrangements with the Press to get out a special St. Patrick's Day edition of this paper. Unfortunately St. Patrick's day comes on Sunday this year, so the ladies will issue the regular edition of the Press on Thursday, March 14th. It is their purpose to take over the entire paper that day and to eschew politics and everything else except interesting news matter and items which will tend to build up a sentiment for better educational facilities in this county.



Just who will act as Editor Chief has not been announced but that the paper will be under the management goes without saying.

A number of special artists have been engaged for purposes of illustration and the news section will be conducted by ladies of well known ability in the literary profession.

The present editor and his editorial staff will not be permitted to have a single say in the paper of March 14th; it will be under the exclusive mangement and control of the School Improvement Society.

Merchants are expected to advertise liberally and every one interested in schools is slated to get a copy of the paper.

THE I. H. C. GASOLINE ENGINE

If a farmer expects to make money by using a power producer, he must have the most practical and economical one on the market. He must use the one that has produced profit for scores before him. Such is the I. H. C. gasoline engine.

The I. H. C. engine is designed specially to meet the requirements of the up-to-date farmer. It has few working parts, all of which are easily accessible. It does not require any time to get ready, only one turn of the fly wheel being necessary to start the engine. The time consumed by other kinds of power in getting ready is spent by the I. H. C. in working. Other excellent features of the I. H. C. engine are the small fuel consumption and the fact that it does not require an engineer. These features alone should recommend it above all other kinds of power.

International Harvester Company engines are made in the following styles and sizes:

Horizontal { Portable / Stationary } 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 15 and 20 horse power.
Vertical—2 and 3 horse power.

Call and let us show you many more good points of the I. H. C. engine.

Sheriff's Sale.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Circuit Court. Spring Term, 1911.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the said Court of said county, Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I, as Sheriff of said county, was commanded to make the sum of one hundred and seventy-seven and 60-100 dollars, principal and interest, and the sum of six and 50-100 dollars, costs, the amount of a certain judgment and costs therein obtained at the said term of said Court of said county, Alabama, in favor of Teague & Sons against R. H. Martin, out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of R. H. Martin. Now, therefore, I, as Sheriff of said county, under and by virtue of the within execution, have on this the 19th day of January, 1912, levied upon the following described real estate as the property of R. H. Martin, to-wit:

One lot of land in the town of Maplesville, Alabama, bounded as follows: On the east by the right of way of the Southern and Mobile & Ohio railroads, where they cross each other in said town of Maplesville, Ala., and on the North, West and South by Mrs. N. E. Goodwin's property containing, one and one fourth (1 1-4) acres, together with a complete gin plant thereon. Also the following described land (except the school lot of one eighth (1-8) of an acre, beginning at a certain point on the east boundary line of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's line in the town of Maplesville, Ala., said certain point being South eighty one degrees fifteen minutes west (1132) feet from an iron pin on the West edge of the right of way of the Southern railway, known as South-east corner of lot No. 3 in the survey of the "Town of Cuba," running thence from said certain point north eighty one degrees fifteen minutes east 262 feet to the South-west corner of a one acre lot owned by R. H. Martin; thence Northwest 200 feet along said one abre lot; thence North eighty one degrees fifteen minutes 220 feet along said one acre lot to the North-west corner of the Boykin lot; thence North eleven degrees west along a lot owned by R. H. Martin 200 feet to a point South eighty one degrees fifteen minutes West three hundred and ninety eight and fourtenths feet to East boundary of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's land; thence South four hundred one and sixth tenths feet along said East boundary to point of beginning, containing two and nine tenths acres in Soction 21, Township 21, Range 12 East, all of said lands being located in the town of Maplesville, Ala.

Therefore, according to said command, I will expose for sale at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named R. H. Martin, in and to the above described property, on THE 12th DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1912, during the legal hours of sale, at Clanton, Alabama, in front of the Court House door.

This 19th day of January, 1912.

B. L. JONES, Sheriff.

It Is Between Seasons, of Course

That Is Why We Are Offering Such Inducements In All Lines.

Our Spring Goods are arriving on every train and we must make room for them upon our shelves; we purchased them to sell and not to keep, hence we must clear out the stock now on hand,

We have INDUCEMENTS, genuine BARGAINS in all departments; the price are so low you will think we are gving your purchases to you.

Regardless of what may be your wants, we will be able to supply your demands at a modest price.

It would really be a saving to you if you would look over your Winter supply and purchase of us for next Winter; the goods are cheaper now by far than you will be able to purchase later on.

Remember that we stand behind all the goods we sell and stand with the prices we attach to them.

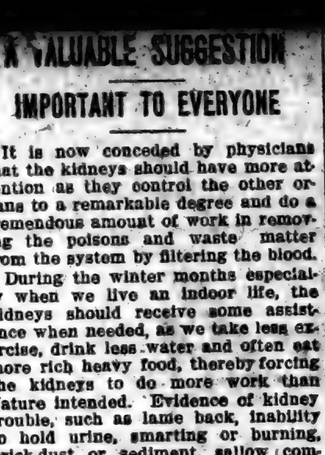
A VALUABLE SUGGESTION

IMPORTANT TO EVERYONE



It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the winter months especially when we live an indoor life, the kidneys should receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than Nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, inability to hold urine, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism, may be weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

An herbal medicine containing no minerals or opiates has the most healing influence. An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by mail, absolutely free. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention this paper.

COMPARISON.

He—Ah! Genevieve, when I looks at the immense expanse of boundless ocean, it actually makes me feel small!

Subject for the Minister.

According to reports gathered by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, practically 10 per cent. of all deaths in church congregations are caused by tuberculosis. In a study of 312,000 communicants of 725 churches in which there were 7,000 deaths in 1910, the death rate among these church-members was found to be 2.24 for every thousand communicants. This is higher than the rate for the registration area of the United States, which was 1.60 in 1910.

"While these statistics," says the national association, "are not comparable from the point of view of accuracy with those of the bureau of census, sufficient credence may be given to them to indicate that one of the most serious problems the ordinary church has to consider is that of the devastation of its membership by tuberculosis. Every minister in the United States should give this subject some attention during the week preceding or that following April 28, Tuberculosis day."

No Sale.

"Hill work?" replied the demonstrator, after Stiggins had inspected the new car carefully. "Hill work? Why that's our strong point, Mr. Stiggins. This car can climb a tree."

"Ha! hum!" demurred Stiggins. "Then I guess I'll look elsewhere. I never saw a car yet that climbed trees that was any good afterward."—Harper's Weekly.

GIFFORD PINCHOT OUT IN THE OPEN

ANNOUNCES THAT HE WILL NO LONGER SUPPORT LA-FOLLETTE.

NOW FOR COL. ROOSEVELT

Says LaFollette Cannot Hold Progressives Together as Compact Fighting Force.

Washington.—Gifford Pinchot, in a signed statement just made public, announces that he has withdrawn his support from Senator LaFollette's presidential candidacy, and that he will hereafter advocate the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt.

Mr. Pinchot declares that the events of the last month have made it apparent that Senator LaFollette's candidacy will neither hold the progressive republicans together as a fighting force nor prevent the nomination of a "reactionary republican."

"The course which the senator has elected to pursue," says Mr. Pinchot, "will not keep the progressives together, and in that course I cannot follow him."

The statement follows:

"The struggle which until recently has centered around Senator LaFollette's candidacy was undertaken for two clear and specific purposes; first, to hold the progressives together as an effective fighting force, and second, to prevent the nomination of a reactionary republican for the presidency. Within the last month circumstances have made it impossible to accomplish, by means of the candidacy of Senator LaFollette, either of these two purposes, and the imperative need for another leader has been made plain.

"One of these circumstances is the ill health of Senator LaFollette, which all his friends so greatly deplore. I retain, undiminished, my admiration for the high quality of his past services to the progressive cause, but the course which the senator has elected to pursue will not keep the progressives together, and in that course I cannot follow him. From the beginning I have fought for a cause and a principle and for a man.

"The reasons for the action I am taking are set forth at length in a letter to Senator LaFollette, in which I have notified him that since, in my judgment, his candidacy no longer will advance the progressive cause, I shall hereafter advocate the nomination of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, whose duty, I believe, is to take up the leadership of the progressive movement.

"Until this notification was delivered I have, of course, taken no part in advocating the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt.

"The country knows that Colonel Roosevelt is a genuine progressive. That question was settled once for all by his active championship of human rights during the seven years of conflict which made the progressive movement a power in the nation."

MADERO WOULD ABOLISH FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

Mexico City.—Believing that all the insurrections against the government are largely a result of the publication of sensational papers, President Madero and his cabinet have appealed to the permanent committee in Congress to suspend that article of the constitution providing for a free press and has been given a negative reply.

The committee was asked also to authorize the extension of the zone in which the suspension of personal guarantees are operative. This, too, was refused.

The proposition was transmitted to members of the Congressional Committee at a meeting which was calculated to be secret.

A sub-measure was suggested during the meeting by one of the deputies, who suggested that the press be suppressed for two months and that in return the president agreed to resign at the end of that period if he had not succeeded in restoring peace in the country. It is not probable the suggestion was made with the idea that it would be taken seriously. The censorship at Cuernavaca will be removed.

LAST SIGNATURE OF WILLIAM McKINLEY

Buffalo.—What is believed to be the last signature of William McKinley is to be seen in the "Visitor's Book" at one of the powerhouses at Niagara Falls. He signed his name there September 6, 1901, about two hours before he was shot by Czolgosz in the exposition grounds at Buffalo. On the pages of the same "Visitors' Book" are to be found the signatures of many famous men, Theodore Roosevelt, President Taft and others.

VOLUME OF STEEL BUSINESS LARGE

Despite the Severe Cold Weather Since December.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Conditions are still favorable to the realization of the promise held out by the developments of the past three months, namely, of a year of wider activity than 1911. The severely cold weather since the middle of December has to some extent, and especially in railroad transportation, the iron and steel industry and in railroad distribution, held this promised development in check. The volume of business, however, is very large, and in some directions notably so. On certain finished lines lower prices are now the rule in iron and steel, especially in structural lines, footing up to about 35,000 tons, with the railroads supplying a moderate share of the new business. The larger interests in the Pittsburg district are fairly active, keeping about 80 per cent. of their capacity in operation, but the smaller plants are not so well employed. Demand is hardly as good as at the beginning of the year. The pig iron market is quiet, but there is moderate activity in basic iron. Bessemer iron is quoted at $14 and basic at $12.25, valley. Bessemer and open hearth billets are still $20, and sheet and tin bars $21, Pittsburg. Plates and structural shapes are weaker. Shipments, however, are keeping up, though the demand for prompt action does not appear so urgent.

The cotton goods markets have strengthened materially and the demand is broad and seasonably active. Many mills making brown staple goods, print cloths and heavy colored cottons are now under orders for two to three months ahead, and bleached cottons, sheetings and pillow tubings, prints, denims, plaids and other piece goods are much stronger. Export trade is good. India has bought 4,000 bales of standard drills and China small lots of sheeting, as well as 3,000 bales of canton flannels. Men's wear and worsted yarn markets are influenced somewhat by the labor difficulty at Lawrence, which appears to show signs of a healthy solution.

The New England footwear market is still rather quiet, but new business is coming forward at a better rate than formerly and factories continue fairly busy on old contracts. Prices are strong. The recent lull in the leather trade seems to have been broken, and buyers, after finding that concessions were not obtainable, have entered the market and liberal sales have been made, especially of sole leather. Further activity has developed in hides.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

Cumulative improvement is the chief characteristic of this week's trade report. Demand is existing and betterment is extending to those centers that have heretofore been particularly quiet. As yet the pace is only steady, but it seems to be consistent and conservative optimism in developing at a greater rate. Mail order concerns have done very well, thanks to the tendency to buy in small lots and trade in dry goods, wearing apparel, shoes, groceries and other essentials reflects the influences of slow but steady improvement. Cotton goods continue to gain in strength as regards prices, one line after another being jacked up as order books present better aspects.

Even the south has responded to the improved undertone of things, discontent is disappearing, especially from the larger cities, though some of the smaller centers are still suffering from a paucity of business. In the iron and steel lines operations are increasing, but new business has tapered off somewhat, while specifications on some goods have also receded a little.

At the same time there is considerable rail buying in sight, while the prospects for early heavy buying of cars seem good, the suggestion being made in this connection that the wear and tear on cars being such as to render the buying of new rolling stock a necessity.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending February 15 were 305 against 323 last week, 235 in the like week of 1911, 269 in 1910, 282 in 1909, and 326 in 1908.

Business failures in Canada for the week numbered 31, which compare with 26 last week and 34 in the corresponding week of 1911.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending February 15, aggregating 2,299,127 bushels against 2,816,458 last week and 2,180,921 this week last year. For the 33 weeks ending February 15 exports are 105,780,662 bushels against 77,625,198 in the corresponding period last year. Corn exports for the week are 1,632,566 bushels against 1,462,043 last week and 2,628,198 in 1911. For the 33 weeks ending February 15 corn exports are 24,009,938 bushels against 27,154,328 last year.

ODOM HANGED FOR MURDER OF THREE

WENT TO SCAFFOLD WITH A SMILE AND SCOFFS ON HIS LIPS.

HIS CRIMES MOST BRUTAL

One of His Victims Killed Before His Mother's Eyes as She Pleaded for His Life.

Mobile.—With a laugh on his lips, J. Lawrence Odom, a well-to-do stock raiser, was hanged in the yard of the Mobile county jail for a triple murder. Odom scoffed at those who tried to convert him and laughed contemptuously when fear of death was mentioned.

The trap was sprung at 6:19 a. m. There was a small crowd about the gibbet, among them a number of Odom's relatives.

Odom's three victims were: Chas. Golan, aged 19; David Lyman Gartman, aged 16, and Joseph Stokes, an aged farmer. The killings occurred on March 18, 1910, all the victims being witnesses against Odom in a dog-killing case. Odom warned them not to go into court, but they paid no attention to his threats.

Gartman was shot before his mother's eyes, and while she was on her knees pleading for her son's life. Odom spurned her entreaties and blew the boy's head off with a shotgun.

Odom's attorneys fought hard for his life, twice appealing to the supreme court and finally resorting to a petition to the pardon board on the grounds that the condemned man was insane.

Odom was married and leaves a wife and eight children.

PITNEY TO SUCCEED HARLAN.

Protests Against Hook and Nagel Factor in Executive's Latest Appointment.

Washington, D. C.—President Taft sent to the Senate the nomination of Chancellor Mahlon Pitney of New Jersey to be associate justice of the United States Supreme Court.

He nominated also Julius Mayer of New York City to be judge of the United States District Court for Southern New York.

Chancellor Pitney long has been a prominent figure in New Jersey. In casting about for a successor to Justice Harlan the president first looked beyond the Mississippi river.

For a while it seemed certain that he would name Judge Hook of the United States Circuit Court, and again it seemed that Secretary Charles Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor would be the choice of the president.

There was a protest against Judge Hook because of his decisions in two Oklahoma cases, one involving the 2-cent car fare and the other the segregated car law. Judge Hook decided in favor of the railroads and against the contention of the negroes. This is said to have been the final pivot of the president turning from the Kansas jurist.

Labor organizations protested against Secretary Nagel on the ground that he had been too lenient in the enforcement of the immigration laws.

When Chancellor Pitney shall have been confirmed by the Senate and has taken his place on the Supreme Court, President Taft will have had the extraordinary experience of constituting a majority of the highest tribunal of the land—a bench on which it had been his almost exalted ambition to serve as chief justice.

In addition to naming five new justices on a court of nine, President Taft also had the distinction of nominating Associate Justice White for the chief justiceship, making in all six court appointments during the three years in the White House. The five associate justices named by Mr. Taft were Messrs. Lurton, Hughes, Vandeventer, Lamar and Pitney.

BOATMAN HAD HIS OWN IDEA

Absence of Expected "Tip" Brought Out Excellent Sample of Real Irish Wit.

A good story of Irish repartee has been published concerning John Bright. He was always ready for salmon-fishing, and on several occasions went to Ireland with Mr. George Peabody, the American philanthropist. One day Mr. Bright, noticing a policeman on the bank, inquired of him what sum the boatmen were entitled to ask for rowing up the Shannon on a day's fishing. He said that from seven shillings and sixpence to ten shillings was the usual payment.

Mr. Bright said to Mr. Peabody, "Have you three half-crowns? I have no change."

Mr. Peabody produced the money and gave it to the boatman. He was dissatisfied, and said:

"And is that all ye're giving me?"

"That is all," replied Mr. Peabody.

"Well, that bates all I iver heard," answered the boatman. "An' they call ye Paybody. Faith, I should call ye Pay-nobody!"

LAWYER CURED OF ECZEMA

"While attending school at Lebanon, Ohio, in 1882, I became afflicted with boils, which lasted for about two years, when the affliction assumed the form of an eczema on my face, the lower part of my face being inflamed most of the time. There would be water-blisters rise up and open, and wherever the water would touch it would burn, and cause another one to rise. After the blister would open, the place would scab over, and would burn and itch so as to be almost unbearable at times. In this way the sores would spread from one place to another, back and forth over the whole of my upper lip and chin, and at times the whole lower part of my face would be a solid sore. This condition continued for four or five years, without getting any better, and in fact got worse all the time, so much so that my wife became alarmed lest it prove fatal.

"During all this time of boils and eczema, I doctored with the best physicians of this part of the country, but to no avail. Finally I decided to try Cuticura Remedies, which I did, taking the Cuticura Resolvent, applying the Cuticura Ointment to the sores, and using the Cuticura Soap for washing. In a very short time I began to notice improvement, and continued to use the Cuticura Remedies until I was well again, and have not had a recurrence of the trouble since, which is over twenty years. I have recommended Cuticura Remedies to others ever since, and have great faith in them as remedies for skin diseases." (Signed) A. C. Brandon, Attorney-at-Law, Greenville, O., Jan. 17, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

"How a ladies' diplomat?" a composer asked.

"Well," explained Miss Russell, "he is the sort of chap who always remembers a woman's birthday and forgets her age."

ECHO OF CIVIL WAR

Swanson's Bill to Recompense Southern Officers.

"BLOODY SHIRT" DAYS OVER

Measure Makes Charges of Cruelty Against Federal General That Would Have Raised Storm in Congress Some Years Ago.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—Occasionally in congress echoes are heard coming from Civil war days. Once on a time troubles growing out of the war between the states were a constant theme of oratory in congress. Those were what are known as the "bloody shirt" days, and old timers here say that it took only the mention of the previous sectional strife to stir things up and to put Northern Republicans and Southern Democrats into the ring to fight it out with bitter speeches as weapons. Now everything is changed, and it is not once in two years that anything approaching bitterness growing out of the Civil war is shown either in the house or in the senate.

During the war days there were Northern charges of extreme cruelty to Federal captives in Southern prisons. There was retort from the South that in a good many cases the North did not treat Confederate prisoners in accordance with the dictates of humanity and in the spirit of civilized warfare.

A day or two ago Senator Swanson of Virginia introduced a bill which, if it had been brought to public attention thirty years ago, would have raised a row. The Swanson measure was read twice and referred to the committee on claims, and its reading caused barely a ripple, although it had in it subject matter which years ago would have started the Northern and Southern brigadiers in congress on oratorical warfare.

Senator Swanson's bill asks that there be paid to certain surviving officers of the Confederate service the sum of $5,000 each as "damages and reparation." The Swanson bill sets forth that when Major General J. G. Foster of the Union forces heard that some Federal officers held as prisoners of war in the city of Charleston were so placed in prison that they were in danger of being killed by shells fired from the batteries, he for the purpose of retaliation was instrumental in causing some six hundred Confederate officers who were prisoners to be placed where they would be in danger of death from shot and shell.

Charges of Harsh Treatment.

The Swanson measure goes a great deal farther than this in its charges when it says that the six hundred officers for forty-two days were given no daily rations except four hardtack crackers, "frequently wormy," one ounce of fat pickled pork and half a pint of bean soup, alternated at times with half a pint of mush made from meal that was old and wormy; while the only drinking water was impure.

More than this, the bill sets forth that the same six hundred Confederate soldiers were confined in cold, damp casemates without fire or blankets and that for sixty-five consecutive days at one time they were forced to live on a daily ration of ten ounces of rotten corn meal to which was added "an ample supply of cucumber and onion pickle which if eaten only increased the pangs of hunger."

Congress is told in this bill that such treatment of persons was "unjustifiable and contrary to all the acknowledged rights of belligerency, and without precedent as an established principle in civilized warfare."

Gardner and Smith Happy.

In the senate of the United States a place on the committee of agriculture is held in the highest esteem. Membership in the committee occasionally is much sought after by senators who have no knowledge whatsoever of farming. It has been whispered in the past on one or two occasions that some of the senators have sought a place on agriculture in order to give the people of their states an idea that they are interested particularly in things which concern the farmer.

Recently there came into the senate membership two men, both Democrats, and both really deeply interested in agriculture. One of them was Hoke Smith of Georgia, who, while governor of that state, showed a lively interest in agricultural matters, and the other was Obadiah Gardner of Maine, who is a farmer and who for a long time was the chief officer of the Maine State Grange.

When these two new Democratic senators arrived it was found that they both wanted positions on the committee on agriculture, and both wanted them badly. There was only one vacancy on the committee, and as the committee on committees did not want to disappoint either Mr. Gardner or Mr. Smith an attempt was made to fix things. Finally Senator Percy of Mississippi said that he was willing, for his service runs little more than a year, to change the condition of a farmer for that of a sailor, and so he was transferred to the committee on naval affairs, thus creating two agricultural vacancies which promptly were filled by the appointment of Obadiah Gardner and Hoke Smith.

Army Bill in Peril.

Representative Hay of Virginia, chairman of the house committee on military affairs, has introduced a bill affecting the army which is [illegible] gether to the lining of officers and enlisted men, and which, it is said, also, is not altogether to the liking of the administration. Of course no one knows what change of mind may come to the army and to President Taft, but Mr. Hay and his colleagues in the house, in order to give the bill an additional chance for passage and signature, have attached it as a "rider" to the army appropriation bill.

This means that if it passes, the president in signing the appropriation bill must sign the other bill also. He cannot separate the two, and if he wishes to veto the Hay bill as "vicious legislation" he must also veto the measure which provides sustenance and pay for officers and enlisted men of the army.

Way back in the time of President Hayes, congress passed an army appropriation bill with a "rider" attached which was objectionable to the Republican party and the Republican administration. The president did not hesitate a minute to veto the bill, and as a sequence the army found itself without pay for a considerable period of time. Warren Leland, one of the hotel keeping brothers, who were in their day as good hosts and providers, had been given a good share of army patronage, officers seeking out the Leland hotels in whatever cities they could be found. The old Sturtevant house in New York, which stood at Broadway and Twenty-eighth street, and which long ago disappeared, was one of the Leland hostelries. There was another in Chicago, and some others elsewhere.

Warren Leland's Big Offer.

When President Hayes vetoed the army appropriation bill in order to get rid of its "rider," Warren Leland wrote a personal letter to every army and navy officer in the United States and to the members of the furlough and graduating classes at West Point and Annapolis. In the letter he said that his hotels, and all that was in them, were at the command of the officers of the army and navy and that he was perfectly willing to wait till doomsday for his pay, knowing that if at any period this side of that day congress should pass the army bill, the money [illegible] use for board and lodging furnished would be forthcoming. Mr. Leland lost nothing by this word of welcome to officers of the service, who faced temporary conditions of pauperism.

Mr. Merriam's New Position.

Dr. C. Hart Merriam, who until recently was the chief of the government's biological survey, which is a bureau of the department of agriculture, is now the head of what is known as the Harriman Zoological Foundation with headquarters in this city. Dr. Merriam is perhaps the highest authority in America on subjects pertaining to the life of mammals and birds, and he is one of the chief authorities on American Indian history, tradition and folk lore.

The Harriman Zoological Foundation was provided for in the will of Edward H. Harriman, the railroad magnate, who died less than two years ago. The headquarters of research now have been established in Washington, and here Mr. Merriam, in accordance with the wishes of Mr. Harriman, as expressed in his will, is to carry forward the work of extending knowledge of natural history.

Few people knew that Edward H. Harriman, one of the richest men in the United States, and one whose time seemingly was almost wholly given over to the extension of railroad lines and the securing of railroad holdings, had any other heart interest than that of business.

Discovering His Other Side.

If one may be forgiven for speaking personally, the story of how I found out that Mr. Harriman cared for other things than his family, and stocks and bonds, may not be uninteresting. Not long before Mr. Harriman's death, newspaper business called me to Augusta, Ga. My companion on the trip knew Edward H. Harriman personally. Just as the train was leaving Washington, Mr. Harriman's private car was attached to it, for the railroad man was going on a visit to his brother in the south.

My companion was invited to dine with Mr. Harriman in his private car, and I was included in the invitation out of politeness. I never had seen Mr. Harriman before. I sat in the first seat at his left at the dinner table. The other guests were three men of huge business affairs, one of them the head of the greatest railroad organization in the United States and the others proportionately great in the world of business. Nothing but business was talked at the dinner table; the extension of this line and that line; and stocks and bonds and other things floated around until I felt utterly shut out because of these things I did not know much, and cared less.

Finally, in order to let my host know I was alive, I turned to him and said: "I have all the journals of the Harriman Alaskan expedition thus far issued, and, what is more, I have read them."

His Interest in Natural History.

Mr. Harriman's eye lighted. He turned to me with a sort of surprised enthusiasm, and he said in a voice that was almost an exclamation: "I seldom find anyone outside of the circles of the strict naturalists who have more than a sort of a hazy recollection that once on a time there was such a thing as a Harriman Alaskan expedition."

So far as this mark of Mr. Harriman's overpowering commercial operations was concerned, there was precious little else in the conversation [illegible] Alaska taken ten years before in the company of men known all over the world for their scientific attainments. The map of Alaska had thrown over business and [illegible]

CAMDEN MISS HELPED BY CARDUI

Miss Wilson Suffered for Nine Years, but Finally Obtained Relief by Taking Cardui.

Camden, Miss.—"About five years ago," says Miss W. E. Wilson, of this place, "I had to undergo an operation, and after that it hurt me to stand on my feet or walk much.

I had suffered, more or less, with womanly troubles, for more than nine years, and I was very weak and nervous.

As soon as I commenced to take Cardui, I felt better. Now I am not taking any medicine, for I don't need any.

Cardui has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. It is the grandest medicine for women that was ever made."

This remarkable letter, from a lady who has actually tried Cardui, ought surely to convince you of the genuine merit of this successful medicine, and induce you to give it a trial for your own troubles.

Cardui is the ideal remedy for all weak, suffering women, young or old.

Cardui acts specifically on the womanly constitution, preventing unnecessary pain, and building up strength where it is most needed. During the past 50 years it has proven itself to be a reliable remedy for weak women. It has helped others, and should certainly help you. At all druggists. Try it.

A Case of Chronic Kidney Trouble and How It Was Permanently Cured.

F. P. Semmel, Sr., 236 N. 6th St., Lehighton, Pa., says: "For over 15 years I suffered from kidney trouble. My kidneys were weak; the secretions contained sediment and passed with a smarting sensation. Sharp pains shot through my body and bent me almost double. I became so bad I could not drive to my work. After doctoring without benefit, I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and soon received relief. Continued use cured me. I believe Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life."

EARNING AN HONEST QUARTER

Great Painter, Unrecognized, Accepted Gratuity and Turned Good Stroke of Business.

Winslow Homer was a great painter who had the unusual good fortune to have his merit appreciated early in life. But no one ever presumed less on a wide reputation. Affectation was a weakness from which his sense of humor saved him.

In his biography, lately written by Mr. W. H. Downs, is printed the story of a New York gentleman of wealth and artistic tastes who made the journey to Scarboro, Maine, where Homer has his studio, to make the artist's acquaintance.

On his arrival he found the studio door locked; the owner was nowhere to be seen. He wandered about the cliffs for a while, until he met a man in a rough old suit of clothes, rubber boots, and a battered felt hat, who carried a fish-pole. He accosted the fisherman thus:

"I say my man, if you can tell me where I can find Winslow Homer, I have a quarter for you."

"Where's your quarter?" said the fisherman.

He handed it over, and was astounded to hear the quizzical Yankee fisherman say, "I am Winslow Homer."

The sequel of this unusual introduction was that Homer took his new acquaintance back to the studio, entertained him, and before he left sold him a picture.

Girls

Read About These Three Girls. How Sick They Were and How Their Health Was Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Appleton, Wis.—"I take pleasure in writing you an account of my sickness. I told a friend of mine how I felt and she said I had female trouble and advised me to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as she had taken it herself for the same trouble with wonderful results. I had been sickly for two years and overworked myself, and had such bad feelings every month that I could hardly walk for pain. I was very nervous and easily tired out and could not sleep nights. I had dizzy spells, and pimples came on my face. But I have taken your Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has restored my health. I think it is the best medicine in existence."—Miss CECILIA M. BAUER, 1161 Lawrence St., Appleton, Wis.

A SCHOOL TEACHER'S GRATITUDE:

Geneva, Iowa.—"I have been teaching school for some years and I have neglected my health because I was too busy with my work to attend to myself properly. I suffered greatly every month and was on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

"I wrote to you about my condition and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the Blood Purifier as you recommended. These remedies have done wonders for me and I can highly and widely recommend them to every suffering woman."—Miss MINNIE SHAVER, R. F. D. No. 1, Geneva, Iowa, c/o Sam Erickson.

A COLORADO GIRL'S CASE:

Montrose, Col.—"I was troubled very much with irregular periods. Sometimes two months would elapse. I suffered severe headache, was weak and nervous, could eat scarcely anything.

"I took both Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and the result was wonderful. I feel like another person.

"I think your remedies are the best on earth and cannot express my thankfulness to you for what they have done to me. I help my neighbors when they are sick, and I shall always recommend your medicines."—Miss ELLA MCCANDLESS, Montrose, Col.

Is it not reasonable to suppose that a medicine that did so much for these girls will benefit any other girl who is suffering with the same troubles?

Does it not seem the only sensible thing to give such medicine at least a trial? You may be sure that it can do you no harm, and there are lots of proof that it will do you much good.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health. Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Dr. J. V. Higgins Shoots "Um" Direct From the Shoulder by Giving the Following Testimonials:

The following is a letter received from a patient at Jemison, Ala., a lady who has been suffering from severe headaches:

Jemison, Ala., Jan. 18th, 1912

Dear Doctor:

My glasses came last week. I can't begin to tell you how much they help me to see. I can now read an hour or so by lamplight, and my eyes feel no worse for it. Yours truly,

Miss Sadelia Glass.

Now, with such testimonials as this, sure the balance ought to follow. Well, in fact if Clanton had a ten story building for Dr. Higgins' office, Higgins occupying the top floor, Higgins would get the business, for the eyes that Dr. Higgins dissected in Chicago and learned to refract are the same kind of eyes they all wear in Alabama heads, and in regard to Dr. Higgins wanting an office in a high brick building; this is because every once in a while a patient will get off the train with a pair of glasses they get in Montgomery, Birmingham or some city where the eye doctor has his office in a high building, so the building must be the cause of the patient wanting to go to more expense for the same glasses, for I had one patient from Billingsley who paid his railroad fare to Montgomery in order to ask their price. Their price for the case was $12.00; my price $9.00. I got the job. The above case, (Miss Glass) I got $10.00 for. Now don't faint at the price. I have plenty of eye glasses for 50c and $1.00 a pair. I sold a negro a pair Saturday night for 75c and gave a case FREE.

In regard to my diagnosis of a case just from Montgomery or Birmingham "Diagnosis," "weak above the eyes" "prescription," read Shakespeare's quotation, "Convince a person against their will and they are of the same opinion still."

Once in a while you will hear a fellow knock the title "Doctor" attached to optics. Well, you know there are plenty of people who smoke a 5c cigar, who think there is no such title to anyone unless they are a "pill peddler." Just give such wise people a smile.

I have decided to display in my optical window for two weeks, all these testimonials and my diploma with the title doctor, together with some lenses fitted in Montgomery and Birmingham, which my patients say were hurting their eyes. Now don't get it that I am the only one who understands the human eye, but I believe in patronizing your home town. Let the folks that live in the larger cities, stay in their town and country and you follow suit, especially when you are saving time and money.

Now about the price. Of course, you can find a lot of people looking to get SOMETHING and pay NOTHING, for often I have a party come and ask "How long will you guarantee a 50c ring or a pair of $1.00 glasses?" (Poor wind all gone out from the chest, nothing come in.) Now can you write me down a few names of some people you know, who get something for NOTHING? I find a good many people who think I could easily spend two or three thousand dollars for my education, office instruments, etc., and then examine their eyes for 25c, but I can't live on such a percentage. I had a kick on charging $1.00 for soldering a pair of gold glasses. I also have a pair of $8.00 gold frames burnt in two. The party did the job for 25c. I have two customers that got their watches repaired for $1.00. I asked $2.00. Both watches failed to run after being fixed, and Mr. Bates brought his back to me and paid me the $2.00 I first asked. Mr. Foshee paid me $6.00 for fitting his little boy with a pair of nice lenses in a 50c frame, just to get fine ground lenses. He said "The price is alright. I could have gotten him a pair of glasses in Clanton for $2.50 or $3.00 but I wanted him fit right or not at all." I charge $1.00 for extracting cinders from the eye. One of our grocerymen said "Why I don't charge a cent just to take and rub them right out." Yes, Mrs. Vines of Jemison, just took a little piece of cloth and rubbed some (at some) right out of Mr. Vines' eyes during last fall. When his eye began to hurt and turn white, he came to me without questioning the price of $2.50. Mr. Groceryman is some opposition, he is Still we have to learn and some time it takes a long time. Why I had one of the nicest and best educated ladies in this town to walk in and ask me if I could fit her daughter's eyes with glasses. Another nice and well educated lady was very much surprised when I took her in my office and showed her how well I was fixed up for doing eye work, and she had on a nice gold eye glass chain and mounting and a pair of $2.50 lense (O Eye Size) when she should have had a nice 2 or 3 O Eye Size Toric ground and polished lense instead of having a little O Eye size like I fit on children. The lense being O Eye size and the ladies face being large through the eye 3-8 of an inch from the center of the lense, what kind of service could she expect? So have frames and lense BOTH fit to the face or neither will do the eye or your general appearance any good, regardless of price.

Now in the Jewelry and Watch department, a party stopped in yesterday with his brand new watch stopped. I asked him the cause. He said: It "Cum" that way. He paid me $2.50 for fixing the watch so it would run. Another party paid me four dollars to fix one about two years ago. Why not let me sell you a watch for $2.50 profit, and should it fail to go, give you a new one free of all charges and you save the express? Well on such occasions I laugh and grow fat.

Now should any of the above make you mad with Dr. Higgins just a little bit, just get out on a level spot of ground and raise Cain and Sam Hill, only just don't think I run a junk shop, for you can buy as many pairs of $1.00 glasses as you want to, but don't get it that you can buy another pair of eyes when the ones you have are gone. Dr. Higgins only asks you to admit two good points about him. 1st, Courtesy if you patronize him. 2nd. He "knows how" You are welcome to the other 98 points.

Many thanks for your past patronage, and assuring you of my best attention in the future, I am

AVOID HARSH DRUGS

Many Cathartics Tend to Cause Injury to the Bowels.

If you are subject to constipation, you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their re-action is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This preparation is called Rexall Orderlies. These are prompt, soothing, and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal ingredient is odorless, tasteless, and colorless. Combined with other well-known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy, They may be taken at any time, either day or night, without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge nor cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons, and aged people, as well as for the most hearty person.

They come in three size packages, 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store. The Upchurch Drug Co.

Chilton County's Soil Survey Is Most Completed.

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 28, 1912

The field work of the soil survey of Chilton county has been completed and the report thereon is in course of preparation.

Owing to the undevelopment of some areas and the diversity of its soils, and also the absence of good roads, considerable time has been required to examine all of the area and prepare the soil map. In the prosecution of the work it was necessary to make a base map, since nothing accurate in this form could be had. This map will show the towns, railroads, public roads, houses and section lines. The drainage will be shown in considerable detail, but contour lines, or relative elevations, could not be ascertained in the preparation of a map of this kind. The various soil types occurring in the county will be indicated. The extent and location of each being shown in different colors and also by the use of symbols.

In the report each soil type will be found described in detail. The physical features, such as color, texture or size of soil grains, the depth and structure of the soil and the subsoil, the drainage conditions, ease of tillage and crop adaptation are taken up. Since the mineralogical composition of a soil is determined by its geological origin and the processes of weathering to which it has been subjected—these factors are discussed., They clearly relate to the present condition of a soil type and govern to a large extent its chemical features. The character of the native vegetation is also a factor of importance. It is not the amount of phosphoric acid, potach and nitrogen in the soil, but the "availability" is largely determined by physical condition and methods of soil management. It may be stated in this connection that our best writers and teachers in agricultural science are placing much emphasis upon the importance of the physical factors in maintaining soil fertility and securing the highest crop yields. On this point there is agreement but, great diversity of opinion exists regarding the chemistry of the soil. But with tons of nitrogen in the air above each acre of land and several thousand pounds of each of the essential elements—phosphoric acid and potash—in each acre foot, why should not the utilization of these sources of plant food be the real problems rather than the question of what particular kind of brand of fertilizer to apply? We cannot dispense with the use of commercial fertilizers, but their economical use can be ascertained only by a study of local conditions. Each farm is a problem within itself, with regard to the most efficent methods of handling the soil or soil types of which it represents. In too many instances soils of very diverse nature receive the same treatment, regardless of structural and textural peculiarties or probable differences in fertililizer requirements. Specific advice concerning the latter is likely to be misleading unless based upon a knowledge of the soil's origin and the present condition as well as the crop to be cultivated.

The soil survey reports embrace a general description of the points in question, its topography, regional drainage and surface features, as well as the character and much of the transportation facilities and markets. A short chapter is also given concerning the climate conditions.

The principal crops grown, the methods of farming and the general agricultural practices are described. Also the cost of labor, tenure and size of farms, price of land and opportunity for improvement in methods of farming are discussed.

A soil survey is presumed to give a reasonably complete and accurate, as well as strictly impartial, account of the agricultural resources of the area covered. It answers the question: "What kind of lands?" That is so often asked by the homeseeker and prospective investor. To this class a knowledge of the comparative value of soils and the opportunities that different notions of the country offer is of great advantage.

Soil surveys are designed to give intelligent direction to the study of problems which concern an entire state or a considerable section of country. The location of agricultural schools and experiment stations should be governed by a comprehensive knowledge of the character and distribution of the areable lands.

The states of Ohio, North Carolina and Alabama are co-operating with the bureau of soils of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture in making a complete survey of the lands within their respective limits; and in this state already about 35 counties have been completed, and the work will be expidited to the end of an entire survey of the state. Captain Reuben F. Kolb, Commissioner of Agriculture, is in charge of the state's side of the co-operation work and is urging its completion at as early a date as possible consistent with thoroughness.

Considerable interest in Chilton survey has been manifested by residents of the county. To many of these the party engaged in this work is under many obligations for their assistance in various ways. It is probable that the report, including, of course, the map, will be ready for distribution by the latter part of this year or the first of next. Applications for copies shonld be sent to the Congressman from this district or to the State Department of Agriculture and Industries.

While it is the prime object of a soil survey to classify the soils and to set forth their merits and demerits. it is also reasonably necessary to state that before farming can be brought to an intelligent and yet a profitable basis, the farmer must have some outlet by which he can dispose of his produce at a reasonable cost. At present the so-called public roads of Chilton county are inadequate for neavy use—making it imperative on the farmer to put his products upon the market at cost far beyond that which it should cos him were there good roads. This extra cost of marketing produce over poor roads would more than pay a tax which would not only put the roads in good shape, but would keep them that way. If the people of Chilton county would come together and vote a law by which the county could issue bonds to an amount sufficent to once put her public roads on an equal basis to those of some of her more prospective and yet sister counties, it would be but a short while until every farmer would be, as it were, master of all he surveyed, and life on the farm would be pleasant instead of a drudge as it now is in several instances.

The secret of success to each citizen of the county as well as to the county itself depends almost entirely upon good roads and these in turn depend upon the people who compose it.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS

A WRONG IMPRESSION CORRECTED; NONE TO BE DISFRANCHISED.

The impression seems to be general throughout the county that quite a number of voters who have become of age since the last registration would not be able to take part in the democratic primary election on April 1st. because they have not been legally registered, and are not therefore, qualified voters. Strange to say, some of the candidates now running for office entertain this fear and are moving heaven and earth in their efforts to have their young friends qualified in some manner so that they may take part in the primary. It has been suggested that one of the Registrars had said that there would be no registration of voters till the regular time fixed by law—in July, after the democratic primary.

The registrar may have made this statement but if so he was forgeful of a certain amendment to the original registration law.

Certain it is that under the present law the Registrars are required to sit at the county seat on FRIDAY and SATURDAY before any party primary election for the purpose of registering such voters as are qualified to be registered. The registrars of this county will, therefore assemble at the Court House in Clanton, on Friday and Saturday, March 29th and 30th, to register any person who has become of age since the closing of the last registration, or who, for any other cause is entitled to be registered. It would be well for candidates throughout the county to inform their friends that this is the case so that all who wish to do so may register on the days above mentioned and have done with that part of the work.

But, even if the registrars were not required to meet; even if there was no opportunity for registration, the Executive Committee has wisely provided for such a contengency by passing a rule that "All who will be qualified to take part in the general election in November are invited to participate in the April primary, provided they agree to support the nominees of the party made at the Aprilprimary"

It may be that it will be inconvenient for a number of voters living in remote sections of the county to come to Clanton on the days wherein the Registrars wil be in session; if so that will not debar them from voting in the April primary, provided they agree to qualify by registering at the July sitting of the Board of Registrars and will also agree to support the ticket nominated in the primary.

If you are too far distant from Clanton to be here either on Friday March 29th and 30th, or if you are too buy with your crops or other affairs to make it convenient to be presefit and register on one of those days, just walk right up to the polls on April First and deposit your ticket for the candidates of your choice with the understanding that you WILL register at the July term, and that you will support the candidates who are nominated.

It would be well for candidates to familiarize themselves with the rules adopted by the Executive Committee, providing for primary election; they will be found in the issue of the Press of December 28th, 1911. Read them up so that you may [illegible] your friends [illegible] may present [illegible]

REGISTRATION NOTICE

In accordance with the provisions of Section 6, of an Act "To further regulate elections in the State of Alabama," approved Oct. 6th, 1903, as amended, the Board of Registrars of the County of Chilton, Alabama, hereby gives notice that the following appointments are set for the purpose of registering those qualified under the law to register as electors:

Clanton, on Friday and Saturday, March 29th and 30th, 1912.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Prospective Groom a Prominent Citizen.

Last Monday the Press man was presented with a bottle of champaigne by one of his friends. When the presentation was made it was stated that the champaigne was one of a number of bottles that had been "purloined" on the occasion when the engagement of the donor was announced to a certain very attractive young lady of Birmingham, the wedding to take place the latter part of March.

The happy soon-to-be groom was all smiles as he walked into the Press offices, but, said he, "Don't mention any names please, just drink the wine and wish me luck and happiness."

The champaigne was turned over to the printers in the office—that's all that is necessary to say, except that we all wished our friend the best of health, home joys and happiness.

ODD FELLOWS BUY HALL

To Build Home Immediately.

Dr. Earl Gowan sold this week a beautiful lot near the county jail to the local lodge of Odd Fellows, which organization will begin at once the erection of a handsome two story lodge room.

He also sold to Judge Adams a lot on Sixth street upon which the Judge proposes fo erect a home. (This is authentic.)

COURT NEWS.

A Special Term Held.

Last Monday Judge Deason, at the request of several prisoners, held a special term of the County Court. The prisoners desired to plead guilty and begin their term of service as early as possible and to accommodate them then the Judge consented to hear their cases. The following cases were disposed of during the day: Frank Ray, Mike Smith and Loudin Jones, each charged with "riding trains," were fined $10.00 and costs. Not having the necessary cash they were sent to the coal mines to work out their fines. Michael Ryan, vagrancy, fined $50.00 and sentenced to three months hard labor. Pate and Grady Carlee were fined ten and fifteen dollars respectively, which they paid and went home rejoicing.

MISS PATTON TO GIVE RECITAL.

It will be pleasing intelligence to Clantonites to know that Miss Norma Patton is to give a recital at the Court House next Monday evening.

Miss Patton is one of the South's most pleasing entertainers and is always accorded a crowded house wherever she appears. Monday night should not prove an exception to this rule. We take pleasure in clipping from the Clinton News of Tennessee, an article with reference to the character of her entertainment:

At the auditorium Monday evening an appreciative audience was accorded a rich literary treat by Miss Norma Patton. Her program was a pleasing variation of verse and prose, embracing character and descriptive sketches, which gave the auditors occasion to note her wide range of histrionic powers. Selections included scenes from Ben Hur, Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, James Whitcomb Riley, Tennyson, Browning, Paul Dunbar, and others, representing history, description, home life, pathos and humor.

Miss Patton possesses a rich tone modulation, and her delivery is resonant to all parts of the auditorium with clear-cut easy effort. Her manners are of graceful and modest dignity, and endowed by nature with much personal charm, she is in every way fitted for [illegible]

MOUNTAIN CREEK.

Mr. Editor:—

There is an item or so of at least local interest that I thought I would submit for the consideration of your readers this week, always provided, of course, that I can successfully pass your censorship and elude the rapacious maw of the insatiable "waste basket."

In the first place, Mr. Editor, Isn't yer Uncle Underwood looming brilliantly these days in the presidential sky? Just here allow me to add, that we have an Underwood Club in these parts, and while we almost feel like we can land our gallant standard bearer in the White House alone, we want to extend a most pressing invitation to all the rest of "the boys" to come and go with us—if for no other reason than just to be on the winning side.

There is a petition being circulated for signatures in Beat 5, praying the Honorable Court of County Commissioners to change the voting place from its present location to the Soldiers Home, and I am happy to state, it is meeting with almost unanimous endorsement. To a person at all conconversant with the existing circumstances and conditions, it is marvelous that the change had not been made long, long ago. The Home is an ideal place to hold an election in strict conformity with the laws governing same. It is more convenient and accessible to four-fifths of the voters. In case of inclement weather conditions, its spacious halls, callonades, etc., furnish ample shelter and comfort to all may attend. Its fundamental law obviates any apprehensions of the "blind tiger" evil or any of it numerous offsprings. Besides, it is a mark of courtesy and respect that the present generation justly owes to the gallant old heroes assembled there in their last biyouac this side the Stygian tide, and whose tottering limbs, shattered by shot and shell, and worn weary in the service of this glorious Southland of ours, are no longer willing to bear their willing bodies to a more distant polling place, that they may continue the warfare for right at the ballot box, that they so gloriously began mid the roar of musketry and the boom of cannon. In fact, there is no tenable reason that can be urged by anyone why the change should not be promptly made. How many readers of the Press know that down here in this corner of Chilton county had been planted by the hand of nature what is claimed, by mining experts, to be the most extensive and richest brown ore deposit to be found anywhere in our land? Well it's a fact, and besides it is going to be put on the market in large quantities right away. Messrs. Ligon and Abernathy, the local managers of the enterprise, after untol worries, vexations and and disappointments, with that indomitable pluck with which they are so richly endowed, have won out, and work is now going forward with a rush to tap the ore lands, and I am assured that within a very short time now they will be in position to market a hundred or more tons per day. Isn't that fine? Now, you good Clanton folks, don't get jealous of us down here, for, while we flourish, "even as the green bay tree," we have no intention of trying to encroach upon your metropolitan rights and prerogatives at all. But you had better sit up ond take notice of all such good things as that water-works scheme proposed by the Press the other day, or the first thing you know, Mountain Creek, with her ore railroads and the attendant good thing that loom in the vista in connection therewith, will reve back [illegible]

VILLAGE DELIVERY

Clanton in the Class.

A bill has been introduced in Congress appropriating $100,000.00 to be used under the direction of the Postmaster General to give to villages of 1000 population and over a system of free delivery mail service.

This bill, while not introduced by our own Congressman, has his backing which amounts to much when it is remembered that he is a member of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads. Should the bill become a law, which is more than probable, Clanton will be in the free delivery service good and proper and the local office will have another official.

It may not be many moons before our citizens will see a gray coated, brass buttoned individual knocking at the doors and delivering mail to our residents.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK

A Number of Depositors.

Last Friday morning Postmaster Dndley opened the savings department of the post office and received a goodly number of deposits in small amounts. The first day's receipts amounted to $111.10.

TEACHER TRAINING

All who are taking the Teacher's Training Course offered by the S. S. Board are requested to send their name to me at their earliest convenience. Also any who have completed book No. 1 may hand your answers to me for grading, and I shall be pleased to grade them, and if satisfactory, present a diploma to you.

Yours very truly,
T. E. WILLIAMS,
County Supt. of Teacher Training Deprtament.

ENTERS LARGER FIELD

CLOSED OUT CLANTON BUSINESS.

Mr. I. Gordon closed out his tailoring business in Clanton and left on Wednesday afternoon for New Orleans, where he goes to attend the bedside of his daughter who is to be operated upon this week for appendicitis. As soon as the operation is over Mr. Gordon will go to Birmingham to assume active charge of the "Iron City Tailoring Co."—a corporation recently organized with a capital stock of $100,000.00 and of which Mr. Gordon is President.

CARD OF THANKS

Please permit me, through the columns of your paper to express my sincere thanks to our many friends for kindness shown us during the recent bereavement which saddened our home.

Respectfully,
Jas. C. Jones.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

LATE NEWS OF THE WORLD TERSELY TOLD.

SOUTH, EAST, NORTH AND WEST

Notes From Foreign Lands, Throughout the Nation and Particularly the Great South.

Southern.

The phosphate deposits of Tennessee rank next in importance to those of Florida, according to a bulletin by the bureau of soils, department of agriculture, dealing with the natural phosphates of Tennessee, Kentucky and Arkansas. In regard to the Kentucky deposits, the reports says their value has not yet been sufficiently well established to encourage the outlay of much capital and those of Arkansas, it adds, "are not generally regarded as of great economic importance."

Seven persons are known to have been killed and more than a score injured in a tornado which swept portions of Lincoln, Jefferson and Arkansas counties, in Arkansas. The greatest destruction was reported near Almyria in the prairie and rice lands of Arkansas county. Perhaps a score of persons were injured when their homes were destroyed, some of them seriously. The injured were cared for at neighboring farm houses, and some were taken to Almyria.

Oklahoma's Democratic state convention ended in a political love feast, the selection of a split delegation to the Baltimore convention and the election of Roger Galbreath of Tulsa, uncommitted as to his preference for presidential nominee, as national committeeman. The compromise which brought about the harmonious conclusion was reached at a conference of leaders of the factions supporting Speaker Champ Clark and Governor Woodrow Wilson.

In the wake of the most destructive fire in the history of Houston, Texas, smouldering wreckage covers an area about one and a half miles in length and varying in width from 200 yards to half a mile in the northeastern section of the city. More than a dozen of the city's most important industrial enterprises are in ruins, 200 or more dwelling houses and store buildings are in ashes and approximately 1,000 persons are homeless. The most conservative estimates are that the loss will reach at least $7,000,000. The insurance carried will not exceed 40 percent. Except for a few who suffered minor burns and burises, no casualties attended the fire.

Representatives of sixteen Southern states, heads of railroads and steamship lines that serve that section and men who have studied the agricultural and industrial problems of the South for years, met in Baltimore and formed the Southern Settlement and Development Organization. Baltimore was made the headquarters, with S. Davies Warfield of Baltimore as chairman and Eli Frank, also of Baltimore, secretary. It was resolved to start at once to raise the funds to carry on the work of the organization, to establish branch on such educational or other work in the sixteen Southern states as may be deemed desirable with the view to procuring desirable immigration, colonization and settlement as the needs of the several states may require.

Savannah cotton receipts for the first time in the history of the port for any one season passed the two-million-bale mark. There was great rejoicing on the floor of the exchange at the fact that Savannah has become the second cotton port of the world, and a giant banner was strung across the top of the exchange telling of the reaching of the new record-breaking figures.

General.

"I will accept the nomination for president if it is tendered me, and I will adhere to this decision until the convention has expressed its preference," is Col. Theodore Roosevelt's reply to the letter of seven Republican governors asking him to stand for nomination. The eagerly awaited reply was given out at Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's offices in New York during his absence on a trip to Boston. It was unexpectedly brief, but definite.

"Big Business," the fitness of the American people for self-government, the recall of judges and praise for the progressive legislation in Wisconsin were topics discussed by Theodore Roosevelt in his address before the Ohio constitutional convention at Columbus, Ohio.

Governor Foss of Massachusetts has broken all New England records for the use of the pardoning power, having restored 81 prisoners to liberty during his year in office. His pardons include eleven murderers.

The widow of Jim Fisk, who was a partner of Jay Gould, died at Boston, Mass., penniless.

The second amendment to the constitution was adopted by the Ohio constitutional convention which has been in session since January 19. It permits the state legislature to issue bonds in the sum of $50,000,000 for maintenance of roads.

The mystery of eight deaths of babies in the Brooklyn Nursery and Infants' hospital was solved, the police say, by the confession of Winifred Ankers a kitchen woman at the hospital, admitting that she placed oxalic acid in the babies' milk bottles. The police version of the confession runs: "I put two or three drops of oxalic acid into the bottles. I did not do it with intent to kill the babies, but I wanted to get square with the nurses, who were my enemies."

Edward Hines, millionaire lumberman, declined to discuss a published report that he had been expelled from the Union League Club of Chicago, as a result of his connection with the Senator Lorimer case. Officials of the club also refused to affirm or deny the reports of Hines 'expulsion. "I will have to refer you to my counsel, as I personaly have decided to say nothing regarding the matter at this time," said Mr. Hines, when questioned at his Evanston residence.

Washington.

Aided by the best legal talent obtainable in the United States, the money trust investigation will shortly be undertaken by the committee on banking and currency of the house of representatives. The New York stock exchange and cotton and grain exchanges of the country will be given attention in connection with the probe into the existence of a money trust. The big deals on "change" are to be closely scrutinized by the committee.

Col. Theodore Roosevelts announcement for the presidency has split the Republican party beyond all hope of mending before the election in November next. This is the unanimous opinion of Democratic senators and members of congress. The split, they believe, is in policies as well as candidates. Privately a majority of the Republicans take exactly the same view. The great issue of the Republican pre-convention campaign has been made by Mr. Roosevelt. It is the anti-third term rule.

Political activities are heating the atmosphere to such a degree that it was freely predicted that Democratic leaders of the house and Republican leaders of the senate would soon find themselves agreed that congress could not keep up the pace beyond the middle of June. Until now it appeared to be an accepted fact that the session would be prolonged beyond the Chicago and Baltimore conventions. Unless Democratic Leader Underwood and his associates in the house are willing to abandon a part of their program to bring in metal, sugar, chemical, cotton and woolen tariff bills, night sessions soon will be necessary, for practically nothing has been done with supply measures.

Colombia virtually repudiated the action of its minister, General Ospina, by sending, through American Minister DuBois, at Bogota, a cordial invitation to Secretary of State Knox to visit Colombian shores on his present trip. The invitation was forwarded promptly to Secretary who is aboard the cruiser Washington on his way south. With him rests the decision whether he will change his itinerary to a call at Cartagena. This, it is accepted here, he undoubtedly will do. The action of the Colombian foreign office was received in Washington with satisfaction.

The Italian chamber of deputies passed the bill for the annexation of Tripoli by Italy by a vote of 431 to 38, amid enthusiastic cheering from the floor of the chamber and the public gallery. Afterwards the members who voted agaainst annexation, including the Socialists, a few Republicans and one Radical, Prince Gaetani, were roundly hissed. Only one member abstained from voting.

President Taft, speaking at the peace meeting of the Navy League in Washington, declared the time had not come for this country to be economical at the expense of an inadequate naval establishment, expressed hope that the present congress would authorize the construction of two battleships, and said he gladly would sign a bill that carried such an authorization.

Except for the service of five years in prison, Folke E. Brandt is the same man in the eyes of the law as he was before he was sent away April 4, 1907, to serve thirty years for burglary at the home in New York City of Mortimer L. Schiff, where he once worked as a servant. The long prison term was broken up when Justice Gerard of the supreme court sustained a writ of habeas corpus obtained in Brandt's behalf.

Adjutant General Maloney of Tennessee urged before the house military affairs committee a bill for government acceptance of 5,000 acres of land near Tullahoma, Tenn., donated for a maneuver camp for troops of Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and the Carolinas. Opposition developed in the house against the Blackmon resolution providing a commission to investigate the availability of land near Anniston, Ala.

Death by the hand of the law voids all life insurance policies of the criminal. The Supreme court so held in the fight of the children of James S. McCue, former mayor of Charlottesville, Va., who was executed for the murder of his wife in 1905. A policy of $15,000 was carried by McCue in the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company of Wisconsin. The United States circuit court of appeals for the fourth circuit held that the policy was made in Wisconsin and under the Wisconsin laws was not annulled by execution on the gallows.

COL. WILLIAM GARTH DIES

Fall Received Two Weeks Ago Causes Death of Former Congressman and Aged Citizen.

Col. William W. Garth, aged 86 years, died at his home in Huntsville after a brief illness, caused by sustaining a fall two weeks ago, when he dislocated his shoulder. Colonel Garth was a former member of congress, having represented the Eighth Alabama district in the early seventies. He was a lieutenant-colonel in the Confederate army, having served as a member of General Longstreet's staff. He was a native of Morgan county, having been born near Decatur in 1826, but spent the greater part of his life in Madison county, being one of the largest land owners.

It was unofficially announced from Tuscaloosa that Dr. Edgar B. Kay, dean of the school of engineering at the university, had tendered his resignation to Dr. Denny. It has been rumored for some time that Dr. Kay would resign his position to devote his time to private affairs.

Plans of importance to the educational interests of Alabama, and especially to the Baptist denomination, will be announced in Montgomery early in March. Executive committees of the boards of trustees of Howard College, of Birmingham, Judson College, of Marion, and of the Baptist Education Commission, will hold a conference at that time to complete the plans.

Lawrence county has let the contract for the construction of a modern, up-to-date jail at Moulton. The structure will be three stories high, heated by steam and supplied with hot and cold water. It will cost $15,854. This jail will be constructed according to the plans insisted upon by State Jail Inspector Oates.

Brigadier-General Joseph B. Scully, Lieutenant Albert Goodwyn and Col. E. H. Graves made a tour of inspection this week of several of the companies in the state militia, going to Florence, Decatur, Cullman and Tuscaloosa in the order named, beginning at Florence Monday, Feb. 26.

The executive boards of the Foreign and Home Missions Societies of the Alabama conference held a joint meeting in Court Street church, Montgomery, Friday morning. The result of this meeting was to unite the two conferences, which was done by a unanimous vote of the members.

The board of revenue of Lawrence county has ordered an election for the 18th of March to determine whether the county shall issue $123,000 worth of bonds for the purpose of building turnpikes. There seems to be little doubt as to the carrying of the bond issue.

Incorporation papers of the Chilton Mining and Manufacturing Company were filed with the secretary of state. It is announced that the object of the company is to mine ores and other minerals. The capitalization is given at $10,000, with $2,000 paid in.

Fire gutted the plant of the Gadsden Printing Company. Stores located in the same building were damaged by smoke and water. The total loss will be between $2,000 and $3,000.

Twenty-two educators from Alabama attended the meeting of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association at St. Louis February 27 to 29.

Thomas O. Goodbrad, of Mobile, announced his candidacy for the office of state game and fish commissioner, and will begin an active campaign at once throughout the state.

Henry Lee, a negro, was stabbed to death in the negro quarters of Tuscaloosa. John Milner, colored, was rested by officers and charged with the crime.

Six persons were injured when the automobile belonging to A. L. Falenwelder was struck by an A. G. S. train at Beverly station, near Birmingham.

The Lee county high school was completed and accepted by the building committee.

Hundreds of ladies of Alabama, and especially of Montgomery, and members of the Ladies' Memorial Association will be delighted to learn that the formal consent of the Park Commission of Chickamauga Park, endorsed by the secretary of war, has been received and that the association will erect in the park a monument to the memory of the Confederate soldiers who fought in the battle of Chickamauga. The erection of such a monument had been a fond dream of many of the patriotic daughters of the Confederacy.

MANUFACTURES OF STATE

Statistics Show Factories in 1909 Were 3,938, as Against 1,882 in 1904.

The bulletin showing the statistics of manufactures of Alabama in 1909 is an interesting document as a brief outline of its contents herewith given will testify. The number of factories in 1909 was 3,938, as against 1,882 in 1904. The number engaged in these factories in 1909 was 81,972; in 1904 the number thus engaged was 67,884. The capital employed had risen from $105,000,000 to $173,000,000, and the value of products of these factories in 1909 was $145,000,000; in 1904 the value of products was $109,000,000. Lumber, cotton goods and iron and steel ran a close race in 1909 in the respect of the value of products. The lumber imlls turned out products worth $26,000,000; the cotton mills turned out $22,000,000 worth of goods, and the iron and steel furnaces produced goods to the value of $21,000,000. In order then come foundries and machine shops, oil mills, coe, railroad shops, fertilizer factories, flour and grist mills, printing and publishing, turpentine stills, bakeries and brick kilns. No other industry in this State turned out in 1909 products to the value of $1,000,000.

Birmingham had in 1909 increased its factories to 248. In 1904 it had 122. The capital employed in 1909 was $23,000,000; in 1904 it was $5,700,000. The products of Birmingham's factories in 1909 footed up $24,000,000, as against $7,500,000 in 1904. These are large gains, but all the figures are official and none of them local. All come from the Census Bureau.

Miss Eva Booth, commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, addressed Birmingham religious bodies.

It was announced that the thriving little town of Cordova is to have an electric light and power plant.

Superintendent of Education Hammond, of St. Clair county, announced that the Boys' Corn Club of that county now had a membership of 350.

A number of secretaries of county fair associations of the state in response to an invitation of Secretary Chaffee of the State Fair Association attended a meeting held in Birmingham February 28, for the purpose of organizing a state association of fair associations.

The Executive Committee of the Republican party of the Eighth Congressional District met at Decatur and named March 26 as the date for holding the district convention in Decatur. President Taft, National Committeeman P. D. Barker and State Chairman P. M. Long were endorsed.

TAFT ASKS RAISE IN POSTAL RATES

Urges Adoption Of Commission's Recommendation On Second-Class Mail.

PROFIT IN POSTAL SERVICE

For the First Time in History the Department Made Money—Adoption of Parcel Post System Again Is Urged.

Washington, Feb. 22.—According to the annual report of Postmaster General Hitchcock transmitted to congress today the postoffice department, for the first time in history, shows a profit for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911.

Accompanying the document was the report of the commission on second-class mail matter appointed by joint resolution of congress on March 4 of last year and a brief message of the president, in which he called attention to the principal features of the two reports.

Would Increase Second-Class Rates.

The report of the commission on second-class mail matter makes the following recommendations:

1. The rate of 2 cents a pound on copies mailed by publishers to subscribers, to news agents, and as sample copies, and by news agents to their subscribers or to other news agents.

2. The rate of 1 cent for each 4 ounces for copies mailed by other than publishers and news agents; that is, the present transient rate.

3. The present free-in-county privilege retained, but not extended.

The commission also recommended that the cent-a-copy rate for newspapers other than weeklies and for periodicals not exceeding 2 ounces in weight, and the 2-cent-a-copy rate for periodicals exceeding 2 ounces in weight, when mailed at a city letter-carrier office for local delivery, be abolished.

As to the effect and adequacy of the proposed increase of 1 cent a pound in postage the commission says:

"Such an increase will not, in the opinion of the commission, bring distress upon the publishers of newspapers and periodicals, or seriously interfere with the dissemination of useful news or information. A reasonable time should be allowed, after the rate is fixed, before it is put into effect. While the new rate will be very far from compensating the government for the carriage and handling of second-class matter, it will to some extent relieve the existing burden and result in a more equitable adjustment of rates."

Both the president and the postmaster general concur in the recommendations.

President Taft again concurs in the recommendation of the Postmaster General for the adoption of a parcel post system, suggesting the inauguration of such a service on rural routes and in the city delivery service first.

Ownership of Telegraph Opposed.

Hitchcock's recommendation for government ownership of the telegraph lines under the supervision of the postal service is not approved of by the president. Regarding this he says:

"There is only one recommendation in which I can not agree—that is one which recommends that the telegraph lines in the United States should be made a part of the postal system and operated in conjunction with the mail system. This presents a question of government ownership of public utilities which are now being conducted by private enterprise under franchises from the government. I believe that the true principle is that private enterprise should be permitted to carry on such public utilities under due regulation as to rates by proper authority rather than that the government should itself conduct them. This principle I favor because I do not think it in accordance with the best public policy thus greatly to increase the body of public servants."

The report of the Postmaster General is full of statements of changes in the organization and methods of the postal service made since the last annual report, and of tentative drafts of legislation embodying certain recommendations of the department which need legislation to carry them out. It also calls attention to the fact that the revenues for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, amounted to $237,879,823.60 and that the expenditures amounted to $237,660,705.48, making a surplus of $219,118.12.

The report shows that the postal savings system was begun experimentally in January, 1911, and that it has now been extended so as to include 7,500 presidential post offices, which includes practically all of the post offices of that class. Preparations are also being made to establish the system at about 40,000 fourth-class offices.

"I would rather be happy than be rich," he declared.

"Oh, yes, we would I," she replied, "but one might as well try to be happy without being rich as to be an optimist when living in debt."

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

How Mrs. Reed of Peoria, Ill., Escaped The Surgeon's Knife.

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctor said I had a tumor and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a well and healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. I am glad to tell anyone what your medicines have done for me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 205 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Lynch Also Avoided Operation.

Jessup, Pa.—"After the birth of my fourth child, I had severe organic inflammation. I would have such terrible pains that it did not seem as though I could stand it. This kept up for three long months, until two doctors decided that an operation was needed.

"Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. JOSEPH A. LYNCH, Jessup, Pa.

Women who suffer from female ills should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of the most successful remedies the world has ever known, before submitting to a surgical operation.

FEDERAL EXPRESS PROPOSED IN BILL

GARDNER BELIEVES GOVERNMENT COULD PUT BUSINESS UNDER POSTAL SERVICE.

WOULD COST $39,168,819

Measure Indicates the Probable Cost of Taking Over the Various Properties of Country.

Washington.—Senator Gardner of Maine introduced a bill under which the government would take over the properties of the express companies and operate them as a part of the postal service, extending the service to the rural delivery.

The measure indicates the probable cost of taking over the properties as follows: Real property, $14,932,169; equipment, $7,381.45; materials and supplies, $138,210; advance payments on contracts, $5,836,666, and franchises, good will and other necessaries, $3,877,369, or a total of $39,165,819.

While the balance sheets of the companies show other assets of nearly $150,000,000, Senator Gardner argues that these are not devoted to express service, and that this property might be retained by the corporations without impairing the corporations.

It is proposed that rates shall be based upon weights and measures, including length of haul rather than the system now in vogue.

Senator Gardner, in a long statement analyzing the measure, declares that the transition of the express business from private corporations to government control could take place in a day and the business continue the next day without visible delay to the effectiveness of the service.

While the bill does not fix rates, Senator Gardner offers figures showing that express charges are 100 per cent. higher than his figures would indicate a profit, and claims the ratio could be reduced from 5 1-2 to 1 per cent. At the same time, he says, the express service would be extended over the country at large.

EXPLAINS CHANGE OF HEART.

Says He Meant Third Consecutive Term.

into the thick of the fight for the presinto the thic of the fight for the presidential nomination. He said that he was in the fight and was glad of it. He replied to the charge that he would be breaking his "third term" pledge if he accepted another nomination and asserted that whether or not he should be the choice of his party at the Chicago convention he would abide by its decision.

Colonel Roosevelt's position in regard to the "third term" was explained to a number of his callers.

"My position is perfectly simple," he said. "I stated it as clearly as I could in 1904 and reiterated it in 1907. I said that I would not accept a nomination for a third term under any circumstances, meaning, of course, a third consecutive term.

"I could not have said less at the time, nor could I have said more. Of course, I could not then know whether or not there would be a demand for me to accept a nomination at some future time. And, believing as I do, that the selection of candidates for the presidency rests entirely with the people, I could not have said that at no time in my life would I accept another nomination.

"It must be clear to any reasonable man that the precedent which forbids a third term has reference only to a third consecutive term. It grew out of the fact that a president of the United States, under the present convention system of electing delegates, can, if he knows how to use the machinery at his disposal, renominate himself, even though the majority of his party is against him. But after he has been out of office for a term he has lost control of that machinery. He is in the position absolutely of any private citizen. The machinery is then in the hands of the man occupying the office of president."

Dead in Arkansas Storms.

Little Rock, Ark.—Developments of the double-tailed tornado which devastated portions of Lincoln, Jefferson and Arkansas counties, and particularly the two latter, place the list of dead at ten. At least 25 were seriously injured. Homes, plantation equipment, rice and pumping stations and timber camps caught in the storm were razed. Debris was strewn in all directions for miles. Fire broke out in a number of the homes following the wreck.

NEWS BREVITIES.

Malta.—British armored cruiser Lancaster left here under sealed orders, presumably to protect British interests at Beirut.

Washington.—Advices from Santo Domingo to the state department indicate serious accusations of Haitian aid to the revolutionists at Monte Christ. Demands have been made for assistance by the Dominican government upon Haiti.

TRADE AS GOOD AS COULD BE EXPECTED

Especially in Year When a Presidential Election Is On.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

A large volume of business is moving, but because it does not break previous records and does not progressively and steadily increase, there is a disposition to describe trade conditions as less than satisfactory; whereas, the situation is, in fact, as good as could reasonably be expected in a year when a presidential campaign lends to retard enterprise. Outside of this quadrennial influence there is no ground for loud complaint. The iron and steel trade is, indeed, less active, though several large orders for steel cars, ties, locomotives and bridges have come in. As to prices terms are modified in some instances according to the desirability of the order. Moderate sales have been made of foundry and basic iron, but Bessemer is rather quiet; the latter is still nominally $14 and basic iron $12.25, valley, while billets 4x4 both Bessemer and open hearth are quoted $20 and sheet $21 Pittsburg. Conferences over rail specifications are attracting more attention, increased orders being expected owing to the heavy breakage caused by the extreme cold weather.

The wholesale dry goods markets display further seasonable activity, an increasing volume of orders appearing in jobbing and primary departments with advancing prices and retailers operating carefully but broadly in a wide range of fabrics. Mills stocks of many staples have been cleaned up and looms in numerous instances are under order for the next 60 to 90 days. The greatest strength continues in drills, sheetings, ducks and heavy colored clothes but fine cotton goods also showed definite improvement. Export trade is good, recent sales including 1000 bales of three yard sheetings to China at 6 3-4 cents, 2000 bales of standard prints to India at 7 3-4 cents and many miscellaneous lots for the Red Sea and Africa. Business in woolens and worsted is expanding and prices show an upward tendency. Yarns rule very firm and there is a moderate improvement in the demand for silks.

Business in the New England footwear market continues quiet. Orders are coming in moderately and most factories are sufficiently supplied with contracts to keep them employed for a few weeks.

There is some talk of higher prices for fall on account of the present conditions in hides and leather. The latter is still very firm with the tendency of prices against buyers.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

Many visiting buyers have been in the leading markets this week, and as a result house trade has shown further slight expansion with dry goods and millinary figuring to best advantage. On the other hand, road sales have been deterred by unfavorable weather conditions. The west and southwest have suffered most and where early spring sales at retail were beginning to enlarge, setbacks have been experienced. Though winter goods were helped to a good degree, thus making further inroads on already light stocks. Moreover, visiting buyers still display a noteworthy leaning to conservatism, and such being the case, the outlook tends to favor steady rather than voluminous trade. In some sections of the country, particularly those catering to cotton and winter wheat territory, there is a disposition to exercise caution about taking full orders from retail merchants, this policy being due to the fact that many final distributors are backward in paying old accounts.

In the dry goods markets demand from retail merchants is broadening, supplies are wanted promptly in comparatively small parcels, and on some makes of heavy cottons the mills are pretty well sold ahead. Export business in the coarser makes of goods is characterized by a steady demand for fair quantities, chiefly for shipment to India and to China.

Business failures for the week in Canada number 25, which compares with 31 last week and 26 in the like week of last year.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending February 29 were 266, against 309 last week, 228 in the like week of 1911, 254 in 1910, 244 in 1909 and 311 in 1908.

In the iron and steel lines prices on finished products still tend to weaken, and there is little or nothing being done in pig iron. With more moderate weather conditions will come the test as to whether prices on finished products can be maintained above the low levels of last November and early December.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada, for the week ending February 22, aggregate 2,385,893 bushels, against 709,137 last week and 1,905,959 this week last year.

For the 34 weeks ending February 22 exports are 168,167,555 bushels, against 79,538,575 in the like period last year.

Corn exports for the week are 505,243 bushels, against 1,512,569 last week and 1,367,892 in 1911. For the 34 weeks ending February 22 corn exports are [illegible] bushels,

"I WILL ACCEPT THE NOMINATION

"IF IT IS TENDERED ME," SAYS COLONEL ROOSEVELT IN HIS REPLY TO GOVERNORS.

PRESIDENT TAFT IS SILENT

Could Hardly Bring Himself to Believe That His Former Chief Would Oppose Him.

New York.—"I will accept the nomination for president if it is tendered me, and I will adhere to this decision until the convention has expressed its preference," is Col. Theodore Roosevelt's reply to the letter of seven governors asking him to stand for nomination.

The eagerly awaited reply was given out at Colonel Roosevelt's offices here during his absence on a trip to Boston. It was unexpectedly brief, but definite. It follows:

"New York, Feb. 24, 1912.

"Gentlemen: I deeply appreciate your letter, and I realize to the full the heavy responsibility it puts upon me, expressing as it does the carefully considered convictions of the men elected by popular vote to stand as the heads of government in their several states.

"I absolutely agree with you that this matter is not one to be decided with any reference to the personal preferences or interests of any man, but purely from the standpoint of the interests of the people as a whloe.

"I will accept the nomination for president if it is tendered me, and I will adhere to this decision until the convention has expressed its preference.

"One of the chief principles for which I have stood, and for which I now stand, and which I have always endeavored and always shall endeavor to reduce to action, is the genuine rule of the people; and, therefore, I hope that so far as possible the people may be given the chance, through direct primaries, to express their preference as to who shall be the nominee of the republican presidential convention. Very truly yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

"The Hon. William E. Glasscock, Governor of the State of West Virginia, Charleston, W. Va.

"The Hon. Chester A. Aldrich, Governor of the State of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb.

"The Hon. Rupert P. Bass, Governor of the State of New Hampshire, Concord, N. H.

"The Hon. Joseph M. Carey, Governor of the State of Wyoming, Cheyenne, Wyo.

"The Hon. Chase S. Osborne, Governor of the State of Michigan, Lansing, Mich.

"The Hon. W. R. Stubbs, Governor of the State of Kansas, Topeka, Kas.

"The Hon. Herbert S. Handley, Governor of the State of Missouri, Jefferson City, Mo."

The above named governors assembled at Chicago two weeks ago and drafted a letter to Col. Roosevelt, asserting that there was a popular demand for him to be president again and urging him to declare himself as to whether he would accept the republican nomination if it "came unsolicited and unsought."

For two weeks Col. Roosevelt considered the letter, indicating plainly that he had no intention of making a hasty reply.

President Taft was given a copy of his predecessor's letter, but he would make no statement. White House officials also were reticent, but they made no attempt to disguise their interest. The Taft campaign bureau was dark, Director William B. McKinley having left Washington at noon for Chicago.

The only remark emanating from the president during the day that bore upon the tense political situation was made to a senator who asked that his name be not used. It was:

"I know that we are right and I am confident that we will be successful."

It has been only in the last fortnight that President Taft has been willing to admit to his closest friends that he believed Colonel Roosevelt would enter the race against him for the nomination. It is doubted whether, up to the last minute, he was fully convinced that any announcement coming from his predecessor would be without a string attached.

That President Taft was deeply hurt to learn that from now on he must engage in an open contest against the man under whom he had served for many years became known as soon as the Roosevelt letter was made public.

TAX ASSESSOR

It is with pleasure that I note the candidacy of E. L. Thornton for Tax Assessor.

His long experience in the mercantile business and his several years dealings in lands, during which time he has written many papers containing deseriptions of lands and other property, make him thoroughly qualified to fill the office acceptably.

He is a sterling democrat, of much value to the party, but conservative and considerate of their views. Never saying or doing anything calculated to offend or wound the feelings of one belonging to another party. He is a citizen of whom any community should be proud; his character is above reproach; he has been in public business for 12 or 15 years and if he has any enemies I have never heard them say aught against him.

I have known him for 15 years and know him to be thoroughly competent, very deserving and splendid man for the place.

TO THE TEACHERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Chilton county is one of the few counties of the state not actively engaged in school improvement work. The county association is now complete and there are four active local associations in the county. The Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs offer a prize of $100.00 to the county organizing the greatest number of local associations between March 1st. and April 6th. Why not win that prize for Chilton county? Each teacher may organize his own district; call a meeting of your patrons. Tell them that in organizing they simply pledge themselves to work together for the good of the school. Then elect the usual officers. The county officers will help in these organizations at any time and on request will furnish full particulars in regard to the work.

HAY TOOLS YOU CAN DEPEND ON

Deering hay tools are doing good, reliable work, not only for users in this country, but also in foreign countries. They will do good work for you. Next time you are in town, come in and let us show you the Deering line of hay machines. We will be glad to explain how they will save you time and labor.

The Deering line of hay tools consists of mowers, sweep rakes, stackers and tedders. You will be interested in the new improvements of these machines. Perhaps you don't expect to buy, but as long as an investigation does not place you under any obligation to buy, isn't it to your advantage to come in and see us? You can't help but get some information which will be valuable to you. Come in and get a catalogue anyhow.

Sheriff's Sale.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Circuit Court. Spring Term, 1911.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the said Court of said county, Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I, as Sheriff of said county, was commanded to make the sum of one hundred and seventy-seven and 60-100 dollars, principal and interest, and the sum of six and 50-100 dollars, costs, the amount of a certain judgment and costs therein obtained at the said term of said Court of said county, Alabama, in favor of Teague & Sons against R. H. Martin, out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of R. H. Martin. Now, therefore, I, as Sheriff of said county, under and by virtue of the within execution, have on this the 19th day of January, 1912, levied upon the following described real estate as the property of R. H. Martin, to-wit:

One lot of land in the town of Maplesville, Alabama, bounded as follows: On the east by the right of way of the Southern and Mobile & Ohio railroads, where they cross each other in said town of Maplesville, Ala., and on the North, West and South by Mrs. N. E. Goodwin's property containing, one and one fourth (1 1-4) acres, together with a complete gin plant thereon. Also the following described land (except the school lot of one eighth (1-8) of an acre, beginning at a certain point on the east boundary line of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's line in the town of Maplesville, Ala., said certain point being South eighty ona degrees fifteen minutes west (1132) feet from an iron pin on the West edge of the right of way of the Southern railway, known as South-east corner of lot No. 3 in the survey of the "Town of Cuba," running thence from said certain point north eighty one degrees fifteen minutes east 262 feet to the South-west corner of a one acre lot owned by R. H. Martin; thence Northwest 200 feet along said one acre lot; thence North eighty one degrees fifteen minutes 220 feet along said one acre lot to the North-west corner of the Boykin lot; thence North eleven degrees west along a lot owned by R. H. Martin 200 feet to a point South eighty one degrees fifteen minutes West three hundred and ninety eight and four-tenths feet to East boundary of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's land; thence South four hundred one and sixth tenths feet along said East boundary to point of beginning, containing two and nine tenths acres in Section 21, Township 21, Range 12 East, all of said lands being located in the town of Maplesville, Ala.

Therefore, according to said command, I will expose for sale at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named R. H. Martin, in and to the above described property, on THE 12th DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1912, during the legal hours of sale, at Clanton, Alabama, in front of the Court House door.

This 19th day of January, 1912.

A GREAT DISCOVERY

Certain Ingredients That Really Promote Hair Growth When Properly Combined.

Resorcin is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Nepthol, which is both germicidal and anticeptic, a combination is formed which destroys the germs which rob the hair of its natural nourishment, and creates a clean, healthy condition of the scalp which prevents the development of new germs..

Pilocarpin, although not a coloring matter or dye, is a well-known ingredient for restoring the hair to its natural color, when the loss of hair has been caused by disease of the scalp.

These ingredieuts in proper combination with alcohol added as a stimulant and for its well-defined nourishing properties, perfect perhaps the most effective remedy that is known for scalp and hair troubles.

We have a remedy which is chiefly composed of these ingredients, in combination with other extremely invaluable medical agents. We guarantee it to positively cure dandruff and to grow hair, even though the scalp in spots is bare of hair. If there is any vitality left in the roots, it will positively cure baldness, or we will refund your money. If the scalp has a glazed, shiny appearance, its an indication that baldness is permanent, buf in other instances we believe baldness is curable.

We want every one troubled with scalp disease or loss of hair to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. If it does not cure dandruff and grow hair to the satisfaction of the user, we will, without question or quibble return every cent paid us for it. We print this guarantee on every bottle. It has effected a positive cure in 93 per cent of cases where put to a practical test.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is entirely unlike, and we think in every particular, better than anything else we know of for the purpose for which it is prescribed.

We urge you to try this preparation at our entire risk. Certainly we know of no better guarantee to give you. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Clanton only at our store. The Rexall store Upchurch Drug Co.

"I Like You, Mr. Harnish, and That Is All."

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and, amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco where he meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer. He makes large investments and gets into the political ring. For a rest he goes to the country. Daylight gets deeper into high finance in San Francisco, but often the longing for the simple life nearly overcomes him. Dede Mason buys a horse and Daylight meets her in her saddle trips. One day he asks Dede to go with him on one more ride, his purpose being to ask her to marry him, and they canter away, she trying to analyze her feelings.

CHAPTER XV.—Continued.

But through it all ran the golden thread of love. At first he had been content just to ride with Dede and to be on comradely terms with her; but the desire and the need for her increased. The more he knew of her, the higher was his appraisal. Had she been reserved and haughty with him, or been merely a giggling, simpering creature of a woman, it would have been different. Instead, she amazed him with her simplicity and wholesomeness, with her great store of comradeliness. The latter was the unexpected. He had never looked upon woman in that way. Woman, the toy; woman, the harpy; woman, the necessary wife and mother of the race's offspring—all this had been his expectation and understanding of woman. But woman, the comrade and playfellow and joyfellow—this was what Dede had surprised him in. And the more she became worth while, the more ardently his love burned, unconsciously shading his voice with caresses, and with equal unconsciousness flaring up signal fires in his eyes. Nor was she blind to it, yet, like many women before her, she thought to play with the pretty fire and escape the consequent conflagration.

"Winter will soon be coming on," she said regretfully, and with provocation, one day, "and then there won't be any more riding."

"But I must see you in the winter just the same," he cried hastily.

She shook her head.

"I've been pretty good," he declared. "I leave it to you if I haven't. It's been pretty hard, too, I can tell you. You just think it over. Not once have I said a word about love to you, and me loving you all the time. That's going some for a man that's used to having his own way. I'm somewhat of a rusher when it comes to traveling. I reckon I'd rush God Almighty if it came to a race over the ice. And yet I didn't rush you. I guess this fact is an indication of how much I do love you. Of course I want you to marry me. Have I said a word about it, though? Nary a chirp, nary a flutter. I've been quiet and good, though it's almost made me sick at times, this keeping quiet. I haven't asked you to marry me. I'm not asking you now. Oh, not but what you satisfy me. I sure know you're the wife for me. But how about myself? Do you know me well enough to know your own mind?" He shrugged his shoulders. "I don't know, and I ain't going to take chances on it now. You've got to know for sure whether you think you could get along with me or not, and I'm playing a slow conservative game. I ain't a-going to lose for overlooking my hand."

This was love-making of a sort beyond Dede's experience. Nor had she ever heard of anything like it.

"So you see," he urged, "just for a square deal we've got to see some more of each other this winter. Most likely your mind ain't made up yet—"

"But it is," she interrupted. "I wouldn't dare permit myself to care for you. Happiness, for me, would not lie that way. I like you, Mr. Harnish, and all that, but it can never be more than that."

"It's because you don't like my way of living," he charged, thinking in his own mind of the sensational joy-rides and general profligacy with which the newspapers had credited him—thinking this, and wondering whether or not, in maiden modesty, she would disclaim knowledge of it.

To his surprise, her answer was flat and uncompromising.

"No; I don't."

"I know I've been brash on some of those rides that got into the papers," he began his defense. "And then I've been traveling with a lively crowd—"

"I don't mean that," she said, "though I know about it, too, and can't say that I like it. But it is your life in general, your business. There are women in the world who could marry a man like you and be happy, but I couldn't. And the more I cared for such a man, the more unhappy I should be. You see, my unhappiness, in turn, would tend to make him unhappy. I should make a mistake, and he would make an equal mistake, though his would not be so hard on him because he would still have his business."

"Business!" Daylight gasped. "What's wrong with my business? I play fair and square. There's nothing underhand about it, which can't be said of most businesses, whether of the big corporations or of the cheating, lying, little corner-grocerymen. I play the straight rules of the game, and I don't have to lie or cheat or break my word."

"Don't you see," he went on, "the whole game is a gamble. Everybody gambles in one way or another. The farmer gambles against the weather and the market on his crops. So does the United States Steel Corporation. The business of lots of men is straight robbery of the poor people. But I've never made that my business. You know that. I've always gone after the robbers."

"I missed my point," she admitted. "Wait a minute."

And for a space they rode in silence.

"I see it more clearly than I can state it, but it's something like this. There is legitimate work, and there's work that—well, that isn't legitimate. The farmer works the soil and produces grain. He's making something that is good for humanity. He actually, in a way, creates something, the grain that will fill the mouths of the hungry."

"And then the railroads and market-riggers and the rest proceed to rob him of that same grain," Daylight broke in.

"There ain't much difference between playing halfway robber like the railroad hauling that farmer's wheat to market, and playing all robber and robbing the robbers like I do. And, besides, halfway robbery is too slow a game for me to sit in. You don't win quick enough for me."

"But what do you want to win for?" Dede demanded. "You have millions and millions already; why can't you do good with all your money?"

Daylight laughed.

"Doing good with your money! Ain't it funny, to go around with brass knuckles and a big club breaking folks' heads and taking their money away from them until I've got a pile, and then, repenting of my ways, going around and bandaging up the heads the other robbers are breaking? I leave it to you. That's what doing good with money amounts to. Every once in a while some robber turns soft-hearted and takes to driving an ambulance. That's what Carnegie did. He smashed heads in pitched battles at Homestead, regular wholesale head-breaker he was, held up the suckers for a few hundred million, and now he goes around dribbling it back to them. Funny? I leave it to you."

He rolled a cigarette and watched her half curiously, half amusedly. His replies and harsh generalizations of a harsh school were disconcerting, and she came back to her earlier position.

"I can't argue with you, and you know that. No matter how right a woman is, men have such a way about them—well, what they say sounds most convincing, and yet the woman is still certain they are wrong. But there is one thing, the creative joy; and it's a higher joy than mere gambling. Haven't you ever made things yourself—a log cabin up in the Yukon, or a canoe, or raft, or something? And don't you remember how satisfied you were, how good you felt, while you were doing it and after you had it done?"

While she spoke his memory was busy with the associations she recalled. He saw the deserted flat on the river bank by the Klondike, and he saw the log cabins and warehouses spring up, and all the log structures he had built, and his sawmills working night and day on three shifts.

"Why, dog-gone it, Miss Mason, you're right—in a way. I've built hundreds of houses up there, and I remember I was proud and glad to see them go up. I'm proud now, when I remember them. And there was Ophir—the most God-forsaken moose-pasture of a creek you ever laid eyes on. I made that into the big Ophir. Why, I ran the water in there from the Klondike, eighty miles away. They all said I couldn't, but I did it, and I did it by myself. The dam-and the dams cost me four million. Say, you should have seen that Ophir—new power plants, electric lights, and four kinds of mean on the payroll—working night and day. I guess I do not all a thing. I made Ophir, and she was a hummer."

"And you won something there that was more than mere money," Dede encouraged. "Now do you know what I would do if I had lots of money and simply had to go on playing at business? Take all the southerly and westerly slope of these bare hills. I'd buy them in and plant eucalyptus on them. I'd do it for the joy of doing it anyway; but suppose I had that gambling twist in me which you talk about, why, I'd do it just the same and make money out of the trees. And there's my other point again. Instead of raising the price of coal without adding an ounce of coal to the market supply, I'd be making thousands and thousands of cords of firewood—making something where nothing was before. And everybody who ever crossed on the ferries would look up at these forested hills and be made glad. Who was made glad by your adding four dollars a ton to Rock Wells?

It was Daylight's turn to be silent for a time while she waited an answer.

"Would you rather I did things like that?" he asked at last.

"It would be better for the world, and better for you," she answered non-committally.

CHAPTER XVI.

All week every one in the office knew that something new and big was afoot in Daylight's mind. On Sunday Dede learned all about it.

"I've been thinking a lot of our talk," he began, "and I've got an idea I'd like to give it a flutter. And I've got a proposition to make your hair stand up. It's what you call legitimate, and at the same time it's the gosh-dangdest gamble a man ever went into. How about planting minutes wholesale, and making two minutes grow where one minute grew before? Oh, yes, and planting a few trees, too—say several million of them. You remember the quarry I made believe I was looking at? Well, I'm going to buy it. I'm going to buy these hills, too, clear from here around to Berkeley and down the other way to San Leandro. I own a lot of them already, for that matter. But mum is the word. I'll be buying a long time to come before anything much is guessed about it, and I don't want the market to jump up out of sight. You see that hill over there. It's my hill running clear down its slopes through Piedmont, and halfway along these rolling hills into Oakland. And it's nothing to all the things I'm going to buy."

He paused triumphantly.

"The ferry system between Oakland and San Francisco is the worst combination in the United States. You cross on it every day, six days in the week—some? Why, every week days, a month, or three months, or a year. Every minute you're on it you're losing time. Every minute you're on it you're losing time. Every minute you're on it you're losing time

WAR ON THE WOLVES

Biological Survey Does Much to Exterminate Them.

VALUE OF BAILEY'S REPORT

Expert Found Where the Animals Bred and Advised the Slaying of Their Young—Plan Saved Stockmen Vast Sums.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—The biological survey of the agricultural department is much interested just now in the reports which come from the far west of the killing of cattle and sheep by wolves and coyotes. The wolf probably is not now as vexing as it was, although for years the stock raisers were tremendously troubled by the forays of the animals. The wolves in the Jackson Hole region, however, just now are preying on the elk. Some years ago there were few wolves in this section and the elk were the prey of the mountain lions, or, more properly speaking, the pumas. Now this big cat tribe has been pretty nearly killed off and the wolves have appeared to take their place.

The wolf plague as it affected the stock raisers was in part done away with through the efforts of the biological survey, which on one or two occasions congress has attempted to wipe out of existence. Recently, however, the lawmakers have taken more kindly to the work of the survey, a kindliness which developed because of the support which the survey receives from the farmers and ranchmen of the country.

Some years ago Vernon W. Bailey of the survey went west with the sanction of the biological officials and of President Roosevelt. Mr. Bailey undertook to find a means by which the wolves might be exterminated, or, at any rate, decreased in numbers without making a recourse to poison necessary. There had been a constant warfare on the part of some of the western senators and representatives against the government's policy of setting aside forest reserves. One of the arguments used against the preserves was that they were the breeding places of large numbers of wolves who, from the forest recesses, forayed on the stock.

Young Wolves Slain in Dens.

Mr. Bailey made a thorough investigation and he found out the wolves did not make their dens in the forest, but that they raised their young in the shelter of rocky caves in the open country. He suggested the searching out of the dens and the killing of the young wolves. He told the sections of the country in which the dens were to be found, and as a result of his report thousands of the young of the wolves have been killed and hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of stock has been saved from destruction.

Speaking about wolves and pumas makes one think of bears. Down in the national museum they have the skin and skull of what is called the Louisiana bear. It was shot by Colonel Roosevelt some years ago and sent to the national museum authorities. Mr. Roosevelt had an idea that this bear represented a distinct species, one which it was suspected only existed in America. Nearly one hundred years ago an Englishman had maintained that the cane brakes of Louisiana had a bear different from the ordinary black bear of the eastern United States. He was disputed by the scientists of America and the controversy waged hot for a while and then cooled off and virtually was forgotten.

When Colonel Roosevelt sent his bear to the national museum with his word of belief that it might be a new species there was an immediate study of the subject, and finally it was discovered that the Englishman was right and that the country east of the Mississippi river, instead of having only one species of bear, has two, a fact which may not seem to be important to the laymen, but which is of immense importance apparently to the scientists.

Some time ago attention was called to a bill introduced in the senate providing for payment by the government to certain officers of the Confederate service who had suffered it was said many hardships while prisoners, and had suffered them contrary to the usages of warfare. It was also said that if a bill of this kind had been introduced years ago that it would have been made the subject of long and heated debates on the floor of congress. The war, however, seems to be a long time in the past.

It was only recently, however, that objection was raised by a few subordinate officials in the war department to cutting into the monument over the grave of Gen. Joe Wheeler in Arlington words which would show that he had been a major general in the armed forces of the Confederacy. If these officials hoped to have their way they soon found out that it was to be denied them, for many federal soldiers, and all the high officials of government protested against the objection. The inscription showing that Wheeler was a major general of the Confederacy already had been cut into the granite and the hope of the sane ones is that it will remain there as long as the granite endures.

I went to Arlington and read the Confederate service inscription. It leads the rest of the record of Wheeler's soldier service. Below it appears the statement of the fact that Wheeler was a major general in the Federal army at the time of his death. He rests under the blue of the sky and the gray of the clouds and he rests in good company.

Oak in Schofield's Monument.

Wheeler, the Confederate veteran, and Schofield, the Union veteran, died about the same time and the bodies of both were buried in Arlington. They sleep practically side by side. A tall shaft marks the southerner's grave. Over the northerner no monument save the small government marker as yet has been placed.

There is a noble natural monument, however, where Schofield lies. It is an oak, stately, towering and sturdy, an oak that was not young when George Washington's stepson chose Arlington for his dwelling place, and an oak that was old when Robert E. Lee stood on the porch of the house still standing, not a stone throw's distance from Schofield's grave, and looked across the Potomac at Washington, then to turn away and to leave for Richmond to take a commission in the Confederate army.

Not long ago there was levity in the usually grave senate when a bill was considered to pension the widows of several braves of the Crow tribe of Indians. The levity was caused by the names, read aloud in the senate, of two of the widowed beneficiaries of the bill—Mrs. Bullhead and Mrs. Shavehead. Other widows who profited were Mrs. Little Eagle and Mrs. Hawkman.

The husbands of these Indian women won pensions for them in an engagement in which there was neither time nor reason for levity. Bullhead fought as well as did the hero of fiction, and perhaps history, Front de Boeuf, his namesake, of whom all readers of Scott know. Shavehead was not second to Bullhead in his fighting, nor yet were the other Crow Indians who, with their leaders, fell in the fight at the time that the attempt was made to arrest Sitting Bull at his camp on the Grand river, December 15, 1890.

It was a report of Colonel Fechet, now dead, that brought about the pensioning of the widows of the Indians who were killed on that December day a little over twenty-two years ago. Colonel Fechet for some years before his death was detailed as the commanding officer of the young student soldiers at the University of Illinois.

The pension bill by which Mary Bullhead and Annie Shavehead and the rest profit was before congress for years, but no action could be secured.

Picturesque Names Changed.

No white man ever fought better than did the red man on the Grand river, Standing Rock agency, just ten days before two troops of the Seventh cavalry were practically wiped out of existence by the braves of Big Foot on Wounded Knee creek. Indian names are always picturesque, but when the white man starts in with the water of his baptismal fount the picturesqueness is likely to be washed away with the savage sin. Here are the names of some of the red men who won medals. One of the leaders in the fight of Sitting Bull's camp was known as Take the Hat; now he is plain Dennis. Swift Hawk has become Hugh, White Buffalo is Luke and Soldier is Eugene.

Colonel Fechet, who made a report on the bravery of Bullhead, Shavehead and the others, had very little to say about his own part of the affair which ended in the killing of Sitting Bull and the dispersing of his following. The colonel in fact was content to praise everybody but himself for the work done, and the chances are that no senator on the floor remembered the part which this American army officer played in that drama of the plains which served as a curtain raiser for the last great Sioux war.

Colonel Fechet's Exploit.

It was a bitter December night when the little company of Indian police at Standing Rock agency was sent out under orders to arrest Sitting Bull. The war department officials thought it was better that the Indian police should attempt to arrest the great Sioux chief and medicine man rather than to send white troops into the field to accomplish the arrest.

There were 43 braves in the Indian police band, and when they came to the camp of Sitting Bull they ran up against 160 Sioux. The medicine man was killed at the first exchange of shots and the most famous Sioux Indian, of comparatively recent history at least, went where it is hoped the buffalos are plenty.

The police routed Sitting Bull's followers, but they were speedily reinforced by another band of Sioux, and the police were compelled to barricade themselves in some log huts, from which they held off the swarming horde until Fechet, then a captain of the Eighth cavalry, reached the scene with two troops of horse. Fechet had gone into the field with his troops to await the arrival of a courier with the news of Sitting Bull's arrest. The courier came headlong and almost speechless. Finally he told his tale. Sitting Bull was dead, many of the Indian police were killed and the rest were surrounded by hordes of Sioux and in momentary danger of being slain.

Captain Fechet had with him two troops, a light field piece and an ambulance. An accident happened to the wheels of the artillery limber chest, and it was necessary to attach the trail of the piece to the rear of the ambulance in order to move the gun to the front.

Handicapped in this way, the command made a ride of 40 miles over the roughest possible trails in the bleak hours of a winter night. Fechet's command routed the attacking Indians and rescued the police besieged in the huts.

AKED EQUAL TO SITUATION

Example of the Soft Answer That Turneth Away Wrath—Also the Truth.

One of Dr. Aked's most ardent supporters when that divine was pastor of Mr. John D. Rockefeller's church is fond of telling what he considers a striking example of Dr. Aked's wit.

Dr. Aked was fond of taking long country walks, and one day, being far in the country and wandering through a field, he and his friend noticed a sign nailed to a tree. "No trespassing here."

Hurrying to get out of the forbidden ground they met a farmer who assailed them grimly with the remark:

"Trespassers in this field are prosecuted."

Dr. Aked smiled at the irate farmer.

"But we are not trespassers, my good man," said he.

"What be you then?" demanded the farmer.

"We are Presbyterians, my dear sir," replied Dr. Aked and walked away.

No True Friend.

There's a Hugh Ford and a Harry Ford at the new theater. The similarity of initials sometimes makes trouble. The other day a perfumed note came for "H. Ford," and Hugh Ford, opening it, found it was from a woman. The next day Harry Ford opened a letter addressed to "H. Ford." Then he passed over to Hugh the bill marked "due and payable," which it contained.

"You're no true friend," said Hugh Ford. "You might have paid my bill for me; I kept your date."—New York Letter to the Cincinnati Times-Star.

PECULIAR AFTER EFFECTS OF GRIP THIS YEAR.

Leaves Kidneys in Weakened Condition

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of grip which has visited so many homes. The symptoms of grip this year are very distressing and leave the system in a run down condition, particularly the kidneys which seem to suffer most, as every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to more serious sickness, such as dreaded Bright's Disease. Local druggists report a large sale of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root is a great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, and, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, free by mail, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it. Regular size bottles 50 cts. and $1.00. For sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.

He Was Shown in Missouri.

"An Englishman who recently arrived in this country went out into Marion county to visit some of the Lord Scully lands, and while wandering about ran onto a small white skunk," says Tom O'Neal. "Afterwards, on making inquiry as to what kind of animal it was and the name of it, he was told that it was a polecat. After he had changed his clothes he sat down and wrote to his family back in England as follows:

"'I have been out looking over the country today, and in traveling about I met with an American cat, a beautiful little creature, but I think it had the most offensive breath, don't you know, of any animal I ever saw in my life.'"—Kansas City Journal.

Rubbing It In.

The sad-looking man approached the city editor.

"I was sent up here to whip you," stated the visitor, as he produced a clipping. "See what you said about my wife this morning."

The city editor read: "Mrs. Griffin served a dirty luncheon."

"The word was 'dainty,' sir, when my wife wrote it," explained the visitor. "Now read further."

The city editor read: "Mrs. Griffin was gowned in aesdzxquoaaxshjiidy hdkk896777nnw Ujjgaggkimnwgzt

"Now," said the visitor, "my wife does not mind the insult passed upon the luncheon, but you must retract that libel on her gown."

Of the Same Mind.

The bishop grasped the purser's arm with a gentle, ecclesiastical pressure. "I would explain to you," he began, "that I am very much pleased with my room mate. That is, I find him a gentleman in every respect, and I wouldn't have you think—er—my coming to you with these valuables is—er—a—any reflection upon him, you know. His appearance is—er—in every way——"

"Oh, that's all right," interrupted the purser, "the gentleman has been to me with his own valuables, and he says the very same things about you."—Hampton Magazine.

Back in Good Old Bowl Days.

A man of apparent means brought two boys into a barber shop for a haircut. While waiting for the completion of the job he said:

"I never sat in a barber's chair when I was a kid. My brother used to go over to the engine house and borrow the horse clippers. Then my mother would put a bowl on my head and cut around it. Until I was 12 years old I always looked like a window washer's brush."

HER WELL-MERITED REPROOF

Rebuke of Boston Teacher Must Almost Have Broken the Heart of Little Sammy Parker.

A well-known educator tells of a school of advanced ideas in Boston, wherein no pupil is ever punished in any way, the individuality of every child being held too sacred for repression.

One day, it appears, soon after her entrance into this school, one little girl came home with a face wet with tears and her mouth covered with blood.

The mother was greatly alarmed, and, taking the child into her arms, asked her what had happened.

The story of what had happened was sobbed out to the sympathetic mother. One Sammy Parker, it semed, had struck the little girl and knocked out a couple of teeth.

When the unfortunate youngster had been restored to equanimity her father, who had in the meantime put in an appearance, naturally enough wanted to know how the teacher had dealt with Sammy.

"She didn't do anything."

"Well, what did she say?"

"She called Sammy to her desk and said: 'Samuel, don't you know that was very antisocial?'"—Harper's Magazine.

CHILD'S HEAD A MASS OF HUMOR

"I think the Cuticura remedies are the best remedies for eczema I have ever heard of. My mother had a child who had a rash on its head when it was real young. Doctor called it baby rash. He gave us medicine, but it did no good. In a few days the head was a solid mass, a running sore. It was awful; the child cried continually. We had to hold him and watch him to keep him from scratching the sore. His suffering was dreadful. At last we remembered Cuticura Remedies. We got a dollar bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bar of Cuticura Soap. We gave the Resolvent as directed, washed the head with the Cuticura Soap, and applied the Cuticura Ointment. We had not used half before the child's head was clear and free from eczema, and it has never come back again. His head was healthy and he had a beautiful head of hair. I think the Cuticura Ointment very good for the hair. It makes the hair grow and prevents falling hair." (Signed) Mrs. Francis Lund, Plain City, Utah, Sept. 19, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

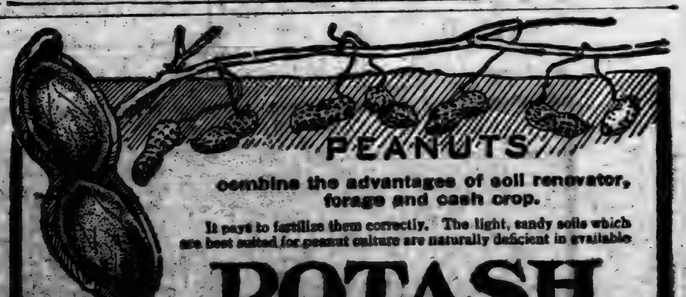
Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.



Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well.

Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this non-secret remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. Is a pure glycerin extract of healing, native American roots.

and other requiring lime as well as phosphate. The crop takes from the soil two and one-half times as much Potash as phosphoric acid. The best growers who use raw materials to fertilize the crop use them in about this proportion.

It is plain that any mixed fertilizer for peanuts should contain more Potash than phosphoric acid. The use of 200 lbs. Muriate of Potash or 400 lbs. Kainit per acre, or 200 lbs. of fertilizer with 10 per cent. Potash, would furnish two-thirds as much Potash as a 100-bushel crop removes. You can afford to feed this crop well—also to feed it right.

If your dealer does not carry this kind of goods, write us for prices of Potash salts in any quantity from 200 lbs. up, and for our free book on fertilizer formulas.

Dead Duck in Weak Heart

DEATH OF MR. P. M. MCKEE

A FAITHFUL SERVANT OF THE GOVERNMENT.

On last Friday about noon, Mr. P. M. McKee, better known to his friends as "Mord" McKee, breathed his last. For weeks he had been suffering from indigestion to such an extent that he was compelled to give up his work as a mail carrier and devote himself entirely to recuperation.

On Wednesday a severe attack of indigestion siezed him and for three days he suffered intense agony till death relieved his suffering.

Mr. McKee was a member of the Woodmen Lodge of Clanton, which organization arranged the funeral ceremonies. He was a faithful servant of the government, a firm and loyal friend and an active worker in whatever cause he espoused.

The funeral services took place from the Baptist church at noon on Saturday and was attended by a large gathering of friends which attested the popularity of this wel known citizen.

Mr. McKee leaves a wife and one little daughter, besides numerous other relatives throughout the county to mourn his departure.

As a testimonial to his faithfulness and in honor of his memory the Post Office at Clanton was draped in mourning during the funeral services.

NOTICE

The Chilton County Baptist S. S. Convention will be held at Samaria church, one and one-half miles from Clanton, on the Fifth Sunday in March; also on Saturday before the Baptist Minister's Conference will meet at the same place. Watch for the program.

Chairman of Committee.

NOT SATISFIED

CORONER'S JURY VERDICT NOT SATISFACTORY.

Last week the Press made mention of the death of Jos. Howard in the northeastern part of the county. The death was rather mysterious. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide. Mr. Howard's sister, who read the account given by the Press was not altogether satisfied as to the manner of her brother's death, believing that suicide was not the correct verdict of the affair. With her attorney and the County Solicitor she went to the place where her brother is supposed to have committed suicide. While the Press is not authorized to give out any specific statement it is more than probable that the body of Mr. Howard will be exhumed and a more thorough and searching investigation made.

FOR BACKACHE KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

Heart Symptoms

The ailments of women include symptoms of heart trouble known as palpitation of the heart. The palpitation is so violent at times as to be really painful and leads the patient to fear she has heart disease. Ninety per cent of such cases are not heart disease at all but only a symptom of a liver disorder which has affected the normal action of the heart, and on applying the proper remedies the unusual throbbing ceases. The stomach and digestion need strengthening and the depressing effect of these disorders on the female organism must be corrected. For the latter purpose there is no more effective remedy to be found anywhere than

AVOID HARSH DRUGS

Many Cathartics Tend To Cause Injury To The Bowels.

If you are subject to canstipation, you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They may give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. The preparation is called Rexall Orderlies. They are prompt, soothing and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal ingredient is odorless, tasteless and colorless. Combined with other well-known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time, day or night, without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge or cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate and aged people as well as for the most hearty persons.

They come in three size packages, 12 tablets 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents; 80 tablets 50 cents. Remember you can obtain them in Clanton only at our store—The Rexall Store. Upchurch Drug Co.

VOTERS SHOULD QUALIFY.

Some of our candidates acting upon the suggestion that there would be no registration before the regular term in July, have informed the young voters of the county, and the elder ones also who have not heretofore regitsered, that it would not be necessary for them to register in order to participate in the April primary election fo the selection of county, district and state candidates. There are two glariing errore in the reports given out, to which candidates should give especial attention and hasten to correct.

In the first place, as stated in the Press last week, the Registrars will most positively be at the Court House on Friday and Saturday, March 29th and 30th, for the purpose of registering such persons as are entitled to register.

In the second place if you are not a registered voter you cannot participate in the primary election.

The Executive Committee tried its level best to arrange so that ALL who wished to participate might do so, but the committee has the authority to set aside the Constitution of the state of Alabama which distinctly says (Section 183) that participants in any primary election must be qualified electors. That is, they must be of age and must have registered before the primary election and must have paid poll tax, if any poll tax is due. Those who have become of age since February 1st. are not required to pay poll tax but you MUST register.

The Committee provided that all who are legally qualified, or will be legally qualified to vote in the November election are invited to participate in the April primary but the Committee could not, if it had desired to do so, arrange for a person under age or one not registered or one due poll tax in any amount to participate in said primary election.

Candidates should make a note of this and so inform their friends; some may be expecting a nomination through the votes of those who are not qualified to participate unless they register in March; that is, they have informed friends that it will not be necessary for them to come to Clanton and register! It is as necessary for voters to be registered as it is for them to have paid poll tax and to be of age.

The Registrars will be here two days; surely every young man in the county who wishes to participate in the primary and who has not heretofore registered, can arrange to be here on one of those days and have his name enrolled

Let the candidates and, in fact, every voter, correct the impression that has gone abroad; see your unregistered friends and have them here on Friday and Saturday, March 29th and 30th so that they may register.

Do not permit a wrong impression to go out. Should a candidate be defeated because of the impression which now seems to prevail, it will be his own fault and cannot be layed at the door of any other person.

MARVIN YOUNG SHOT BY POSSE MEMBER

KILLED AT RIDERVILLE. REFUSED TO GIVE HIMSELF UP.

Selma, Ala., March 1—Marvin Young, white, aged 35, a brother of the yard foreman of the Southern Railway in Bessemer, and well connected, was shot to death this evening about six o'clock near Riderville, in Chilton county, [according to information received here tonight.

The shot which ended Young's life was fired by Joe Melton, who, with three other men, were attempting to arrest the man as he sat upon a trestle of the Southern Railway near Riderville. Melton fired only one shot from a 44-calibre colts revolver, which ended the young man's life.

From the reports received here, a posse of citizens in the northern part of Dallas county, and the southern part of chilton have been on the trail of Young all today trying to effect his arrest.

Tonight Mr. Melton and those with him, ran across Young as he was sitting upon the railroad track. They called to him to throw up his hands, but instead of doing so, Young reached over for a satchel which he had by his side, when Melton fired. In this satchel later was found a pistol, two watches, a quart of whiskey and several other articles which were identified as having been stolen from stores and places of residence in Plantersville last night. At the time he was shot, Young had on three pairs of pants and two coats which are said to have been stolen from stores in Plantersville.

About 4 o'clock this morning fire was discovered in the store of W. T. Coke at Plantersville. The fire quickly spread to the dental office of Dr. Carroll and the feed room of Dr. T. M. Martin. The entire population of Plantersville were aroused and among those who helped to fight the fire was the family of D. J. Mitchell.

Some time later as Mrs. Mitchell was entering her home, she discovered a man in the house, who fled through a back door. A search of the house revealed that two gold watches and a pistol were missing. In the satchel found by Young's side after he had been shot to death were the watches and pistol stolen from the Mitchell home.

This morning suspicion pointed to Young as the one who had fired the stores and robbed the home in Plantersville. During the afternoon it was reported there that he had been seen walking along the track of the Southern Railway towards Riderville and immediately a posse of about fifty men and boys heavily armed started in search of him. This posse was closisg in upon Young when they heard the pistol shot fired by Mr. Melton, which caused his death.

About eight or ten months ago, Marvin Young was sentenced to work the public roads of Dallas county. He had been arrested here and convicted on the charge of having stolen a boat in Montgomery, with which he drifted down the river to Selma. He was arrested as he was trying to sell the boat and was indicted by the grand jury of the circuit court of Dallas county and sentenced to work for several months on the roads of the county. He finished this sentence a few weeks ago and was released from the convict camp located near Plantersville.

Recently there have been several robberies committed around Plantersville and it is now believed that all of them can be traced to Young.—Montgomery Advertiser

PUBLIC SALE.

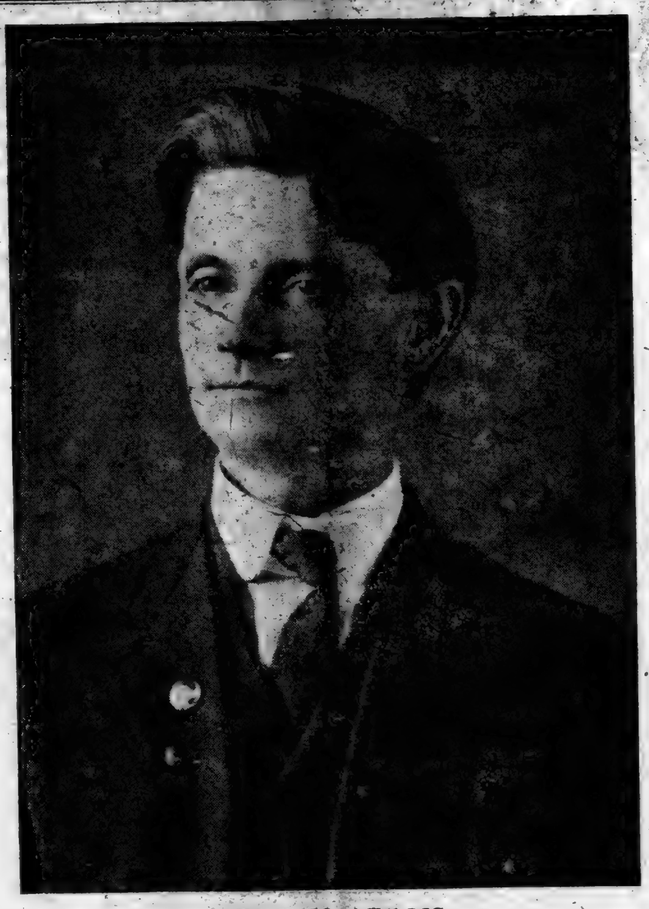
I will sell at my place, 1 1-2 miles north of Thorsby, on Saturday, March 9th, 1912, seven head of young grade Jersey heifers and three head of young grade Jersey cows. The latter were fresh in December and all are giving more or less milk at the present time.

They are all bred to a full blood Jersey bull and are due to freshen along about July.

All are tubercular tested.

Each individual is alright; the only reason for selling is to dispose of the grades, as I will, in future, keep only registered stock.

Any one from a distance coming in on the trains Saturday morning and wishing to attend the sale, will be met at the depot and brought out to my place, if they will send me word by mail that they are coming.



Sale begins promptly at half past one in the afternoon.

Terms: Spot cash.

He is making a thorough and systematic canvass of the county, in the interest of his candidacy. Aside from being a clever gentleman and a good looking fellow, he is methodical, painstaking and affable—qualities which combine admirably, to make an ideal officer.

MISS PATTON'S RECITAL

The many entertainments give in Clanton during the past several days militated somewhat against the recital given Monday night by Miss Norma Patton of Tennessee, though all things taken into consideration a fair crowd greeted this handsome young lady, who is without doubt one of the South's best entertainers.

Miss Patton possesses a deep rich voice and her rendition of the several selections Monday night were listened to with unflagging interest.

Of charming personality and cultivated mind she is well fitted to entertain those who delight in literature.

It is to be regretted that the weather and other attractions deterred so many from attending this charming entertainment.

A DECIDED SUCCESS

"OUR WIVES" WERE GOOD WIVES and ACTORS.

The entertainment given at the Academy last Friday night by the ladies of the School Improvement Society, entitled "Our Wives" was a pronounced success. Each one of the participants deserve unstinted praise for the manner in which the particular part assigned to him or her was rendered. Aside from the enjoyment afforded the ladies cleared quite a neat little sum for the society. A trip to Montevallo had been contemplated but we understand this has been abandoned.

TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY

Stanton, Ala. Feb. 28, 1912

I have been thinking for some time that I would send you through the PRESS, a short statement regarding my intentions in case I am nominated and elected County Supt. of Education. In fact I had a letter to-day asking for some definite declaration along this line, so take pleasure in giving out my position.

1st. I believe in a closer supervision of schools and if elected I shall use every influence possible to secure the passage of a ruling by our County Board of Education placing the Supt. on a salary and requiring that he visit schools during the entire time they are in session. Thus instead of being a mere figure-head, he may become the much needed medium through whom teachers may become acquainted with each other and with the most progressive methods available. In his "rounds" the Supt. could observe very carefully as to the success of each method, then carry the ones that prove to be most successful to teachers that have not succeeded well with the methods formally used.

2nd. When the school term expires each year it should then be the Superintendent's duty to visit institutes and educational gatherings in different parts of the state for the purpose of better preparing himself to interest the people in the cause he is to defend with the utmost care. By keeping wide awake and thoroughly conversant with the subject there is no limit as to the good the County Supt. may do, for then he could interest an audience of young people by unfolding to them the great plans through which the future citizens of our nation are prepared to discharge their duties as the descendants of signers of the Declaration of Independence, the natural guardians of liberty, the disciples of Washington and Jefferson, and upon whose shoulders has fallen the noble task of placing the breath of freedom within reach of the nostrils of every member of our race.

3rd, I am in hearty sympathy with the idea of placing high school facilities within reach of every child of the state and shall, if elected, give the state department my support in carrying out plans suggested looking to that end.

In conclusion, I shall say that it would be a great pleasure to meet each citizen of the county and discuss with him personally the plans I have for the work in case I am elected, but as I am teaching now and school will not close until after the primary, this will be impossible. However, I must say that no one will appreciate your support more than I, and if I am the choice of the democracy as one of their standard bearers in the November election, no one will make a harder fight than I and I promise you that whether or not [illegible] superintendent is placed on a salary, I shall give my entire time to the work.

Very respectfully yours,

Howard Roper.

THE MUSIC CLUB

The Music Club met at little Alice Stanfield's on last Saturday afternoon. The musical program was tastefully arranged by Miss Watson. Then games were entered into which were greatly enjoyed by the children. The little hostess gave each guest pictures which had been cut tnto two parts and when matched were pictures of various musicians, names were read aloud. Couples marched to dining room where refreshments were served. Pictures were used for place cards. Red and white was the color scheme, carrying out the club colors.

TURNED BLIND ALMOST FELL

Mrs. Hansen Says At First Her Case Seemed Hopeless, but She Finally Won Out.

Mobile, Ala.—"For seven years," says Mrs. Sigurd Hansen, of this city, "I suffered with womanly troubles, and, at last, was operated on.

I felt better for a time, but soon I had the same trouble as before.

I had dizzy spells, and would turn blind and almost fall over. I had pains in my back and side, and was not able to work.

Half the time I could not eat any breakfast, and I always felt weak and had a headache.

One day, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, and I tried it. I felt better, so I took some more.

Now, I am well and feel fine. My doctor says I am looking better than ever. I have a good appetite and sleep well.

It is all due to Cardui. I only wish every suffering woman would try it. They would soon feel as good as I do."

You may be sure, when Cardui will relieve and cure such a serious case as that of Mrs. Hansen, that it will, much more quickly and certainly, help those women who have no serious symptoms, but are just weak and ailing.

Are you?

WHERE DOCTORS FAILED TO HELP

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Green's Health—Her Own Statement.

Covington, Mo.—"Your medicine has done me more good than all the doctor's medicines. At every monthly period I had to stay in bed four days because of hemorrhages, and my back was so weak I could hardly walk. I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I can stay up and do my work. I think it is the best medicine on earth for women."—Mrs. JENNIE GREEN, Covington, Mo.

How Mrs. Cline Avoided Operation.

Brownsville, Ind.—"I can say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me more good than anything else. One doctor said I must be operated upon for a serious female trouble and that nothing could help me but an operation.

"I had hemorrhages and at times could not get any medicine to stop them. I got in such a weak condition that I would have died if I had not got relief soon.

"Several women who had taken your Compound, told me to try it and I did and found it to be the right medicine to build up the system and overcome female troubles.

"I am now in great deal better health than I ever expected to be, so I think I ought to thank you for it."—Mrs. O. M. CLINE, S. Main St., Brownsville, Ind.

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization and, amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco where he meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer. He makes large investments and gets into the political ring. For a rest he goes to the country. Daylight gets deeper into high finance in San Francisco, but often the longing for the simple life nearly overcomes him. Dede Mason buys a horse and Daylight meets her in her saddle trips. One day he asks Dede to go with him on one more ride, his purpose being to ask her to marry him and they canter away, she trying to analyze her feelings. Dede tells Daylight that her happiness could not lie with a money manipulator.

"You see, I give the value to the land by building the roads. Then I sell the land and get that value back, and after that, there's the roads, all carrying folks back and forth and earning big money. Can't lose. And there's all sorts of millions in it. I'm going to get my hands on some of that water front and the tide-lands. Take between where I'm going to build my pier and the old pier. It's shallow water. I can fill and dredge and put in a system of docks that will handle hundreds of ships. San Francisco's water front is congested. No more room for ships. With hundreds of ships loading and unloading on this side right into the freight cars of three big railroads, factories will start up over here instead of crossing to San Francisco. That means factory sites. That means me buying in the factory sites before anybody guesses the cat is going to jump, much less, which way. Factories mean tens of thousands of workingmen and their families. That means more houses and more land, and that means me, for I'll be there to sell them the land. Then there's the water. I'll come pretty close to owning the watershed. Why not the waterworks too? There's two water companies in Oakland now, fighting like cats and dogs and both about broke. What a metropolis needs is a good water system. They can't give it. They're stick-in-the-muds. I'll gobble them up and deliver the right article to the city. There's money there, too—money everywhere. Everything works in with everything else. Each improvement makes the value of everything else jump up. It's people that are behind the value. The bigger the crowd that herds in one place, the more valuable is the real estate. And this is the very place for a crowd to herd. Look at it. Just look at it! You could never find a finer site for a great city. All it needs is the herd, and I'll stampede a couple of hundred thousand people in here inside two years. And what's more, it won't be one of these wildcat land booms. It will be legitimate. Twenty years from now there'll be a million people on this side the bay. Another thing is hotels. There isn't a decent one in the town. I'll build a couple of up-to-date ones that'll make them sit up and take notice. I won't care if they don't pay for years. Their effect will more than give me my money back out of the other holdings. And, oh, yes, I'm going to plant eucalyptus, millions of them, on these hills."

"But how are you going to do it?" Dede asked. "You haven't enough money for all that you've planned."

"I've thirty million, and if I need more I can borrow on the land and other things. Interest on mortgages won't anywhere near eat up the increase in land values, and I'll be selling land right along."

In the weeks that followed, Daylight was a busy man. It meant quick work on a colossal scale, for Oakland and the adjacent country was not slow to feel the tremendous buying. But Daylight had the ready cash and it had always been his policy to strike quickly. Before the others could get the warning of the boom, he quietly accomplished many things. At the same time that his agents were purchasing corner lots and entire blocks in the heart of the business section, and the waste lands for factory sites, Daylight was rushing through the city ordinances that granted to his companies the right of way for independent street railways, and putting his grip on the Oakland water front. The bay tide-lands had been in litigation for years, and he took the bull by the horns—buying out the private owners and at the same time leasing from the city fathers. By the time that Oakland was aroused by this unprecedented activity in every direction and was questioning excitedly the meaning of it, Daylight secretly bought the chief Republican newspaper and the chief Democratic organ, and moved boldly into his new offices. Of necessity, they were on a large scale, occupying four floors of the only modern office building in the town—the only building that wouldn't be torn down later on, as Daylight put it. There was department after department, a score of them, and hundreds of clerks and Stenographers. As he told Dede:—

"I've got more companies than you can shake a stick it. There's the Alameda & Contra Costa Land Syndicate, the Consolidated Street Railways, the Yerba Buena Ferry Company, the United Water Company, the Piedmont Realty Company, the Fairview and Portola Hotel Company, and half a dozen more that I've got to refer to a notebook to remember. There's the Piedmont Laundry Farm, and Redwood Consolidated Quarries. Starting in with our quarry, I just kept a-going till I got them all. And there's the ship-building company I ain't got a name for yet. Seeing as I had to have ferry-boats, I decided to build them all the purchaser had to do was to select his lot and architect and start building. The quick service of Daylight's new electric roads into Oakland made this big district immediately accessible, and long before the ferry system was in operation hundreds of residences were going up. The profit on this land was enormous. In a day, his on-slaught of wealth had turned open farming country into one of the best residential districts of the city.

But this money that flowed in upon him was immediately poured back into his other investments. The need for electric cars was so great that he installed his own shops for building them. But no matter what pressure was on Daylight, his Sundays he reserved for his riding in the hills. It was not the rainy winter weather, however, that brought these rides with Dede to an end. One Saturday afternoon in the office she told him not to expect to meet her next day, and, when he pressed for an explanation.—

"I've sold Mab."

Daylight was speechless for the moment. Her act meant one of so many serious things that he couldn't classify it. It smacked almost of treachery. She might have met with financial disaster. It might be her way of letting him know she had seen enough of him. Or . . .

"What's the matter?" he managed to ask.

"I couldn't afford to keep her with hay forty-five dollars a ton," Dede answered. "My brother's expenses have been higher, as well, and I was driven to the conclusion that since I could not afford both, I'd better let the mare go and keep the brother."

"If You'd Just Let Me Buy Her Back."

"Who bought her?" he asked.

Dede's eyes flashed in the way long since familiar to him when she was angry.

"Don't you dare buy her back for me," she cried. "And don't deny that that was what you had in mind."

"I wish you would reconsider, Miss Mason," he said softly. "Not alone for the mare's sake, but for my sake. Money don't cut any ice in this. For me to buy that mare wouldn't mean as much as it does to most men to send a bouquet of flowers or a box of candy to a young lady. There's nobody I feel chummy with except you, and you know how little we've chummed—once a week, if it didn't rain, on Sunday. I've grown kind of to depend on you. If you'd just let me buy her back—"

"No, no; I tell you no." Dede broke impatiently, but her eyes were moist with the memory of her pet. "Please don't mention her to me again. If you think it was easy to part with her, you are mistaken. But I've seen the last of her, and I want to forget her."

Daylight made no answer, and the door closed behind her.

By the time that Oakland was aroused by this unprecedented activity in every direction and was questioning excitedly the meaning of it, Daylight secretly bought the chief Republican newspaper and the chief Democratic organ, and moved boldly into his new offices. WHO CAN DOUBT SWORN TESTIMONY OF HONEST CITIZENS?

Some time ago I began the use of your Swamp-Root with the most remarkable results. For years I was almost a wreck and was a great sufferer. The doctors who treated me made me believe that my great sufferings were due to female trouble. I was so bad at times I would faint away and had sinking spells. Finally a new doctor was called in and he said that I had kidney trouble and gave me medicine, of which I took several bottles. I obtained some relief from this, but I was getting weaker all the time; I could not sleep and suffered so much pain that my husband and children had to lift me in and out of bed. After this time two friends sent me word to try Swamp-Root, which I did, and I am glad to state that the first dose gave me great relief. After taking the third dose I was helped into bed and slept half of the night.

I took several bottles of Swamp-Root and I feel that I owe my life to this wonderful remedy. The two family doctors said that I could not live three months. I would have to be helped in and out of bed ten to twenty times every night. After taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root for two days I was entirely free from getting up and could sleep soundly.

Modern Methods.

The late A. Tennyson Dickens, during an interview in Chicago, condemned the war in Tripoli vehemently.

"Slavery," he said, with a bitter smile, "is now abolished. We no longer steal a people and sell them into bondage. No, no, indeed. We just steal their country and charge them so much for governing it that they have to work twice as hard as slaves to pay their taxes."

Particularly the Ladies.

Not only pleasant and refreshing to the taste, but gently cleansing and sweetening to the system, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is particularly adapted to ladies and children, and beneficial in all cases in which a wholesome, strengthening and effective laxative should be used. It is perfectly safe at all times and dispels colds, headaches and the pains caused by indigestion and constipation so promptly and effectively that it is the one perfect family laxative which gives satisfaction to all and is recommended by millions of families who have used it and who have personal knowledge of its excellence.

Its wonderful popularity, however, has led unscrupulous dealers to offer imitations which act unsatisfactorily. Therefore, when buying, to get its beneficial effects, always note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package of the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

MUST COMPLY WITH NEUTRALITY LAWS

ALL ARE ADVISED BY PRESIDENT TAFT TO STAY OUT OF MEXICO.

SITUATION IS NOW ACUTE

Lack of Responsible Head to Turmoil Is Said to Be the Cause of Proclamation Issued.

Washington.—At a cabinet conference it was deemed expedient that President Taft should issue a proclamation urging American citizens to comply strictly with the neutrality laws of the United States in all matters affecting Mexico.

In effect, the proclamation is a warning to Americans to stay out of Mexico at this time. A note was sent to American Ambassador Wilson at the City of Mexico directing him to inform Americans in Mexico to watch conditions closely, and if the situation grows alarming, to quit the country.

The White House conference was attended by President Taft, Secretary of War Stimson, Acting Secretary of State Huntington Wilson, Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel and Postmaster-General Hitchcock.

Reports received by the state department consisted only of confirmatory advices on press reports telling of the killing of forty revolutionists near Torreon by the federals.

Quiet is said to continue at Ensenada. The situation at Vera Cruz seems unchanged.

The real significance is said to be the official recognition of the fact that the insurrectionary movement in Mexico has grown so as to cause it to be regarded as fairly balancing power and influence with the Madero government.

No such proclamation was issued during the Madero revolution, but it was regarded as necessary to promulgate it now because there was no one strong central figure as a directing head of the revolution whom the United States could hold responsible for the treatment of its citizens.

Instead, there are a number of self-created revolutionists who appear to have very little regard for the amenities of international law.

TEXAS PASTOR'S HOME BURNED.

Origin of Fire Is Not Known; Norris Just Indicted by Grand Jury.

Fort Worth, Tex.—The mystery of the alleged war against the Rev. J. Frank Norris stirred the state of Texas when his home was partly burned in an apparently incendiary fire, which imprisoned himself, his wife and his two children on an upper floor in the early morning hours. They were rescued with difficulty.

Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth, has been in the public eye in the Southwest for several years, beginning as an active member of the crusade which drove race track gambling out of Texas a few years ago. Since then Sunday observance violations have been his particular targets.

Visits Moving Pictures, and Is Taken Home Screaming in Fear.

New Orleans, La.—Frightened at the pictures flashed on the screen at a moving picture show here three weeks ago, little Dominink Palmisano, aged 3 years, had hysterics after returning home, resulting in his death. He was quieted after reaching home, but later began screaming about the "Indians." His condition steadily grew worse.

Girl Kills Father.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—Miss Ollie Cayce, 23 years of age, is accused of killing her father here as the outcome of a dinner table quarrel. The father, Irving J. Cayce, 58 years old, and a prosperous farmer, knocked the daughter down and followed her when she went to her room, attempting to strike her with a chair. She says she took a revolver from her bureau and fired twice, both bullets taking effect. One passed through the wrist of her brother, Irving Cayce, Jr., who was seeking to defend her. No arrests have been made.

Notes of Interest.

London—A number of suffragettes awaiting trial in Holloway prison gave a riotous demonstration lasting two hours. They broke the windows of their cells, sang songs and shouted to their leaders in Mass Meeting.

Paris—Madame Adelaide Morton, widow of the ex-president of the republic, died.

Crime Wave Subsides.

Tennessee—Governor Rye, of Tennessee, has succeeded in stamping out the crime wave which has been sweeping the state. Pate was shot by Mamie Collins, over whom the men quarreled, yet the most vehement [illegible]

IS THE PAIN THERE?

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Then Your Kidneys May Be Weak and in Need of Quick Attention

Backache is enough cause to suspect the kidneys. The kidneys are in the small of the back. Congested kidneys swell and throb. The back naturally aches. It hurts to bend or stoop or to sit down.

Kidney trouble may come on all unnoticed. A cold, a chill, a fever, a strain or irregular habits may start it. While sick kidneys can be cured in the beginning, it is a serious matter when dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease sets in.

Doan's Kidney Pills have made a reputation in the cure of backache, and kidney and bladder ills. The best proof is the testimony of the users. Here are two typical testimonials. Thirty thousand others are being published in the newspapers. A postage stamp will bring you reports of cases nearer home.

If you suspect your kidneys, get the best-recommended kidney remedy.

Cured of a Very Severe Case, With Some Dangerous Features.

Mrs. John Eppley, 916 Walnut St., Ashland, Pa., says: "I was near death's door many days with kidney trouble. My back was painful all the time, the secretions from the kidneys discolored and contained a sediment, and often large lumps would form on the kidneys and sometimes would burst.

"I was in a terrible state and not having a moment's peace. I came as near dying as I ever will and live. I started using Doan's Kidney Pills and kept it up until cured. I have had no return of the trouble, although that was four years ago."

"Some years ago," said Mr. Franklin on March 1, 1911, "I found that I was suffering through the failure of the kidneys to rid the system of uric acid. My back was lame and ached if I overexerted at all. I often felt languid and depressed and the kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular.

"Doan's Kidney Pills brought me prompt relief from the aching and lameness and by the time I had taken three boxes I was cured. Right afterwards I made a statement of my cure and am glad now that several years have passed to repeat the story and to say that the results were permanent."

Gal-va-nite Roofing is the cheapest in the long run because it is made to stand the wear and tear of the elements without after trouble or expense.

It is 15 pounds heavier than the standard weight and is constructed only of the best of materials. Its unusual weight makes it proof against heavy winds and hail storms.

Gal-va-nite Roofing has been approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and takes a low rate of insurance. It is a non-conductor of heat and electricity or lightning.

Attractive in appearance, easy to lay, suitable for either steep or flat roofs, Gal-va-nite is the ideal roofing for any kind of a building in any kind of a climate. It has stood the "Test of Time."

Gal-va-nite is put up in rolls of 108 square feet complete with nine coated, galvanized nails, cement and illustrated direction sheet. Shipped in 3 weights.

Ask your dealer for Gal-va-nite or write us for samples and booklets, "Galvanite Qualities" and "The Inside of an Outside Proposition."

Announcement.

I am a candidate for nomination to the office of Justice of the Peace in and for precinct number Eight in Chilton county, subject to the action of the democratic primary election to be held April 1st, 1912.

J. A. Sample.

For President

OSCAR W. UNDERWOOD

of Alabama.

For Congressman State-at-Large

VICTOR B. ATKINS

of Dallas.

In addition to the general officers to be chosen at the April primary, two Justices of the Peace, One Constable and two Executive Committeemen are to be chosen for each precinct in the county. These are all important offices and our people should not overlook them.

It now begins to appear that Oscar Underwood will have a dead cinch on the presidential nomination and a regular walkover in the general election. While Underwood is gaining strength each day the other candidates are losing ground with the setting of each sun.

Our next issue will be the production of the School Improvement Association. We learn that these ladies propose to get out a paper that will fairly sizzle with bright, interesting items. They assume all liabilities; are responsible for all news items, and should be given due credit for all the good things the paper contains.

Congressman Blackmon will have no opposition. That is proper; he has made an ideal officer and should be returned. The interest which he has taken in the people and the affairs of his district entitles him to re-nomination. But because he has no opposition do not think it unnecessary to vote for him. Make a cross-mark in front of his name and give him your individual endorsement. One vote would nominate him, but ten thousand would make him feel better. Let's make him feel extremely proud of the endorsement he is to receive from Chilton democrats.

The race for Congressman at large seems to be the exciting event of the coming primary.

There are five candidates in the field, namely: John W. Abercrombie, Victor B. Atkins, H. Y. Brooke, I. W. Hill and K. B. Price.

While any one of the five would doubtless make a good congressman, the Press favors the candidacy of Mr. Atkins. His wide experience in legislative affairs, his thorough acquaintance with the farming interests of the state (being himself a planter) and his superb business record fits him preeminently for the place which he seeks.

Besides that, Mr. Atkins lives in this district; his interests in all affairs are entertwined with the interests of the people of this county, and while, if elected, he would serve all the people of the state with zeal, it is natural to suppose that "home folks" would receive greater consideration than those of remote sections.

In marking your ticket, remember Victor B. Atkins, for victor he will be.

Believing the Seay is the best we have seen, we do not buy any other make. It regulates the quantity of Fertilizer by Lever and Ratchet, and wet or dry it will distribute the Fertilizer. Buy one and if it does not do what we claim for it return it and get your money.

We sold about SEVENTY-FIVE last season and not one of them was returned. All we ask is that you give it a fair test.

The democratic party has gone on record as a friend of the people, while the republican party continues to pose as the ally of the trusts and monopolies. Those who do not believe this should recall the bill recently submitted by Mr. Underwood, (our next president) to the democratic caucus, putting SUGAR on the FREE list. This bill was heartily endorsed by the democrats and will become a law within a short time.

The operation of this law effects every household in the land. It puts on the free list one of the commodities that enters into the daily food of every toiler; it saves the farmer, merchant and mechanic one and a half cents on every pound of sugar bought.

The operation of this law will take from the revenues of the country something over a hundred million dollars each year and put it into the pockets of the toilers.

But, says some one, that is an expense rather than a saving. This would be true had not Mr. Underwood in his wisdom provided other means for raising this vast amount of money with which to run the government; and in that too he has shown himself to be a constructive statesman rather than a destructive politician

Instead of putting a tax upon the things which enter into the daily life of the toilers, he went to the rich and influential and demanded that they pay the tax necessary to put sugar on the free list. In other words, he provided for a tax upon all persons, firms, corporations or combinations whose annual income amounts to more than five thousand dollars.

This is placing the burden where it belongs and is taking it from the necks of those who have heretofore supported the government out of their meagre earnings.

The passage of Mr. Underwood's bill will save to the farmers of Chilton thousands of dollars.

Yet there are those in the county who continue to battle against democracy and contend that it is not assisting in reducing the high cost of living. Let them recall, if they can, one instance where the republican party has even attempted to reduce the high cost of living, where it has tried to save to the cotton producers of the South one copper. There are many instances where they have increased the burden, but none where they have decreased it.

Mr. Underwood should have every Alabama vote in his candidacy for the presidency; he will, of course, receive the enthusiastic support of every delegate from this state to the national convention, but more than that, he should have the hearty support of every voter at the April primary.

LAWRENCE COUNTY TO VOTE UPON ROAD BONDS

The Board of Revenue of Lawrence County has ordered an election for the purpose of determine whether the county shall issue $123,000 worth of bonds for building turnpikes. There seems to be little doubt as to the carrying of the bond issue as the board has taken the very sensible course of advising the people before hand as to where the roads will be built.

Waxahatchie, Tribe No. 9, Improved Order of Red Men, meets every Tuesday sleep. Visitors cordially nvitedi

Mr. J. M. Robinson, an old Clantonite, but now residing in Birmingham, was a visitor here last week, having come down to spend several days with his mother.

Hon. W. H. Shaw, one of Chilton's capable County Commissioners, was a visitor to the county seat Monday.

Do you know that of all the minor ailments colds are by far the most dangerous? It is not the cold itself that you need to fear, but the serious diseases that it often leads to. Most of these are known as germ diseases. Pneumonia and consumption are among them. Why not take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and cure your cold while you can? For sale by all dealers.

The many friends of Hon. Fritz Thompson of Centerville were glad to greet him on the streets of Clanton last Monday, he having come down on legal business.

Prof. Henson of Thorsby, Principal of Thorsby Institute, was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday.

If you have trouble in getting rid of your cold you may know that you are not treating it properly. There is no reason why a cold should hang on for weeks and it will not if you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For sale by all dealers.

Mr. Walter Mason of Selma, manager of the electric street railway system of that city, was here Monday on a visit to Mr. W. H. Sartor.

The Probate Judge has engaged the services of Messrs. J. B. Downs and P. D. Wilson to prepare the poll and registration lists. These two gentlemen are now busily engaged in the task assigned to them.

John W. Sickelsmith, Greensboro, Pa. has three children, and like most children they frequently take cold. "We have tried several kinds of cough medicines," he says, "but have never found any yet that did them as much good as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy." For sale by all dealers.

Mrs. O. S. Davis still remains in a critical condition, though she seems to improve slowly each day. Her many friends will rejoice to hear of her speedy recovery.

Mrs. N. S. Johnson returned Monday night from a shopping tour to Montgomery.

The most common cause of insomnia is disorders of the stomach. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets correct these disorders and enable you to sleep. For sale by all dealers.

Mr. J. M. Collins of Calera was here Monday mingling with friends.

Mr. H. B. Oliver of Verbena—the merchant prince of the town—was here Monday on legal business

When you have rheumatism in your foot or instep apply Chamberlain's Liniment and you will get quick relief. It costs but a quarter. Why suffer? For sale by all dealers.

Miss Elee Morgan returned Monday from an extended visit to friends in Montgomery.

Hon. L. B. Pounds went up to Birmingham Tuesday to meet his sons who are returning from a visit to Cincinnati.

Ladies should take DR. SIMMON'S SQUAW VINE WINE for all irregularities. It relieves quickly and restores natural conditions. Price $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

Mr. Joel Gulledge of Verbena was one of the prominent visitors to Clanton during the week.

Postmaster F. O. Dudley and Mr. A. E. Teel left Monday to attend the republican convention at Talladega.

If you have indigestion, heartburn, belching or sick stomach take ten drops of DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID in a little water. It checks the misery instantly. If you have a cut, sore or wound anywhere on the body, apply a little of DARBY'S FLUID. The flesh mends at once. Use it in the sick room to destroy germs or odors, put it in damp closets to purify the air. It is the greatest combination of internal, external and anticeptic medicines known to medical science. Price 50 cts. per bottle. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

Clanton was fairly well represented at the aviation meet in Montgomery on last Tuesday; the following persons went down from here: Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Adams and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. W. Stanfield and two children, Mr. W. E. Maddox, Dr. and Mrs. Earle Gowan and child, Mr. Guy Higgins and son, Mr. W. H. Foshee, Mr. H. M. Mahan, Mr. Harmon Headley, Mr. Cleve Headley and others.

W. T. CORSETS, extra long, $1.50 value at $1.17; $1.25 value at 98c; $1.00 value at 80c; 50c value at 39c; these prices for MONDAY ONLY. W. D. Spigener.

Mrs. W. E. Mauck of Birmingham who was called to Clanton on account of the death of her father, returned to her home Tuesday morning.

When the chest feels on fire and the throat burns you have indigestion and you need DR. M. A. SIMMON'S LIVER MEDICINE to get rid of the disagreeable feeling. It drives out badly digested food, strengthens the system and purifies the bowels. Price 25 cts. per package. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

Miss Norma Patton who gave a recital here Monday night returned to Jemison Tuesday morning.

Miss Mattie Patton of Jemison who has been visiting Clanton for several days returned to her home Tuesday morning.

For Diseases of the Skin.

Nearly all diseases of the skin such as eczema, tetter, salt rheum and barber's itch, are characterized by an intense itching and smarting, which often makes life a burden and disturbs sleep and rest. Quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It allays the itching and smarting almost instantly. Many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all dealers.

Ask to see the REXALL GLYCERINE SOAP at Upchurch Drug Co.—do not buy it if you don't want it.

Much criticism has been indulged in on the streets of Clanton for the past few days on account of certain arrests made by officers of the law and the treatment accorded prisoners after being placed under arrest.

R. G. Collins, Postmaster, Barnegat, N. J., was troubled with a severe la grippe cough. He says: "I would be completely exhausted after each fit of violent coughing. I bought a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and before I had taken it all the coughing spells had entirely ceased. It can't be beat." Upchurch Drug Co.

Saturday last was "pay day" with the school teachers of the county and therefore quite a number of padagogues graced the streets of Clanton on that day.

If you want a good watch for $1.00, buy the REXALL at Upchurch's.

The revival services at the Baptist church are well attended considering the extremely inclement weather. Rev. Mr. P. M. Jones the evangelist is an able minister and delights his audience with sound scripture.

A Cold, La Grippe, Then Pneumonia

Is too often the fatal sequence, and coughs that hang on weaken the system and lower the vital resistance. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is a reliable medicine that stops the cough promptly by healing the cause; sooths the inflamed air passages, and checks the cold. Keep always on hand. Refuse substitutes. Upchurch Drug Co.

The best and prettiest stationery in town at Upchurch Drug Co.—The REXALL STORE.

Sheriff B. L. Jones has been confined to his bed for the past several days with a severe attack of rheumatism in the shoulder and arm.

NEXT MONDAY we make special prices on Corsets and Men's Hats at Spigener's Cash Store.

To beautify your complexion use REXALL Face Cream. For sale at Upchurch's.

Mr. Harvey Chandler left Monday night for St. Louis, where he goes to purchase a spring stock for E. M. Pinckard & Co.

Backache Almost Unbearable

Is an almost certain result of kidney trouble. D. Toomey, 803 E. Olive St., Bloomington, Ill., says: "I suffered with backache and pains in my kidneys which were almost unbearable. I gave Foley Kidney Pills a good trial, and they done wonders for me. Today I can do a hard day's work and not feel the effects. Upchurch Drug Co.

Mrs. Libbie Gross of Wadley, Ala., is on a visit to her cousin, Mrs. Jennie Davis.

Judge L. H. Reynolds, M. D. Foshee and others boarded the north bound train for Talladega Monday night to attend the republican district convention, which convened in that city Tuesday morning.

C. A. Glossner, 24 Ontario St., Rochester, N. Y., has recovered, from a long and severe attack of kidney trouble, his cure being due to Foley Kidney Pills. After detailing his case, he says: "I am only sorry I did not learn sooner of Foley Kidney Pills. In a few day's time my backache completely left me and I felt greatly improved. My kidneys became stronger, dizzy spells left me and I was no longer annoyed at night. I feel 100 per cent better since using Foley Kidney Pills." Upchurch Drug Co.

Hon. H. F. Reese of Selma, ex-Senator from Dallas, was among the prominent visitors to Clanton within the past few days.

Mrs. J. W. Shores leaves this morning for an extended visit to her daughter, Mrs. A. [illegible] Talladega.

MASONIC RESOLUTIONS

Hall of Clanton Lodge,
No. 423, A. F. & A. M.
Clanton, Ala., Oct., 7th, 1911

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren of Clanton Lodge, No. 423, A. F. & A. M

We, your committee heretofore appointed to draft and present for your consideration resolutions upon the death of Bro. Wm. Lodge, beg leave to submit the following:

Bro. Wm. Lodge was born August 7th, 1858, in Lawrence county, State of Ohio, and died at Jemison, Alabama, on the 20th day of August, 1911, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. A. M. Attaway.

On the 15th day of January, 1880, Brother Lodge and Miss Mary E. Wilson of Lawrence county, Ohio, were married. One son, Mr. D. A. Lodge, and two daughters, Mrs. A. M. Attaway and Mrs. Lottie A. Johnson, were the result of this union.

Bro. Lodge affiliated with this Lodge July, 1895, and remained a member of this Lodge to date of his death.

Bro. Lodge was a consistent member of the Congregational church, of which he became a member in September, 1903. He was an earnest and sincere Mason, one whose effort was to ever live and walk within the teachings and tenets of the order. He was a law-abiding man, honest and charitable to a fault, and one to whom the unfortunate could appeal in the hour of need—he was a good man.

Therefore be it Resolved, that in the death of Bro. William Lodge, Clanton Lodge, No. 423, A. F. & A. M., has lost an honored and worthy member, a member whose absence will be mourned by the Lodge. That the community in which he resided has lost a valued member, the State a good citizen, and his family an affectionate and loving father and husband.

Be it further Resolved, that these resolutions and preamble be spread upon a separate page of the minutes of this Lodge, that a copy under seal of this Lodge be presented the family of our deceased Brother, and a copy be furnished the local newspapers for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
Calvin Wilson

Though Confederate veterans generally are excluded from government hospitals, President Tafe made an exception of Capt. J. W. Myers of Jacksonville, Fla., and ordered that he be admitted to the army and navy general hospital at Hot Springs, Ark. Senator Fletcher informed the president that Captain Myers was crippled with rheumatism and unable to obtain relief anywhere but at Hot Springs, where he had been prevented from going because of the expense.

An order of the interstate commerce commission reducing certain class freight rates from New Orleans to Montgomery, Selma and Mobile, Ala., and to Pensacola, Fla., was annulled by decision of the commerce court. The decision, handed down by Judge Archbald, is certain to add considerable fuel to the controversy already acute between the interstate commerce commission and the commerce court. The court declares that congress never intended to clothe the commission with the wide authority it has assumed.

Details of a double tornado which devasted portion of Lincoln, Jefferson and Arkansas counties in Arkansas, particularly the latter two, place the list of dead at ten, with at least 25 persons seriously injured. In addition, the storms caused property loss that as yet, can only be approximately estimated. Handsome homes, plantation equipment and pumping stations caught in the path of the storm were reduced to wreckage and strewn along in the wake of the storm for miles.

General.

Because the coal miners had been able to gain government recognition of their grievances by threatening the business of the country, the English suffragettes also entered upon a policy of menace to trade. It was a window-breaking expedition solely. Hundreds of windows in London in many of the most famous shops of the world and in several government offices and clubs were wrecked by the suffragettes. One hundred and fifteen women were taken to police stations by police.

Details of the collision between the steamers Mori Maru and Richa Maru, involving the loss of 57 lives, were brought by the steam Awa Maru, which arrived at Vancouver, B. C., from the Orient. The two vessels foundered soon after the collision in the Genkai sea, off Ebosi light house, Ikl province, February 10. The Maru, a collier of 1,788 tons, bound from Moji for Dalny, crashed into the coasting steamer Richa Maru, 178 tons, driving her bow into the latter vessel on the starboard.

The Roosevelt campaign assumed definite form with the appointment of the men who are to assume active management. Senator Dixon of Montana is to be the man at the helm. His official title is chairman of the executive committee. Mr. Dixon's first official act was to give out a statement attacking President Taft. The appointments were announced after conference between Colonel Roosevelt and leading supporters.

A brief outline of the general situation in Mexico is contained in the following telegram from President Madero: "It must be understood by every one I have not the slightest intention of resigning the presidency. The government is organising many forces of volunteers under experienced military leaders who will take command in the zones of disturbances and make more rapid and effective their pacification."

Americans were not spared in the rioting which has been going on at Kingston, Jamaica, in connection with the street railway trouble, a party of Americans driving in an automobile were attacked by a mob, and one of them was seriously injured. The party included Capt. and Mrs. Fritz du Quesne of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Wortley of Brooklyn. A group of men attacked their automobile with bricks and stones.

CATTLE DISEASE APPEARS

Anthrax Has Made Its Appearance In Several Places in Madison County.

Anthrax, a malignant cattle disease, has made its appearance in several portions of Madison County and there is considerable alarm over its spread. Several farms where the disease has appeared have been quarantined and the stock has been vaccinated. Close watch has been placed over the infected territory. Dr. C. A. Cary, State Veterinarian, has placed Dr. E. D. Yerion, Assistant State Vetinarian, in charge of the work of stamping out the disease here and energetic measures are being taken.

A subterranean explosion and a consequent protrusion of the earth, leaving a hole about eight feet square and several feet deep on the farm of B. F. Jones, in Calhoun county, near Morrisville, is attributed to natural gas. Jones recently purchased of the Morris mining and farm property near Morrisville, who made the discovery, and is firmly of the opinion that a development of the land will bring forth results, it being believed that both oil and gas are to be found in paying quantities.

The United States federal court will convene in Montgomery beginning March 25, Judge Thomas G. Jones presiding. A number of important cases will be heard at that time, and cases in which there will be general public interest. The petit jury venire was drawn and the docket for the entire term announced. Only civil cases will be heard at this term of the court.

Charged with wrecking the New York and New Orleans Limited train at Milstead, Homer Jenkins, a negro, has been arrested and is in jail at Tallassee awaiting a preliminary trial. The report of the arrest was forwarded to Special Agent F. R. Yarbrough of the West Point route by Officer McGehee, of Shorters Station.

News was received in Mobile of the death of T. P. Hamm, the pioneer promoter of Baldwin county lands and president of the Alabama-Sumatra and Havana Tobacco Company, whose headquarters are at Summerdale, Ala. The death of Mr. Hamm occurred at his Chicago home after an illness of nearly a year.

Clussie, six-year-old daughter of John Letsen, is dead as the result of burns. Mr. Letsen lives on Lookout Mountain, five miles from Gadsden. Mr. Letsen was burning some brush in a field. The child was playing about the fire. Her clothing became ignited and was burned completely off.

The city has not been participating in this tax, although three years ago the law was passed which gave to municipalities one-half of the road and bridge tax assessed against property within the corporation limits.

The Commissioners' Court of Carrollton has again offered three prizes of $75, $50 and $25 for the three best acres of corn grown during the present year, and quite a number of the farmers will again enter the contest. During the past year there was something like 60 contestants, and with an average yield of about 70 bushels per acre gave the contestants something like 4,200 bushels of corn on 60 acres of land.

Six men were killed in the mines of Alabama in February and two were killed outside the mines, as recorded in the office of Chief Mine Inspector Nesbitt. This is about the average toll of death per month. A majority of the deaths are said to be due to carelessness. One was killed by a motor after being knocked under a car by a falling rock. Another was killed by the falling of a pick down the shaft. Three were killed in the mines by falling rock.

TRADE SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Additional Advances Noted in Dry Goods Market.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

In view of the fact that the severe winter weather has served to hold trade distributions in check, the near approach of spring constitutes the most favorable feature of the business situation, and already this is having a beneficial effect. The severe weather operated to the disadvantage of the railroads and of the iron industry, and also decreased the volume of building transactions. But as the weather has improved, trade improvement is showing.

The iron trade is shaking off the depression of winter, and there is an increase in production that further shortens the distance to full capacity; requirements on account of the building of two new steamships seem an augury of what may perhaps be expected to follow the early opening of the Panama canal. The leading interest is operating to about 85 per cent. of capacity, and has orders for some weeks ahead, with most activity in basic products. Sales of basic iron at Pittsburg total a moderate tonnage and demand on the merchant furnace has increased, but the market does not show much strength.

In finished lines concessions are granted, although no official revision in prices has been made. The minimum for plain structural material and plates is said to be $1.50, and tin plate, which is nominally $3.40 for 100 pound cokes, is shaded. Production of coke is keeping up fairly well, prices are stronger and operators regard prospects as encouraging.

Some additional advances are noted in the dry goods markets. Retailers and jobbers are making liberal purchases of cotton goods, and as staples, stocks of which have been much reduced, are moving freely, there is every indication of still greater activity. Ginghams are in better request for later delivery, especially staples, and demand for wash fabrics is more pronounced. Fine printed for summer distribution are moving freely, and there is moderate improvement in fine cotton yarn goods. Export trade continues good, standard drills being sold to India, and steady bidding is reported from the Red Sea and Africa. In woolens some lines are active, while others are quiet, but steady progress is being made by many mills. Cotton yarns hold firm and spot stocks are light, while worsted yarns are steady, with many mills sold ahead. The footwear market continues quiet, with new business of moderate volume only. In some varieties of leather trade is only fair, and many lines are decidedly dull. Prices are firm.

Bradstreet's Review.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

While some centers indicate that trade is not up to expectations, developments on the whole are of a satisfactory character. There is nothing resembling marked activity, but undercurrents in general suggest that fair gains are being made and that improvement heretofore noted is being held. The most propitious feature of the general situation is found in the quite generally insistent demands made by retail dealers for prompt delivery on goods they have ordered.

This, of course, indicates that stocks are low, which, coupled with the fact that there is no disposition to make heavy purchases at any one time, suggests that demand will continue to be of the steady, insistent type. This latter feature is conspicuously in evidence in the markets for dry goods, requests for which denote the presence of healthy requirements for staple goods and a firm price undertone thereon. Indeed, on some makes of goods, such as branded bleached cottons and wide sheetings, the mills are well sold ahead.

In many other respects distribution by the larger purveyors has been of an encouraging nature, save in sections of the south and in the Pacific northwest.

In the iron and steel line mill operators are active, but new business is quiet, while prices in some finished goods are such as to indicate competition and desires for tonnage. Pig iron, aside from basic, is dull. Copper is firm and sellers have the price situation well in hand, but the unsettled foreign labor situation provides more or less bearishness.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending February 29, were 269, against 238 last week, 256 in the like week of 1911, 184 in 1910, 219 in 1909 and 237 in 1908.

Business failures in Canada for the week number 20, which compare with 25 last week and 33 in the corresponding week of 1911.

Wheat, including flour exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending February 15, aggregate 3,289,770 bushels, against 2,286,898 last week and 2,980,200 this week last year.

LAND OF RUBBER

Valley of the Amazon Produces Best in the World.

Industry, Now One of the Greatest, Practically Dates Back to 1823, Though Product First Came Here in 1900.

The best rubber in the world comes from the valley of the Amazon, and is known as Para, so called after the city which is the principal gateway of export. This region is densely forested and intersected by a myriad of rivers. It has a soil of incomparable richness, is watered by never-failing rains and warmed by the equatorial sun. The first cost of crude rubber is about 75 cents a pound. By the time it reaches the world's markets it is worth about $3.50 a pound. In Brazil it is called "black gold." Then there are the lower grades of rubber. That which comes from the far east costs on the average about 25 cents a pound and sells for $1.75 a pound. Of late years a great deal of this low grade rubber has come from the guayule plant, a shrub which grows in the desert uplands of Mexico. Its thick bark contains about 10 per cent. of rubber. Certain German s and Americans after many experiments, have perfected machinery to extract this rubber gum, and have succeed 1 in adding about 22,000,000 pounds to the world's product of crude rubber.

There are ten "rubber trusts" in the world. Five of them are in the United States, three in Germany, one in Russia and one in Italy. They represent amalgamations of some fifty of the rubber factories of the world. There are still about 450 that are not amalgamated.

India rubber first came to the United States in 1800, but although a patent is recorded as early as 1813 for making an elastic varnish out of the strange new product, nothing seems to have come of it until 1823, when a Boston sea captain brought back with him from South America a pair of fantastically gilded rubber boots. On his next voyage he returned with more, which he sold at $5 a pair. It was not until Charles Goodyear discovered how to vulcanize rubber that the rubber industry amounted to anything.

The impression that a visitor to a rubber goods factory carries away with him is one of a lot of rollers that seem to be doing nothing but tearing to pieces and rolling up into shape, over and over again, the rubber as it develops from its crude to its final composition. Some rollers are cold, some are hot; some are wet, some are dry; some fitted with calenders that impress a pattern on the finished sheets, and others seem little more than laundry machines. Crude rubber has to be cleaned. It is softened in boiling water for an hour or so and then run between two rolls, one of which revolves a little faster than the other. Over both of these there plays a steady stream of water.

The rubber comes out in long, flat sheets and is carried into drying rooms, where the air is kept in constant motion by fans. Every bit of moisture must be removed, and this takes sometimes as much as two weeks. When thoroughly dried the rough sheets go to other machines, from which they emerge soft and smooth. After having been thoroughly rolled the rubber is compounded with various ingredients, litharge and whiting being the two commonest. Then it is sent under still other rollers and kneaded and worked together into a homogeneous mass. If the rubber is combined with a textile fabric the rubber and cotton cloth go through another series of rollers, entering separately, but coming out as one.

Wolves Startle Town.

Palmyra, Mo.—Armed men and snapping dogs pursued a large gray wolf through the streets the other day. After a long chase the animal was shot and killed by Louis Nelson, deputy game warden, where it stood at bay in front of a hedge row.

The wolf was captured when it was a cub with six others in the Salt river hills of Ralls county. County Assessor Milton Phillips took it home.

When it grew older it killed all the cats on Phillips' farm. He then turned it over to a Palmyra restaurant.

"Some day the wolf broke its chain and ran out on the street. It was pursued to the open country.

WOMEN'S LEAP YEAR RIGHTS

In Scotland Years Ago They Were Recognized as Real, and Well Defined by Law.

Ancient, indeed, are the prerogatives that are accorded to women in leap year. They are so old that none can tell just how or when they originated. However, the ancient Scottish parliament gives us a date as well as a law upon which to hang the right of women to take the initiative in leap year, as convention forbids them to do in other years.

In the year 1228 this body passed a law which, in its quaint old English, expressly conferred on womankind the right to propose marriage in leap year. Here is the law, just as it was written the parliamentary records:

"Ordonit that during ye reign of her maist blessed Maiestie, ilka maiden, ladee of baith high and lowe estait, shale hae libertie to speak ye man she likes. Gif he refuses to tak hir to bee his wyf, he shale bee mulct in ye sum of ane hundridty pundes, or less, as his estait may bee, except and alwais gif he can make it appeare that he is betrothit to another woman, then he shale be free."

HANDS WOULD CRACK OPEN

"About two months ago my hands started to crack open and bleed, the skin would scale off, and the good flesh would burn and itch dreadfully. When my hands first started to get sore, there were small blisters like water blisters which formed. They itched dreadfully, it just seemed as though I could tear the skin all off. I would scratch them and the skin would peel off, and the flesh would be all red and crack open and bleed. It worried me very much, as I had never had anything the matter with my skin. I was so afraid I would have to give up my employment.

"My doctor said he didn't think it would amount to anything. But it kept getting worse. One day I saw a piece in one of the papers about a lady who had the same trouble with her hands. She had used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and was cured. I decided to try them, and my hands were all healed before I had used one cake of Cuticura Ointment. I am truly thankful for the good results from the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, for thanks to them I was cured, and did not have to lose a day from work. I have had no return of the skin trouble." (Signed) Mrs. Mary E. Breig, 2522 Brown Street, Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 12, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura." Dept. L, Boston.

Natural Avoidance.

Mayor Gaynor of New York was defending his anti-suffrage views: "Woman has her place and man has his," he said, "and when I think of the confusion that would come from intermingling their places, I am reminded of an anecdote about Lady Lord John Russell: 'Why hasn't Lord Holland got a post in the cabinet?' 'Well, if you must know,' Lord John answered, 'it is because nobody would work in a cabinet with a man whose wife opens all his letters.'"

HON. CHAS. HENDERSON ON COTTON

Hon. Charles Henderson, president of the Railroad Commission, was asked to give views relative to the much discussed plans for holding cotton, to which the governors of the Southern States and the Commissioners of Agriculture and other patriotic and prominent citizens had been engaged in an endeavor to perfect, says the Advertiser.

Mr. Henderson said:

"Much has been said recently regarding the plans submitted, though the efforts of the governors of the Southern States to bring relief to the cotton producer during the current period of ruinous low prices.

"While I do not believe the plan submitted is feasible or advisable, and think Commissioner Kolb did the correct thing in declining to recommend it. I do think, however, that the efforts made by the governors to evolve some solution for immediate relief deserving of commendation. They have shown a concern for conditions and a willingness to give their thought and time to the solution of a vexing problem.

No plan could be submitted for immediate relief except as a makeshift, and generally these makeshifts are only crutches upon which we hobble into pitfalls. The trouble is of long standing, and is such that it cannot be remedied in a few weeks.

"When the correct plan is evolved, benefits will accrue during seasons of satisfactory prices, as well as in times of low prices. The question is purely an economic one.

"The plan, as it appears to me, that will largely solve the question is a simple one, and it will not involve the state unnecessarily, or interfere with the rights of any one. This plan is as follows:

"First: Gin compression, which means reducing the bale to about one-half the size, and the complete covering of the bale, thereby requiring less storage space and greatly reducing the fire hazard.

"Second: The construction of storage houses of the most modern plan, which carries with it a convenience of handling, as well as a further reduction in insurance,

"Third: The state to adopt and make legal a standard classification and weight. Upon application, the state to grant license to classers and warehousemen who have filed acceptable agreements to accept certain fixed carrying charges.

"When cotton is stored in such warehouses the receipt shall allow the weight and classification as shown on the receipt, being guaranteed by the warehouse, the cotton can remain undisturbed until final shipment —although the ownership may have changed fifty times; the state to have examiners who shall periodically examine all licensed warehouses to see that the proper insurance is in force, to protect the cotton on hand; the warehouses to give property surety bond for the faithful performance of their obligations; such warehouses to be relieved of all taxes as certain industrial plants are now relieved of such taxes.

"It will be seen that this plan eliminates a great waste of time, labor and expense that is attached to our present methods of handling cotton, and places such cotton where it will attract idle money. It is further seen that this plan would assist the farmer in keeping cotton off the market, as we understand the term, by the creation of a broader market, thereby enabling holders to secure more readily advances on cotton at the lowest rate of interest.

"The Farmers' Union has been advocating plans that have good features, but have met with difficulties in an endeavor to keep up an interest in the subject matter during periods of satisfactory prices, and have not met with the co-operation that their efforts deserve. I think it will be seen that the plans I suggest will reduce to a minimum the uncertainty of weights and the unsatisfactory custom of classification, and the high insurance cost that prevails in the average interior market. With the elimination of these burdensome conditions, the buying and holding of cotton will not be confined, as it is in the present, largely to those only who buy from the necessities of business.

"Our present system needs a complete overhauling, and with slight assistance from the state, a great saving can be had annually in the course of a few years.

"The Railroad Commission of Alabama has taken the first active step toward economizing in the handling of cotton along the above lines by asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix a differential in the rates as between compressed and uncompressed cotton. Should this petition be granted, a gin compressed bale of cotton would be handled at the same rate of freight per hundred pounds as is a compressed bale at the present time.

"There are pending to be obtained under these lines that in my judgment are worthy of our best efforts."

Your Money Back if You are not Satisfied with the Medicine We Recommend

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate, and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons, and old folks, as well as for the robust. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness, nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken at any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken with regularity for a reasonable length of time. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Sold in Clanton only at our store.—The Rexall Store. Upchurch Drug Co.

Notice of Primary Election.

Notice is hereby given that a resolution was adopted by the Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton county, Alabama, on December 28th, 1911, calling a primary election to be held on Monday, the first day of April, 1912, to nominate the following officers, to-wit:

A Tax Assessor, a Tax Collector, a County Superintendent of Education, a County Commissioner from the Third District, a County Commissioner from the Fourth District, a Coroner, Two Justices of the Peace in each precinct in said county, One Constable for each precinct in said county, and two members of the County Executive Committee from each precinct in said county; also to vote for the nomination of such State and Congressional officers as are to be nominated in said primary election under the rulings and call of the State Executive Committee of the Democratic party of Alabama and the Executive Committee of the Democratic party of the Fourth Congressional District of the State of Alabama; also to vote for the election of four delegates to the State Convention of the Democratic and Conservative party of Alabama, called to meet in Montgomery on April 17th, 1912.

In pursuance of the above resolution, notice is hereby given that said primary election therein provided for will be held in the several precincts on Monday, the first day of April, 1912, in accordance with the Primary election laws of the State of Alabama and the directions of the said county committee as above set forth.

F. M. WOOD, Secretary.

Sheriff's Notice.

To W. E. Barrett,
29 E. Madison, St.,
Chicago, Ill.

You are hereby notified that on this day there was delivered to me a certain Writ of Attachment issued out of the Chancery Court for the Seventh District of the Northeastern Chancery Division of Alabama, wherein E. C. Sisson is complainant and J. G. Leavitt is defendant, and that I have executed the same by levying upon 280 shares of the capital stock of the Twin Tree Lumber Company, a corporation, issued in the name of the said defendant, J. G. Leavitt, and not including the shares heretofore assigned by said Leavitt to E. G. Ensign and J. I. Ensign, and you are further notified that I have endorsed the fact of the levy upon said stock on the back of the said Attachment, and this notice is given to you as the custodian of the Books of Stock Transfer of said corporation, mentioned in Sections 3473 and 3474 of the Code of Alabama of 1907, and I have levied on the same this day at 11:50 a.m.

This March 2, 1912.

CAUSE FOR ALARM

Loss of Appetite or Distress After Eating a Symptom That Should not Be Disregarded

Appetite is just a natural desire for food. Loss of appetite or stomach distress after eating indicate indigestion or dyspepsia. Overeating is a habit very dangerous to a person's good general health.

It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, heaviest, and healthiest persons are moderate eaters.

There is nothing that will cause more trouble than a disordered stomach, and many people daily contract serious maladies simply through disregard or abuse of the stomach.

We urge all in Clanton who suffer from any stomach derangement, indigestion or dyspepsia, whether acute or chronic, to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, with the distinct understanding that we will refund their money without question or formality, if after reasonable use of this medicine, they are not perfectly satisfied with the results. We recommend them to our customers every day, and have yet to hear of any one who has not been benefited by them. We honestly believe them to be without equal. They give very prompt relief, aiding to neutralize the gastrict juices, strengthen the digestive organs, to regulate the bowels, and thus to promote perfect nutrition, and eradicate all unhealthy symptoms.

We urge you to try a 25c. box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, which gives 15 days' treatment. At the end of that time, your money will be returned to you if you are not satisfied. Of course, in chronic cases length of treatment varies. For such cases, we have two larger sizes, which sell for 50c. and $1.00 Remember, you can obtain Rexal Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store' Upchurch Drug Co.

VOL 2. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 14, 1912 NO. 51

CLANTON TODAY

About midway between Montgomery and Birmingham on the L. & N. R. R. and near the center of the State, is situated the beautiful little city of Clanton. Nature has smiled beneficently upon her, in natural growth of large oaks and other shade trees; and her sons have added to this special feature of her attractive appearance. Her cool pure sparkling water adds to the health of her people. Though she has not attained to a system of waterworks yet, there are many of her citizens who enjoy this convenience by private enterprise. The city and surrounding country enjoy the proximity of neighbors, by the Peoples' telephone system. The county by her thrift and prosperity is indulging in the comforts afforded by this convenience. Their sick no longer suffer by the old time delay in getting a physician, for in a moment's call, the needed aid, is in his automobile and in a short while the sufferer feels that help is at hand.

Clanton boasts of broad, level and well kept streets. The business portion of the city is paved, and some of the citizens have added this comfort to the attractive homes that grace our little city.

The stores are of brick, and when the people from all parts of the county come in the streets have quite a metropolitan air. The two banks do a fine business and are characterized by their financial safety and their courteous and conservative treatment. Patronize them

Upchurch Drug Co. can be relied on for pure fresh drugs. Dr. Upchurch is a pharmacist of experience. His courteous manner makes you feel welcome.

Alred Drug Co. occupies the spacious rooms of the handsome cement block building on Main street. The interior is pleasant and inviting. The young men are affable and will appreciate your patronage. Dr. H. T. Neighbors of Goodwater, a graduate of the Polytechnic college at Auburn, has charge of the pharmaceutical department. Alred Drug Co's reputation for fresh, pure drugs is established. They solicit a continuance of the liberal patronage they have received.

W. I. Mullins carries a well selected stock of dry goods, notions, shoes, groceries, Studebaker wagons and furniture and undertakers' supplies.

W. H. Sartor, who prides himself in his location on the corner, I dare say, could pass himself for a son of Erin, alright. Go to him. His scales always draw 16 ounces to the pound. He is booked for a barritone solo at the free concert. This concert is under the management of Harry Kanjutzky.

Miss Muse has a full line of new spring millinery, the marvels of beauty and style, which has been prepared by the deft hands of artists of rare skill. American Beauty and Madame Grace corsets, a specialty.

At W. D. Spigener's Cheap Cash Store, you will find everything in the line of ladies furnishings, mattings, art squares, rugs, crockery and a full line of dry goods.

W. M. McDaniel, the shoe maker, has been a friend in need, for many years. His work is good and he uses nothing but good leather.

The Clanton Grocery Co. can be depended upon for first class groceries, poultry and country produce. He keeps the best at extremely low prices.

Clanton Cafe, it is up to date; well kept; eat there.

McDuffy Ruffin wears the green. He's always happy, whether selling tobacco or as king of the ring of staple fancy groceries.

Sam'l Scott, Photographer.
Who are those beauties he has on display?
And all those lords of creation pray?
Why they are only mortals, like me,
But Scott's done magic on the negative you see.

Mrs. Clara Mullins' customers may expect a lively display of high class millinery and patterns of beauty and charming grace.

C. R. Mullins. While thinking of important matters, don't forget to see that your residence and furniture are properly insured.

Potts & Nix, The Shoe Men.—The place to find the best shoes, is at this shoe store. These gentlemen are ever ready to serve you, and you may rely on them for the very best. Mothers, go to Potts & Nix for your boy's hose; they will stand the rough wear of the boy. Their silk hose match any shade of low-cut shoes and will appeal to "Miss Style." Gentlemen's collars and ties a specialty.

E. D. Wagoner, the white barber, will be found at all times in his attractive quarters, in the Johnson building on Main street. When in Clanton, call on Ed.

A. D. Martin, next door to J. E. Evans, is a new merchant in our city, but we extend him the hand of fellowship, and ask you to call on him for groceries, fruits, garden seed, etc.

Frank Denty solicits your repair work, whether it be your watch, clock or shoes.

J. E. Evans sells staple and fancy groceries. His line of fresh stick and fancy candy attracts many customers to his store.

A. R. Cooper has moved his business to the east side, and will be found just above J. E. Evans. Mr. Cooper asks a continuance of the patronage of his old customers on the west side and hopes to gain those on the east. If anyone desires to engage in business in Clanton Mr. Cooper will sell the stock and fixtures, as he desires to change his business.

J. B. Hicks, the genial Joe, who is ever ready, his goods to show. Don't pass him by, whatever you do, 'twould break his heart not to sell you a shoe.

B. E. Jones & Bro., dealers in general merchandise. This firm solicits a share of your patronage. They need no introduction to the people of Chilton, for they have occupied their place among the prominent business men of Clanton for years. Besides the regular line, they are agents for Deering mowers, rakes, gasoline engines and grist mills.

Gamble Hardware Co. Clanton looks with pardonable pride upon this firm. They have added a furniture department to their hardware business and all prices are right.

J. C. Jones & Co. carry a complete line of general merchandise. There is the place to purchase a ready made suit; either children, ladies or gentlemen are assured a fine fit. What more would you ask? Low prices? You have them. Call on them and tell them that you were sent by the School Improvement Association.

Bryant McKee, who has fed the people of Clanton on the best meat that the stalls of the county could furnish for nearly a quarter of a century, is still at his market, dealing out fresh meat, fish, oysters, and what ever is kept in a first class market.

L. D. Popwell repairs jewelry, watches, clocks, sewing machines & c. He carries a nice line of jewelry, which he sells at reasonable prices. He also adjusts spectacles and repairs same.

Omega Flour, did you say? Yes, it is the best, and you will find it at Broadhead & Son. These two heads are Broad, and each one has a thinker of his own.

The elder is gray, but not from age. The younger, still free from a woman's mortgage. Father, look out, for this leap year may bring tidings of witchery, dealt by Cupid's sting.

Clanton Brokerage Co., sells all kinks of feed stuff, hay, corn, chops, and etc. The business is under the management of Mr. Marion Gore. He takes delight in serving his numerous customers, and solicits others.

J. M. Robinson asks his friends to remember his stand, and call on him when in Clanton.

J. L. Lowe, blacksmith, at his old stand. His honest work speaks for itself.

Lee Maddox who has recently launched out trusting to his own brawn and brain, will be found in the blacksmith shop at the rear of B. E. Jones & Bro. Horse shoeing a specialty.

Clanton Bottling Works claims special mention in our write-up as it is one of our prosperous enterprises. Mr. W. M. [illegible] proprietor. His [illegible] smooth corn meal and sells ice.

Mr. J. H. Vines, this worthy citizen came to Clanton in its early history, has shared her weil and her woe. He enjoys the reputation that he has won, by his motto to do what he did well. He can be found to-day at the same old job of shoeing horses and mending plows.

Hinkle & Langley sell fresh pork sausage, seasoned delightfully breakfast bacon, and sugar-cured hams.

Cox, the fruit-tree man, reminds you that he is still on hand, soliciting orders. The ladies will do well to talk to him about flowers now.

Will Goodgame has purchased the blacksmith shop, formerly owned by Wm. Maddox. His work needs no recommendation, it tells its own story. He would like to prove it. Corn meal ground each day.

Teel & Danforth offer their services to any who contemplate building. Estimates on building solicited. Moving houses done with care.

Livery Stable of D. Y. Johnson is one of Clanton's conveniences. He keeps good teams and careful drivers. Furnishes warm quarters to any who have stock to care for when in our city.

Mr. J. W. Carwile needs no introduction. Some of these magnificeat brick buildings are silent witnesses to his skill and workmanship. We welcome him home again since his recent stay in Florida.

Farley & Farley: These brothers have been reared in our midst and by close attention to business and honest work, have gained the reputation of first-class workmen. Let them bid on your building; house-moving a specialty.

Clanton boasts of her Hotel Palmer, beautifully located, a building of imposing appearance, kept in first-class style. It is well advertised by the traveling men, who are competent judges in this line.

Joe Gore, with his line of drays, is an important adjunct to the city. Always pleasant takes time to give information, and is the right man in the right place.

Mr. J. Q. Wade & Bro.: There are, perhaps, no more enterprising men in our city than these two or any that have contributed more to its growth than they. A commodious warehouse, the post office building, an extensive ice business together with the electric light plant, are evidences of their thrift and enterprise. They merit the unstinted patronage of the public in all the departments of their business.

Clanton School Improvement Association.

In January there was a re-elec- of officers,

Mrs. Tipton Mullins, President.

Mrs. John Stanfield, Vice-President

Miss Mabel Louise Jones, Secretary.

Mrs. F. M. Woodyard, Treasurer.

The first work undertaken for nineteen twelve was an oyster supper. To Mr. John VanDerveer we owe a special debt of thanks for his kindness in allowing us to use his drug store, and for his many favors to us during the day. From this supper we realized a profit of $33.00.

The next venture was an old time "spelling bee." Owing to the inclemency of the weather the crowd was small, but our profit on this occasion was $8.75.

The last project was the play "Our Wives," presented by Mrs. Jones. The proceeds of the play amounted to nearly $50.00; $37.60 profit. By the last report of the treasury we had cleared of all expenses $120.00.

A RECENT TRAGEDY

As Muggs was perambulating his pedal extremities through the umbrageous viatecture of a delitescent frith, his percipience consequently gyrated to spooks and banshees. At this interesting juncture, diffidence sequestrated his intrepidity, his configuration vellicated at the knees and palpitation thrummed a suspiration in his intellectuality. Precipitately, a stridulous reboation was auscultated from a fence corner in immediate propinquity and instantaneously Muggs perlustrated two feline quadrupeds of the masculine gender, as they tentated one upon the other in peremptory belligerency. With caudel appendages exaggerated, the incursion proceeded; and with masticative accountrements prosecuting their usufruct, extravisation of serum was suscitated at every oscultation, while their aculeated tentacles ever and anon, extradited trusses of lanate tegument. Throughout this feline velitation the welkin reverberated with sibilations, yaups, yarrs, yawls, yee-ows and vociferations of invalidation and acerbity. Muggs perlustrated the luctation with incertitude as to which, circumvention would claudicate. Finally disinence eventuated and Muggs observed the ends of two cat's tails lying motionless upon the ground.

Ode to the Clanton Choirs.

Half a bar, half a bar,
Half a bar onward
Into an awful ditch,
Choir and precentor hitch,
Into a mess of pitch.
They led the Old Hundred.

Trebles to the right of them,
Tenors to left of them,
Basses in front of them,
Bellowed and thundered.
Oh! that precentor's look,
When the sopranos took
Their own time and hook,
From the Old Hundred.

Screeched all the trebles here,
Boggled the tenors there,
Raising the parson's hair,
While his mind wandered;
Theirs not to reason why
This psalm was pitched too high;
Theirs but to gasp and cry
Out the Old Hundred.

Trebles to right of them,
Tenors to left of them,
Basses in front of them,
Bellowed and thundered.
Stormed they with shout and yell,
Not wise they sang nor well,
Browning the sexton's bell,
While all the church wondered.

Dire the precentor's glare,
Flashed his pitchfork in the air,
Sounding fresh keys to hear
Out the Old Hundred.
Swiftly he turned his back,
Reached he his hat from rack,
Then from the screaming pack
Himself he sundered.

Tenors to right of him
Trebles to left of him,
Discords behind him,
Bellowed and thundered.
Oh, the wild howls they wrought;
Right to the end they fought,
Some tune they sung, but not,
Not the Old Hundred.

A DISCIPLE OF ST. PATRICK

DOING STRICTLY A CASH BUSINESS

A pompous old gentleman drove up to a livery stable conducted by an Irishman and, after alighting from his rig and dusting himself with a whisp broom which he had in his top-coat pocket, remarked to waiting Paddy:—

Extricate the quadruped, stabulate him, donate him a sufficient supply of nutricious nourishment, slake his thirst with aqua-pura and when Aurora, the rosy fingered daughter of Morn blushes in the east I will award thee a pecuniary compensation for thy kind hospitality.

Paddy [illegible]

ST. PATRICK ENTERTAINMENT.

On last Thursday afternoon, the Clanton Domino Club, was delightfully entertained by Miss Estella Morgan. The St. Patrick idea was fully carried out in every detail of arrangement. The score-cards were beautifully hand-painted in Sham-rock design. Pictures of quaint Irish-hats adorned the place-cards. One elegant course luncheon was served and the afternoon was delightfully spent.

HE DID COME BACK

Maybe you didn't know that Mr. T. U. Crumpton of Maplesville, visited the Holy Land some years ago. He is such a timid man, that he will not often speak of it, but get him in a corner, and he won't deny it.

Well, one time, soon after his return, he met an old negro woman on the street.

"Look a here, Mr. Crumpton," said she. "Day tell me you sho' is been to dat Holy Land."

He acknowledged that he had.

"Well in de name o' God man," said she "how come you to ever come back to dis sinful world?"

W. T. CALLEN'S OWL HUNT

W. T. Callen, who is not hard to convince, heard as he doubtless thought, some time since, the midnight hoot of an owl, searching, no doubt for a fowl.

With his gun, (himself robed in white) he went in the darkness of the night, to reconnoitre, and if possible to see if the owl was in an old oak tree. Outside, all was quiet as a mouse, he turned and re-entered the house. The treacherous gun went off, alas! through the door and shivered the glass. Down in the swamp the neighbors heard Mr. Owl say, ha! ha! I'm a wise bird!

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and, amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco where he meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer. He makes large investments and gets into the political ring. For a rest he goes to the country. Daylight gets deeper into high finance in San Francisco, but often the longing for the simple life nearly overcomes him. Dede Mason buys a horse and Daylight meets her in her saddle trips. One day he asks Dede to go with him on one more ride, his purpose being to ask her to marry him and they canter away, she trying to analyze her feelings. Dede tells Daylight that her happiness could not lie with a money manipulator. Daylight undertakes to build up a great industrial community.

CHAPTER XVII.—Continued.

She led the way through the door opening out of the hall to the right, and, once inside, he stood awkwardly rooted to the floor, gazing about him and at her and all the time trying not to gaze. In his perturbation he failed to hear and see her invitation to a seat.

"Won't you sit down?" she repeated.

"Look here," he said, in a voice that shook with passion, "there's one thing I won't do, and that's propose to you in the office. That's why I'm here. Dede Mason, I want you, I just want you."

So precipitate was he, that she had barely time to cry out her involuntary alarm and to step back, at the same time catching one of his hands as he attempted to gather her into his arms.

"Oh, I know I'm a sure enough fool," he said. "I—I guess I'll sit down. Don't be scairt, Miss Mason. I'm not real dangerous."

"I'm not afraid," she answered, with a smile, slipping down herself into a chair.

"It's funny," Daylight sighed, almost with regret; "here I am, strong enough to bend you around and tie knots in you. Here I am, used to having my will with man, beast or anything. And here I am sitting in this chair, as weak and helpless as a little lamb. You sure take the starch out of me."

"I—I wish you hadn't asked," she said softly.

"Mebbe it's best you should know a few things before you give me an answer," he went on, ignoring the fact that the answer had already been given. "I never went after a woman before in my life, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding. The stuff you read about me in the papers and books, about me being a lady-killer, is all wrong. There's not an iota of truth in it. I guess I've done more than my share of card-playing and whisky-drinking, but women I've let alone. There was a woman that killed herself, but I didn't know she wanted me that bad or else I'd have married her—not for love, but to keep her from killing herself. She was the best of the bailing, but I never give her any encouragement. I'm telling you all this because you've read about it, and I want you to get it straight from me."

His Arms Went About Her and Held Her Closely.

"I can't marry you," she said. "I like you a great deal, but—"

He waited a moment for her to complete the sentence, failing which, he went on himself.

"I haven't an exaggerated opinion of myself, so I know I ain't bragging when I say I'll make a pretty good husband. You could follow your own sweet will, and nothing would be too good for you. I'd give you everything your heart desired—"

"Except yourself," she interrupted suddenly, almost sharply. "Don't you see?" she hurried on. "I could have far easier married the Elam Harnish fresh from Klondike when I first laid eyes on him long ago, than marry you sitting before me now."

He shook his head slowly.

"That's one too many for me. The more you know and like a man the less you want to marry him. Familiarity breeds contempt—I guess that's what you mean."

"No, no," she cried, but before she could continue, a knock came on the door.

His eyes, quick with observation like an Indian's, darted about the room while she was out. The impression of warmth and comfort and beauty predominated, though he was unable to analyze it; while the simplicity delighted him—expensive simplicity, he decided, and most of it leftovers from the time her father went broke and died.

She re-entered the room, and as she crossed it to her chair, he admired the way she walked, while the bronze slippers were maddening.

"I'd like to ask you several questions," he began immediately. "Are you thinking of marrying somebody else?"

"There isn't anybody else. I don't know anybody I like well enough to marry. For that matter, I don't think I am a marrying woman. Office work seems to spoil me for that."

"It strikes me that you're the most marryingest woman that ever made a man sit up and take notice. And now another question. You see, I've just got to locate the lay of the land. Is there anybody you like as much as you like me?"

But Dede had herself well in hand.

"That's unfair," she said. "And if you stop and consider, you will find that you are doing the very thing you disclaimed—namely, nagging. I refuse to answer any more of your questions. Let us talk about other things. How is Bob?"

Half an hour later, whirling along through the rain on Telegraph Avenue toward Oakland, Daylight smoked one of his brown-paper cigarettes and reviewed what had taken place. It was not at all bad, was his summing up, though there was much about it that was baffling. There was that liking him the more she knew him and at the same time wanting to marry him less. That was a puzzler.

Once again, on a rainy Sunday, weeks afterward, Daylight proposed to Dede. As on the first time, he restrained himself until his hunger for her overwhelmed him and swept him away in his red automobile to Berkeley. He left the machine several blocks away and proceeded to the house on foot. But Dede was out, the landlady's daughter told him, and added, on second thought, that she was walking in the hills. Furthermore, the young lady directed him where Dede's walk was most likely to extend. Daylight obeyed the girl's instructions, and soon the street he followed passed the last house and itself ceased where began the first steep slopes of the open hills. The air was damp with the on-coming of rain, for the storm had not yet burst, though the rising wind proclaimed its imminence. As far as he could see, there was no sign of Dede on the smooth, grassy hills. To the right, dipping down into a hollow and rising again, was a large, full-grown eucalyptus grove. Here all was noise and movement, the lofty, slender-trunked trees swaying back and forth in the wind and clashing their branches together. In the squalls, above all the minor noises of creaking and groaning, arose a deep thrumming note as of a mighty harp. Knowing Dede as he did, Daylight was confident that he would find her somewhere in this grove where the storm effects were so pronounced. And find her he did, across the hollow and on the exposed crest of the opposing slope where the gale smote its fiercest blows.

"It's the same old thing," he said. "I want you and I've come for you. You've just got to have me, Dede, for the more I think about it the more certain I am that you've got a sneaking liking for me that's something more than just ordinary liking. And you don't dast say that it isn't; now dast you?"

"Please, please," she begged. "We can never marry, so don't let us discuss it."

Daylight decided that action was more efficient than words. He stepped between her and the wind and drew her to him, she yielding in the shelter of his arms, and thrummed overhead in the tree-tops, and both paused to listen. A shower of flying leaves enveloped them, and hard on the heel of the wind came driving drops of rain. He looked down on her and on her hair, wind-blown about her face; and because of her closeness to him and of a fresher and more poignant realization of what she meant to him, he trembled so that she was aware of it in the hand that held hers. She suddenly leaned against him, bowing her head until it rested lightly upon his breast. And so they stood while another squall, with flying leaves and scattered drops of rain, rattled past. With equal suddenness she lifted her head and looked at him.

"Dede Mason, I Want You, I Just Want You."

"Do you know," she said, "I prayed last night about you. I prayed that you would fail, that you would lose everything—everything."

Daylight stared his amazement at this cryptic utterance.

"That sure beats me. I always said I got out of my depth with women, and you've got me out of my depth now. Well, you've just got to explain, that's all."

His arms went around her and held her closely, and this time she did not resist. Her head was bowed, and he could not see her face, yet he had a premonition that she was crying. He had learned the virtue of silence, and he waited her will in the matter. Things had come to such a pass that she was bound to tell him something now. Of that he was confident.

"I would dearly like to marry you," she faltered, "but I am afraid. I am proud and humble at the same time that a man like you should care for me. But you have too much money. There's where my abominable common sense steps in. Even if we did marry, you could never be my man—my lover and my husband. You would be your money's man. I know I am a foolish woman, but I want my man for myself. And your money destroys you; it makes you less and less nice. I am not ashamed to say that I love you, because I shall never marry you. And I loved you much when I did not know you at all, when you first came down from Alaska and I first went into the office. You were my hero. You were the Burning Daylight of the gold-diggings, the daring traveler and miner. And you looked it. I don't see how any woman could have looked at you without loving you—then. But you don't look it now. You, a man of the open, have been cooping yourself up in the cities with all that that means. You are becoming something different, something not so healthy, not so clean, not so nice. Your money and your way of life are doing it. You know it. You haven't the same body now that you had then. You are putting on flesh, and it is not healthy flesh. You are kind and genial with me, I know, but you are not kind and genial to all the world as you were then. You have become harsh and cruel to [illegible] you, but I respect [illegible] strong love. You [illegible] thing that is good in me and [illegible] You [illegible]

[illegible] business game. This business—and it's all perfectly useless, so far as you are concerned—claims all of you. I sometimes think it would be easier to share you equitably with another woman than to share you with this business. I might have half of you, at any rate. But this business would claim, not half of you, but nine-tenths of you, or ninety-nine hundredths. You hold back nothing; you put all you've got into whatever you are doing—"

"Limit is the sky," he grunted grim affirmation.

"But if you would only play the lover-husband that way. And now I won't say another word," she added. "I've delivered a whole sermon."

She rested now, frankly and fairly, in the shelter of his arms, and both were oblivious to the gale that rushed past them in quicker and stronger blasts. The big downpour of rain had not yet come, but the mist-like squalls were more frequent. Daylight was openly perplexed, and he was still perplexed when he began to speak.

"You've left me no argument. I know I'm not the same man that came from Alaska. I couldn't hit the trail with the dogs as I did in them days. I'm soft in my muscles, and my mind's gone hard. I used to respect men. I despise them now. You see, I spent all my life in the open, and I reckon I'm an open-air man. Why, I've got the prettiest little ranch you ever laid eyes on up in Glen Ellen. That's where I got stuck for the brick-yard. You recollect handling the correspondence. I only laid eyes on the ranch that one time, and I so fell in love with it that I bought it there and then. I just rode around the hills, and was happy as a kid out of school. I'd be a better man living in the country. The city doesn't make me better. You're plumb right there. I know it. But suppose your prayer should be answered and I'd go clean broke and have to work for day's wages? Suppose I had nothing left but that little ranch, and was satisfied to grow a few chickens and scratch a living somehow—would you marry me then, Dede?"

"Why, we'd be together all the time!" she cried.

Then was the moment, among the trees, ere they began the descent of the hill, that Daylight might have drawn her closely to him and kissed her once. But he was too perplexed with the new thoughts she had put into his head to take advantage of the situation. He merely caught her by the arm and helped her over the rougher footing. At the edge of the grove he suggested that it might be better for them to part there, but she insisted that he accompany her as far as the house.

"Do you know," he said, "taking it by and large, it's the happiest day of my life, Dede, Dede, we've just got to get married. It's the only way, and I've got to look for it coming out all [illegible]

HARD QUESTION FOR MOTHER

Inquisitive Little One Sought Information That Has Puzzled the Wisest of Men.

Four-year-old Dorothy, being in a thoughtful mood, wished to know what she would be when she grew up. Her mother told her she would be first a young woman, then perhaps a married woman, an old woman, a grandmother and a great-grandmother.

"And after great-grandmother, what?" Dorothy inquired.

"Then you will die. Your soul will go to heaven to live forever, and the rest of you will be put under the soft grass and flowers."

"Oh!" said Dorothy, and asked no more questions at the time. When her mother was undressing her for bed that night, and the rosy little figure stood uncovered, Dorothy said eagerly:

"Mother, will you show me just what part of me will go to heaven to live forever, and what goes under the flowers?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

HEALTH FOR THE CHILD.

The careful mother, watching closely the physical peculiarities of her children, soon learns that health is in a great measure dependent upon normal, healthy, regular bowel action. When the bowels are inactive, loss of appetite, restlessness during sleep, irritability and a dozen and one similar evidences of physical disorder are soon apparent.

Keep the bowels free and clear and good health is assured. At the first sign of constipation give the child a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at bed-time and repeat the dose the following night, if necessary. You will find the child will quickly recover its accustomed good spirits, and eat and sleep normally.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is far preferable to salts, cathartics and purgative waters which are harsh in their action. Syrup Pepsin acts on the bowels easily and naturally, yet positively, and causes no griping or discomfort. Its tonic properties build up the stomach, liver and bowels, restoring their normal condition.

Druggists everywhere sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried this remedy, send for a sample to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. He will gladly send a trial bottle without any expense to you whatever.

WITH HUNGER AS ALLY

SCHEDULE K OF THE PROTECTIVE TARIFF IS FORTIFIED.

Just as Unjust Taxes Mark Up Dividends and Surpluses, So Hunger Cuts Down Pay Rolls In Favored Industries.

Hunger and schedule K of the protective tariff make a strong team when they are both on one side, as is the case with the owners of the textile mills at Lawrence, Mass. What chances has poorly paid labor against money and hunger?

Schedule K is the one that the president is in the habit of referring to as "indefensible." It levies almost prohibitive duties upon many articles that are manufactured at Lawrence, so that by combination the American market can easily be cornered against any competing foreign product. As an insurance policy against competition, hard work for capital and small profits there is nothing better than an extortionate tariff.

On the other hand, hunger is what makes labor docile. Hunger kills the strike spirit. Hunger does not negotiate; it compels. Hunger fights always on the side of low wages and long hours—and the protected employer. Hunger cuts down pay rolls in favored industries, just as tariff taxes mark up dividends and surpluses.

Next to a corrupt congress, hunger is the tariff's best friend.

A fact which Americans have too long ignored is that hunger rarely appears as an ally of capital in this country except in the mills that are buttressed on all sides by the indefensible schedules of the monopoly tariff. We have no other "pauper labor."

Every week the beneficiaries of the tariff, who refused to arbitrate, noted with pleasure the increasing number of men, women and children who were driven to work by—hunger!

This is another tariff victory.—St. Louis Republic.

RECORD BELIES HIS WORDS

President Taft Good Example of the Difference Between Preaching and Practice.

At New York President Taft said something about the tariff that is worth quoting in full.

"The Republican party has come to realize that high tariff duties encourage combinations of capital by suppressing competition, and that there is a much safer system, which limits the duties to the measure of the difference between the cost of production here and the cost of production abroad, than the wholesale system of imposing high rates on some things in order to obtain reduction at the expense of everything else."

These are beautiful sentiments, worthy of a statesman and a lover of his kind. It seems a pity that Mr. Taft's record should be so strikingly at variance with his creed and that one who understands so perfectly the nefarious nature of high protection should have proved at once its champion and high priest in the hour of decision, when bills reducing the tariff downward were received by him only to be vetoed!

Just Happened So.

The demonstration at Lawrence, Mass., of the kind of American labor Schedule K supports, and of the way it supports it, was not the result of a deep-laid free-trade plot, but of an accident. It all happened along of the enforcement of a Massachusetts law from which no such disorderly results were anticipated. The Lawrence operatives' noses seem to have been already so closely applied to Mr. William Wood's grindatone that they really couldn't stand the loss of two hours' work a week with corresponding reduction of pay. Ninety-one per cent. of the population of Lawrence is foreign born—so we are told by a resident of that city. That is the sort of American labor the woolen men will presently beseech congress to protect from the competition of underpaid Europe.—Harper's Weekly.

A Sharp Corner.

The esteemed Outlook, which sometimes says things with which the contributing editor disagrees, remarks that the ex-president's declination of a third term in 1904, repeated in 1907, is to be likened to a man at breakfast who has had two cups of coffee and who says: "Positively no more." The meaning is that he will have no third term and no more coffee that morning. The devil himself cannot tell what he will want the next day.

We absolve the contributing editor from all responsibility for this subtlety, says the St. Louis Republic. No one not educated in theology could have done this. We think we can recognize the guilty man. He is Rev. Lyman Abbott.

A truly good preacher can turn a sharper corner than a politician.

Steel Trust's Sweet Spirit.

It appears that the steel trust maintains the twelve-hour day as a sweet boon to its employes who are anxious to work and earn some of the money that congress confers upon them by means of the protective tariff. In the same spirit, no doubt, the trust blacklists its men who join the labor unions because it does not want them to waste their money in the payment of dues and assessments. Philanthropy of a high order marks the trust now as always.

ONE CONDITION TO IMPROVE

Rich Men Judge Gary Talks About Might Assume Their Fair Share of Taxation.

There are things said at the present time akin to things said just prior to the French revolution, and in my opinion there is danger. I do not want to wave the flag of distress, but the situation appears serious to me. Unless capitalists, corporations, men of great wealth and power, take a leading position in improving conditions from time to time, there will be changes made later on by the mob.—Judge Gary, at the Lehigh Club dinner.

There are also conditions now which are akin to conditions just prior to the French revolution.

One of the things reformers then had to work against was the practical exemption of the nobility and wealth from taxation.

We in this country have a federal system of taxation which loads the great cost of the national government on the consumption of the masses, and the local systems of taxations which, through rents and prices, filter the great costs of local government down to the same thing. It is a combined system of taxing the people according to their needs and not their wealth.

Why then? Shall the Judge Garys leave their beautiful altruism at the banquet table and go forth to defeat the income tax amendment, through which some little measure of this cost of government may be placed exclusively on wealth?—New York World.

TOO GREAT TO BE ENTAILED

Presidency of the United States Must Not Be Left in the Keeping of Any One Man.

One thing that even Democrats must admit is that many of Mr. Taft's failures have been due to Mr. Roosevelt's bossism.

Mr. Taft never would have come to the presidency without Mr. Roosevelt's indorsement and command to a servile party.

If Mr. Taft had been less a proxy and more a president not a few of the scandals and humiliations of the present regime would have been avoided.

Is it possible that the man who gave us Taft is now, in the face of admitted error, to sweep aside his understudy and set himself up as necessary? Is it not possible that he is again mistaken?

In 1908 the mandate was: "Take Taft or you will get me!" Now it is: "Repudiate Taft, for you want me!"

The presidency is too great a position to be left in One Man's keeping, and that man a desperado. It must not be passed on. It must not be merchandized. It cannot be entailed.

No Diaz in the United States.—St. Louis Republic.

What Gary Had in Mind.

"We of great power and influence have not all of us done the fair thing," said E. H. Gary of the steel trust the other evening at a banquet of his business associates. "It is imperative that something be done to improve the condition of mankind."

Mr. Gary had been speaking of the great popular unrest and had said that in some respects our social, industrial and political conditions were alarming. His remark therefore may be accepted as a confession and a warning.

It is true that the steel trust has not done the fair thing and that it is particularly desirable that its leading spirits should do something for humanity.

Yet it is not charity but justice that is needed. An industry enjoying almost unexampled governmental favor on the false pretense that it bestows the benefit upon labor ought not to work one-quarter of its men 12 hours a day. It ought not to deny them the right of organization. Its employes ought not to become the poorest paid and most wretched of American workingmen. It ought not to maintain a blacklist. It ought not to establish at its plants a scale of living so brutal and miserable that only the most desperate of immigrants can be persuaded to enter its service.

If Mr. Gary and his associates will quit their meanness, deal fairly with their labor, loosen their strangle hold upon the Republican party and surrender the vicious advantages which they enjoy under perverted laws they will not be asked to engage in any schemes of philanthropy.

Solemn Pledge Violated.

When Mr. Roosevelt reiterated his promises toward the close of his second term he pledged the American people he would not jockey with the wise custom of limiting the presidency to two terms; he would regard the substance, not the form; he would not accept another nomination. Should he now persist in his candidacy it would be a deliberate violation of this solemn pledge and prove an ineradicable stain upon his consistency and good faith.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Step Toward Life Rule.

To break down the wise custom that forbids the non-consecutive third term is the first step to the destruction of the barrier against the consecutive third term and the consecutive fourth term, and so on to life rule, and the do-not-use-her lady American citizen has a fresh and timely interest of a personal and [illegible] in the New York case.

The [illegible] does not [illegible] of any person.

For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. It is also invaluable in keeping the hands soft and white, the hair live and glossy, and the scalp free from dandruff and irritation.

While its first cost is a few cents more than that of ordinary toilet soaps, it is prepared with such care and of such materials, that it wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of other soap, and making its use, in practice, most economical. Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, but the truth of these claims may be demonstrated without cost by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston, for a liberal sample cake, together with a thirty-two page book on the skin and hair.

HIS MODESTY OF HIGH ORDER

Tinker, of Course, Loved His Neighbor as Himself, but That Wasn't Too Much.

Lord Tankerville, who is sending his son to an American school, said the other day in New York:

"There are too many Englishmen—and English boys as well—who develop, in the presence of a lord, a painful and unnatural modesty. Their modesty reminds me of a village tinker.

"This tinker had a rather crusty disposition, and his pastor said to him one day:

"'My man, you should love your neighbor as yourself.'

"'Yes, sir,' said the tinker.

"But the pastor had in mind a nasty black eye that the tinker had given the bricklayer next door, and so he went on:

"'Do you, though, do you honestly, love your neighbor as yourself?'

"'Yes, sir; oh, yes, sir,' said the tinker; and he added, 'but I'm a modest man, ye see, and, to tell the truth, I ain't a bit stuck on myself, sir.'"

Counterfeiter Gets Stiff Sentence.

William Fink, a Brooklyn, N. Y., dealer in drugs, was sentenced by the New York Court of Special Sessions, to imprisonment in the penitentiary at hard labor, for four months. The charge was counterfeiting the trade-mark for Carter's Little Liver Pills, in violation of the penal law.

The Carter Medicine Company detected the counterfeit before any quantity of the spurious goods had been placed upon the market. In sentencing Fink, Judge Deuel laid special stress upon the injury done to the public when a remedy so well known as Carter's Little Liver Pills is counterfeited and put on the market. He imposed the sentence not only as the proper punishment of Fink himself, but in order to deter others from the commission of like frauds in the future.

Retort to the Point.

Dr. Mary Walker, who long dressed in men's attire, had been lecturing in a certain small country town. As she walked down the main street one afternoon an impudent urchin called after her:

"Say, are you the Mary that had a little lamb?"

"No," answered Dr. Walker, "but your mother had a little jackass."—Lippincott's Magazine.

AS A REMEDY FOR MALARIA in any form Elixir Babek has no equal. It cures the most obstinate and long standing cases.

"It gives pleasure to certify that the 'Elixir Babek' cured me of chills and malarial fever, with which I have suffered for a long time."—August Epps, Nance's Shops, Va.

It contains no quinine and is equally beneficial to young and old.

Winkleby gazed at the new triplets with fatherly pride, but not a little apprehension in his eye, nevertheless.

"What are you thinking, dear?" asked Mrs. Winkleby, softly.

"Nothing, dear, nothing," he said, falteringly, "only don't you think that it would be wiser for us hereafter to build up our little family on the installment plan?"—Harper's Weekly.

Backache

Is only one of many symptoms which some women endure through weakness or displacement of the womanly organs. Mrs. Lizzie White of Memphis, Tenn., wrote Dr. R. V. Pierce, as follows:

"At times I was hardly able to be on my feet. I believe I had every pain and ache a woman could have. Had a very bad case. Internal organs were very much diseased and my back was very weak. I suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, in fact, I suffered all over. This was my condition when I wrote to you for advice. After taking your 'Favorite Prescription' for about three months can say that my health was never better."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. Tones and builds up the nerves. Do not permit a dishonest dealer to substitute for this medicine which has a record of 40 years of cures. "No, thank you, I want what I ask for."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets induce mild natural bowel movement once a day.

Lazy Liver

Do not allow a lazy liver to retard your healthful progress through life. Your liver is about the most important organ of your body, and unless kept in good condition, you cannot expect to feel well. In fact, so important is the work of your liver, that upon it depends, very largely, the proper workings of all the other organs of your body.

When it's working properly, you feel fresh, bright, happy, healthy and well.

When it's clogged up, you feel tired, worn-out, sick, weak and miserable. For more than 70 years

WITH POTASH TOBACCO WITHOUT POTASH

No crop gives better returns for using the right kind of fertilizer than does tobacco.

POTASH

Both quantity and quality are improved by properly balanced fertilizers containing Potash in the form of Sulfate—Muriate and Kainit will not do. The amount of Sulfate of Potash should be from 200 to 250 pounds per acre. This would mean 1000 to 1250 pounds per acre of 4-5-10 goods.

Many so-called "tobacco fertilizers" are merely ordinary, general-purpose mixed goods, containing chlorides which injure the quality of the leaf. Insist on goods free from chlorides and containing 10 to 12 per cent. Potash, or supplement the manure with 300 to 400 pounds acid phosphate and 200 to 250 pounds Sulfate of Potash.

ATTENTION COMMITTEE-MEN AND CANDIDATES

IMPORTANT MEETING TO BE HELD

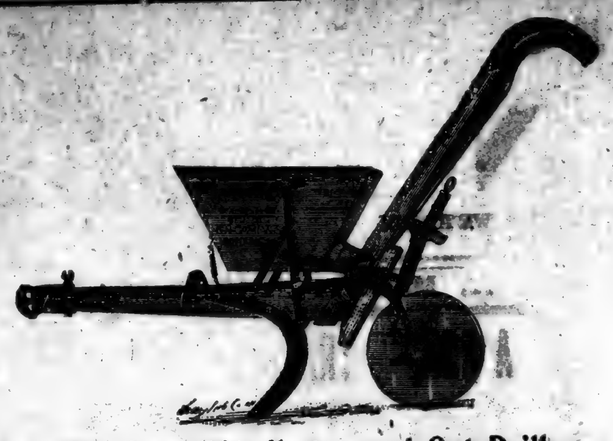
The attention of the members of the Executive Committee of the Democratic party of the county, and the County Candidates for office, is called to the fact that the Committee is to meet in Clanton, at the Court House, at noon, on WEDNESDAY the TWENTIETH day of March, for the purpose of concluding arrangements for the April primary.

Among other things to be accomplished is the appointment of Inspectors, Clerks and Returning Officers. The candidates, under a late ruling of the committee will have the right to designate friends who shall be in and about the polls for the purpose of protecting their interests. Such candidates should have a list of those they wish appointed and should submit it to the committee on the day of the meeting.

Several candidates have thus far failed to comply with the rules of the committee in the matter of qualifying; this should be done at once as the time is now limited. It would be well for all the candidates to be present at the meeting on next Wednesday; it is highly important that every committeeman be present. This is final notice.

Judge Deason as Official Taster

A good one is going the rounds on Judge Deason. It seems that he has lately been recognized as an official taster; at least he is so recognized by a merchant of Cooper's Station.



A jolly party of Chiltonites were returning home from the Shriner's Convention, at Talladega, a short time ago, when a telegram was handed to Judge Deason while on board the train. The message ran: "Come straight through to Cooper's. Business of importance." Speculation immediately became rife among members of the Shrining party as to the nature of the important business which demanded such urgent and immediate attention.

Possibly the incendiaries had been routed, effectual work had lately been responsible for having almost wiped the quiet little village of Cooper's from off the face of the earth. Perhaps some terrible murder had been committed or some unspeakable piece of devilry had been perpetrated.

At any rate, when Judge Deason landed in Clanton he was urged onward to Cooper's by a number of excited citizens of his home town, who felt that the long distance calls received during the day had emphasized the importance of the case.

reached him by dispatch.

Upon meeting, each of the pair apparently with mutual

Gamble Hardware Co.

With excitement increasing at every heart-throb, the Judge went on to Cooper's. Arriving at that place, Judge Deason was met by the party who had called over long-distance, and had finally began, the one to question, the other to narrate; and this is the substance of the story, to which Judge Deason lent ear.

"You see that drummer came up here from Pensacola and proposed to send me two barrels of pure apple-cider to put on sale.

Well, when the men found out how it tasted, they came back again and again to buy. I never thought anything about the matter until I heard about them whispering it around among themselves, that the cider was spiked. I now stand accused and am about to be handled for selling intoxicants. Now I want you to taste the cider and see if YOU think there is any alcohol in it."

A FAIR OFFER

Your Money Back if You're not Satisfied

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial, if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery that is odorless, colorless, and tasteless; very pronounced, yet gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. They do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping, or any inconvenience whatever. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember you can get them in Clanton only at our store. 12 tablets 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents; 80 tablets 50 cents. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Upchurch Drug Co.

A Wheeling (W. Va.) lawyer says that he has heard many queer verdicts in his time, but the quaintest of these was that brought in not long ago by a jury of mountaineers in a sparsely settled part of that state.

This was the first case for the majority of the jury, and they sat for hours arguing and disputing over it in the bare little room at the rear of the court room. At last they straggled back to their places, and the forman, a lean, grave fellow with a superlatively solemn expression, voiced the general opinion:

"The jury don't think that he [illegible] it, fer we allow he [illegible] it, but we think he would have [illegible] if he'd had the chance."

It should be remembered by the voters in the April primary that Chilton county is to elect a new Executive Committee on the First of April.

The names of the committeemen will not appear on the regular official ballot; the Probate Judge (whose duty it is to prepare and distribute the ballots) will have separate tickets made for this purpose.

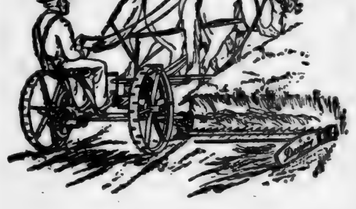
Vote for two committeemen in your precinct. Voters are not permitted to vote for committeemen except in the precinct in which they reside.

In selecting committeemen for whom to vote be careful to name those who have the interest of the party at heart and who will attend meetings of the committee. Too often we elect men to these important positions who care nothing for the honor conferred and who think less of the duty involved. Get good men and vote for them.

An Irishman and a Jew were discussing the great men who had belonged to each race and of course got into a heated argument. Finally the Irishman said "Ikey, listen. For ivery great Jew you can name, ye may pull out one of me whiskers and for itery great Irishman I can name, I will pull out wan of yours. Is it a go?"

They consented and Pat reached over, got hold of a whisker, said Rebert Emmett and pulled.

"Moses" said the Jew and pulled one of Pat's tenderest. "Dan O'Connell", said Pat and pulled another.



"Abraham" said Ikey helping himself again.

"Patrick Henry" said Pat with a vicious yank.

"The [illegible] Fathers" said the Jew, [illegible] a handful of whisker. Pat [illegible] a roar of pain.

The Unfortunate Fakir.

A fakir came to town
To treat the human eye,
He parted suckers from their coins—
He did no license buy.

A heavy fine he had to pay
To Matthews on the job.
He had to leave the town next day
To 'scape an angry mob.

For him to fit their eyes to specks
And fix their optics back.

Higgins keeps a jewelry store,
With everything first-class.

You'd think that they were brass.

Do you know that of all the minor ailments colds are by far the most dangerous? It is not the cold itself that you need to fear, but the serious diseases that it often leads to. Most of these are known as germ diseases. Pneumonia and consumption are among them. Why not take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and cure your cold while you can? For sale by all dealers.

THE FOREST LUMBER COMpany, Guy Higgins, Prop;, furnishes all sorts and kinds of lumber and other building materials, wholesale and retail, at the lowest market prices. Mr. Tom Woods, the efficient manager and factotum, will meet you with such smiling courtesy, that you might believe he had been all the way to St. Patrick's country to kiss the Blarney Stone.

A MAN POOR BUT RICH

Once in New England I was driving with an old farmer, and some of the men of the neighborhood came under criticism.

Speaking of a prominent man in the village, I asked: "Is he a man of means?"

"Well, sir," the farmer replied, "he ain't got much money, but he's mighty rich."

"He has a great deal of land, then?" I asked.

"No sir, he ain't got much land, neither, but still he is mighty rich."

The old farmer, with a pleased smile, observed my puzzled look for a moment, and then explained:

"You see, he ain't got much money and he ain't got much land, but still he is rich, because he never went to bed owing any man a cent in all his life. He lives as well as he wants to live, and he pays as he goes; he does not owe anything, and he ain't afraid of anybody; he tells every man the truth, and does his duty to himself, his family, and his neighbors; his word is as good as a bond, and every man, woman and child in the town looks up to and respects him. No, sir, he ain't got much money, and he ain't got much land, but still he is a mighty rich man because he's got all he needs and all he wants."—The Outlook.

When you have the misfortune to scald your foot or burn your hand, Chamberlain's Liniment must be used. It will soothe the pain, reduce the inflammation and heal the burn. Why suffer? For sale by all dealers.

Fruit Crops must be Nourished to Yield

Fruit crops take plant foods from your soil just as do cotton, corn, tobacco, wheat, oats, vegetables, rice, sugar cane, peanuts or any other crop. Not only do your trees need fertilizer, but they need the best to be had. You will make no mistake in buying and using

Virginia-Carolina

High-Grade

Fertilizers

They will give fruit trees just what they are hungering for—that enables them to produce their utmost. Apply 15 or 20 lbs. of these fertilizers per tree—spread around from eighteen inches to two feet away from the tree, according to its size—working them into the soil about the roots. They will wonderfully increase the yield—if the pruning, spraying and cultivation has been properly and carefully done.

Our 1912 Year Book will interest all fruit growers. A copy will be sent free to you upon request. It may help you to pay off a mortgage or buy another farm.

A train order which was misread was the cause of the wreck on the Georgia railroad, on the main line at Social Circle, Ga., according to the investigation made by railroad officials who went to the scene in the wrecking train which left here immediately following the news of the disaster. W. C. Vaughan, engineer of the passenger train and one of the oldest trainmen in Georgia, died from a fracture at the base of the skull. Four negroes were killed in the crash.

Asserting that he is retaining his seat "contrary to the wish and will of an overwhelming majority of the people of the state," the Mississippi legislature adopted a resolution demanding that United States Senator Leroy Percy resign his office. In the senate the resolution was adopted by a vote of 26 to 13 and in the house 66 to 39. The vote was along strictly factional lines, and is in direct sequence to differences within the state Democratic party.

Inspired by sentiment for the "lost cause," students composing the senior class of the medical department of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte firmly refused to dissect the corpse of a hero of the Civil war —the late Capt. Edward Benton of Raleigh. The hat was passed around for a collection, and later, followed by the student body, the remains of the gallant veterans were borne to the Confederate lot in the Chapel Hill cemetery and given a Christian burial.

The department of justice has ordered Grant Victor, United States marshal in eastern Oklahoma, to enforce the Federal prohibition law in the old Indian Territory, the same as prior to statehood. Under this law it is a pentitentiary offense for a man to carry a flask of liquor across the state line, the same as introducing or selling it. All liquor will be seized and confiscated and all persons in possession of it arrested. Oklahoma has a statewide liquor prohibtion law.

General.

Senator LaFollett's silence on the candidacy of Colonel Roosevelt was broken by the published declaration "that in the presence of great problems personal attacks on candidates should have no place. The statement is called forth by the declaration that Colonel Roosevelt urged LaFollette as the "ideal man to make the fight against Taft." "It is not a matter of great importance to the public why I became a candidate," said the senator.

A rumor is published in a London paper that Capt. Robert F. Scott, the British Antarctic explorer, has reached the South Pole. Mrs. Scott declares that she has heard nothing from her husband and there is no confirmation obtainable from any source. Capt. Roald Amunsden, the Norwegian explorer, has reached Hobart, Tasmania, on the return from his South Polar expedition.

Comparative quiet has been restored at Pekin, China. The action of the American minister, Mr. Calhoun, in cabling to Manila for further troops for Tien Tsin, it is stated, was not due to the fear of a concerted attempt against foreigners, similar to the Boxer rising, but, owing to the belief that it was unwise to take any chances, in view of the fact that the Chinese troops cannot be depended upon and disorders are sweeping the north, with little prospect of prompt government control.

American Secretary of State Philander C. Knox and his party traveled from Corinto to Managua in Nicaragua on a special train which was heavily guarded in consequence of an anti-Knox and anti-American propaganda which had been industriously circulated. These persons represented that the visit meant further American domination. A pilot train, carrying fifty soldiers, with a machine gun, preceded the special, while a third, carrying 100 soldiers, followed.

Enraged because his sister refused to leave an alleged disorderly resort in Terre Haute, Indiana, of which she was an inmate, Harry Rambo of Peoria, Ill., shot and probably fatally wounded the young woman.

Hudson Maxim, the inventor, declares that in a short time there will be only three countries in the world.

"Feed the children Boston baked beans if they like them, administer corporal punishment if necessary," and "let them go barefooted," are some of the suggestions given by Dr. Charles B. Putnam to mothers in an address to Harvard Medical school.

Two Christiana, Sweden, newspapers received dispatches from Capt. Raold Amundsen announcing that he reached the South Pole December 14, 1911. The dispatches were sent from Hobart, Tasmania, where Amundsen arrived, and read: "Pole reached, fourteenth - seventeenth December." This evidently means that he remained three days in the vicinity of the pole probably for the purpose of taking accurate observations as to his position.

The national political situation assumes a more harmonious appearance than it has had since Colonel Roosevelt announced himself as a candidate for the presidential nomination. This condition was induced by the acceptance of Roosevelt's challenge to a national primary by the Taft managers. The proposition was not taken up in its entirety, but was indorsed for application in the 41 states which have legal provision for such action. The Michigan legislature passed a law providing for presidential primaries, the measure to take effect immediately. On the Democratic side, Woodrow Wilson's manager issued a statement favoring the primaries.

An extraordinary outburst of anti-American feeling at Managua, Nicaragua, led to the arrest of fifty of the more prominent ringleaders who are being held in detention until Secretary of State Knox has departed. This is the first indication publicly expressed of opposition to the Central American trip of the secretary of state. The persons arrested include the whole of the editorial staffs of the Diario de Nicaragua and of the Diario Moderno, which had published a number of letters and placed headlines over them suggesting that dynamite should be used against the state secretary.

Henry L. Stimson of New York, secretary of war, and the Roosevelt candidate for governor of New York in 1910, and said that while he remained the "sincere friend" of Mr. Roosevelt, he could not support him for the presidential nomination. In a speech before the Taft Club of Illinois he declared his belief that President Taft's administration represented the highest expression of progressive Republican policy.

One hundred and fifty Americans, mostly women and children, from the American lumbering town of Madera, Mexico, were brought into El Paso, Texas, by the Mexican Northwestern railroad from Pearson, their first stopping place after leaving Madera. With the exception of a small hospital staff at Pearson, every American woman and child in the towns of Madera and Pearson, Mexico, is on United States soil.

"The utterer of a cry of jingoism relative to China or Mexico, is going to be responsible for the slaughter of an untold number of innocent foreigners in those countries," declared War Secretary Stimson in a speech at Chicago.

Washington.

Summing up the action of the senate in stripping the proposed arbitration treaties with France and Great Britain of their vital features, government officials who followed the negotiation of the two pacts agreed that participation by the United States in general arbitration of international difficulties was a dead issue so far as this session of congressw as concerned and probably for many year to come. There is little thought that President Taft will submit the treaties.

John Mitchell, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, declined to give to Judge Wright of the District of Columbia supreme court any assurance that he expected "hereafter to lend adherence to the decrees of the judicial tribunals of the land." To do so, he declared, would be an admission that he had heretofore failed to comply with lawful decrees. Mr. Mitchell said he had rather be convicted of contempt than be acquitted on any other ground than the facts in the case.

The house passed a joint resolution authorizing the secretary of war to accept from citizens of Tennessee approximately 5,000 acres of land near Tullahoma, in that state, for use as a maneuver camp and training ground for the state militia of Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina. The resolution, offered by Representative Bynum of Tennessee, now goes to the senate.

Representative Clark of Florida made a sensational attack on Governor Gilchrist in the house. It was in reply to a purported interview from the governor in which he is alleged to have expressed surprise at the attitude of Representative Clark in the Everglades investigation. Said Mr. Clark: "It remains for the governor of Florida—God pity the state—to travel all the way from Tallahassee to Washington to insinuate now that I am working in the interest of Western railroads. I brand that as a malicious, gratuitous and unqualified falsehood."

Advices to the government from points along the Mexican border, as well as in the interior, continue to paint a picture of brigandage and anarchy, hitherto unparalleled in the republic below the Rio Grande. Though unorganized the spirit of revolution, from dispatches received here, seems to pervade the entire republic. In the state of Chihuahua the situation is most serious. The report of Gen. Pascual Orozco's desertion of the Madero standard was confirmed. Apprehension now is felt for the safety of numerous foreigners in the city of Chihuahua.

U. S. INTERVENTION MAY BE NECESSARY

WAR-SWEPT COUNTRY DRIFTING INTO HELPLESS STATE OF ANARCHY.

MADERO TO FOLLOW DIAZ

This Is the Cry Now Being Heard Throughout the Mexican Republic.

Mexico City.—With new revolutions breaking out at the gates of Mexico City and disaffection in President Madero's cabinet, the situation in Mexico is becoming rapidly worse, and it is expected that within a short time such a state of anarchy will prevail in the revolution-ridden republic that it will be necessary for the United States to intervene.

General Orozco is reported marching on Mexico City from Chihuahua with an army whose cry is that "Madero must follow Diaz." The leaders demand that Madero be expelled from the country.

Another rebel army is south of the city under command of Gen. Zapata, but its march has been halted. A third army, led by General Miranda, is west of the capital.

The insurrectos, many of whom are no better than outlaws, are looting, destroying property and inflicting barbarous tortures on prisoners. The manager of a ranch in the state of Chihuahua, while trying to persuade a rebel detachment not to loot the place, was seized, stripped and tied to stakes in the ground. A fire was built and his feet were burned off at the ankles. Then his eyes were gouged out and his tongue pulled out. Death finally ended his sufferings.

Fifty Spaniards are reported to have been killed at Torreon. At Jerex, near Zacatecas, fifty rebels were killed in a battle with federals. A rebel band ran into an ambuscade at Union Hidalgo and fifteen men were slaughtered.

Vera Cruz is under seige.

MAY TAKE THE STUMP.

Roosevelt Says He Has About Made Up His Mind.

Oyster Bay.—Colonel Roosevelt has about made up his mind to take the stump and personally make the fight in various parts of the country for his presidential nomination. He said he probably would be forced to do so, although he has been reluctant to decide on such a course.

Since the day of Colonel Roosevelt's announcement that he was willing to accept the nomination he has been urged by supporters in almost every state, except in the South, to make a speech-making campaign. It has been reported to him that in several cities the voters were in doubt, and that if he would appear before them the result might be materially affected. Governor Stubbs of Kansas sent a message urging the Colonel to make speeches in Kansas, Michigan, Illinois, Massachusetts and other states in which the Roosevelt leaders believe there is the best chance for effective work.

15 PERISH IN CHICAGO FIRE.

Fifty Men Were Asleep In Lodging House When Blaze Started.

Chicago, Ill.—Fifteen men are believed to have been killed and many hurt in a fire which destroyed a Clark street lodging house. Fifty men were asleep in an upper story. There was a rush to the doors and windows. One man killed himself by jumping from a fourth story window. The bodies of two men who were smothered were found on the fourth floor. The firemen continued their search. Fire Marshal Seyferniche said there were ten more bodies on the third floor. They cannot be reached owing to the dense smoke.

Canal Zone Bill Completed.

Washington.—The bill for the government of the Panama canal zone and the operation of the canal was agreed to by the house committee on interstate commerce. It would give to the president authority to fix tolls within certain limits, a maximum of $1.25 per ton being prescribed, with a minimum not below an amount sufficing to maintain and operate the canal. No preference would be given to American ships.

Catholic Church Burned.

Detroit, Mich.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the St. John Nepomucene Catholic church in this city. The property loss is estimated at $60,000.

Washington.—Senator Leroy Percy has replied to the Mississippi legislature's demand that he resign by flatly declining to do so. He has sent his answer in a spirited letter which rings with accusations of cowardice, falsehood and malignant factional hatred. Senator Percy replies that when, just after his election, he offered to resign his unexpired term in a primary were held in 1910 to name his successor, he limited his proposition to that year, and not 1911; the year in which a primary finally was held.

Sheriff's Sale.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Circuit Court. Spring Term, 1911.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the said Court of said county, Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I, as Sheriff of said county, was commanded to make the sum of one hundred and seventy-seven and 60-100 dollars, principal and interest, and the sum of six and 50-100 dollars, costs, the amount of a certain judgment and costs therein obtained at the said term of said Court of said county, Alabama, in favor of Teague & Sons against R. H. Martin, out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of R. H. Martin. Now, therefore, I, as Sheriff of said county, under and by virtue of the within execution, have on this the 19th day of January, 1912, levied upon the following described real estate as the property of R. H. Martin, to-wit:

One lot of land in the town of Maplesville, Alabama, bounded as follows: On the east by the right of way of the Southern and Mobile & Ohio railroads, where they cross each other in said town of Maplesville, Ala., and on the North, West and South by Mrs. N. E. Goodwin's property containing, one and one fourth (1 1-4) acres, together with a complete gin plant thereon. Also the following described land (except the school lot of one eighth (1-8) of an acre, beginning at a certain point on the east boundary line of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's line in the town of Maplesville, Ala., said certain point being South eighty one degrees fifteen minutes west (1132) feet from an iron pin on the West edge of the right of way of the Southern railway, known as South-east corner of lot No. 3 in the survey of the "Town of Cuba," running thence from said certain point north eighty one degrees fifteen minutes east 262 feet to the South-west corner of a one acre lot owned by R. H. Martin; thence North-west 200 feet along said one acre lot; thence North eighty one degrees fifteen minutes 220 feet along said one acre lot to the North-west corner of the Boykin lot; thence North eleven degrees west along a lot owned by R. H. Martin 200 feet to a point South eighty one degrees fifteen minutes West three hundred and ninety eight and four-tenths feet to East boundary of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's land; thence South four hundred one and sixth tenths feet along said East boundary to point of beginning, containing two and nine tenths acres in Soction 21, Township 21, Range 12 East, all of said lands being located in the town of Maplesville, Ala.

Therefore, according to said command, I will expose for sale at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named R. H. Martin, in and to the above described property, on THE 12th DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1912, during the legal hours of sale, at Clanton, Alabama, in front of the Court House door.

This 19th day of January, 1912.

B. L. JONES, Sheriff.

The above sale is continued to Monday, Feb. 26, 1912.

B. L. Jones, Sheriff.

1-25-4t

The above sale has been continued to Monday, March 25, 1912.

B. L. Jones, Sheriff.

"A NATION ONCE AGAIN!"

Ireland's Hope of Home Rule Nearing Realization at Last

NATURE, GRACE AND TRAINING FITTED ST. PATRICK TO HIS TASK

So Well Accomplished, Ireland Was Known for Centuries as the "Land of Saints"

ST. PATRICK says of himself in his confession that he was born at "Bannaven Taberniae," which is extremely hard to identify. Some, however, claim that Kirk-Patrick, near Glasgow, in Scotland, took its name from St. Patrick.

The saint was born about 372; was a captive and a slave of the king of Dalaradia, in Ireland, from 388 to 395; went to Gaul and was there ordained priest; was consecrated bishop and sent to Ireland as missionary in 432, and died at Saul, near Strangford Lough, County Down, Ulster, where many years before he had founded his church, March 17, 465, the day now sacred to his memory.

Ireland was then occupied by a great number of petty tribes, most of whom were evangelized by Patrick. So well was the work accomplished that Ireland was known in subsequent centuries as the "island of saints and scholars."

The method employed was that of dealing cautiously and gently with the old paganism of the people. The chieftains were first won over and then through them their clans.

Of St. Patrick himself much that has been related is fabulous, but his autobiographical confession and his epistle to Coroticus, both of which are unquestionably genuine, reveal a devout, simple minded man, and a most discreet and energetic missionary.

In his epistle he states that he was of noble birth and that his father, Calphurnicus, was a Roman decuiro. His Mother, Conchessa, or Conceis, was the sister of St. Martin of Tours.

The family of the saint is affirmed by the earliest authorities to have belonged to Britain, but whether the term refers to Great Britain or Brittany or other parts of France is not ascertained.

Some of the quaint stories told in Ireland about St. Patrick would make the traveler imagine that the saint visited the island for the benefit of witty guides, or to promote mirth in wet weather. It is not remarkable that the subject of these stories for 16 centuries, at countless hearths, has been regarded and is today honored as the greatest man and the greatest benefactor that ever trod the Irish soil, and considering the versatility of the Irish character, it is not strange that there remains respecting the saint a vast cycle of legends—serious, pathetic and profound.

It could not be otherwise. Such a people could not have forgotten the heroic figure who led them forth in the exodus from the bondage of pagan darkness. In many instances doubtless has the tale become a tradition, the foliage of an ever active popular imagination, gathered around the central stem of fact; but the fact remained.

A large tract of Irish history is dark; but the time of St. Patrick and the three centuries which succeeded it is clearly, as depicted by history, a time of joy. The chronicle is a song of gratitude and of hope, as befits the story of a nation's conversion to Christianity.

The higher legends, which, however, do not profess to keep close to the original sources, except as regards their spirit and the manners of the time, are found in some ancient lives of St. Patrick, the most valuable of which is the "Tripartite Life," ascribed by Colgen to the century after the saint's death. The work was lost for many centuries, but two copies of it were rediscovered, one of which has been recently translated by an eminent Irish scholar, Mr. Hennessy.

The miracles, however, recorded in the "Tripartite Life" are neither the most marvelous nor the most interesting portion of that life.

Whether regarded from the religious or philosophic point of view, few things can be more interesting than the picture which it delineates of human nature in the period of critical transition and the dawning of the religion of peace upon a race barbaric, but far, indeed, from savage.

That warlike race regarded it doubtless as a notable cruelty when the new faith discouraged an amusement so popular as battle. But in many respects they were in sympathy with the faith. That race was one of which the affections as well as the passions retained an unblunted ardor, and when nature is stronger and less corrupted it must feel the need of something higher than itself, its interpreter and its supplement. It prized the family ties, like the Germans recorded by Tacitus, and it could but have been drawn to Christianity.

Warlike as it was, it was unbounded also in loyalty, generosity, and self-sacrifice; it was not, therefore, untouched by the records of martyrs, the principles of self-sacrifice, or the doctrine of a great sacrifice. It loved the children and the poor, and St. Patrick made the former the exemplars of the faith and the latter the eminent inheritors of the kingdom.

In the main, institutions and traditions of Ireland were favorable to Christianity, and the people received the gospel gladly. It appealed to them and prompted ardent natures to find their rest in spiritual things. It had created among them an excellent appreciation of the beautiful, the esthetic and the pure.

The rapid growth of learning, as well as piety, in the three centuries succeeding the conversion of Ireland proved that the country had not been until then without a preparation for the gift.

Perhaps nothing human had so large an influence in the conversion of the Irish as the personal character of our apostle. By nature, by grace, and by providential training he had been especially fitted for his task.

Everywhere we can trace the might and sweetness that belonged to his character; the versatile mind, yet the simple heart; the varying tact, yet the fixed resolve; the large desire taking counsel from all, yet the minute solicitude for each; the fiery zeal, yet the gentle temper; the skill in using means, yet the reliance in God alone; the readiness in action, with a willingness to wait; the habitual self-possession, yet the outburst of an inspiration, which raised him above himself—the abiding consciousness of an authority—an authority in him, but not of him, and yet the ever present humility. Above all, there burned in him that boundless love which seems the main constituent of apostolic character. It was love for God; but it was love for man also, an impassioned love, a parental compassion. Wrong and injustice to the poor he resented as an injury to God.

A just man, indeed, was St. Patrick, with purity of nature like the patriarchs; a true pilgrim like Abraham; gentle and forgiving of heart like Moses; a praiseworthy psalmist like David; an emulator of wisdom like Solomon; a chosen vessel for proclaiming truth like the Apostle Paul; a man of grace and of knowledge of the Holy Ghost like the beloved John; a lion in strength and power, a dove in gentleness and humility; a servant of labor in the service of Christ; a king in dignity and authority for binding and loosening for governing and convicting.

STATE NEWS OF INTEREST

MINOR HAPPENINGS IN ALABAMA CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

STATE EDUCATORS TO MEET

Addresses Will Be Made by Many Prominent Men, Including the Governor.

Birmingham.—An elaborate program has been prepared for the thirty-first annual session of the Alabama Educational Association in Birmingham, April 4 to 6. Addresses will be made by many prominent men, including Governor Emmet O'Neal.

Special rates for the occasion have been announced by railroads, and several thousand delegates and visitors will come to Birmingham for the session.

The session will be opened April 4th at 3:30 p. m. at the high school auditorium. Following the address of welcome and response by President E. M. Shackelford, of the Normal School at Troy, D. R. Murphy, superintendent of schools at Anniston, and president of the association, will make his annual address.

At 8:15 o'clock that night Governor O'Neal will speak on "Some Educational Problems" at the Auditorium.

Tuscumbia.—John D. Rather, who is chairman of the Colbert county democratic executive committee, has been elected delegate to the state democratic convention, which convenes in Montgomery.

Oxford.—Arrangements have been completed by Mayor D. C. Cooper and city council of Oxford for the construction of a complete sewer system here, and they will receive bids for the work with a view of letting a contract.

Anniston. — A contract will be awarded for the erection of the building for the state high school, which was recently located at Oxford. The state has appropriated $10,000 for the building, and the plans have been completed by the state architect.

Tuscumbia.—Prof. J. Floyd Collins, superintendent of Tuscumbia public schools, has secured Dr. A. P. Montague to deliver the commencement sermon, and Dr. George H. Denny to deliver the annual address to the graduating class of that institution in May.

Eufaula.—Mrs. C. E. Gatewood, aged 83 years, died at the home of her son, Beryl Gatewood, after a short illness. She was well known and esteemed in this community. She leaves, in addition to her son, two daughters, Mrs. John Watts and Mrs. Shade Thompson.

Piedmont.—The new electric light plant which was recently built as the result of a municipal ownership campaign was put into commission last week, and the plant turned over to the city. Hughes Weldon Roberts, son of Mayor P. W. Roberts, turned the switch which flooded nearly every home in the city.

Eufaula.—The district meeting of Baptists in Barbour and Bullock counties was held here at the First Baptist church. Among the speakers on the program were: Rev. T. M. Thomas of Louisville, Rev. W. T. Foster of Midway, Rev. J. H. Chapman of Montgomery, Rev. B. S. Railey of Clayton, and Rev. J. A. French of this place.

Greenville.—The Butler county farmers were in session here. The meeting was featured by good attendance. Questions pertaining to farming were discussed by those present. The boll weevil and his work, with methods of combating him, were discussed. Diversified farming and boys' corn club movement had the attention of the meeting.

Mobile.—What came near being a very serious wreck occurred at an early hour on Commerce street, near State, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad track, when the Cincinnati Limited, outbound, was sideswiped by a loaded flat-car of lumber which was being shunted at the end of a long string of cars by a Mobile and Ohio railroad switching crew. Three men and a woman were injured.

Birmingham.—The meeting of the Jefferson County National Guard Association held in the armory of the city hall was the best attended and most profitable that has been held by the association for many months. Major Gregory, president of the association, was in the chair. The resignation for business reasons of Lieutenant Hooper as secretary was received with regret, and Lieut. J. T. Evans was elected in his stead.

Eufaula.—Mrs. W. C. Goode expired in Conyers, Ga., where she was taken by her husband, W. C. Goode, thinking that the change would benefit her. The deceased had been ill for some time, and her disease, a peculiar abscess in her throat, baffled the local physicians.

FALLS BEFORE GRIM REAPER

Widely Known Business Man of Montgomery Passed Away at the Age of Eighty-five.

Montgomery. — Adolph Scheuer, widely known in business circles of Alabama and one of the oldest Masons in the state, died at the home of his son, Moses Scheuer, on South Lawrence street. Mr. Scheuer was born in Germany in 1827, and was therefore 85 years of age at his death.

Mobile.—The Commercial Club of this city is agitating a movement in favor of securing a government hatchery for fish.

Montgomery. — The Montgomery County Sunday School Association of the Sixth district was held at Mt. Meigs Methodist church.

Dothan.—The committee out after the white way proposition report that the contract for the erection of the stands and other work will be let.

Mobile.—John C. Clarke, the police officer who was held for murder in killing Jim Browne, a negro, in a raid on a gambler's game, was acquitted by the coroner's jury.

Odenville.—A freight wreck on the Seaboard Air Line railroad about a mile from the station here caused the delay of passenger traffic for several hours.

Gadsden.—Seven negro boys between 12 and 15 years of age were arrested, charged with burglarizing the commissary of the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company.

Montgomery.—The petition of John Adams, the negro charged with the murder of Policeman T. W. Berry, for a change of venue was denied by Judge Gaston Gunter of the city court.

Cullman.—This place is to have one of the best passenger depots of any town of its size in Alabama, according to the plans that have been adopted by the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

Birmingham. — George Proriba, a Pole, fell 150 feet in the Edgewater coal mines, better known as Mine No. 13, and met death. The man's neck was broken by the fall and his death was almost instantaneous.

Tuscumbia.—The marriage of John Keenan of Tuscumbia and Miss Bertha McWilliams of Smyrna, Ga., was quite a surprise to the people of this place, as few had been apprised of the approaching nuptials.

Ashville.—The non-jury term of the circuit court of the Northern Division of St. Clair county convened here, with Judge James E. Blackwood presiding. Several cases were disposed of. The jury term of this court will convene on March 18.

Birmingham.—Borden Burr has been named by the governor as an associate attorney with the solicitor of Jefferson County to make investigations and prosecutions into the Lewisburg or Beat 22 case, which may be brought into the courts at any time.

Montgomery.—Following reports of the committee of public health, recommending the city health officers to take steps to have the waterworks system of the city completely cleansed and renovated, the city health officer, C. G. Lefield, has ordered the city commission to proceed in the matter.

Montgomery. — Governor O'Neal granted a parole to Will Carson, of Jefferson county, who was sent up in September, 1910, to serve eight years for assault to murder. Executive clemency was recommended by the trial judge, solicitor and board of pardons. The parole was conditional upon the future good conduct of Carson.

Bay Minette.—Professor Tharp, of the high school, announced that a new bookcase and a new library table for the school has been ordered, and that within a few days the shipment of the books purchased with the money secured from the local residents and the county and state would arrive and that the entire library would be fitted out completely without delay.

Anniston.—Preliminary plans have been completed and a program mailed to all lodges in the First district for the celebration of the silver anniversary of Calhoun Lodge No. 46, Knights of Pythias, next July. The celebration will last for three days. A big parade, conferring of the veterans' jewel on S. J. Rand, a public service at the theatre and a barbecue at Oxford Lake will be features.

Montgomery.—For the discussion and exchange of ideas which are destined to greatly benefit the agricultural interests of this portion of the state, and for the mutual advantage of the heads of the county departments, a meeting of all of the county agricultural experts of this district was held at the rooms of the Business Men's League, presided over by B. L. Moss, state agricultural agent.

Eufaula.—"We used to be friends, but now we are enemies. I tried to poison you once with carbolic acid and failed, but I will kill you yet." These words composed a note which W. H. Clifton, a well-known local business man, who sustained serious burns about the mouth and throat last week from drinking coffee in which carbolic acid had been placed, found pinned to the door of his home.

Gadsden.—The steamboat Dixie made a trip down the river from Rome. The boat carried one of the largest cargoes ever brought here. It continued down the river, going to Greenaport with a load of fertilizer.

Selma.—With the municipal election but 13 days off, little interest is being taken in it by the voters [illegible] Equally as little interest is being taken by the citizens in the congressional and county elections [illegible] the only difference to be noted is in politics on the Dallas [illegible]

A Mean Disposition.

"Is Puffkins all wrapped up in his motor car?"
"Not yet, but I have hopes."

Of Course.

"What would you do if you had a million dollars?"
"Nothing."

Mrs. Knicker—Why did you engage that cross-eyed cook?
Mrs. Bocker—Because I don't think she can see through a keyhole.

Acme of Laziness.

A story is told of a man who held the Kansas record for laziness. As he was too lazy to do anything at all, his neighbors finally decided to bury him alive. They laid him in the bottom of the wagon and started for the cemetery. On the way they were met by a man who asked what they were doing with that man.

"He won't work, and he has nothing to eat, so we are taking him to the cemetery to bury him alive," was the reply.

Touched with pity, the stranger said:

"Friends, I have a sack of corn here that he is welcome to."

Hearing this, the lazy man raised his head long enough to inquire:

"Is it shelled?"

"No, it isn't, but——"

"Drive on," interrupted the doomed man, as his head disappeared from view.

FROM THE NORTH COUNTRY

Where the Winters Are Cold and the Snows Deep.

Writing from the vicinity David Harum made famous, a man says that he was an habitual coffee drinker, and, although he knew it was doing him harm, was too obstinate to give it up, till all at once he went to pieces with nervousness and insomnia, loss of appetite, weakness, and a generally used-up feeling, which practically unfitted him for his arduous occupation, and kept him on a couch at home when his duty did not call him out.

"While in this condition Grape-Nuts food was suggested to me, and I began to use it. Although it was in the middle of winter, and the thermometer was often below zero, almost my entire living for about six weeks of severe exposure was on Grape-Nuts food with a little bread and butter and a cup of hot water, till I was wise enough to make Postum my table beverage.

"After the first two weeks I began to feel better and during the whole winter I never lost a trip on my mail route, frequently being on the road 7 or 8 hours at a time.

"The constant marvel to me was how a person could do the amount of work and endure the fatigue and hardship as I did, on so small an amount of food. But I found my new rations so perfectly satisfactory that I have continued them—using both Postum and Grape-Nuts at every meal, and often they comprise my entire meal.

"All my nervousness, irritability and insomnia have disappeared and healthy, natural sleep has come back to me. But what has been perhaps the greatest surprise to me is the fact that with the benefit to my general health has come a remarkable improvement in my eye-sight.

"If a good appetite, good digestion, good eye-sight, strong nerves and an active brain are to be desired, I can say from my own experience, use Grape-Nuts and Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A train order which was misread was the cause of the wreck on the Georgia railroad, on the main line at Social Circle, Ga., according to the investigation made by railroad officials who went to the scene in the wrecking train which left here immediately following the news of the disaster. W. C. Vaughan, engineer of the passenger train and one of the oldest trainmen in Georgia, died from a fracture at the base of the skull. Four negroes were killed in the crash.

Asserting that he is retaining his seat "contrary to the wish and will of an overwhelming majority of the people of the state," the Mississippi legislature adopted a resolution demanding that United States Senator Leroy Percy resign his office. In the senate the resolution was adopted by a vote of 26 to 13 and in the house 66 to 39. The vote was along strictly factional lines, and is in direct sequence to differences within the state Democratic party.

Inspired by sentiment for the "lost cause," students composing the senior class of the medical department of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte firmly refused to dissect the corpse of a hero of the Civil war —the late Capt. Edward Benton of Raleigh. The hat was passed around for a collection, and later, followed by the student body, the remains of the gallant veterans were borne to the Confederate lot in the Chapel Hill cemetery and given a Christian burial.

The department of justice has ordered Grant Victor, United States marshal in eastern Oklahoma, to enforce the Federal prohibition law in the old Indian Territory, the same as prior to statehood. Under this law it is a pentitentiary offense for a man to carry a flask of liquor across the state line, the same as introducing or selling it. All liquor will be seized and confiscated and all persons in possession of it arrested. Oklahoma has a statewide liquor prohibtion law.

General.

Senator LaFollett's silence on the candidacy of Colonel Roosevelt was broken by the published declaration "that in the presence of great problems personal attacks on candidates should have no place. The statement is called forth by the declaration that Colonel Roosevelt urged LaFollette as the "ideal man to make the fight against Taft." "It is not a matter of great importance to the public why I became a candidate," said the senator.

A rumor is published in a London paper that Capt. Robert F. Scott, the British Antarctic explorer, has reached the South Pole. Mrs. Scott declares that she has heard nothing from her husband and there is no confirmation obtainable from any source. Capt. Roald Amunsden, the Norwegian explorer, has reached Hobart, Tasmania, on the return from his South Polar expedition.

Comparative quiet has been restored at Pekin, China. The action of the American minister, Mr. Calhoun, in cabling to Manila for further troops for Tien Tsin, it is stated, was not due to the fear of a concerted attempt against foreigners, similar to the Boxer rising, but, owing to the belief that it was unwise to take any chances, in view of the fact that the Chinese troops cannot be depended upon and disorders are sweeping the north, with little prospect of prompt government control.

American Secretary of State Philander C. Knox and his party traveled from Corinto to Managua in Nicaragua on a special train which was heavily guarded in consequence of an anti-Knox and anti-American propaganda which had been industriously circulated. These persons represented that the visit meant further American domination. A pilot train, carrying fifty soldiers, with a machine gun, preceded the special, while a third, carrying 100 soldiers, followed.

Enraged because his sister refused to leave an alleged disorderly resort in Terre Haute, Indiana, of which she was an inmate, Harry Ramhe of Peoria, Ill., shot and probably fatally wounded the young woman.

Hudson Maxim, the inventor, declares that in a short time there will be only three countries in the world.

"Feed the children Boston baked beans if they like them, administer corporal punishment if necessary," and "let them go barefooted," are some of the suggestions given by Dr. Charles B. Putnam to mothers in an address to Harvard Medical school.

Two Christiana, Sweden, newspapers received dispatches from Capt. Raold Amundsen announcing that he reached the South Pole December 14, 1911. The dispatches were sent from Hobart, Tasmania, where Amundsen arrived, and read: "Pole reached, fourteenth-seventeenth December." This evidently means that he remained three days in the vicinity of the pole probably for the purpose of taking accurate observations as to his position.

The national political situation assumes a more harmonious appearance than it has had since Colonel Roosevelt announced himself as a candidate for the presidential nomination. This condition was induced by the acceptance of Roosevelt's challenge to a national primary by the Taft managers. The proposition was not taken up in its entirety, but was indorsed for application in the 41 states which have legal provision for such action. The Michigan legislature passed a law providing for presidential primaries, the measure to take effect immediately. On the Democratic side, Woodrow Wilson's manager issued a statement favoring the primaries.

An extraordinary outburst of anti-American feeling at Managua, Nicaragua, led to the arrest of fifty of the more prominent ringleaders who are being held in detention until Secretary of State Knox has departed. This is the first indication publicly expressed of opposition to the Central American trip of the secretary of state. The persons arrested include the whole of the editorial staffs of the Diario de Nicaragua and of the Diario Moderno, which had published a number of letters and placed headlines over them suggesting that dynamite should be used against the state secretary.

Henry L. Stimson of New York, secretary of war, and the Roosevelt candidate for governor of New York in 1910, and said that while he remained the "sincere friend" of Mr. Roosevelt, he could not support him for the presidential nomination. In a speech before the Taft Club of Illinois he declared his belief that President Taft's administration represented the highest expression of progressive Republican policy.

One hundred and fifty Americans, mostly women and children, from the American lumbering town of Madera, Mexico, were brought into El Paso, Texas, by the Mexican Northwestern railroad from Pearson, their first stopping place after leaving Madera. With the exception of a small hospital staff at Pearson, every American woman and child in the towns of Madera and Pearson, Mexico, is on United States soil.

"The utterer of a cry of jingoism relative to China or Mexico, is going to be responsible for the slaughter of an untold number of innocent foreigners in those countries," declared War Secretary Stimson in a speech at Chicago.

Washington.

Summing up the action of the senate in stripping the proposed arbitration treaties with France and Great Britain of their vital features, government officials who followed the negotiation of the two pacts agreed that participation by the United States in general arbitration of international difficulties was a dead issue so far as this session of congressw as concerned and probably for many year to come. There is little thought that President Taft will submit the treaties.

John Mitchell, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, declined to give to Judge Wright of the District of Columbia supreme court any assurance that he expected "hereafter to lend adherence to the decrees of the judicial tribunals of the land." To do so, he declared, would be an admission that he had heretofore failed to comply with lawful decrees. Mr. Mitchell said he had rather be convicted of contempt than be acquitted on any other ground than the facts in the case.

The house passed a joint resolution authorizing the secretary of war to accept from citizens of Tennessee approximately 5,000 acres of land near Tullahoma, in that state, for use as a maneuver camp and training ground for the state militia of Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina. The resolution, offered by Representative Bynum of Tennessee, now goes to the senate.

Representative Clark of Florida made a sensational attack on Governor Gilchrist in the house. It was in reply to a purported interview from the governor in which he is alleged to have expressed surprise at the attitude of Representative Clark in the Everglades investigation. Said Mr. Clark: "It remains for the governor of Florida—God pity the state—to travel all the way from Tallahassee to Washington to insinuate now that I am working in the interest of Western railroads. I brand that as a malicious, gratuitous and unqualified falsehood."

Advices to the government from points along the Mexican border, as well as in the interior, continue to paint a picture of brigandage and anarchy, hitherto unparalleled in the republic below the Rio Grande. Though unorganized the spirit of revolution, from dispatches received here, seems to pervade the entire republic. In the state of Chihuahua the situation is most serious. The report of Gen. Pascual Orozco's desertion of the Madero standard was confirmed. Apprehension now is felt for the safety of numerous foreigners in the city of Chihuahua.

U. S. INTERVENTION MAY BE NECESSARY

WAR-SWEPT COUNTRY DRIFTING INTO HELPLESS STATE OF ANARCHY.

MADERO TO FOLLOW DIAZ

This Is the Cry Now Being Heard Throughout the Mexican Republic.

Mexico City.—With new revolutions breaking out at the gates of Mexico City and disaffection in President Madero's cabinet, the situation in Mexico is becoming rapidly worse, and it is expected that within a short time such a state of anarchy will prevail in the revolution-ridden republic that it will be necessary for the United States to intervene.

General Orozco is reported marching on Mexico City from Chihuahua with an army whose cry is that "Madero must follow Diaz." The leaders demand that Madero be expelled from the country.

Another rebel army is south of the city under command of Gen. Zapata, but its march has been halted. A third army, led by General Miranda, is west of the capital.

The insurrectos, many of whom are no better than outlaws, are looting, destroying property and inflicting barbarous tortures on prisoners. The manager of a ranch in the state of Chihuahua, while trying to persuade a rebel detachment not to loot the place, was seized, stripped and tied to stakes in the ground. A fire was built and his feet were burned off at the ankles. Then his eyes were gouged out and his tongue pulled out. Death finally ended his sufferings.

Fifty Spaniards are reported to have been killed at Torreon. At Jerex, near Zacatecas, fifty rebels were killed in a battle with federals. A rebel band ran into an ambuscade at Union Hidalgo and fifteen men were slaughtered.

Vera Cruz is under seige.

MAY TAKE THE STUMP.

Roosevelt Says He Has About Made Up His Mind.

Oyster Bay.—Colonel Roosevelt has about made up his mind to take the stump and personally make the fight in various parts of the country for his presidential nomination. He said he probably would be forced to do so, although he has been reluctant to decide on such a course.

Since the day of Colonel Roosevelt's announcement that he was willing to accept the nomination he has been urged by supporters in almost every state, except in the South, to make a speech-making campaign. It has been reported to him that in several cities the voters were in doubt, and that if he would appear before them the result might be materially affected. Governor Stubbs of Kansas sent a message urging the Colonel to make speeches in Kansas, Michigan, Illinois, Massachusetts and other states in which the Roosevelt leaders believe there is the best chance for effective work.

15 PERISH IN CHICAGO FIRE.

Fifty Men Were Asleep in Lodging House When Blaze Started.

Chicago, Ill.—Fifteen men are believed to have been killed and many hurt in a fire which destroyed a Clark street lodging house. Fifty men were asleep in an upper story. There was a rush to the doors and windows. One man killed himself by jumping from a fourth story window.

The bodies of two men who were smothered were found on the fourth floor. The firemen continued their search. Fire Marshal Seyferniche said there were ten more bodies on the third floor. They cannot be reached owing to the dense smoke.

Canal Zone Bill Completed.

Washington.—The bill for the government of the Panama canal zone and the operation of the canal was agreed to by the house committee on interstate commerce. It would give to the president authority to fix tolls within certain limits, a maximum of $1.25 per ton being prescribed, with a minimum not below an amount sufficing to maintain and operate the canal. No preference would be given to American ships.

Catholic Church Burned.

Detroit, Mich.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the St. John Nepomucene Catholic church in this city. The property loss is estimated at $60,000.

Washington.—Senator Leroy Percy has replied to the Mississippi legislature's demand that he resign by flatly declining to do so. He has sent his answer in a spirited letter which rings with accusations of cowardice, falsehood and malignant factional hatred. Senator Percy replies that when, just after his election, he offered to resign his unexpired term if a primary were held in 1910 to name his successor, he limited his proposition to that year, and not 1911, the year in which a primary finally was held.

Sheriff's Sale.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Circuit Court. Spring Term, 1911.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the said Court of said county, Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I, as Sheriff of said county, was commanded to make the sum of one hundred and seventy-seven and 60-100 dollars, principal and interest, and the sum of six and 50-100 dollars, costs, the amount of a certain judgment and costs therein obtained at the said term of said Court of said county, Alabama, in favor of Teague & Sons against R. H. Martin, out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of R. H. Martin. Now, therefore, I, as Sheriff of said county, under and by virtue of the within execution, have on this the 19th day of January, 1912, levied upon the following described real estate as the property of R. H. Martin, to-wit:

One lot of land in the town of Maplesville, Alabama, bounded as follows: On the east by the right of way of the Southern and Mobile & Ohio railroads, where they cross each other in said town of Maplesville, Ala., and on the North, West and South by Mrs. N. E. Goodwin's property containing, one and one fourth (1 1-4) acres, together with a complete gin plant thereon. Also the following described land (except the school lot of one eighth (1-8) of an acre, beginning at a certain point on the east boundary line of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's line in the town of Maplesville, Ala., said certain point being South eighty one degrees fifteen minutes west (1132) feet from an iron pin on the West edge of the right of way of the Southern railway, known as South-east corner of lot No. 3 in the survey of the "Town of Cuba," running thence from said certain point north eighty one degrees fifteen minutes east 262 feet to the South-west corner of a one acre lot owned by R. H. Martin; thence Northwest 200 feet along said one acre lot; thence North eighty one degrees fifteen minutes 220 feet along said one acre lot to the North-west corner of the Boykin lot; thence North eleven degrees west along a lot owned by R. H. Martin 200 feet to a point South eighty one degrees fifteen minutes West three hundred and ninety eight and four-tenths feet to East boundary of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's land; thence South four hundred one and sixth tenths feet along said East boundary to point of beginning, containing two and nine tenths acres in Section 21, Township 21, Range 12 East, all of said lands being located in the town of Maplesville, Ala.

Therefore, according to said command, I will expose for sale at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named R. H. Martin, in and to the above described property, on THE 12th DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1912, during the legal hours of sale, at Clanton, Alabama, in front of the Court House door.

This 19th day of January, 1912.

B. L. JONES, Sheriff.

The above sale is continued to Monday, Feb. 26, 1912.

B. L. Jones, Sheriff.

1-25-4t

The above sale has been continued to Monday, March 25, 1912.

B. L. Jones, Sheriff.

"A NATION ONCE AGAIN!"

Ireland's Hope of Home Rule Nearing Realization at Last

NATURE, GRACE AND TRAINING FITTED ST. PATRICK TO HIS TASK

So Well Accomplished, Ireland Was Known for Centuries as the "Land of Saints"

ST. PATRICK says of himself in his confession that he was born at "Bannaven Taberniae," which is extremely hard to identify. Some, however, claim that Kirk-Patrick, near Glasgow, in Scotland, took its name from St. Patrick.

The saint was born about 372; was a captive and a slave of the king of Dalaradia, in Ireland, from 388 to 395; went to Gaul and was there ordained priest; was consecrated bishop and sent to Ireland as missionary in 432, and died at Saul, near Strangford Lough, County Down, Ulster, where many years before he had founded his church, March 17, 465, the day now sacred to his memory.

Ireland was then occupied by a great number of petty tribes, most of whom were evangelized by Patrick. So well was the work accomplished that Ireland was known in subsequent centuries as the "island of saints and scholars."

The method employed was that of dealing cautiously and gently with the old paganism of the people. The chieftains were first won over and then through them their clans.

Of St. Patrick himself much that has been related is fabulous, but his autobiographical confession and his epistle to Coroticus, both of which are unquestionably genuine, reveal a devout, simple minded man, and a most discreet and energetic missionary.

In his epistle he states that he was of noble birth and that his father, Calphurnicus, was a Roman decuiro. His Mother, Conchessa, or Conceis, was the sister of St. Martin of Tours.

The family of the saint is affirmed by the earliest authorities to have belonged to Britain, but whether the term refers to Great Britain or Brittany or other parts of France is not ascertained.

Some of the quaint stories told in Ireland about St. Patrick would make the traveler imagine that the saint visited the island for the benefit of witty guides, or to promote mirth in wet weather. It is not remarkable that the subject of these stories for 16 centuries, at countless hearths, has been regarded and in today honored as the greatest man and the greatest benefactor that ever trod the Irish soil, and considering the versatility of the Irish character, it is not strange that there remains respecting the saint a vast cycle of legends—serious, pathetic and profound.

It could not be otherwise. Such a people could not have forgotten the heroic figure who led them forth in the exodus from the bondage of pagan darkness. In many instances doubtless has the tale become a tradition, the foliage of an ever active popular imagination, gathered around the central stem of fact; but the fact remained.

A large tract of Irish history is dark; but the time of St. Patrick and the three centuries which succeeded it is clearly, as depicted by history, a time of joy. The chronicle is a song of gratitude and of hope, as befits the story of a nation's conversion to Christianity.

The higher legends, which, however, do not profess to keep close to the original sources, except as regards their spirit and the manners of the time, are found in some ancient lives of St. Patrick, the most valuable of which is the "Tripartite Life," ascribed by Colgan to the century after the saint's death. The work was lost for many centuries, but two copies of it were rediscovered, one of which has been recently translated by an eminent Irish scholar, Mr. Hennessy.

The anecdotes, however, recorded in the "Tripartite Life" are neither the most marvelous nor the most interesting portion of that life.

Whether regarded from the religious or philosophic point of view, few things can be more interesting than the process which it delineates of human nature in the period of critical transition and the dawning of the religion of peace upon a race barbaric, but far, indeed, from savage.

That warlike race regarded it doubtless as a notable cruelty when the new faith discouraged an amusement so popular as battle. But in many respects they were in sympathy with the faith. That race was one of which the affections as well as the passions retained an unblunted ardor, and when nature is stronger and less corrupted it must feel the need of something higher than itself, its interpreter and its supplement. It prized the family ties, like the Germans recorded by Tacitus, and it could but have been drawn to Christianity.

Warlike as it was, it was unbounded also in loyalty, generosity, and self-sacrifice; it was not, therefore, untouched by the records of martyrs, the principles of self-sacrifice, or the doctrine of a great sacrifice. It loved the children and the poor, and St. Patrick made the former the exempliers of the faith and the latter the eminent inheritors of the kingdom.

In the main, institutions and traditions of Ireland were favorable to Christianity, and the people received the gospel gladly. It appealed to them and prompted ardent natures to find their rest in spiritual things. It had created among them an excellent appreciation of the beautiful, the esthetic and the pure.

The rapid growth of learning, as well as piety, in the three centuries succeeding the conversion of Ireland proved that the country had not been until then without a preparation for the gift.

Perhaps nothing human had so large an influence in the conversion of the Irish as the personal character of our apostle. By nature, by grace, and by providential training he had been especially fitted for his task.

Everywhere we can trace the might and sweetness that belonged to his character; the versatile mind, yet the simple heart; the varying tact, yet the fixed resolve; the large desire taking counsel from all, yet the minute solicitude for each; the fiery zeal, yet the gentle temper; the skill in using means, yet the reliance in God alone; the readiness in action, with a willingness to wait; the habitual self-possession, yet the outburst of an inspiration, which raised him above himself—the abiding consciousness of an authority—an authority in him, but not of him, and yet the ever present humility. Above all, there burned in him that boundless love which seems the main constituent of apostolic character. It was love for God; but it was love for man also, an impassioned love, a parental compassion. Wrong and injustice to the poor he resented as an injury to God.

A just man, indeed, was St. Patrick, with purity of nature like the patriarchs; a true pilgrim like Abraham; gentle and forgiving of heart like Moses; a praiseworthy psalmist like David; an emulator of wisdom like Solomon; a chosen vessel for proclaiming truth like the Apostle Paul; a man of grace and of knowledge of the Holy Ghost like the beloved John; a lion in strength and power; a dove in gentleness and humility; a servant of labor in the service of Christ; a king in dignity and might for the holy work entrusted to him—never-ceasing.

STATE NEWS OF INTEREST

MINOR HAPPENINGS IN ALABAMA CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

STATE EDUCATORS TO MEET

Addresses Will Be Made by Many Prominent Men, Including the Governor.

Birmingham.—An elaborate program has been prepared for the thirty-first annual session of the Alabama Educational Association in Birmingham, April 4 to 6. Addresses will be made by many prominent men, including Governor Emmet O'Neal.

Special rates for the occasion have been announced by railroads, and several thousand delegates and visitors will come to Birmingham for the session.

The session will be opened April 4th at 3:30 p. m. at the high school auditorium. Following the address of welcome and response by President E. M. Shackelford, of the Normal School at Troy, D. R. Murphy, superintendent of schools at Anniston, and president of the association, will make his annual address.

At 8:15 o'clock that night Governor O'Neal will speak on "Some Educational Problems" at the Auditorium.

Tuscumbia.—John D. Rather, who is chairman of the Colbert county democratic executive committee, has been elected delegate to the state democratic convention, which convenes in Montgomery.

Oxford.—Arrangements have been completed by Mayor D. C. Cooper and city council of Oxford for the construction of a complete sewer system here, and they will receive bids for the work with a view of letting a contract.

Anniston. — A contract will be awarded for the erection of the building for the state high school, which was recently located at Oxford. The state has appropriated $10,000 for the building, and the plans have been completed by the state architect.

Tuscumbia.—Prof. J. Floyd Collins, superintendent of Tuscumbia public schools, has secured Dr. A. P. Montague to deliver the commencement sermon, and Dr. George H. Denny to deliver the annual address to the graduating class of that institution in May.

Eufaula.—Mrs. C. E. Gatewood, aged 83 years, died at the home of her son, Beryl Gatewood, after a short illness. She was well known and esteemed in this community. She leaves, in addition to her son, two daughters, Mrs. John Watts and Mrs. Shade Thompson.

Piedmont.—The new electric light plant which was recently built as the result of a municipal ownership campaign was put into commission last week, and the plant turned over to the city. Hughes Weldon Roberts, son of Mayor P. W. Roberts, turned the switch which flooded nearly every home in the city.

Eufaula.—The district meeting of Baptists in Barbour and Bullock counties was held here at the First Baptist church. Among the speakers on the program were: Rev. T. M. Thomas of Louisville, Rev. W. T. Foster of Midway, Rev. J. H. Chapman of Montgomery, Rev. B. S. Railey of Clayton, and Rev. J. A. French of this place.

Greenville.—The Butler county farmers were in session here. The meeting was featured by good attendance. Questions pertaining to farming were discussed by those present. The boll weevil and his defeat, with methods of combating him, were discussed. Diversified farming and boys' corn club movement had the attention of the meeting.

Mobile.—What came near being a very serious wreck occurred at an early hour on Commerce street, near State, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad track, when the Cincinnati Limited, outbound, was sideswiped by a loaded flat-car of lumber which was being shunted at the end of a long string of cars by a Mobile and Ohio railroad switching crew. Three men and a woman were injured.

Birmingham.—The meeting of the Jefferson County National Guard Association held in the armory of the city hall was the best attended and most profitable that has been held by the association for many months. Major Gregory, president of the association, was in the chair. The resignation for business reasons of Lieutenant Hooper as secretary was received with regret, and Lieut. J. T. Evans was elected in his stead.

Eufaula.—Mrs. W. C. Goode expired in Conyers, Ga., where she was taken by her husband, W. C. Goode, thinking that the change would benefit her. The deceased had been ill for some time, and her disease, a peculiar abscess in her head, baffled the local physicians.

Midland City.—The farmers of this section have made fair progress in preparing their land for planting. The [illegible] was partly killed during the [illegible] of the present [illegible]

FALLS BEFORE GRIM REAPER

Widely Known Business Man of Montgomery Passed Away at the Age of Eighty-five.

Montgomery. — Adolph Scheuer, widely known in business circles of Alabama and one of the oldest Masons in the state, died at the home of his son, Moses Scheuer, on South Lawrence street. Mr. Scheuer was born in Germany in 1827, and was therefore 85 years of age at his death.

Mobile.—The Commercial Club of this city is agitating a movement in favor of securing a government hatchery for fish.

Montgomery. — The Montgomery County Sunday School Association of the Sixth district was held at Mt. Meigs Methodist church.

Dothan.—The committee out after the white way proposition report that the contract for the erection of the stands and other work will be let.

Mobile.—John C. Clarke, the police officer who was held for murder in killing Jim Browne, a negro, in a raid on a gambler's game, was acquitted by the coroner's jury.

Odenville.—A freight wreck on the Seaboard Air Line railroad about a mile from the station here caused the delay of passenger traffic for several hours.

Gadsden.—Seven negro boys between 12 and 15 years of age were arrested, charged with burglarizing the commissary of the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company.

Montgomery.—The petition of John Adams, the negro charged with the murder of Policeman T. W. Berry, for a change of venue was denied by Judge Gaston Gunter of the city court.

Cullman.—This place is to have one of the best passenger depots of any town of its size in Alabama, according to the plans that have been adopted by the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

Birmingham. — George Proriba, a Pole, fell 150 feet in the Edgewater coal mines, better known as Mine No. 13, and met death. The man's neck was broken by the fall and his death was almost instantaneous.

Tuscumbia.—The marriage of John Keenan of Tuscumbia and Miss Bertha McWilliams of Smyrna, Ga., was quite a surprise to the people of this place, as few had been apprised of the approaching nuptials.

Ashville.—The non-jury term of the circuit court of the Northern Division of St. Clair county convened here, with Judge James E. Blackwood presiding. Several cases were disposed of. The jury term of this court will convene on March 18.

Birmingham.—Borden Burr has been named by the governor as an associate attorney with the solicitor of Jefferson County to make investigations and prosecutions into the Lewisburg or Beat 22 case, which may be brought into the courts at any time.

Montgomery.—Following reports of the committee of public health, recommending the city health officers to take steps to have the waterworks system of the city completely cleansed and renovated, the city health officer, C. G. Lefield, has ordered the city commission to proceed in the matter.

Montgomery. — Governor O'Neal granted a parole to Will Carson, of Jefferson county, who was sent up in September, 1910, to serve eight years for assault to murder. Executive clemency was recommended by the trial judge, solicitor and board of pardons. The parole was conditional upon the future good conduct of Carson.

Bay Minette.—Professor Tharp, of the high school, announced that a new bookcase and a new library table for the school has been ordered, and that within a few days the shipment of the books purchased with the money secured from the local residents and the county and state would arrive and that the entire library would be fitted out completely without delay.

Anniston.—Preliminary plans have been completed and a program mailed to all lodges in the First district for the celebration of the silver anniversary of Calhoun Lodge No. 46, Knights of Pythias, next July. The celebration will last for three days. A big parade, conferring of the veterans' jewel on S. J. Rund, a public service at the theatre and a barbecue at Oxford Lake will be features.

Montgomery.—For the discussion and exchange of ideas which are destined to greatly benefit the agricultural interests of this portion of the state, and for the mutual advantage of the heads of the county departments, a meeting of all of the county agricultural experts of this district was held at the rooms of the Business Men's League, presided over by B. L. Moss, state agricultural agent.

Eufaula.—"We used to be friends, but now we are enemies. I tried to poison you once with carbolic acid and failed, but I will kill you yet." These words composed a note which W. H. Clifton, a well-known local business man, who sustained serious burns about the mouth and throat last week from drinking coffee in which carbolic acid had been placed, found pinned to the door of his home.

Gadsden.—The steamboat Dixie made a trip down the river from Rome. The boat carried one of the largest cargoes ever brought here. It continued down the river, going to Greensport with a load of fertilizer.

Selma.—With the municipal election but 15 days off, little interest is being taken in it by the voters of Selma. Equally as little interest is being taken by the [illegible] in congressional and county [illegible] the polls [illegible] to be [illegible] in politics as [illegible]

Acme of Laziness.

A story is told of a man who held the Kansas record for laziness. As he was too lazy to do anything at all, his neighbors finally decided to bury him alive. They laid him in the bottom of the wagon and started for the cemetery. On the way they were met by a man who asked what they were doing with that man.

"He won't work, and he has nothing to eat, so we are taking him to the cemetery to bury him alive," was the reply.

Touched with pity, the stranger said:

"Friends, I have a sack of corn here that he is welcome to."

Hearing this, the lazy man raised his head long enough to inquire:

"Is it shelled?"

"No, it isn't, but——"

"Drive on," interrupted the doomed man, as his head disappeared from view.

FROM THE NORTH COUNTRY

Where the Winters Are Cold and the Snows Deep.

Writing from the vicinity David Harum made famous, a man says that he was an habitual coffee drinker, and, although he knew it was doing him harm, was too obstinate to give it up, till all at once he went to pieces with nervousness and insomnia, loss of appetite, weakness, and a generally used-up feeling, which practically unfitted him for his arduous occupation, and kept him on a couch at home when his duty did not call him out.

"While in this condition Grape-Nuts food was suggested to me, and I began to use it. Although it was in the middle of winter, and the thermometer was often below zero, almost my entire living for about six weeks of severe exposure was on Grape-Nuts food with a little bread and butter and a cup of hot water, till I was wise enough to make Postum my table beverage.

"After the first two weeks I began to feel better and during the whole winter I never lost a trip on my mail route, frequently being on the road 7 or 8 hours at a time.

"The constant marvel to me was how a person could do the amount of work and endure the fatigue and hardship as I did, on so small an amount of food. But I found my new rations so perfectly satisfactory that I have continued them—using both Postum and Grape-Nuts at every meal, and often they comprise my entire meal.

"All my nervousness, irritability and insomnia have disappeared and healthy, natural sleep has come back to me. But what has been perhaps the greatest surprise to me is the fact that with the benefit to my general health has come a remarkable improvement in my eyesight. [illegible]

"If a good appetite, good digestion, good eye-sight, strong nerves and [illegible] active brain are to be desired, [illegible] me, from my own experience, use Grape-Nuts and Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. [illegible] the little book, "The Road to [illegible]ville." "There's a reason."

A BALD-HEADED WOMAN

Shorn of Her Crown of Beauty, Loses in Love and Marriage

Hair is certainly most necessary to woman. Who could love and marry a bald-headed woman? What charms could one array to offset such a disfigurement?

A woman's goal is usually love and marriage. Her crowning glory is her hair. The loss of her hair mars her beauty, happiness, and success. Yet, right here in Clanton, there are thousands of women who are neglecting or injuring their hair to such an extent that it is only a matter of time when it will be utterly ruined.

Many women destroy the beauty of their hair through thoughtlessness or ignorance of certain facts. They use curling irons over-heated, or to excess, which destroys the natural oil of the hair, causing it to split, break, and come out. They do not shampoo their hair often enough, or too often They use soaps or preparations which contain ingredients positively harmful to the scalp and hair.

As a result of such treatment, dandruff is created, the hair loosens, loses color, falls out, and baldness commences, unless proper and prompt precautions are taken in time. Then again, microbes and certain diseases bring about unhealthy scalp and hair conditions.

Almost any woman can rid herself of dandruff and diseased scalp and hair if she will but use the right remedy. We have that remedy, and we will positively guarantee that it will either cure dandruff and baldness or it will not cost the user anything.

That's a pretty broad statement, but we will back it and prove it with our own money. We will return your money if you do not find that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, is an entirely satisfactory remedy that will promote hair growth and overcome scalp and hair troubles; that it will grow hair even on bald heads, unless all life in the hair roots has been extinguished, the folicles closed, and the scalp is glazed and skiny. It gets its name from the fact that it grew hair in 93 out of 100 cases, where it received a thoroughly hard, impartial, and practical test.

We want you to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic at our risk. You surely cannot loose anything by doing so, while you have everything to gain. You had better think this over, and then come in and see us about this offer. You will be well repaid for your visit to our store. Remember, you can get Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. Upchurch Drug Co.

ROOSTER MILK

"Rooster milk! Why no I never kept anything of the sort in my life," and genial Gene Evans, a Clanton merchant, gazed wonderingly upon his customer while earnestly denying the charge.

Henry Larkin was insistent. "Well step behind the counter and help yourself," said Mr. Evans. Quick as thought did he do as he was bidden, and in another moment emerged from behind the counter exultantly holding forth a can of the familiar Eagle Brand condensed milk.

A Woman Is Wonderfully Constructed

The delicate structure of a woman's body is a source of wonder to medical men. So complicated are its parts that only the most learned are capable of understanding it. Women do not know themselves. They do know, however, what it means when any of these delicate parts get weak or disordered. They alone know the suffering, the misery, the prostrating effect when the generative system becomes irregular. The disturbance not only robs them of strength and the enjoyment of health, but they have work to do and it must be done in spite of a body that is weak and suffering and a mind that is harassed by the dread of an invalid's fate. Happily, most of these ailments of women are curable and one of the most dependable medicines for the relief of such troubles is Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine. It is prepared expressly for the diseases of women. It is a successful medicine. One that builds up the Nervous System and strengthens and regulates the generative organs. It stops the painful symptoms promptly, tones up the nerves, makes the body strong, the digestion good, and restores a feeling of wellness, of power to perform the household work without fatigue. Ailing women should try this remedy. It will give them back the health, strength and vigor of girlhood days.

Sold by Druggists and Dealers. Price $1.00 Per Bottle.

C. P. SIMMONS MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI

Mr. John Stanfield's large saw and planing mills are now running at their full capacity. Mr. Stanfield does both a wholesale and retail business, and is noted for filling all orders with promptness.

If you are thinking of building and are not much of a judge of lumber, you can do no better than to buy from him, for he will give you, with fairness and honesty, the benefit of his thorough knowledge of lumber

We are proud and happy to state that Chilton county has produced some highly successful inventors. The Mahan Stump Puller does its work with neatness and dispatch. The farmers have now an opportunity to get their work done well and cheaply, and at the same time encourage a home institution, keep the money in the county and help along some mighty clever gentlemen.

CLANTON PRESS

PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF CHILTON COUNTY AND HER PEOPLE

VOL 2. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 21, 1912 NO. 52

W. W. COBERN

The Press takes pleasure this week in presenting to its patrons the likeness of Mr, W. W. Cobern, who is a candidate for Tax Collector of the county.

One can easily tell from the intelligence shown in his face, that, should he be elected to office, he will make a capable officer.

He has never heretofore sought office, and consequently is not as well known as many of our citizens, but from the painstaking canvass he has made within the past few weeks, he has made many friends who are anxious to see him land the prize he seeks.

Mr. Cobern is a man in middle life, thoroughly trained in business affairs, and in every way worthy of the office to which he asks the people to elect him.

RURAL CARRIER EXAMINATION

AT CLANTON, ALA., FOR CHILTON COUNTY, SATURDAY, APRIL 13. 1912.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an examination on the date and at the places named above, as a result of which it is expected to make certification to fill a vacancy in the position of rural carrier at Jemison and Clanton and other vacancies, as they may occur on rural routes, at post offices in the above named county, unless it shall be decided in the interests of the service, to fill the vacancy by reinstatement, transfer, or promotion. The usual entrance salary for rural carriers is from $600 to $1,000 per annum.

Age limit, 18 to 55, on the date of the examination. The maximum age limit is waived in cases of persons honorably discharged from the United States military or naval service.

An applicant must have his actual domicile in the territory supplied by a post office in the county for which the examination is announced.

The examination is open to all male citizens of the United States who can comply with the requirements.

Application Form 1341, and full information concerning the requirements of the examination, can be secured from the secretary of the local examining board or the postmaster at any of the places named above, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Applications should be properly executed and filed with the Commission at Washington. As examination papers are shipped direct from the Commission to the places of examination, it is necessary that applications be received in ample time to arrange for the examination desired at the place indicated by the applicant. The Commission will therefore arrange to examine any applicant whose application is received in time to permit the shipment of the necessary papers. An elligible register for the position of rural letter carrier for each county will be maintained. A person must be examined in the county in which the post office that supplies his home is situated. As a result of such examination he may become eligible to appointment as rural carrier at any post offic in such county. A rural letter carrier after one year's satisfactory service may be transferred to the position of clerk or carrier in a first or second class post office, to the position of railway mail clerk, or to other positions in the classified service, subject to such examination as may be required by the civil service rules.

John C. Black,
President.

MR. PERRY DANIELS

It is with sadness that we chronicle the death of another good citizen, Mr. Perry Daniels. Not sorry on his accout, for his lot is a good heritage. But it is because we have lost a familiar figure, an unique character, an honest neighbor, a God-fearing citizen.

Mr. Daniels had lived the allotted years of man, three score and ten. His younger years were wayward, but in later life he took a more reasonable view of things and pitched his tents from Sodom.

Mr. Daniels was an old Confederate soldier, enlisting from Autauga county when quite a young man he was industrious and a hard worker. No doubt he contributed to society his share of labor. He continued his daily routine of work to the last. On Friday morning he was taken sick and died unexpectedly about 11 o'clock.

Thus ends the life of a good citizen. The community extends their sympathy to the family, who have lost so much.

RIDERVILLE

The heavy rains have not only stopped the would be earlygardens but the logging for the saw mill. The plant has been unable to run with any regularity all this year.

Mrs. J. G. Gay has been at the bedside of the little son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Martin, of Brent, all the past week. The little fellow is not expected to recover.

Mrs. Spencer, of Piedmont is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ernest Welch.

Since the killing of Marvin Young, a negro supposed to be Young's pal, was in Riderville making mysterious inquiries as to Young's tragedy, when he remarked, that somebody had better be uneasy, as Young had friends; as much as to intimate that foul play might result; when he so remarked, said negro was ordered to leave R'ville and that hurriedly, else he might meet a hasty end.

Very little excitement has been created by Young's death, as the citizens took it for granted that the country was better off, rid of such specimens of humanity. Yet it seems sad for a life to be spent so unprofitably.

Miss Ella Mason of this place is visiting relatives in Selma.

Mr. J. B. Rider is back on duty since spending several weeks vacation in the north.

Mr. Frank Reynolds and Hon. Wm. Davis Marshall of Riderville, have been in Mississippi the past few days, trying to secure some information in regard to the accidental death of the former's brother-in-law, Joe Martin who was scalded to death by an overturned engine about the first of March. His remains were shipped to Plantersville for burial.

Charlie Ellis, formerly one of R'ville's most popular young men is down on a visit from Salisbury, Md.

Miss Theo Arnold of Six Mile, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Reynolds.

Mr. Luther Gay, one of Riderville's enterprising young salesmen his returned from a several days stay in Nashville, where he has been in the interest of his firm.

Miss Mollie Cobb, a most pleasing milliner of Maplesville, will come to Riderville this season, with a most handsome display of millinery goods. Miss Cobb is now in Atlanta selecting and collecting all the new fads and styles that will meet all the demands of her many customers.

E. L. THORNTON

We present above, a likeness of Mr. E. L. Thornton of Mountain Creek, one of Chilton's prominent candidates for Tax Assessor.

Mr. Thornton, aside from being a gentleman of refinement and culture, as well as a man of distinguished looks, is one who commands the respect of all with whom he comes in contact.

His is one of the oldest families in the county, some of his ancestors being among the first setlers of this section of the country.

Mr. Thornton is making a thorough, systematic canvass of the county as a candidate and the Press learns that he is meeting with enthusiastic encouragement wherever he goes.

He is a man, who if elected to office, will not only make a capable officer, but will give to the people of his count such an administration of the tax affairs of the county as will meet with their cordial approval.

THORSBY

The sensation of the past week in Thorsby was the sudden and unexpected resignation of Professor Nyde Wiley Hinson, Principal of Thorsby Institute. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees held at Bates Hall, March 14th. Dr. F. E. Jinkins, president of the Board, presented some correspondence that had passed between Prof. Hinson and himself, chiefly setting forth the plans and aims for an advanced position and increased effort on the part of the school in preparation to meet the demands that will be made upon it in the near future, and in view of the fact that Miss Jinkins, the associate Principal, has withdrawn from the field work of financing the school, and will return to Thorsby and take up teaching as a member of the faculty, some provisions had to be made to fill her place in some measure for the coming year.

The finances of the school were never in better condition than during this current year, all salaries and bills have been promptly paid and the trustees are planning for growth all along the line and are now negotiating for the purchase of property that will substantially increase the area of the school campus.

Mayor Bice has been on the sick list for several days.

Ben Franklin, the genial rural mail carrier, has been seriously ill with measles for more than a week but at last reports was improving.

The infant daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Butler has had a severe attack of pneumonia, but is now considered out of danger.

A. M. Johnson, our genial groceryman, was laid up sick for a few days last week.

All our farmers are trying to "forget it," refering to bad weather, and are humping themselves to make up for lost time.

We the Baptist church and Sunday School of Thorsby express our deep regret at the loss of Prof. N. W. Hinson from our midst as teacher, trainer and church worker. His place will be hard to fill. Since coming to Alabama from Virginia, he has been one of the chief educators of the state, as Principal of the Thorsby Institute for several years. We sincerely hope Alabama will be able to retain him.

REGISTRATION NOTICE

In accordance with the provisions of Section 6, of an Act "To further regulate elections in the State of Alabama," approved Oct. 6th, 1903, as amended, the Board of Registrars of the County of Chilton, Alabama, hereby gives notice that the following appointments are set for the purpose of registering those qualified under the law to register as electors:

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 10th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and, amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco where he meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer. He makes large investments and gets into the political ring. For a rest he goes to the country. Daylight gets deeper into high finance in San Francisco, but often the longing for the simple life nearly overcomes him. Dede Mason buys a horse and Daylight meets her in her saddle trips. One day he asks Dede to go with him on one more ride, his purpose being to ask her to marry him and they canter away, she trying to analyze her feelings. Dede tells Daylight that her happiness could not lie with a money manipulator. Daylight undertakes to build up a great industrial community. He is insistent that she marry him and yet hopes to win her.

CHAPTER XVIII.

When the ferry system began to run, and the time between Oakland and San Francisco was demonstrated to be cut in half, the tide of Daylight's terrific expenditure started to turn. Not that it really did turn, for he promptly went into further investments. Thousands of lots in his residence tracts were sold, and thousands of homes was being built. Factory sites also were selling, and business properties in the heart of Oakland. All this tended to a steady appreciation in the value of Daylight's huge holdings. But, as of old, he had his hunch and was riding it. Already he had begun borrowing from the banks. The magnificent profits he made on the land he sold were turned into more land, into more development; and instead of paying off old loans, he contracted new ones. As he had pyramided in Dawson City, he now pyramided in Oakland; but he did it with the knowledge that it was a stable enterprise rather than a risky placer-mining boom.

Work on Daylight's dock system went on apace; yet it was one of those enterprises that consumed money dreadfully and that could not be accomplished as quickly as a ferry system. Not content with manufacturing electricity for his street railways in the old-fashioned way, in power-houses, Daylight organized the Sierra and Salvador Power Company. This immediately assumed large proportions. Crossing the San Joaquin Valley on the way from the mountains, and plunging through the Contra Costa hills, there were many towns, and even a robust city, that could be supplied with power, also with light; and it became a street-and-house-lighting project as well. As soon as the purchase of power sites in the Sierras was rushed through, the survey parties were out and building operations begun. And so it went. There were a thousand maws into which he poured unceasing streams of money.

In the spring of the year the Great Panic came on. The first warning was when the banks began calling in their unprotected loans. Daylight promptly paid the first of several of his personal notes that were presented; then he divined that these demands but indicated the way the wind was going to blow, and that one of those terrific financial storms he had heard about was soon to sweep over the United States. How terrific this particular storm was to be he did not anticipate. Nevertheless, he took every precaution in his power and had no anxiety about his weathering it out.

And in the end, when early summer was on, everything began to mend. Came a day when Daylight did the unprecedented. He left the office an hour earlier than usual, and for the reason that for the first time since the panic there was not an item of work waiting to be done. He dropped into Hegan's private office, before leaving, for a chat, and as he stood up to go, he said:—

"Hegan, we're all hunkadory. We're pulling out of the financial pawnshop in fine shape, and we'll get out without leaving one unredeemed pledge behind. The worst is over, and the end is in sight. Just 'ight rein for a couple more weeks, just a bit of a pinch or a flurry or so now and then, and we can let go and spit on our hands."

For once he varied his programme. Instead of going directly to his hotel, he stopped on a round of the bars and cafes, drinking a cocktail here and a cocktail there, and two or three when he encountered men he knew. It was after an hour or so of this that he dropped into the bar of the Parthenon for one last drink before going to dinner. By this time all his being was pleasantly warmed by the alcohol, and he was in the most genial and best of spirits. At the corner of the bar several young men were up to the old trick of resting their elbows and attempting to force each other's hands down. One broad-shouldered young giant never removed his elbow, but put down every hand that came against him. Daylight was interested.

"It's Slosson," the barkeeper told him, in answer to his query. "He's the heavy-hammer thrower at the U. C. Broke all records this year, and the world's record on top of it. He's a husky all right all right."

Daylight nodded and went over to him, placing his own arm in opposition.

"I'd like to go you a flutter, son, on that proposition," he said.

The young man laughed and locked hands with him; and to Daylight's astonishment it was his own hand that was forced down on the bar.

"Hold on," he muttered. "Just one more flutter. I reckon I wasn't just ready that time."

Again the hands locked. It happened quickly. The offensive attack of Daylight's muscles slipped instantly into defence, and, resisting vainly, his hand was forced over and down. Daylight was dazed. It had been no trick. The skill was equal, or, if anything, the superior skill had been his. Strength, sheer strength, had done it. He called for the drinks, and, still dazed and pondering, held up his own arm and looked at it as at some new strange thing. He did not know this arm. It certainly was not the arm he had carried around with him all the years. The old arm? Why, it would have been play to turn down that young husky's. But this arm—he continued to look at it with such dubious perplexity as to bring a roar of laughter from the young men.

This laughter aroused him. He joined in it at first, and then his face slowly grew grave. He leaned toward the hammer-thrower.

"Son," he said, "let me whisper a secret. Get out of here and quit drinking before you begin."

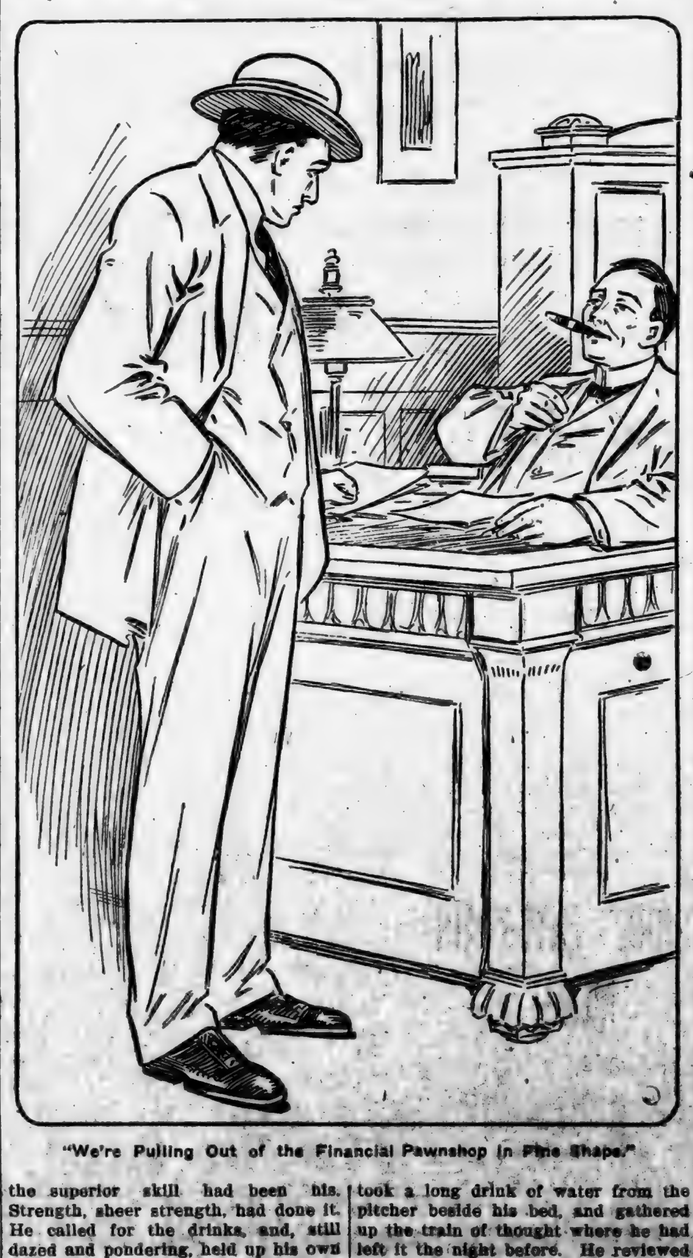
The young fellow flushed angrily, but Daylight held steadily on.

"You listen to your dad, and let him say a few. I'm a young man myself, only I ain't. Let me tell you, several years ago for me to turn your hand down would have been like committing assault and battery on a kindergarten."

Slosson looked his incredulity, while the others grinned and clustered around Daylight encouragingly.

"Son, I ain't given to preaching. This is the first time I ever come to the penitent form, and you put me there yourself—hard. I've seen a few in my time, and I ain't fastidious so as you can notice it. But let me tell you right now that I'm worth the devil alone knows how many millions, and that I'd sure give it all, right here on the bar, to turn down your hand. Which means I'd give the whole shooting match just to be back where I was before I quit sleeping under the stars and come into the hen-coops of cities to drink cocktails and lift up my feet and ride. Son, that's what's the matter with me, and that's the way I feel about it. The game ain't worth the candle. You just take care of yourself, and roll my advice over once in a while. Good night."

He turned and lurched out of the place, the moral effect of his utterance largely spoiled by the fact that he was so patently full while he uttered it.



Still in a daze, Daylight made to his hotel, accomplished his dinner, and prepared for bed.

"The damned young whippersnapper!" he muttered. "Put my hand down easy as you please. My hand!"

He held up the offending member and regarded it with stupid wonder. The hand that had never been beaten! The hand that had made the Circle City giants wince! And a kid from college, with a laugh on his face, had put it down—twice! Dede was right. He was not the same man. The situation would bear more serious looking into than he had ever given it. But this was not the time. In the morning, after a good sleep, he would give it consideration.

CHAPTER XIX.

Daylight awoke with the familiar parched mouth and lips and throat,

"We're Pulling Out of the Financial Pawnshop in Fine Shape."

took a long drink of water from the pitcher beside his bed, and gathered up the train of thought where he had left it the night before. He reviewed the easement of the financial strain. Things were mending at last. While the going was still rough, the greatest dangers were already past.

His mind moved on to the incident at the corner of the bar of the Parthenon, when the young athlete had turned his hand down. He was no longer stunned by the event, but he was shocked and grieved, as only a strong man can be, at this passing of his strength. He had always looked upon this strength of his as permanent, and here, for years, it had been steadily oozing from him. As he had diagnosed it, he had come in from under the stars to roost in the coops of cities. He had almost forgotten how to walk. He had lifted up his feet and been ridden around in automobiles, cabs and carriages, and electric cars. He had not exercised, and he had dry-rotted his muscles with alcohol. And was it worth it? What did all his money mean, after all? Dede was right. It would buy all but just that one thing—and at the same time it had made him like unto the very things that he could buy. He was—

this was Dede's own thought. It was what she had meant when she prayed he would go broke. He held up his offending right arm. It wasn't the same old arm. Of course she could not love that arm and that body as she had loved the strong, clean arm and body of years before. He didn't like that arm and body himself. A young whippersnapper had been able to take liberties with it. It had gone back on him. He sat up suddenly. No, he had gone back on it! He had gone back on himself. He had gone back on Dede. She was right, a thousand times right, and she had sense enough to know it, sense enough to refuse to marry a money-slave with a whisky-rotted carcass.

He got out of bed and looked at himself in the long mirror on the wardrobe door. He wasn't pretty. The old-time lean cheeks were gone. These were heavy, seeming to hang down by their own weight. He looked for the lines of cruelty Dede had spoken of, and he found them, and he found the harshness in the eyes as well, the eyes that were muddy now after all the cocktails of the night before, and of the months and years before. He looked at the clearly defined pouches that showed under his eyes, and they shocked him. He rolled up the sleeve of his pajamas. No wonder the hammer-thrower had put his hand down. Those weren't muscles. A rising tide of fat had submerged them. He stripped off the pajama coat. Again he was shocked, this time by the bulk of his body. It wasn't pretty. The lean stomach had become a paunch. The rigid muscles of chest and shoulders and abdomen had broken down into rolls of flesh. And this was age. Then there drifted across the field of vision of his mind's eye the old man he had encountered at Glen Ellen, coming up the hillside through the fires of sunset, white-headed and white-bearded, eighty-four, in his hand the pail of foaming milk and in his face all the warm glow and content of the passing summer day. That had been age. "Yes siree, eighty-four, and spryer than most," he could hear the old man say.

Next he remembered Ferguson, the little man who had scuttled into the road like a rabbit, the one-time managing editor of a great newspaper, who was content to live in the chaparral along with his spring of mountain water and his hand-reared and manicured fruit trees. Ferguson had solved a problem. A weakling and an alcoholic, he had run away from the doctors and the chicken-coop of a city, and soaked up health like a thirsty sponge. He sat down suddenly on the bed, startled by the greatness of the idea that had come to him. He did not sit long. His mind, working in its customary way, like a steel trap, canvassed the idea in all its bearings. It was big—bigger than anything he had faced before. And he faced it squarely, picked it up in his two hands and turned it over and around and looked at it. The simplicity of it delighted him. He chuckled over it, reached his decision, and began to dress. Midway in the dressing he stopped in order to use the telephone.

Dede was the first he called up.

"Don't come to the office this morning," he said. "I'm coming out to see you for a moment."

He called up others. He ordered his motor-car. To Jones he gave instructions for the forwarding of Bob and Wolf to Glen Ellen. Hegan he surprised by asking him to look up the deed of the Glen Ellen ranch and make out a new one in Dede Mason's name. "Who?" Hegan demanded. "Dede Mason," Daylight replied imperturbably—"the 'phone must be indistinct this morning. Dede Mason. Got it?"

Half an hour later he was flying out to Berkeley. And for the first time the big red car halted directly before the house. Dede offered to receive him in the parlor, but he shook his head and nodded toward her rooms.

"In there," he said. "No other place would suit."

Sick Women

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured many cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are five letters from southern women which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

LETTER FROM VIRGINIA.

Elliston, Va.—"I feel it my duty to express my thanks to you and your great medicine. I was a sufferer from female troubles and had been confined in bed over one third of my time for ten months. I could not do my housework and had fainting spells so that my husband could not leave me alone for five minutes at a time.

"Now I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier. Whenever I see a suffering woman I want to tell her what these medicines have done for me and I will always speak a good word for them."—Mrs. Robert Blankenship, Elliston, Montgomery Co., Va.

LETTER FROM LOUISIANA

New Orleans, La.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was troubled with hot flashes, weak and dizzy feelings, backache and irregularities. I would get up in the morning feeling tired out and not fit to do anything.

"Since I have been taking your Compound and Blood Purifier I feel all right. Your medicines are worth their weight in gold."—Mrs. Gaston Blondeau, 1541 Polymnia St., New Orleans, La.

LETTER FROM FLORIDA.

Wauchula, Fla.—"Some time ago I wrote to you giving you my symptoms, headache, backache, bearing-down, and discomfort in walking, caused by female troubles.

"I got two bottles of Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sanative Wash and that was all I used to make me a well woman.

"I am satisfied that if I had done like a good many women, and had not taken your remedies, I would have been a great sufferer. But I started in time with the right medicine and got well. It did not cost very much either. I feel that you are a friend to all women and I would rather use your remedies than have a doctor."—Mrs. Mattie Hodnot, Box 406, Wauchula, Florida.

LETTER FROM WEST VIRGINIA.

Martinsburg, W. Va.—"I am glad to say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done wonders for my mother, daughter and myself.

"I have told dozens of people about it and my daughter says that when she hears a girl complaining with cramps, she tells her to take your Compound."—Mrs. Mary A. Hockenberry, 712 N. 3rd St., Martinsburg, W. Va.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM VIRGINIA.

Newport News, Va.—"About five years ago I was troubled with such pains and bloating every month that I would have to go to bed.

"A friend told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I soon found relief. The medicine strengthened me in every way and my doctor approved of my taking it.

"I will be glad if my testimony will help some one who is suffering from female weakness."—Mrs. W. J. Blayton, 1029 Hampton Ave., Newport News, Va.

ROBIN HOOD

AMMUNITION (Not Made by a Trust)

No one shows a keener appreciation of Robin Hood Ammunition—when he has once discovered it—than the "out-and-out" experienced hunter.

He knows. He is a real critic, and he soon discovers that R. H. actually shoots further, gets there quicker, and hits harder than the kinds he used to think were best.

That's because our smokeless powders are made after a special formula that practically eliminates the "kick" and uses all the force to propel the shot.

FORGET OLD DAYS

Must Taft and Roosevelt If They Do Kind of Fighting That's in Them.

LIKE DAMON AND PYTHIAS

Ties of Affection Broken by Colonel's Candidacy Not Equalled by Any Who Have Served for Friendship's Comparison.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—"If William H. Taft and Theodore Roosevelt are to do the kind of fighting for the next three months that it is in them to do they must keep their minds off the old days." It was the politician-legislator who has known both men intimately from the day when they began their Washington life, who said this.

President Taft did not believe until six o'clock Sunday, February 25, that Theodore Roosevelt was to declare himself, even in effect, an active candidate for the nomination. He hung on after other men had let go their hold to a faith that something in friendship would keep the colonel from saying the definite word which would put him into the field as a rival of the man who as secretary of war sustained him in executive endeavor. Mr. Roosevelt's friends say that Mr. Taft broke the bonds of friendship when he departed three years ago from the promised path. The blame is thrown one way by some men and another way by others, but wherever it belongs the friendship seemingly has gone, though it may be, as Mr. Taft is reported to have said recently to one of his friends, that one day after the troubles time when retirement comes, it will return.

Damon and Pythias, David and Jonathan, Aeneas and Fidus Achates and all the rest who have served so faithfully for friendship's comparisons must pass when the once existing affection of Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft for each other is considered.

The Ranking Officer.

There is a Washington newspaper story to the effect that the society editor of a local journal went to the White House one morning when Mr. Roosevelt was president to get some information on precedence and while there he asked some one who the ranking officer of the cabinet was. The president overheard the question and turning said: "The secretary of war." So he was to Theodore Roosevelt.

Many things showing the affection between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft are brought to mind today by the breach between two men who once came as near to being one as human circumstances would admit. One night in December, 1907, two or three months before Mr. Taft became an announced candidate for the nomination, President Roosevelt, talking to some friends in the White House, said that the country was calling certain legislative policies "the Roosevelt policies." Then he said that he did not know whether they were Roosevelt policies or Taft policies. His uncertainty as to the proper name was due, he said, to the fact that long before he had any thought that one day he might be president of the United States he was thinking along lines of what he considered to be proper public policies, and wondering if ever they might be given legislative effect. While wondering he found out that another man was thinking along the same lines and also wondering if his thoughts might one day take the form of legislation. The other man, Mr. Roosevelt said, was William H. Taft. As the story came from Mr. Roosevelt, he entered into a correspondence with Mr. Taft, exchanged views and opinions and found that they were identical. Roosevelt said that from that date until the day he was speaking the two had been close in counsel, in friendship and in endeavor.

Story Pleased Taft.

It was only a few weeks ago that President Taft was told this story of the words of the man whom even then it was expected might be his rival in the 1912 field. He liked the story and said it was good to hear it.

Before the country knew generally that Mr. Roosevelt hoped that his secretary of war could be induced to become a candidate for the presidency a visitor at the White House asked him what progressive Republicans were to do on election day the following November provided the party insisted on nominating a reactionary. The president said that he hoped it would not be necessary for anybody "to go fishing"; that if the party should nominate as he hoped it would, William H. Taft, it would have a progressive candidate and if he was elected the country would have a progressive president. Then he added that his associations with Mr. Taft and his close friendship with him made him know just how he felt about real progressive legislation and just what he would do to further its cause if ever he became president.

There are a few Washington believers of a story somewhat widely told that Mr. Roosevelt broke with Mr. Taft before inauguration day, 1909. It is pretty well known that the predecessor watched with some misgivings the successor's cabinet making endeavors, but it is to be doubted if Mr. Roosevelt said, as he is reported to have said, "A cabinet like mine does not seem to be good enough for him and it may be that in a few weeks policies like mine will not be good enough for him."

Want a Third Fort.

The refusal of the house of representatives to incorporate in the fortification bill the appropriation of $150,000 for a site for a coast defense on Cape Henry was a sharp disappointment to most of the good Virginians in the house, to a good many army officers and unquestionably to the entire population of the tide-water section of the Old Dominion.

Fort Monroe today has the safety of several American cities in its keeping. It is the outpost defense of Washington and Baltimore, and with Fort Wool it stands as a sentinel keeping watch over Norfolk and Richmond. The army men and the Virginians think that a third sentinel should be posted, but congressmen have taken issue with them. Across the mingling waters of Chesapeake bay and the ocean lies Cape Charles, whose rough coast is visible on clear days to the gunners on Monroe's parapets, but if what has been said by supposed experts is true, no projectile which the big guns of the fort can hurl ever is likely to prove effective against battleships steaming into the channel close under the Charles promontory to make the run up the waters leading to the capital.

The forts at Cape Henry southward across the entrance to the inland waters, army men seem to think, would nearly perfect the system of defense, but the proposal for a Cape Henry fortification is only one of several plans which have been made from time to time to complete the defenses of the harbor, bay and river.

Hints at Selfish Interest.

There was a plan first to build a fort on Cape Charles itself, but later this was changed in favor of a plan to plant big guns on a half submerged island midway of the entrance to the Chesapeake. This plan was considered by congress several years ago, and there were hints that some selfish interests were connected with it, but no one ever made a direct charge, and there never was any proof advanced of what were but whispered insinuations.

It seems to be the full belief of many army officers that one day an additional fortification in the vicinity of the Virginia capes will be authorized by congress. As things are now it is said that a foreign fleet with a pilot deserving the name on board the leading ship, could slip into the Chesapeake under cover of a haze while the shore artillerymen, no matter how watchful, would know nothing of the movement until there was no target to fire at, but the broad wakes of the invading vessels.

Fort Monroe is said to be a bulwark of defense in itself, but it seems even to the layman that the picture drawn by some of the congressmen of a capital laid waste by the guns of a foreign fleet, or by troops which had secured a landing back of the present fortifications, is drawn with a free hand guided by a freer imagination. If vessels should succeed in getting by Fort Monroe they would have a hard time getting up the Potomac river, for below Washington the Potomac's channel is safe-guarded.

Make an Easy Target.

Pictures also have been drawn of the demolition of Richmond and Norfolk by hostile guns. It would seem that the Virginia capital and its seaport might be able to rest in confidence that no foe can come up the water to their troubling. The main ship channel at the mouth of the James is within easy great gun range of the parapets of Fort Monroe, and the gunner who could not hit so fair and confronting a mark as a battleship or a cruiser at double the distance would be discredited after one pushing of the electric button, and his place would be taken instantly by a man able to drive every projectile home—for the army is not worthless, there are many such men in the artillery ranks.

If the marksmen at Fort Monroe should happen to fail in their gunning there is perhaps little chance that their brother artillerymen at Fort Wood would fail in theirs, for the enemy that would attempt to force a passage of the James would almost brush the muzzles of the smaller fort's guns. Artillerymen have occasional chances to test their skill. A government tug tows red triangular pyramids made of cloth stretched on a framework of wood across the line of fire, while the men at the big rifles peg away at the targets drawn through the fire zone at a ten knot gait. In order to make a hit it is not necessary "to hit," for if it is found that the shot has made itself "effective" in space fore and aft of the target, not greater than that which would have been covered by the battleship, a hit is credited. It seems to be a fair system of marking, and is the only one used by the land and sea artillerymen of the world when firing at moving marks.

Hits at Commerce Court.

Representative Thetus Wilrette Sims of Tennessee is the representative in congress who introduced the bill to abolish the commerce court. It probably will be remembered by most newspaper readers that the commerce court disagreed with a good many of the findings of the interstate commerce commission, and that the Supreme court stood by the commission, in some instances at any rate, and as a result there has been a good deal of agitation in favor of abolishing the so-called railroad court. This tribunal was created in part by the direct recommendation of President Taft, and there seems to be little likelihood of this session at any rate that any strong attempt will be made to [illegible] a bill through [illegible] shall trip the short step of existence

A KIDNEY REMEDY ADVERTISEMENT BROUGHT GREAT HAPPINESS.

I take pleasure in stating that I have used Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, that I was greatly benefited by the same and have used it in my family. I had a son, when quite young he suffered from bladder or kidney affliction. I called in my physician, he attended him, but did him no good. Almost by accident I noticed an advertisement about the curative properties of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. I procured a bottle and gave it to him according to directions. It cured him of what we thought was almost impossible and the same with others of my family. I have such strong faith in Swamp-Root that I have never done without it in my family since the wonderful cure of my son as well as myself. I recommend it to all who suffer from kidney or bladder troubles and I am led to believe that it is one of the best medicines for the purpose for which it is used, that has ever been discovered.

This is my experience from the use of Swamp-Root. Wishing the promoters of this wonderful medicine a large sale to the suffering public, I am,

Yours respectfully,
W. H. M'AFEE,

SUBTLE HUMOR.

Cholly—What's the time, old chap? I've an invitation to dinner at seven, and my watch isn't going.

Gussie—Why, wasn't your watch invited, too, deah boy?

Not That Kind.

"It would save a lot of trouble," said a newspaper man the other day to Representative Slayden of Texas, after the Democratic caucus on the Henry resolution to investigate the "money trust," "if you would allow us to attend the caucus."

"On the contrary," replied Mr. Slayden, with a twinkle in his eye, "I thought it would make a lot of trouble."

"Well, can't you give me an interview on it, now that the fight is over?"

"No," answered Mr. Slayden, "it would be against my principles." "I never kiss and tell!"

PHYSICIAN SAID ECZEMA CAME FROM TEETHING

"When my little girl was about eight months old, she was taken with a very irritating breaking out, which came on her face, neck and back. When she first came down with it, it came in little watery-like festers under her eyes, and on her chin, then after a few days it would dry down in scaly, white scabs. In the daytime she was quite worrysome and would dig and scratch her face nearly all the time.

"I consulted our physician and found she was suffering from eczema, which he said came from her teething. I used the ointment he gave me and without any relief at all. Then I wrote for a book on Cuticura, and purchased some Cuticura Soap and Ointment at the drug store. I did as I found directions in the Cuticura Booklet, and when she was one year old, she was entirely cured. Now she is three years and four months, and she has never been troubled with eczema since she was cured by the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. (Signed) Mrs. Freeman Craver, 311 Lewis St., Syracuse, N. Y., May 6, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

A Diplomat.

"Don't ask a girl for a kiss unless—"

"Unless you want one?"

"No, unless you don't."

Bachelor's Excuse for Not Visiting the "Only Baby" Almost Cost Him Father's Friendship.

"One of my closest friends," said a Philadelphia bachelor, "is the proud father of a newly-arrived baby boy. For some days I've had a sneaking and guilty feeling that I ought to visit him and make some comment on the obvious superiorities of his offspring. I couldn't bring myself to do it, though, because, according to my way of thinking, no baby is human until it is at least one year old. I'm not very keen about associating with infants, anyway, but I draw the line absolutely until the year mark rolls around.

"By way of apology, however, I decided to call up my friend on the telephone. The first question he asked was why I hadn't been over to see Toodles.

"'Well, old man,' I said, 'I've been intending to get around to see that boy of yours. In fact, I made note of it six weeks ago.'

"'Indeed!' he answered, and never before have I known a man to inject so much sarcasm in one small word. 'Well, it happens,' he continued, 'that the boy has only been in this world three weeks.'

"It took me ten minutes to regain his friendship."

Announcement.

I am a candidate for nomination to the offices of Justice of the Peace in and for precinct number Eight in Chilton county, subject to the action of the democratic primary election to be held April 1st, 1912.

J. A. Sample.

For President

OSCAR W. UNDERWOOD

of Alabama.

For Congressman State-at-Large

VICTOR B. ATKINS

of Dallas.

The Press is authorized to announce Mr. C. W. Cox as a candidate for Constable in and for Precinct Number Four (Clanton) subject to the primary election to be held by the democratic party, April 1st, 1912.

The friends of Mr. Jeff Ruffin announce him as a candidate for Justice of the Peace in and for Precinct Number Four, subject to the primary election to be held by the democratic party, April 1st, 1912.

Blessings on the bare-foot boy.

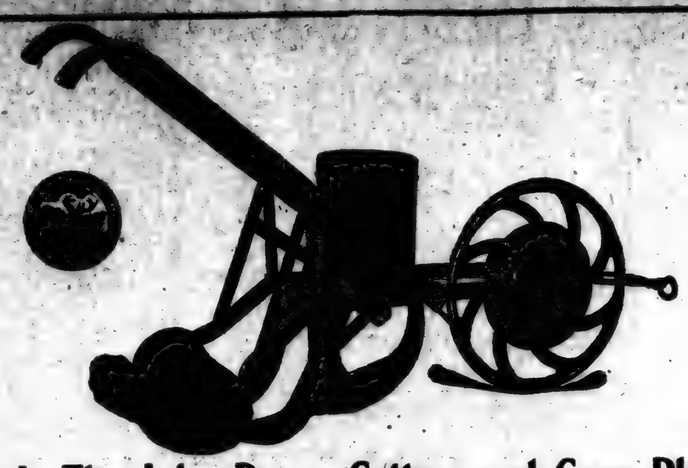
Never was democracy as well organized in Chilton as it is today; never were the assurances of success more pronounced than now.

The present beautitul weather makes the average farmer feel like working, but don't forget that it takes only an hour or two to go to the polls and cast your ballot for your friend. He may need your individual vote.

The meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee yesterday was the most harmonious and enjoyable ever held in the county. Every candidate but one or two were present and each pledged his hearty support to the ticket regardless of whether or not he received the nomination.

Elsewhere we are publishing the names of Inspectors, Clerks and Returning officers selected by the Executive Committee to hold the April primary.

Heretofore Inspectors, and other election officials in primary elections have had to look to the party managers for remuneration but since the passage of the primary election law (April 11th, 1911) this has been changed. Payment for services is made by the County Treasurer, out of the county funds.



Through Courtesy to the Ladies.

We print the article below through courtesy to the ladies of the School Improvement Society. They prepared it for last week's issue and on account of lack of space it was omitted. The Press assumes no responsibility for what is said for or against any candidate. We are printing the article because we love womankind and they asked us to do so. It's not politics, we assure you.

Mr. Howard Roper, candidate for Superintendent of Education, is one of our promising young men. He is a product of Chilton county and Chilton county is, and well it may be, proud of him. It is of such stuff as Howard Roper is made that wins. Then too, he is a democrat and this of itself is a passport to honor and esteem.

Mr. E. L. Thornton, candidate for Tax Assessor is one of Chilton's sterling characters. He is honest to the core. He is capable, he is dependable. As a generous and public spirited citizen, he has no superior in the county. As a democrat, he is yours to count on. Chilton congratulates herself upon having such a man within her borders. His time, his purse and his heart are in every good cause.

W. A. Kemp, candidate for County Treasurer, is another product of Chilton. He is conscientious, clever and thoroughly trustworthy. "A worthy son of a worthy sire."

J. W. P. Murphy, familiarly known as "Bud" Murphy, is a candidate for Tax Collector. He has the confidence and esteem of all who know him, and that means everybody. Put your finger on the point—He is coming. No better man lives within our borders.

T. E. Williams, candidate for Superintendent of Education, is of one of Chilton's best known families. His motto is, "If you wish any thing, go after it." His life witnesseth soundness of his philosophy. A young man he is, of sterling worth and from whom even his elders might well gain inspiration. Honor him and he has honored himself. His life is above reproach and his capability is superior.

Judson Strock, candidate for Superintendent of Education, will be there at the calling of the roll. He is capable and he is safe. As a friend of the cause of education, he yields his place to no man.

H. L. Davis, candidate for Tax Assessor, is another of Chilton's most worthy citizens, therefore he deserves honor at their hands. The county is proud of him and of his kind. The people can trust him. Do it.

Mr. W. O. Perry, candidate for commissioner, is another of Chilton's best citizens. He is a thorough business man and any interest is safe in his hands. He is generous and public spirited. He has been faithful to every trust committed to him and can be confidently depended upon at every angle of public concern.

Mr. O. O Roper, as candidate for county commissioner, will prove a formidable competitor for honors among the voters. He is well and favorably known over the entire county and if elected can be depended upon to subserve the interests of all who reside in his county.

Mr. G. D. Retherford's record as a citizen of chilton, speaks in his favor as a candidate for the office of Tax collector. Elect him and you will be rewarded for your pains by receiving his honest, faithful service.

But one marriage license has been issued this week, that of Mr. M. L. Driver to Miss Minnie Scott.

CAN YOU ASK MORE?

Your Money Back for the Asking

You Promise Nothing.

We are so confident that we can furnish relief for indigestion and dyspepsia that we promise to supply the medicine free of all cost to every one who uses it according to directions who is not perfectly satisfied with the results. We exact no promises and put no one under any obligation whatever. Surely nothing could be fairer. We are located right here where you live, and our reputation should be sufficient assurance of the genuineness of our offer.

We want every one who is troubled with indigestion or dyspepsia in any form to come to our store and buy a box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. Take them home, and give them a reasonable trial, according to directions. If they don't please you, tell us and we will quickly return your money. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity. Three sizes, 25c, 50c., and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store.—The Rexall Store. Upchurch Drug Co.

SPRING OPENING

Next Monday, March 25th.

Mrs. Clara Mullins

MACEDONIA

The Sunday School convention at this place last Sunday was well attended. After singing "How Firm a Foundation" the school was led in prayer by Mr. J. Wallace. Thirty minutes was then devoted to the lesson, after which a brilliant sermon by the pastor, Rev. W. W. Carrolton was delivered.

Immediately after the sermon Mr. M. C. Crumpton, president of the convention, made an explanation of "What is a Banner Sunday School?" On roll call of the Sunday School it was found that about half of those belonging to the convention were represented; some had good reports, one being a Banner Sunday school—the Thorsby School.

Adjournment for dinner was then had, after which the school joined in singing "Keep up the Sunday School" led by Mr. J. C. Veazey.

Then the following subjects were discussed:—The possibilities of a well organized Sunday School by Jas. Franklin and N. L. Broadhead.

"Need of Sunday School Teachers and How to get them" by W. Y. Nix and J. Wallace.

The above subjects were ably discussed by those to whom they were assigned.

Messrs. Hunter and Horn not being present the subjects assigned to them for discussion were omitted.

After the discussion thirty minutes was devoted to a song service led by J. C. Veazey and James Franklin, after which the convention adjourned, with prayer by Rev W. W. Carrolton.

Take One Pain Pill, then—Take it Easy.

For Neuralgia, nothing is better than

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

Used by thousands for a generation

Those who have suffered from neuralgic pains need not be told how necessary it is to secure relief. The easiest way out of neuralgia is to use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They have relieved sufferers for so many years that they have become a household necessity.

"I have taken Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for five years and they are the only thing that does me any good. They have relieved neuralgia in my head in fifteen minutes. I have also taken them for rheumatism, headache, pains in the breast, toothache, earache and pains in the bowels and limbs. I have found nothing to equal them and they are all that is claimed for them."

THE I. H. C. GASOLINE ENGINE

If a farmer expects to make money by using a power producer, he must have the most practical and economical one on the market. He must use the one that has produced profit for scores before him. Such is the I. H. C. gasoline engine.

The I. H. C. engine is designed specially to meet the requirements of the up-to-date farmer. It has few working parts, all of which are easily accessible. It does not require any time to get ready, only one turn of the fly wheel being necessary to start the engine. The time consumed by other kinds of power in getting ready is spent by the I. H. C. in working. Other excellent features of the I. H. C. engine are the small fuel consumption and the fact that it does not require an engineer. These features alone should recommend it above all other kinds of power.

International Harvester Company engines are made in the following styles and sizes:

Horizontal { Portable / Stationary } 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 15 and 20 horse power.

Vertical—2 and 3 horse power.

Call and let us show you many more good points of the I. H. C. engine.

For Diseases of the Skin.

Nearly all diseases of the skin such as eczema, tetter, salt rheum and barber's itch, are characterized by an intense itching and smarting, which often makes life a burden and disturbs sleep and rest. Quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It allays the itching and smarting almost instantly. Many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all dealers.

Mr. Grady Reynolds came down Sunday from University to spend several days with his parents here.

C. A. Glossner, 24 Ontario St., Rochester, N. Y., has recovered from a long and severe attack of kidney trouble, his cure being due to Foley Kidney Pills. After detailing his case, he says: "I am only sorry I did not learn sooner of Foley Kidney Pills. In a few day's time my backache completely left me and I felt greatly improved. My kidneys became stronger, dizzy spells left me and I was no longer annoyed at night. I feel 100 per cent better since using Foley Kidney Pills." Upchurch Drug Co.

Rev. S. M. Adams went up to Thorsby Tuesday to spend the day with his son E. H. Adams who is sick.

Do you know that of all the minor ailments colds are by far the most dangerous? It is not the cold itself that you need to fear, but the serious diseases that it often leads to. Most of these are known as germ diseases. Pneumonia and consumption are among them. Why not take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and cure your cold while you can? For sale by all dealers.

Miss Minnie Muse will have her formal Spring Opening on Monday the 25th, to which every one interested in Spring millinery, is extended a cordial invitation. Her Spring showing of millinery will surpass anything ever shown before in Clanton and all are invited to come without futher notice.

When you want a pleasant physic give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial. They are mild and gentle in their action and always produce a pleasant cathartic effect. Call at all dealers for free sample.

STANTON

Mr. Editor: I notice the name of Mr. O. O. Roper as a candidate for county commissioner. Now it gives me pleasure to see the names of our own good men who have an aspiration to serve their mother county, for it is reasonable to suppose that a man who was born and reared here, has his whole interests here, and honors and loves his own county, and will make as good an officer as lies in his power. Mr. Roper has made good in life so far and has an interest in the farmers, for he is a natural farmer himself.

Every year since he has been in Clanton, he has had his farm as well as his business in town; born a farmer and can't give it up. So let us vote for him and have one of the best of Chilton's democrats in District 4, for a commissioner.

Chas. Henderson

President of Railroad Commission
Candidate for Re-election

Eight Reasons Why He Should Receive Your Support.

FIRST: You have elected him once to this position, and he asks your endorsement for re-election, based on a well established Democratic precedent.

SECOND: The position to which he aspires is purely a business office in which business affairs are adjusted. Mr. Henderson's successful business life speaks for itself.

THIRD: His experience gained as President of the Railroad Commission, coupled with his business experience, equips him most thoroughly for the position he seeks.

FOURTH: His able, fair and impartial administration is not questioned, even by his opponent's greatest admirers.

FIFTH: His opponent's attitude is that of deserting an office to which you, in your confidence, elected him.

SIXTH: His opponent asks that an office, which he now fills, the term of which does not expire until 1915, be filled by appointment, while you claim the Constitutional right to fill it by election.

SEVENTH: His opponent's business experience has not been such, as could in anywise, qualify him for President of the Railroad Commission.

EIGHTH: His opponent's only reason for asking for your support (that we have seen or heard of) is that, on account of his living in [illegible] District, as does Charles Henderson, he would [illegible] Railroad Commissioner, two years hence.

Respectfully submitted

NEWS OF THE WEEK

LATE NEWS OF THE WORLD TERSELY TOLD.

SOUTH, EAST, NORTH AND WEST

Notes From Foreign Lands, Throughout the Nation and Particularly the Great South.

Southern.

Two thousand feet above sea level among the crags and caves of the Blue Ridge mountains the Allen gang who demonstrated their contempt of constitutional law by a massacre of the judge, the prosecution and the sheriff of Carroll county court at Hillsville, Va., continued to defy capture. The day's search by a posse of seventy-five detectives and citizen volunteers demonstrated that unless the militia is sent here they may never be brought to answer to the indictments for murder.

Announcement was made by the Central of Georgia railroad that wage increases from six to ten per cent. had been granted to all telegraph operators on the railway system exclusive of train dispatchers. About two hundred employees are affected, and the average salary will now run from $75 to $80 a month all over the system. The increases are based on the class of work done. Each year the operators of the system arrange a scale with the corporation.

Nine persons are reported dead and a heavy property loss is the result of a cyclone which swept over portions of Georgia and Alabama. The damage to farm crops is also reported to be very heavy. The storm was one of the most severe, and has covered a larger territory than any in this section in recent years. The total damage done by the flood in and near Atlanta amounted to more than two hundred thousand dollars. From every section of Atlanta and from most points in the South come reports of great destruction by the flood. It is practically impossible to estimate the total for the state. The farmers of the state are hit harder than any other interests.

Judge Thornton Massie, Commonwealth's Attorney William Foster, Clerk Dexter Goad and Sheriff Lewis Webb, the entire human fabric of the Carroll county circuit court, and a juror named Douglass were assassinated at Hillsville, Va., by the Allen brothers and a party of mountain outlaws, just as sentence had been passed upon one of their number for a felony. Governor Mann has offered a $3,000 reward for the capture of the assassins.

Three negroes in charge of two constables on their way from Olar to Bamberg, S. C., to be lodged in the county jail were taken from the officers by a mob and shot to pieces. The mob of 75 to 100 men surprised the two constables and securing the three negroes finished their work. The negroes were Alfred Dublin, Richard and Peter Rivers. The negroes had confessed to attempting to burn the house of J. E. Cook, mayor of Olar.

General.

An attempt to kill Judge Otto Rosalsky of the court of general sessions, of New York, with a bomb, came near being successful. It was only a defect—said to be a small accumulation of dirt—in the mechanism of the infernal machine—which the justice had unsuspectingly opened, that saved him from probable death or certain injury. The bomb later exploded while being examined by Inspector Owen Eagan of the bureau of combustibles, seriously injuring him about the face and arms.

Miss Margaret Cameron, known as the ward of Edwin Harley, and whose real name is Emma Sturgess, has been deeded by the late financier's heirs property estimated to be worth $1,000,000 and allowed a life income of $25,000 a year, according to a statement by John B. Stanchfield, attorney for the heirs. The settlement was made, in accordance with a letter written by Mr. Hawley some time before his death, requesting that generous provision for Miss Cameron be made.

The war in the coal world continues to rage. There are 250,000 miners out in Germany and more are going out. Martial law may be declared. There are 1,000,000 miners out in Great Britain. Trade is paralyzed and much suffering is reported. The anthracite coal miners of the United States threaten to strike. The prices of coal are jumping the world over.

Joseph and Angelo Piccia, two young men who for the past six years have shined shoes at the railroad station at Montclair, N. J., will this week begin the erection of a $25,000 brick business block on Pine street.

The cabinet of Spain which was reorganized in the spring of 1910 resigned in a body.

In the lower house of the Kentucky legislature a bill was passed appropriating $25,000 for Kentucky's participation in the Perry victory centennial at Put-in-Bay, Ohio. The bill had already passed the senate. Governor McCreary signed it.

Wage increases aggregating more than $10,000,000 will go into the pockets of New England textile workers during the next twelve months, according to authoritative estimates of the result of the present upward trend of wages in cotton and woolen mills. On the basis of an annual payroll of $79,000,000 in the woolen mills the increase there will amount to $5,600,000 while cotton mill operatives will receive an advance of $5,000,000. Fully 275,000 operatives will share in the raise by April 1.

Ambassador Wilson of Mexico received an appeal for protection for Americans in Tampico who are in danger of violence at the hands of a mob which has already attacked the offices of the Tampico Navigation company. Circulars inciting the people to an anti-foreign demonstration were distributed. The American colony at Tampico is numerous, and is said to be fairly well provided with firearms. It is feared there may be serious disorders there.

The hulk of the old battleship Maine was sent to its last resting place at the bottom of the sea three miles off the Cuban coast. Roses from her deck were strewn on the waters as she sunk. "Taps" were sounded, and the cruiser North Carolina pointed her prow northward to bring home the last of the bodies of the 65 men who met death when the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor on the night of February 15, 1898.

The Kansas Democratic convention after rejecting by a vote of 310 to 283 a resolution introduced by the supporters of Woodrow Wilson, declaring for an uninstructed delegation, unanimously adopted a resolution instructing the Kansas delegation to the national convention to Baltimore to cast the twenty votes of this state as a unit for Champ Clark. If it becomes evident that Clark cannot be nominated the delegates will cast their votes for Wilson as second choice.

A youthful anarchist, Antonio Dalba by name, who asserts that he is a member of no organization, attempted to assassinate King Victor Emmanuel. The king was not injured, nor was Jueen Helena, who was driving in a closed carriage with him at the time, but an officer of the king's guard, Major Lang, was wounded in the head and fell from his horse. Three shots were fired at the king, who was on his way to the Pantheon in Rome to attend a service.

United States Senator Robert M. LaFolette, in his campaign platform, declares his belief in the initiative, referendum and recall and direct nominations; government ownership and operation of express companies. He opposes ship subsidy, the Aldrich currency plan and Canadian reciprocity. Senator LaFollette says it is not his purpose at this time to discuss the issue, or indeed to do more than suggest his position upon the vitally important ones.

Washington.

Significant orders were issued from the navy department directing three of the big armored cruisers of the Pacific eet to proceed at once to the Philippine Islands for an indefinite stay. The navy department will not admit that the big vessels are to be attached to the Asiatic fleet, but their arrival in the Orient will give the United States the most powerful foreign fleet, excepting that of Japan, in touch with Chinese waters. The vessels ordered to the Philippines are the flagship California, the South Dakota and Colorado, now at Honolulu.

The Democratic free sugar bill passed the house 198 to 103. Its passage was helped by 24 Republican votes, although this was offset by the defection of seven Democratic votes from Louisiana and Colorado. At the last moment Representative Martin, one of the Colorado members, blocked an attempt to fix plans for consideration of the excise tax bill, which, through taxation of incomes, is expected to make up revenues lost by the free sugar measure.

Mahlon Pitney, chancellor of the state of New Jersey, President Taft's nominee to succeed the late Justice Harlan on the Supreme bench, was finally confirmed by the senate by a vote of 50 to 26. The senate's consideration of Justice Pitney was in the fourth executive session it has had on his nomination and the vigorous fight against him because of his decision in a glass blowers' strike case did not abate until the last moment. Justice Pitney's commission was signed as soon as the senate had confirmed him.

Secretary Stimson's version of the relief from duty of Adjutant General Ainsworth, prior to Ainsworth's voluntary retirement, was given to the house. The papers show numerous communications of the adjutant general's with his colleagues, which the war department construed as language of intemperate and discourteous character. Ainsworth was removed as the climax of a 20-years' running fight between the line and staff officers of the army for its control.

American steers have increased 57 per cent. in value since the beginning of a cattle tick eradication in the infested districts of the South by the department of agriculture in co-operation with the states. This estimate is based upon information furnished by stockmen and farmers in Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and several other states. Whereas, the annual loss from tick fever in each county ranged from $150 to $50,000 before the eradication began, the losses now are practically ended. The average number of cattle dying yearly in each county has dropped from 89 to 50.

HONOR CLEVELAND IN NEW YORK CITY

SERVICES HELD COMMEMORATING HIS SEVENTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTES PAID

Exercises Attended by Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Lamont, Widow of Secretary of War.

New York.—Grover Cleveland's memory was honored at a public meeting in the city college commemorating his 70th birthday anniversary, at which tributes from President Taft, Governor Dix of New York and Governor Harmon of Ohio were read, and eulogistic addresses delivered by men with whom Mr. Cleveland was associated. The exercises were attended by Mrs. Francis Folsom Cleveland, widow of the former president, and Mrs. Daniel S. Lamont, widow of the secretary of war in one of the Cleveland cabinets

"Grover Cleveland earned the sincere gratitude of his countrymen and justified recurring memorial occasions like the one in which we are taking part," President Taft wrote. He was a great president, not because he was a great lawyer, not because he was a brilliant orator, not because he was a statesman of profound learning, but because he was a patriot with the highest sense of public duty; because he was a statesman of clear perceptions, of the utmost courage of his convictions and of great plainness of speech; because he was a man of the highest character, father and husband of the best type, and because throughout his political life he showed those rugged virtues of the public servant and citizen, the emulation of which, by those who follow him, will render progress of our political life toward better things a certainty."

Charles S. Fairchild, former secretary of the treasury under Cleveland, who presided, said of the dead president's personality: "The things for him were the things of reason and morality. He became in this land a great influence for righteousness. Not that he preached sermons—the man's modesty would prevent such a course—but there was scarcely a conception of simple duty and honesty which he did not adhere to. His political career and record are a great heritage for the American people."

President Hibben, of Princeton University, of which President Cleveland was a trustee, paid this tribute:

"We came to regard him not merely as the distinguished statesman and patriot; not merely as one who had been for two terms the chief magistrate of our land, but also as the great counsellor in education; and in this relation he will be remembered by us in Princeton for his remarkable powers of mind, as well as his conspicuous traits of noble character."

Representative Thomas W. Hardwick of Georgia said he wished to express on behalf of the democracy of the South and of all the people of the South "the deep respect and esteem we held for Mr. Cleveland in life, the sorrow we had for his death and the pride with which we cherished his memory."

Hilary A. Herbert, former secretary of the navy, also spoke, while among those who sent tributes by letter were Richard Olney, Cleveland's secretary of state; Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia and David R. Francis, also members of his cabinet; Representative Oscar W. Underwood, Senator Rayner of Maryland and Alton B. Parker.

ADMIRAL MELVILLE DEAD.

Retired Naval Officer Succumbs to Paralysis.

Philadelphia.—Rear Admiral George Wallace Melville, United States navy, retired, died at his home here from paralysis. He was national commander of the Loyal Legion at the time of his death and was a noted authority on Arctic exploration, as well as engineering and naval affairs.

Rear Admiral Melville, who was placed on the retired list January 10, 1903, was 72 years old. For 16 years he was chief of the bureau of steam engineering in the navy department. He was appointed an assistant engineer in the navy in 1861 and was a member of both the Jeanette and Greely relief expeditions to the Arctic circle.

Interment took place in Laurel Hill cemetery this city on March 29.

George Arms Dies.

New York.—George Arms, known by his many literary friends as "the Socrates of Broadway," is dead at the age of 81 years. He had made his home in a Broadway hotel for 37 years and after his death the key that was given to him by the clerk in 1875 was found in his pocket. During the civil war Arms made a fortune manufacturing cabinet. He later travelled all over the world. He has entertained hundreds of his friends at [illegible] dinner. [illegible] Arms [illegible] to be a bachelor.

Sheriff's Sale.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Circuit Court. Spring Term, 1911.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the said Court of said county, Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I, as Sheriff of said county, was commanded to make the sum of one hundred and seventy-seven and 60-100 dollars, principal and interest, and the sum of six and 50-100 dollars, costs, the amount of a certain judgment and costs therein obtained at the said term of said Court of said county, Alabama, in favor of Teague & Sons against R. H. Martin, out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of R. H. Martin. Now, therefore, I, as Sheriff of said county, under and by virtue of the within execution, have on this the 19th day of January, 1912, levied upon the following described real estate as the property of R. H. Martin, to-wit:

One lot of land in the town of Maplesville, Alabama, bounded as follows: On the east by the right of way of the Southern and Mobile & Ohio railroads, where they cross each other in said town of Maplesville, Ala., and on the North, West and South by Mrs. N. E. Goodwin's property containing, one and one fourth (1 1-4) acres, together with a complete gin plant thereon. Also the following described land (except the school lot of one eighth (1-8) of an acre, beginning at a certain point on the east boundary line of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's line in the town of Maplesville, Ala., said certain point being South eighty one degrees fifteen minutes west (1132) feet from an iron pin on the West edge of the right of way of the Southern railway, known as South-east corner of lot No. 3 in the survey of the "Town of Cuba," running thence from said certain point north eighty one degrees fifteen minutes east 262 feet to the South-west corner of a one acre lot owned by R. H. Martin; thence North-west 200 feet along said one acre lot; thence North eighty one degrees fifteen minutes 220 feet along said one acre lot to the North-west corner of the Boykin lot; thence North eleven degrees west along a lot owned by R. H. Martin 200 feet to a point South eighty one degrees fifteen minutes West three hundred and ninety eight and four-tenths feet to East boundary of the Twin Tree Lumber Company's land; thence South four hundred one and sixth tenths feet along said East boundary to point of beginning, containing two and nine tenths acres in Soction 21, Township 21, Range 12 East, all of said lands being located in the town of Maplesville, Ala.

Therefore, according to said command, I will expose for sale at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named R. H. Martin, in and to the above described property, on THE 12th DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1912, during the legal hours of sale, at Clanton, Alabama, in front of the Court House door.

This 19th day of January, 1912.

B. L. JONES, Sheriff.

The above sale is continued to Monday, Feb. 26, 1912.

B. L. Jones, Sheriff.

1-25-4t

The above sale has been continued to Monday, March 25, 1912.

WHAT A WOMAN CAN AND DID DO

Mrs. Hennessee, of McMinnville, Tells How She Succeeded in Spite of Many Discouragements.

McMinnville, Tenn.—Mrs. Lucy Hennessee, of this place, says, "I suffered, about six years, more or less, with womanly troubles. My head hurt so terribly that I could get no sleep.

My husband had no faith in it, but I commenced using Cardui, according to directions, and now he is thoroughly convinced that Cardui is doing me more good than all the doctors.

Before I had used all of one bottle of that wonderful medicine, I had commenced to improve. Now, I feel like a different woman.

The misery is all gone, and I have a good appetite and feel greatly improved in every respect.

It will certainly benefit others, as it has me, and I am glad to know that such a remedy is within the reach of every suffering woman."

If you suffer from any form of womanly weakness or irregularity, try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It helps nature to perform a cure in a natural, easy way.

The ingredients used in Cardui are mild herbs, which have a gentle, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution.

It builds up the strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks fresh and rosy.

If you are a woman, try it.

What Is in a Name?

A Chicago man who hardly knew the tune from another made the mistake of taking a knowing woman to a concert at Orchestra hall. The selections were apparently unfamiliar to him, but when the "Wedding March" by Mendelssohn was being played he began to evince some interest.

"That sounds familiar," he said. "I'm not strong on these classical things, but that's a good one. What is it?"

"That," gravely replied the woman, "is the 'Maiden's Prayer.'"

COLDS AND CHILLS BRING KIDNEY ILLS.

Colds, chills and grip strain the kidneys and start backache, urinary disorders and uric acid troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills are very useful in the raw spring months. They stop backache and urinary disorders, keep the kidneys well and prevent colds from settling on the kidneys.

Mrs. E. Bates, 36 Jay St., Poughkeepsie, N. Y., says: "A cold started my kidney trouble and for five long weeks I was afraid to lie down on account of the terrible pain in my back. I took the doctor's medicine regularly but became no better. Then I began with Doan's Kidney Pills and was entirely cured. I have had no trouble with my kidneys since."

STATE NEWS OF INTEREST

MINOR HAPPENINGS IN ALABAMA CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

MINERS TO BE CARED FOR

First Aid to Injured Societies Are Being Organized in Coal Districts of State.

Birmingham.—First aid to the injured societies are being organized in mining camps throughout the coal-bearing section by the representative in the federal mine rescue station in Birmingham, R. A. Brown. It is intended to organize not less than a dozen societies in the district. Attention is being given to the work right now, for it is at this time of the year that the largest disasters in the coal mines of the state have happened in the past, the last big disaster occurring on April 8th last.

Dothan.—J. J. Cox, an employe of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company at this city, was caught in a shaft and his body literally torn to pieces. One of his arms was thrown through the roof of the building, and the other hand, which was torn off, was never found. He was cut in half in the accident. He is 25 years of age, and is survived by a widow and one small child.

Gadsden.—Making the allegation that the surgeon did not know his business and left a rubber tube in the cavity of his chest after an operation, Leslie Lowery, a laboring man of this city, has brought suit in the circuit court against a prominent physician to recover $25,000. Because of the carelessness of the operation, he affirms, a second operation was necessary.

Tuskegee.—Just a little over two weeks, and the citizens of Macon county will be called upon to choose occupants for a number of its most important county offices. More than ordinary interest has been centered in the selection of county commissioners, the good roads movement playing an important part in the canvass.

Bay Minette.—Word is received from the vicinity of Robertsdale and Summerdale, where the tobacco is grown, to the effect that the long winter and the heavy rains which have been falling lately have set the plants back to such an extent that the crop will be ripe far later than it was last year.

Castleberry.—A petition is being circulated among the citizens of Castleberry for the prupose of incorporating the town. The town was once incorporated, but the charter was forfeited, and since the town is on the upward move with bright future prospects it has become necessary to incorporate again.

Selma.—The grand jury of the city court of Selma made its final report and adjourned. This grand jury made one of the best records of any similar body in the history of Dallas county. Practically as many indictments were reported against white residents as against negroes.

Gadsden.—The Coosa river has almost reached flood stage here, and the water is still rising. The water is higher than it has been at any time within the past 12 months, and the high water record will be broken if there is a rise of two or three feet more.

Evergreen.—So far 22 candidates have announced for the various places in this county. Of these, eight are running for county commissioners, four of whom are against the administration of Judge Dean and the issue of bonds to build roads.

Montgomery.—The state board of assessments began work on ascertaining the amount of franchise tax due by the corporations operating in Alabama. Jefferson county collects almost one-third of the amount certified to the 67 counties of the state.

Union Springs.—The East Alabama Presbyterian Union met here. There were a number of lady delegates present from the different societies in the Union in this part of the state.

Marion.—The Ladies' Aid Society of Siloam Baptist church celebrated the thirty-first anniversary of the organization at the church.

Bay Minette.—News has been received from the vicinity of Loxley to the effect that work had again been resumed on the Pensacola, Mobile and New Orleans railroad, and that a gang of 75 negroes had been put to work laying ties. Another force is busy getting out piles for the pile driver, and the line will be pushed without a stop.

Marion.—The twelfth annual convention of the Sixth District of Alabama, Knights of Pythias, will convene in Marion on April 25th.

Birmingham.—The final report of the coal mining output for 1911 was received by telegram from Pennsylvania, where the only unreported operator had gone, following which Chief Mine Inspector Nesbitt and Chief Clerk Allen tabulated the figures for the year and gave them out. The total tonnage is 15,011,853, a decrease of 1,077,375 tons from 1910, the banner year in the history of Alabama coal.

The coke output for the year was 2,756,697 tons, a decrease of 474,702 tons, due to shorter time of furnaces.

The decrease in coal tonnage is due especially to the fact that the iron furnaces ran less time and required less coal for coke during 1911 than in 1910.

The figures are the most complete ever collected concerning coal tonnage of the state. Heretofore there have always been some mines estimated and others designated "mines unheard from." Every mine has been covered by the Nesbitt report.

Montgomery.—After serving a sentence of 90 days in the Montgomery county jail for murder in the second degree, A. Lee Long is again at home with his family and friends at Roanoke. Mr. Long is a prominent business man of Roanoke and his gentlemanly conduct while held in this city made him many friends. He shot and killed a negro near his home. He pleaded self defense. The jury sentenced him to 90 days in jail.

Anniston.—Investigations are going quietly forward in the Anniston oil district, it being confidently believed that oil will be struck within a short time as plans are under way to start boring soon.

Headland.—Five people were killed and probably a score injured by a tornado which struck this place. J. C. Copeland, two sons of Thomas Barrentines, all three white, and two negroes, were killed.

Gadsden.—Catherine Hall, aged 5 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hall, this county, was burned to death. She was playing with matches when her clothing became ignited.

Mobile.—Tobe Ely, a prominent merchant of Demopolis, Ala., committed suicide at Fair Hope, near here. He was despondent on account of ill health.

Eufaula.—It is likely that free clinics for the treatment of the hookworm disease will be established in Barbour county, either at Eufaula or at Clayton.

Eufaula.—The cotton mills here are humming full time and full force, turning out elegant lines of chambrays and ginghams, dyed at the mills with the best system in vogue. A ready market for the mill output is found in the east.

Mobile.—The big steel 10,000 ton dry dock now at Pensacola, originally built in England for the use of Spanish naval vessels in Havana, has been purchased by a syndicate of Mobile men. It was stated there was lively bidding from Savannah, Charleston and Pensacola, as well as Mobile. This dock is a distinct asset to Mobile as a port. When the Panama canal is opened, it is believed it will be greatly in demand. The dock originally cost $450,000.

Tuscaloosa.—The grand jury is investigating the burning of a number of houses and several killings that have occurred recently in the neighborhood of the North river, 13 miles from here. It is thought the grand jury will return indictments.

Selma.—It is probable that an aviation meet will be held in Selma March 21, 22 and 23. The company proposes to put the meet on here for the three days for $1,000. This is to be used for the transportation of the flying machines from Montgomery to Selma.

Washington, D. C.—The secretary of the treasury has replied to a senate resolution calling for the total amount spent for river and harbor improvements since the foundation of the government in various states. Figures for Alabama proper show the following totals: Alabama river, $789,975; Cahaba river, $45,000; Mobile bay and harbor, $5,870,652; Mobile bay channel, $25,000; Tallapoosa river, $43,971; Tombigbee river (in Alabama alone), $10,949.

Selma.—Gwinn Leiser, a young man living at Brown Station, in the western part of Dallas county, was brought to Selma and placed in the county jail on the charge of cutting Mr. Sheppard, a section foreman in the Southern railway. Mr. Sheppard, who was brought to Selma for medical attention, was suffering from nine knife cuts about his body.

Pine Level.—J. M. Townsend died at his residence near here after an illness of three days.

Girard.—Many of the heavy taxpayers of Russell county were here to discuss the $11 tax boutique. Many large property owners refused to pay until forced to by the courts or at least till a case in point is tried in the courts, and a petition was sent. The report of the tax collector showed that 75 per cent. of the taxes had been paid in this county.

BEST EXPIBIT MADE BY IRON AND STEEL

Business Activity Is Now Undoubtedly Widening.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Business activity is undoubtedly widening, while business sentiment, alike in industrial, mercantile and financial departments, is becoming distinctly more optimistic. This betterment is voiced in the reports from all leading cities. The best exhibit is made by iron and steel, and these trades are so fundamental to general business prosperity that their marked improvement is extremely suggestive.

Purchases of pig iron, stimulating to all branches of the industry, and causing a strengthening of prices, is the chief inducement in that trade. In dry goods there is an active demand by retailers.

Notable sales of print cloths have been made, and all cotton goods are active, with advances in prices of certain lines. Mills are well supplied with orders, and the trade generally is beginning to exhibit a striking contrast to the depression that existed last year. Leather is advancing, and hides are strong. The shoe trade is experiencing fairly normal conditions, and in eastern cities the demand is increasing, even though New England factories are beginning to slow up. The copper market has been unfavorably affected by statistics showing an increase in stocks, and also by the British strike, which if continued would diminish the foreign demand. It is suggested, however, that business sentiment in England is improving, notwithstanding the strike. In this connection the anthracite coal trouble at home is unsettled because of various conferences, but this has stimulated current buying. The absence of speculation is a characteristic feature of business in all its branches in that it is coupled with such economics and efficiencies in administration as will enable business to be conducted profitably on narrower margins than formerly.

Bradstreet's Review.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of the trade says:

Trade reports reflect dual characteristics—limited retail trade and road sales—because of inclement weather over a wide area, but liberal wholesale and jobbing business has been taken in the leading centers. Stocks are light, hence constant purchasing is necessary and although some conditions, notably, the fears of a coal miners' strike, would ordinarily tend to disturb matters. This possibility, perhaps probability, considered large by some, seemingly does not act as an immediate deterrent, and, save in the South, the undercurrent portended more favorable development. Gradually steady improvement rather than any heavy rush is expected until after the presidential conventions.

As regards immediate development the dry goods market holds the coign of vantage. Demand has been more active, prices are firmer, deliveries of staple goods are slow, fall orders are coming in more freely, and buyers who remained out of the market or bought too sparingly now find that supplies are not forthcoming so readily as anticipated. Apparently there is a scarcity of textile operatives in the east as well as in the south, and mills are averse to contracting far ahead at prices quoted for nearby deliveries. Jobbers are doing an expanding business.

Other lines displaying activity are coal, coke, pig iron, farm implements, seeds, staple groceries, paints, hardware, builders' material in general and lumber demand for which has hitherto been backward, while there is more doing in machinery and business with manufacturers of automobiles and accessories therefore is good.

Business failures for the week ending March 14 were 241, against 287 last week, 251 in the like week of 1911, 208 in 1910, 224 in 1909 and 303 in 1908. Business failures in Canada for the week number 25, which compares with 41 last week and 27 for the corresponding week last year.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending March 14, aggregated 2,332,056 bushels, against 1,899,227 last week and 1,885,478 this week last year. For the 37 weeks ending March 14 exports are 115,667,608 bushels, against 86,645,306 in the corresponding period last year. A Drop of Blood

One little water from the human system when thoroughly tested by the chief chemist at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., tells the story of impoverished blood—nervous exhaustion or some kidney trouble. Such examinations are made without cost and is only a small part of the work of the staff of physicians and surgeons under the direction of Dr. R. V. Pierce giving the best medical advice possible without cost to those who wish to write and make a full statement of symptoms. An imitation of natures method of restoring waste of tissue and impoverishment of the blood and nervous force is used when you take an alterative and glyceric extract of roots, without the use of alcohol, such as

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

Which makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgment. Get what you ask for!

Its Nature.

"Does anybody ever win at a tea fight?"

"Of course not. It is a drawn battle."

Nothing Hard About That.

Summing It Up.

"Was the charity ball a success?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. They say the gowns must have cost a half million at least."

"And how much was raised for charity?"

"Why, nearly $700. Wasn't that fine?"

Cold Welcome.

A clergyman in a small town was deploring the fact that none of the couples that came in from the country to be married stopped at his house for the purpose.

"Well, brother," said the man addressed, "what can you expect with that big sign on the tree there: 'Five dollars fine for hitching here?'"—Youth's Companion.

His Only Complaint.

Senator Beveridge, at a luncheon in New York, was talking about the child labor problem.

"Children are so plucky and so cheerful," he said, "we don't realize how horribly overworked they are till it's too late—till their bodies and minds are stunted irretrievably.

"I was once talking to a tiny errand boy at the height of the Christmas shopping season. He was working, I knew, 17 hours a day. As he walked sturdily along with a mountain of parcels piled on his thin, narrow shoulders, I said to him:

"'Do you like your job?'

"'Yes, sir,' he said; 'I like it fine, Only—'

"Here he grinned up at me gayly from beneath his load.

"'Only I'm afraid I'm doing an automobile truck out of a job.'"

HARD TO DROP
But Many Drop It.

A young Calif. wife talks about coffee:

"It was hard to drop Mocha and Java and give Postum a trial, but my nerves were so shattered that I was a nervous wreck and of course that means all kinds of ills.

"At first I thought bicycle riding caused it and I gave it up, but my condition remained unchanged. I did not want to acknowledge coffee caused the trouble for I was very fond of it.

"About that time a friend came to live with us, and I noticed that after he had been with us a week he would not drink his coffee any more. I asked him the reason. He replied, 'I have not had a headache since I left off drinking coffee; some months ago, till last week, when I began again, here at your table. I don't see how anyone can like coffee, anyway, after drinking Postum'!

"I said nothing, but at once ordered a package of Postum. That was five months ago, and we have drank no coffee since, except on two occasions when we had company, and the result each time was that my husband could not sleep, but lay awake and tossed and talked half the night. We were convinced that coffee caused his suffering, so we returned to Postum, convinced that the coffee was an enemy, instead of a friend, and he is troubled no more by insomnia.

"I, myself, have gained 8 pounds in weight, and my nerves have ceased to quiver. It seems so easy now to quit the old coffee that caused our aches and ills and take up Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

KELLAM HOSPITAL

CHILDREN INJURED

Ordinary Cathartics and Pills and Harsh Physic Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given, except in emergency cases. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are apt to do more harm than good. They may cause griping, nausea and other distressing after-effects that are frequently health-destroying.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as the safest and most dependable remedy, which we know, for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such absolute faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction; and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the ogans with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus over-coming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies commonly completely relieve constipation, except of course when of a surgical character. They also tend to overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition. Three sizes of packages, 10 cents, 25 cents, and 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Clanton only at our store, —The Rexall Store. Upchurch Drug Co.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

FROM CLANTON CAMP NO. 322, OF THE W. O. W.

Whereas the Great Ruler, the Creator of our being, and the only One knowing the destiny of our souls, in His great power and wisdom, has seen fit to remove from the walks of men our friend and brother in woodcraft, Pole M. McKee, who was reared in this county, and died at his home here on Feb. 22nd, 1912, at the age of forty-three years, three months and twenty-nine days, having been a member of our Camp for only about a year, and leaving a devoted wife, a fond child, a dear old mother, and several brothers and sisters to mourn his loss, and whereas this Camp feels keenly the loss of our brother.

Therefore, be it resolved, that we extend to his loved ones, who suffer most keenly the sorrow of separation, our heartfelt sympathy in this great sorrow which some of us know from experience, and pray the blessings of the comforting influence of the Holy Spirit upon them and point them to Him who doeth all things well, and to whom we most humbly bow.

Be it futher resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to his mother and family, a copy published in the county papers and a copy spread upon our minutes.

Respectfully submitted,

CONGRESSMAN FRED L. BLACKMON

Capable and Diligent.
A Faithful Worker For His People.

In again presenting the likeness of Congressman Blackmon, we do not seek so much to bring about his nomination as to secure a unanimous vote for him. Were he to receive but one vote in the primary he would oe the nominee of the party, for he has no opposition, and he will be as triumphantly elected in November as he was at the previous election, for he will have practically no opposition then.

Because of the fact that he has no opposition may cause many of our voters to overlook his name on the ticket, feeling that it is unnecessary to vote for a man without opposition. While this is true, we owe it to a faithful servant, such as Mr. Blackmon has been, as well as to the party, to give him a rousing vote in this county. We hope that a cross-mark will be placed before his name by every voter in the primary.

Sometimes commendation and endorsement are worth more to a man than a mere nomination; it spurs them up to higher and better things, draws them closer to their constituents and makes them feel at home among them.

Give Fred your vote, persuade others to do so and let's have old Chilton swell the heart of our Congressman by the unanimity of the vote accorded him.

Mr. Killgore Returns

To The House of His Fathers and the Ancient Faith. Not Only Aligns himself with Democrats, But Bids Others Do Likewise. Read His Letter Telling of His Experience.

Mr. Editor:

Sir. A few words to the people on the political situation. On the 25th day of August, 1902, a few of us organized the Republican party in Chilton county, and on the 16th of September following we organized the State. Every county in the state was represented by delegation but two. They were represented by letter. That convention was strictly a white convention. A negro was not allowed to stand around the city hall door. The next convention that I went to, there were 12 or 15 negroes in it. I told Mr. L. B. Pounds that I had a strong notion of walking out of the Republican party right then. I made complaint to some of them and they said "We will soon work the negro out." I lived in hopes, and worked to build up a respectable Republican party in the county and State, but every convention, the negro delegation grew larger. Four years ago Col. A. C. Smith was talking of quiting the party on account of the negroes. I told him to stay on with us a while longer, that some of them had promised to work the negroes out of the convention, and if they didn't I would go with him. On the 24th day of February the Republicans held a convention in Thorsby and as soon as I read the proceedings of that meeting I wrote my resignation as executive committeman of Beat 11. I went to Clanton and told Mr. Smith that I was ready to comply with our agreement. That I thought that I could read the "Hand Writing on the Wall," and that we would go to the State convention which convened in Birmingham the 7th of March, and if they allowed the negroes in that convention, that we would expose them to the people of Clilton county. So I got Mr. W. J. Gentry and Mr A. C. Smith to go with me to the convention. The negroes were there and plenty of them too. But they say that if the negro has the proper credentials, that they have no right to kick them out. Admit that to be true, what about Dr. U. G. Mason, the negro delegate elected to the National convention to help to nominate a candidate for you to vote for? Who, O who gave him his credentials? Gentlemen, thats too much negro for me. You politicians may say that Killgore is negro scared. Not so, but I am just negro sick. So Col. A. C. Smith, I'm ready to comply with our agreement. We will now go in hand and heart with the Democratic party and make the fight of our life for the maintainance of white supremacy and the rule of the people. Now to the so called Republicans, I withdraw myself from you. I shake the dust off my feet against you. I shall make a mark in this campaign that my wife and children will be proud of. I went to say right here, that the people of Chilton county are not going to stand any such [illegible] for a few to get to the [illegible] Chilton. Oh, one will say that we have another wing of the party; that is so, what are they do last August [illegible] LAS" and what else did they do? They elected two negro delegates to the National convention. Does that suit any better? Yes there are two wings of the Republican party fighting to win out in the National convention in order to control the Federal appointments.

There are two brothers, one goes to one convention, the other one goes to the other convention. So you see, it makes no difference which side wins, they will have a string to their bow. I write this article so that the people who stay at home and work for a living, may know the situation.

Yours for the right,
Moses A. Killgore.

P. S. I will not only tell you the situation, but will show it to you. Look for the picture of the Republican convention, also the negro that was elected to the National convention. I am sending copy of this letter to each of the three county papers in order that every body may read it and know exactly where I stand.

OSCAR W UNDERWOOD

As house leader of the Democratic majority and chairman of the ways and means committee, Mr. Underwood has directed the tariff policy of his party, not always to the entire satisfaction of some of its other leaders, but in a way that has gained him the enthusiastic support of a considerable number in his candidacy for the presidential nomination. He is a little slow in starting his campaign for delegates, but has been making up for lost time since definitely announcing himself.

THE HOME COMING OF MR. SMITH

Clanton, Ala. March 27th, 1912
Editor of the PRESS:

About seven years ago, in an unguarded moment and for reasons that I thought at that time justifiable, I wandered away from the old Democratic party into fields that I had not surveyed and into paths I had not trod, seeking to find where I might cast my lot, in a political way, among men and with a party that stood for and adhered to honesty and justice, and the right of the citizen to cast his ballot freely and voluntarially, without purchase and without price; but, alas, my wandering for all these years has been in vain. After I abandoned the Democratic party as aforesaid, I cast my lot with the Republican party, and after giving its management and leaders a fair hearing and a fair trial, I am convinced beyond all doubt (say nothing of a reasonable doubt) that there is far more corruption and [illegible] ed in [illegible] of this

Now, Mr. Editor, want of time precludes me from writing more at this time. Suffice it to say that I am going HOME to the party of the constitution; the party of my fathers, my birth and my young manhood. The party that has done more for this great country of ours than all others combined, and under whose administration and leadership were the best days of this Republic.

Yours truly,
A. C. Smith.

HON. V. B. ATKINS

The above is the likeness of Hon. V. B. Atkins, one of Chilton's near neighbors, who is running for Congressman from the State at Large, with brilliant prospects of being selected as the standard bearer for that particular office. As we have heretofore stated in the columns of this paper, Mr. Atkins, besides being a successful business man—being at the head of one of the largest wholesale grocery firms in the state—is also a prominent politician and planter. He now represents his home county in the state Senate and has large farming interests in his home county, so that from any point of view Mr. Atkins is well qualified to look after the interests of his constituents. He was for four terms the Mayor of his home city—the first time being opposed by one of the state's most brilliant men, but so well did he serve the people of his home that they unanimously elected him to three additional terms and would a fifth time have placed him at the head of the city administration had he not positively refused to make the race. As State Senator he gained prominence immediately upon his entrance upon the duties of that office.

He seeks now to become Congressman from the State at Large, and while he is opposed by several well equipped gentlemen, he is our neighbor, and the only one in the race who is a close neighbor to us.

His name is Victor B. Atkins and when the returns are tabutated we doubt not that he will also be VICTOR in the racefor Congressman from the State at Large. He has made an energetic campaign and has behind him some of the most prominentmen in the state wh o are doing everything possible to assist him in landing the prize which he seeks.

mitted several weeks ago in a section known as "Stumps Hills," and which enjoys an unsavory reputation insofar as the safety of strangers is concerned, in that particular section after nightfall.

Two weeks or more ago Joe Howard, who claimed Birmingham as his home, wandered into that section seeking work and incidentally trying to renew a promise of marriage said to have been made to him by a Miss Smith.

After several days' sojourn there, news came to Clanton of the suicide of Mr. Howard. The Coroner gathered a jury and went to investigate the affair.

Arriving upon the scene he found Mr. Howard lying in the middle of the floor with a wound through his head; nearby lay a single-barreled gun with the stock badly broken, and tacked to the wall about the heighth of a man's head, was a block. Over on the other side of the room, against the wall, were several clots of blood. Mr. Howard's forehead was beaten in but it was supposed that this was caused by the self-inflicted wound through the head.

The theory advanced by the witnesses summoned before the coroner's jury, was that Mr. Howard, having recived a positive refusal from Miss Smith, had in a moment of dispondency committed suicide. To do this, so it was supposed, he had rested the stock of the gun upon the block nailed against the wall of the room and with a stick had shoved the trigger, causing the gun to fire after he had placed himself directly in front of it.

Sister Discredits Theory.

The coroner and his jury agreed with this theory and returned a verdict of suicide. However, the sister of Howard did not believe that her brother had committed suicide. She had learned, it seems, that the brothers of Miss Smith opposed the marriage and upon this belief she instituted an investigation.

Some days ago she came here in company with an attorney from Birmingham and arranged for a disinterment and an examination of the body. The weather had been so bad for the past two weeks that the matter of disinterment was postponed until later.

County Solicitor Latham, the sheriff and his two deputies, together with Drs. P. I. Hopkins and N. S. Johnson, went to the place of burial and had the body removed from the grave. Previous to this, however, the Solicitor had obtained from Mark Franklin, a white man ,living in that section, a sworn statement to the effect that he had heard the Smith brothers say that Howard should never marry their sister. At the grave side of Howard, Franklin

THE SAFE LAXATIVE FOR ELDERLY PEOPLE

Most elderly people are more or less troubled with a chronic, persistent constipation, due largely to lack of sufficient exercise. They experience difficulty in digesting even light food, with a consequent belching of stomach gases, drowsiness after eating, headache and a feeling of lassitude and general discomfort.

Doctors advise against cathartics and violent purgatives of every kind, recommending a mild, gentle laxative tonic, like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, to effect relief without disturbing the entire system.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the perfect laxative, easy in action, certain in effect and, withal, pleasant to the taste. It possesses tonic properties that strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels and is a remedy that has been for years the great standby in thousands of families, and should be in every family medicine chest. It is equally as valuable for children as for older people.

Druggists everywhere sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried it send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and he will be very glad to send a sample bottle for trial.

Many a man with one foot in the grave does enough kicking with the other to make up for it.

A remedy that has stood the test of time is worth trying. Garfield Tea relieves liver, kidney and stomach troubles.

Nothing disappoints some women more than to not be disappointed in a new neighbor.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Possibly Willing to Assist at It.

At a little party John T. McCutcheon consented to do a little impromptu chalk talking, with the presidential possibilities for his subject. McCutcheon had made several hits. One of the party, chuckling, leaned over to another, a Democrat. "Pretty good, isn't it?" he asked. "What do you think of his execution?"

"I think it would be a darned good thing," replied the Democrat.

Happiness Postponed.

An awkward predicament in which a sailor bridegroom and his bride were placed in St. Mary Major's church, Exeter, Devonshire, England, recently, caused the postponement of their wedding. The banns had been duly called at the church, but when the parties presented themselves at the altar the bridegroom, who had been recently paid off from his ship at Portsmouth, was unable to produce the necessary permission from his commander. The bride swooned, and eventually returned home, while the bridegroom left for Plymouth to get the required document.

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and, amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco where he meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer. He makes large investments and gets into the political ring. For a rest he goes to the country. Daylight gets deeper into high finance in San Francisco, but often the longing for the simple life nearly overcomes him. Dede Mason buys a horse and Daylight meets her in her saddle trips. One day he asks Dede to go with him on one more ride, his purpose being to ask her to marry him and they canter away, she trying to analyze her feelings. Dede tells Daylight that her happiness could not lie with a money manipulator. Daylight undertakes to build up a great industrial community. He is insistent that she marry him and yet hopes to win her. Daylight falls back into his old drinking ways. There is a flurry in the money market.

CHAPTER XIX.—Continued.

"Dede, if I tell you, flat and straight, that I'm going up to live on that ranch at Glen Ellen, that I ain't taking a cent with me, that I'm going to scratch for every bite I eat, and that I ain't going to play ary a card at the business game again, will you come along with me?"

She gave a glad little cry, and he nestled her in closely. But the next moment she had thrust herself out from him to the old position at arm's length.

"How is this possible? How can you leave your business? Has anything happened?"

"No, nothing's happened yet, but it's going to, blame quick. I've taken your preaching to heart, and I've come to the penitent form. I've taken my last drink. You're marrying a whisky-soak, but your husband won't be that. He's going to grow into another man so quick you won't know him. A couple of months from now, up there in Glen Ellen, you'll wake up some morning and find you've got a perfect stranger in the house with you, and you'll have to get introduced to him all over again. You'll say, 'I'm Mrs. Harnish, who are you?' And I'll say, 'I'm Elam Harnish's younger brother. I've just arrived from Alaska to attend the funeral.' 'What funeral?' you'll say. And I'll say, 'Why the funeral of that good-for-nothing, gambling, whisky-drinking Burning Daylight—the man that died of fatty degeneration of the heart from sitting in night and day at the business game.' 'Yes, ma'am,' I'll say, 'he's sure a gone 'coon, but I've come to take his place and make you happy. And now, ma'am, if you'll allow me, I'll just meander down to the pasture and milk the cow while you're getting breakfast.'"

"But you haven't answered my questions," she reproached him, as she emerged, rosy and radiant, from the embrace that had accompanied the culmination of his narrative.

"Now just what do you want to know?" he asked.

"I want to know how all this is possible? How you are able to leave

"Dear Face," She Whispered. "Dear Slave."

your business at a time like this? What you meant by saying that [illegible] was going to happen [illegible]?"

"Let's sit and [illegible] for [illegible] all the [illegible]

duplicated in his eyes. "I've been working like forty horses ever since this blamed panic set in, and all the time some of those ideas you'd given me were getting ready to sprout. Well, they sprouted this morning, that's all. I knew I wanted to ride in the hills with you just about thirty million times more than I wanted to go to the office. And I knew all the time it was impossible. And why? Because of the office. The office wouldn't let me. And then I made up my mind that I was to the dividing of the ways. One way led to the office. The other way led to Berkeley. And I took the Berkeley road. I'm never going to set foot in the office again. That's all gone, finished, over and done with, and I'm letting it slide clean to smash and then some. I'm wiping the slate clean. I'm letting it all go smash. When them thirty million dollars stood up to my face and said I couldn't go out with you in the hills today, I knew the time had come for me to put my foot down. And I'm putting it down. I've got you, and my strength to work for you, and that little ranch in Sonoma. That's all I want, and that's all I'm going to save out, along with Bob and Wolf, a suit case and a hundred and forty hair bridles. All the rest goes, and good riddance. It's that much junk."

A knock at the door interrupted him, and he was left to stare delightedly at the Crouched Venus and on around the room at Dede's dainty possessions, while she answered the telephone.

"It is Mr. Hegan," she said, on returning. "He is holding the line. He says it is important."

Daylight shook his head and smiled.

"Please tell Mr. Hegan to hang up. I'm done with the office and I don't want to hear anything about anything."

A minute later she was back again.

"He refuses to hang up. He told me to tell you that Unwin is in the office now, waiting to see you, and Harrison, too. Mr. Hegan said that Grimshaw and Hodgkins are in trouble. That it looks as if they are going to break. And he said something about protection."

It was startling information. Both Unwin and Harrison represented big banking corporations, and Daylight knew that if the house of Grimshaw and Hodgkins went it would precipitate a number of failures and start a flurry of serious dimensions. But Daylight smiled, and shook his head.

He caught her by the hand and drew her to him.

"You let Hegan hang on to that line till he's tired. We can't be wasting a second on him on a day like this."

"But I know something of the fight you have been making," Dede contended. "If you stop now, all the work you have done, everything, will be destroyed. You have no right to do it. You can't do it."

Daylight was obdurate. He shook his head and smiled tantalizingly.

"Nothing will be destroyed, Dede, nothing. You don't understand this business game. It's done on paper. All I stand for is paper. I've got the paper for thousands of acres of land. All right. Burn up the paper, and burn me along with it. The land remains, don't it? Nothing is going to be lost—not one pile out of the docks, not one railroad spike, not one ounce of steam out of the gauge of a ferryboat. The cars will go on running, whether I hold the paper or somebody else holds it."

By this time Hegan had arrived in an automobile. The honk of it came in through the open window, and they saw it stop alongside the big red machine. In the car were Unwin and Harrison, while Jones sat with the chauffeur.

"I'll see Hegan," Daylight told Dede. "There's no need for the rest. They can wait in the machine."

"Is he drunk?" Hegan whispered to Dede at the door.

She shook her head and showed him in.

"Good morning, Larry," was Daylight's greeting. "Sit down and rest your feet. You sure seem to be in a flutter."

"I am," the little Irishman snapped back. "Grimshaw and Hodgkins are going to smash if something isn't done quick. Why didn't you come to the office? What are you going to do about it?"

"Nothing," Daylight drawled lazily. "Except let them smash, I guess. I've had no dealings with Grimshaw and Hodgkins. I don't owe them anything. Besides, I'm going to smash myself. Look here, Larry, you know me. You know when I make up my mind I mean it. Well, I've sure made up my mind. I'm tired of the whole game. I'm letting go of it, so fast he couldn't [illegible] and a second in the quickest way to let go. All you've got to do is [illegible] yourself and all [illegible] Hegan wants to [illegible] you want to [illegible] all right."

"Use a Different Tone of Voice, or You'll Be Heading for a Hospital."

wages and salaries must be paid pronto. All the money I've switched away from the water company, the street cars, and the ferries must be switched back. And you won't get hurt yourself none. Every company you got stock in will come through—"

"What have you done to him?" Hegan snarled at Dede.

"Hold on there, Larry." For the first time Daylight's voice was sharp, while all the old lines of cruelty in his face stood forth. "Miss Mason is going to be my wife, and while I don't mind your talking to her all you want, you've got to use a different tone of voice or you'll be heading for a hospital, which will sure be an unexpected sort of smash. And let me tell you one other thing. This all is my doing. She says I'm crazy, too."

Dede stepped forward where she confronted the two men.

"Wait," she said. "I want to say something. Elam, if you do this insane thing, I won't marry you. I refuse to marry you."

Hegan, in spite of his misery, gave her a quick, grateful look.

"I'll take my chance on that," Daylight said. "And now, Larry, you'd better be going. I'll be at the hotel in a little while, and since I'm not going to step into the office again, bring all papers to sign and the rest over to my rooms. And you can get me on the 'phone there any time. This smash is going through. Savvee? I'm quit and done."

He turned to Dede as soon as Hegan was gone, and took her by the hand.

"And now, little woman, you needn't come to the office any more. Consider yourself discharged."

"I'd cry, if I thought it would do any good," she threatened.

"In which case I reckon I'd have to hold you in my arms some more and sort of soothe you down," he threatened back.

As he stood at the top of the steps, leaving, she said:—

"You needn't send those men. There will be no packing, because I am not going to marry you."

"I'm not a bit scared," he answered, and went down the steps.

CHAPTER XX.

Three days later, Daylight rode to Berkeley in his red car. It was for the last time, for on the morrow the big machine passed into another's possession. It had been a strenuous three days, for his smash had been the biggest the panic had precipitated in California. The papers had been filled with it, and a great cry of indignation had gone up from the very men who later found that Daylight had fully protected their interests. It was these funds, coming slowly to light, that [illegible] to the widely repeated opinion that Daylight had gone [illegible] even the [illegible]

the only conclusion attainable was that the wild financier from Alaska had gone lunatic. And Daylight had grinned and confirmed the suspicion by refusing to see the reporter. He halted the automobile before Dede's door, and met her with his same rushing tactics, enclosing her in his arms before a word could be uttered.

"I've done it," he announced. "You've seen the newspapers, of course. I'm plumb cleaned out, and I've just called around to find out what day you feel like starting for Glen Ellen. It'll have to be soon, for it's real expensive living in Oakland these days. My board at the hotel is only paid to the end of the week, and I can't afford to stay on after that. And beginning with tomorrow I've got to use the street cars, and they sure eat up the nickels."

He paused, and waited, and looked at her. Indecision and trouble showed on her face. Then the smile he knew so well began to grow on her lips and in her eyes, until she threw back her head and laughed in the old forthright boyish way.

"When are those men coming to pack for me?" she asked.

And again she laughed and simulated a vain attempt to escape his bear-like arms.

"Dear Elam," she whispered; "dear Elam." And of herself, for the first time, she kissed him.

"Now, I've got an idea," Daylight said. "We're running away from cities, and you have no kith nor kin, so it don't seem exactly right that we should start off by getting married in a city. So here's the idea: I'll run up to the ranch and get things in shape around the house and give the caretaker his walking-papers. You follow me in a couple of days, coming on the morning train. I'll have the preacher fixed and waiting. And here's another idea. You bring your riding togs in a suit case. And as soon as the ceremony's over, you can go to the hotel and change. Then out you come, and you find me waiting with a couple of horses, and we'll ride over the landscape so as you can see the prettiest parts of the ranch the first thing. And she's sure pretty, that ranch. And now that it's settled, I'll be waiting for you at the morning train day after tomorrow."

Dede blushed as she spoke.

"You are such a hurricane."

"Well, ma'am," he drawled, "I sure hate to burn daylight. And you and I have burned a heap of daylight. We've been scandalously extravagant. We might have been married years ago."

STATE NEWS OF INTEREST

MINOR HAPPENINGS IN ALABAMA CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

CANDIDATES ARE ACTIVE

Birmingham Is Center of Political Battleground for State Candidates.

Birmingham.—Birmingham will be the political battleground for state candidates from now until the end of the campaign. Among those camping on the trail of the Jefferson county officers at present are: H. Y. Brooke, W. B. Atkins and I. W. Hill, for congress from the state at large; Cy Brown and Charles Henderson, for president of the railroad commission, and occasional visitors who wish the support of the 61 delegates from Jefferson county to the state convention and places on the delegation to the national convention from the state at large.

Gadsden.—Before adjournment until some time in May the grand jury will make another partial report of its findings. This shows that at the present session 62 true bills have been returned. Four hundred and ninety witnesses have been examined. Seven indictments were found for perjury. In the report the jury gives warning that perjury will be suppressed, and says that on its reassembling further investigations of the perjury law violations will be made.

Mobile.—The month of March promises to be the heaviest month of exports both as regards quantity and valuation than the same period in many years. The figures at the custom house shows the cotton shipment so far this month amounts to 47,499, with a valuation of $2,712,179. It was estimated that the export valuation for March will exceed that of the same time last year by more than double.

Ozark.—When "Uncle Dave" White died here, perhaps the oldest person in the state of Alabama passed to the great beyond. He said he was 117 years of age. However, he was in his dotage, and credence could not be put in his remarks; but "Uncle Jim" Moseley, one of the oldest citizens of the county, said that he was fully 110 years of age.

Montgomery. — Capt. Reuben F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture and industries, returned from an inspection trip through several counties in the southern part of the state, where he investigated fertilizer factories and cotton oil mill plants. Captain Kolb inspected factories and plants in Troy, Ozark, Headland and other towns.

Huntsville.—Trials of all the criminal cases on the dockets of the law and equity court except jail cases have been continued over to the August term of court. This has been done because the farmers of this section are so far behind with their work and their attendance in court at this time would result in serious loss to them.

Greensboro.—Fred R. Mason, a resident of Selma, committed suicide by drinking poison at Sawyersville, in this county. Mason had been in considerable trouble because of a double marriage. The divorce proceedings of one wife, coupled with a damage suit instituted by the other, are thought to be responsible for his act.

Montgomery.—The December, 1911, term of the United States District Court convened here, Judge Thomas S. Jones, presiding. There are quite a number of important suits to be settled at this sitting of the court, and the docket will consume several days with the hearings of the various cases.

Courtland.—The result of the election held in Lawrence County, as declared by the official count just given out, gives 857 to 603 votes in favor of a bond issue to build roads. The bonds will be issued and placed on the market as soon as possible and work on the roads will be begun this summer.

Montgomery.—Governor Ben. W. Hooper, of Tennessee, has requested Governor O'Neal to name 100 delegates to represent Alabama at the Southern Sociological Conference, to be held at Nashville, May 7 to 10.

Mobile.—Private Maxwell, of 170th Company, Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Morgan, was drowned in Mobile bay. The drowning happened while Maxwell was a passenger on the government steamer Helehird.

Tuscumbia.—The Colbert county Sunday school convention meets March 30 and 31 at Cherokee. Quite an interesting program has been arranged. Miss Gabriella Knight, director of vocal music at the Normal College in Florence, will be in charge of the music.

Mobile.—Patrick William Walsh, a resident of Mobile for sixty years, died here.

Alicesville.—The Fifth district convention of the Pickens County Sunday School association was held here.

Heflin.—Circuit court, which has been in session here for the past two weeks, came to a close after having disposed of a rather light docket.

Sylacauga.—The store house, together with its contents, belonging to John Poppers, near the Central mills, was burned. It is not known how the fire originated.

Gadsden.—Miss Diana Bankson of Gallant has been appointed to organize a girls' tomato club in this county. She has taken the matter up with the teachers of the country schools and expects to have a large number of the girls interested within a week or two.

Mobile.—Deputy Sheriff Hugh Gillis shot and mortally wounded a negro burglar who attempted to rob his home on Spring Hill avenue, in Crichton, shortly before day light. The name of the wounded man is Robert Vincent, about 30 years of age, claiming Prichard, Ala. as his home.

Birmingham.—Perfected plans for six buildings to be erected immediately at Birmingham at a cost of $980,000 are announced. Contracts for two of these buildings to cost $250,000 have just been awarded. In addition, plans are being formulated for the erection of another hotel at Birmingham to cost approximately $1,200,000.

Albertville.—The Seventh district agricultural school at Albertville is under contract to a Birmingham firm, to be erected at a cost of $30,000 and finished in time for school next fall. The state appropriated $19,000 for rebuilding the structure after it was burned January 12, and citizens have subscribed the remainder.

Huntsville.—Two illicit stills were raided and destroyed in Culman county this week and one in Jackson county, by J. B. Campbell, deputy collector of customs, whose headquarters are at Huntsville. A large quantity of "beer" and considerable whiskey were poured out, but no arrests were made, the owners having decamped before the officer and posse approached.

Montgomery. — Governor O'Neal granted a full pardon and restored civil rights to Jim Hicks, a white man who was sent up from Geneva county to serve two years in the penitentiary for manslaughter. Will Freeman, a white youth from Madison county, who was sent to the Boys' Reform school, was turned over to his father through the governor's clemency.

Florence.—The State Normal college is making preparations to celebrate May 3 as "Bird Day." H. J. Willingham, superintendent of state education, has selected that date, and has advised all state schools to celebrate it with an appropriate programme. Among the features of the day will be an illustrated lecture calculated to instruct the students on the care and protection of Alabama birds.

Huntsville.—The final report of the grand jury, which has been sitting since March 4 has been handed to Judge James H. Ballentine in the law and equity court. The report states that more than 500 witnesses have been examined in almost as many cases, and that all prosecutions that were regarded as frivolous have been brushed aside. One hundred and thirty-six true bills were reported.

Montgomery.—Strawberry crops of southern Alabama are reported about three weeks late because of the late winter, but the report has it that the crops are to be good. Correspondence from Castleberry is to the effect that plants are well developed, though about three weeks late. The growers in that vicinity estimate a crop of about 200 cars this season. In ten days express shipments will be made and in twenty days car load lots will be moving.

Montgomery.—More than 700 members of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association are expected to attend the annual convention in Montgomery on April 23-25. The committee in charge of arranging for the convention believe the meeting this year will be the largest ever held by the association, and details are being rapidly completed for the entertainment of the delegates. The meetings of the association will be held at the Majestic theatre, which has a seating capacity of 1,000. The entertainment committee is arranging to have an immense banquet and reception for the convention at the Exchange hotel, and the Business Men's league and the members of the City Federation of Women's Clubs of Montgomery will be the host of the occasion.

Montgomery. — Major J. Q. Smith, of Birmingham, who has just relinquished the command of the First Field Artillery battalion, A. N. G., enjoys the distinction of being on the retired list. He was accorded this honor at his own request. Being on the retired list, he has the privilege of wearing his uniform on appropriate occasions.

A WARNING TO MANY.

Some Interesting Facts Regarding Health Statistics.

Few people realize to what extent their health depends upon the condition of the kidneys.

The physician in nearly all cases of serious illness, makes a chemical analysis of the patient's urine. He knows that unless the kidneys are doing their work properly, the other organs cannot be brought back to health and strength.

When the kidneys are neglected or abused in any way, serious results are sure to follow. According to health statistics, Bright's Disease, which is really an advanced form of kidney trouble, caused nearly ten thousand deaths in 1910, in the state of New York alone. Therefore, it behooves us to pay more attention to the health of these most important organs.

An ideal herbal compound that has had remarkable success as a kidney remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy.

The mild and healing influence of this preparation is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

If you feel that your kidneys require attention, and wish a sample bottle, write to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and they will gladly forward it to you absolutely free, by mail.

Swamp-Root is sold by every druggist in bottles of two sizes—50c. and $1.00.

PUT "GHOST" ON DEFENSIVE

Irishman Was in Tight Place, but Not Too Frightened to Be Ready With Retort.

To illustrate the ever ready wit of the Irish, the following story was told at a banquet held recently:

An Irishman on his way home at night was in the habit of cutting through a cemetery in order to shorten the distance. A group of friends evolved a scheme to have some fun at his expense. Accordingly they found a sunken grave across which his path lay, dug it out and covered it with boards in such a manner that he must fall into the yawning cavity.

The Irishman came along and everything happened as per schedule. While he was still squirming about in the bottom of the hole, striving to extricate himself, three or four of his friends, attired in white sheets and other ghostly accoutrements, suddenly made their appearance. Pat was frightened out of his wits and almost fainted when one of them said:

"What are you doing in my grave?"

The tone was sepulchral. It made the Irishman's hair stand almost on end, but he could not forego a witty retort.

"Faith, and what are you doing out of it?" he asked.

HANDS BURNED LIKE FIRE

"I can truthfully say Cuticura Remedies have cured me of four long years of eczema. About four years ago I noticed some little pimples coming on my little finger, and not giving it any attention, it soon became worse and spread all over my hands. If I would have them in water for a long time, they would burn like fire and large cracks would come. I could lay a pin in them. After using all the salves I could think of, I went to three different doctors, but all did me no good. The only relief I got was scratching.

"So after hearing so much about the wonderful Cuticura Remedies, I purchased one complete set, and after using them three days my hands were much better. Today my hands are entirely well, one set being all I used." (Signed) Miss Etta Narber, R. F. D. 2, Spring Lake, Mich., Sept. 26, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

No End to His Bad Luck.

John D. Shoop, at an Anti-Cigarette league banquet, explained his feelings in the story of the colored man.

"How are you getting along, Lazarus?" asked his master, interestedly.

"I gets along poorly," replied Lazarus, who complained of his misfortune at length. "Master John, I has such bad luck," says he, "that when I dies and is laid away in the tomb and the good Lord says to me, 'Lazarus, come forth,' I know I is sho' to come forth."

Exposing Children to Disease.

In an article on the treatment of sick children in the Woman's Home Companion the author, Dr. Roger H. Dennett, a famous New York specialist on the diseases of children, says:

"Never, never, never expose the child to any contagious disease in order that he may have it once and be done with it. Even the so-called simple children's diseases, such as measles or whooping cough, have a death rate that is appalling."

Exhibition of "Mantles" Most Pleasurable, Only Young Man Had Other Business to Attend To.

"I've come to see about the mantles, miss."

"O, yes, I'm glad you have come so soon; will you step into the drawing room?"

The young man stepped; he was pleased with his pleasant reception.

After awhile ma came in and said: "How do?" So sorry to trouble him, but would he mind if they tried the mantles on? Her daughter's was a trifle too full, and her own a trifle too long, she thought. Perhaps he would be good enough to see.

The young man said he would be only too delighted.

The two elegant mantles in the latest style which were lying across the back of the sofa were then donned, and the young man said he thought they looked charming. Yes, perhaps a little alteration was required, but—if they would excuse him he would be glad if they would let him get on with his work and show him the gas burners that were requiring fresh mantles.

Why! Wasn't he from Jiggins & Jigginse's?

O, no! He was the young man that attended to the mantles from the gas company! — Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Financial Cripples.

They were taking the visitor from up-state around Manhattan, showing him the sights. The big automobile rolled past many wonderful buildings, all of which the host pointed out with some feelings of civic pride. At last they chanced to pass by the Municipal Lodging house.

"What's that place?" asked the rural visitor.

"Oh, that's one of New York's home for cripples," was the reply.

"What kind of cripples?" was asked.

"Financial," was the reply, as the car sped on.—New York Herald.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and strengthen Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Are You Sick?

For prompt relief, if you suffer from any of the troubles so common to women, or if you are merely weak, and lack life and energy, you are urged to take Cardui, the woman's tonic.

Cardui is a purely vegetable, tonic medicine for women, and as its success of more than 50 years clearly shows, it can, as a reliable remedy, be depended on, in time of need.

Mrs. L. E. Hibbs, of Morton's Gap, Va., says: "I was taken sick and confined to my bed, most of the time, for 10 months before I decided to

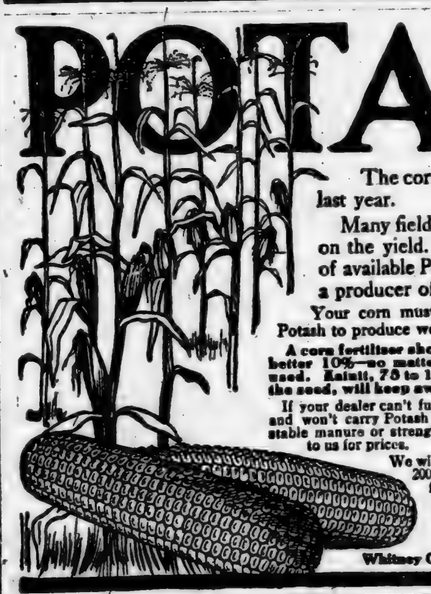
TAKE CARDUI

CC 77

The Woman's Tonic

I had ulcers and then a tumor.

The second doctor that treated me said my last chance was an operation, and when the third doctor was called in, he told me it was doubtful that I would recover.



I wouldn't consent to an operation, and decided to give Cardui a trial. When I had taken two bottles, I felt better. In two months, I could go about and do light housework. Now I feel well and the tumor is gone.

I heartily recommend Cardui to suffering women. I am sure it will cure."

POTASH

The corn crop fooled lots of farmers last year.

Many fields looked good but fell down on the yield. This was owing to a lack of available Potash, for Potash is primarily a producer of grain.

Your corn must have enough quickly available Potash to produce well-filled ears as well as stalks.

A corn fertilizer should contain at least 8% Potash—better 10%—no matter in what form the fertilizer is used. Kainit, 75 to 100 lbs. per acre, drilled in with the seed, will keep away cutworms and root lice.

If your dealer can't furnish brands rich enough in Potash and won't carry Potash Salts so you can supplement your stable manure or strengthen the brands he does carry, write to us for prices.

We will sell direct in any amount from a 200-lb. bag up. Write for free book of fertilizer formulas and directions.

Announcement.

I am a candidate for nomination to the office of Justice of the Peace in and for precinct number Eight in Chilton county, subject to the action of the democratic primary election to be held April 1st, 1912.

J. A. Sample.

For President
OSCAR W. UNDERWOOD
of Alabama.

For Congressman State-at-Large
VICTOR B. ATKINS
of Dallas.

The Press is authorized to announce Mr. C. W. Cox as a candidate for Constable in and for Precinct Number Four (Clanton) subject to the primary election to be held by the democratic party, April 1st, 1912.

The friends of Mr. Jeff Ruffin announce him as a candidate for Justice of the Peace in and for Precinct Number Four, subject to the primary election to be held by the democratic party, April 1st, 1912.

Today is our birthday; we are just two years of age with this issue and start out a third year today. Have we so conducted ourselves as to be worthy of congratulations?

Even if it be good weather and you are greatly behind in your work, take an hour at dinner time to vote; give your mule and your men a little rest at that hour and they'll both do you better work in the afternoon. By all means vote Monday. You may regret it later if you fail.

This is the last issue before the primary. Let all the voters bear in mind that those who are unopposed—Underwood, Edmondson, Blackmon and Young—will appreciate your votes as much so as the others. Make a cross mark in front of each of these names.

Inspectors should be very careful in making out their returns. While we do not anticipate any contests in the primary, it is best to guard against any contingency. The best way to do this is to have all returns in perfect order and in strict conformity to law. Read over the instructions and be governed accordingly.

The delegates to the State convention should not be lost sight of in the hurry. They are good men and are to represent you at the state convention when delegates to the National convention are to be chosen, Judges of the Supreme Court nominated, and a platform of the party formulated.

In making out your ticket remember that you are entitled to vote for two Justices of the Peace and one Constable in your precinct. These names will have to be written as it was impracticable for the authorities to have those names printed upon the ticket. Write them with pen or pencil and then make a cross mark in front of their names.

There has been some remarks attributed to the editor of this paper with reference to the "home coming" of certain gentlemen that ought to make a real gentleman sick at the stomach. No one with as much sense as God gave a goose will, for a moment, believe that we said any such things, and, hence, we do not go into detail to deny them. Rest assured they came from the other side—and for a purpose.

The PRESS has been besieged with work for candidates in the past few days; the near approach of the primaries has caused them to bestir themselves. They forget sometimes that the paper must be printed, and think that we should drop everything to accommodate them with job work. As much as we would like to do this, we have had to occassonally refuse such work. Our friends should bear in mind that to stop the printers when once they begin on the paper, means that the paper must go to its patrons late.

Mayor Gaynor of New York City says Roosevelt is nothing more than a "Spellbinder." The remark was called forth by some one asking for a special guard for Teddy during his speech-making tour of that city.

When the request was made, the Mayor said: "Shhz, he is nothing more than an ordinary spellbinder and we do not furnish special guards for them." That's rather hard on an ex-President running for a third term, but he has so impressed himself everywhere except with a limited few.

The Indiana republican convention was somewhat like the Alabama republican convention. They had a spilt, and a mighty split, Monday. That's the mark, of resemblance between them. Then there was a vast difference between them; they had no dark hued delegates. Ex-Vice-President Fairbanks heads the Taft contingent, while ex-Senator Beveridge leads the Teddy forces. If, at the Chicago convention, things appear to be anything like equally divided there's no telling what a "spellbinding" speech from Ted and Beveridge may accomplish.

In this issue appears a letter from Mr. M. A. Killgore announcing the fact that he has decided to cast his lot with the democrats of the county and to no longer affilliate with the republicans. This will be good news to Mr. Killgore's many friends among the democrats: it will be equally sad intelligence to the republicans, for he has been a wheelhorse among them and wields a tremendous influence among his friends.

Many facetious remarks have been made with reference to Mr. Killgore's action, and the republicans will, doubtless, indulge in much sarcasm and undertake to ridicule Mr. Killgore for having taken the stand he has. As stated in his letter, that stand was decided upon after mature deliberation. He saw the light and went to it. He recalled the dard streaks in the republican party and fled from them as from a pestilence.

The editor has heard some undertake to belittle Mr. Killgore because his announcement appears in the PRESS. That's a terribly weak argument and shows the manner of men who are criticising. Having determined to cast his lot with the democrats, he naturally turned to the several papers of the county to announce his intentions; it would be a gross oversight on his part had he given his communication to the republican papers and overlooked the only democratic paper in the county. In fairness to all he supplied each with a copy of his letter. The PRESS prints it because we are glad to welcome him into our ranks; if the other papers print his letter, it will be but fair to a faithful servant of former days.

Mr. Killgore, being a man, has the right to decide for himself and no one has the right to question his integrity or honesty of purpose.

Some little comment has been made upon his having aligned himself with the party to which this editor belongs, because of a little misunderstanding had between them in the early days of the editor here. We want to say to such carping critics that Mr. Killgore has shown vastly more of manhood by his action than the critics have by their criticisms. The dispute between Mr. Killgore and the editor was amicably settled long months ago, and settled in the office of a republican and again before a republican judge, both of whom congratulated each of us for having arranged any misunderstanding that existed between us and areturn to our former relations of friendship and cordialty. Since that day Mr. Killgore and the editor have never mentioned our misunderstanding; those who have done so are marplots and intriguers; are of that class who for the sake of a mess of pottage would keep burning upon the altars of envy, hate and strife the fires of everlasting discord.

Mr. Killgore is welcomed into the democratic party by one and all alike, and the editor of the Press is neither the least or the greatest of those who extends to him the hand of good will and cordial welcome.

The coming of Hon. A. C. Smith to the party, while it has attracted much attention, has caused no considerable criticism from the fact that he was known to have been out of sympathy with the policies of the republican party for [illegible] and thinks that we should

FIVE ARE ARRESTED AFTER INVESTIGATION

was put under arrest. Upon examination it was found that Mr. Howard's neck was broken, his jaw bone was broken in three places and gun shot wounds extended from ear to ear.

Water Fills Coffin.

The hasty burial of Mr. Howard added a second clue to the probable murder, as he was supposed to have committed suicide in the home of a sister of his intended bride. The grave was full of water, the cheap coffin in which he was buried was full of water and had broken asunder, the body floating around in the water.

As a result of the investigation, warrants were immediately sworn out against Mrs. B. Igo, Henry Smith, Pate Smith, Holly Smith, and Mark Franklin, all of whom were immediately put under arrest.

The first is the sister of Miss Smith, the second the father, and the next two the brothers of the young woman. The latter is said to have made a confession to the County Solicitor.

It is reported that Howard had a considerable sum of money upon his person just previous to the murder, but that the coroner found less than $2. in his pockets when he arrived.

The persons above named are all confined in the county jail

Mrs. Igo is in failing health and the prison authorities thought it not best to keep her confined in the jail, so she was removed to a private residence here where she is being detained till the case is disposed of in some way.

The three Smiths, father and two sons, were arraigned in the County Court last Saturday, for the purpose of setting a date for preliminary hearing. The Smiths decided that they would wait till their attorney arrived, so that up to this time no date has been set.

In the mean time other interesting developments may come to light; Mr. Igo was in Clanton Sunday in conference with the County Solicitor, but what took place between them could not be ascertained.

There will be quite a number of witnesses examined when the case is finally called and just what the state expects to prove or what line of defense will be pursued by the defendants is not yet known, but in any event the trial will in all probability be a lengthy as well as an interesting one.

On Monday they again appeared in court, through their attorney and the preliminary trial set for Friday of this week. There are quite a number of witnesses to be examined; the case may consume the whole day or even more, for the State feels confident of its position in the matter and will fight strenuously to deny them, or any one of them, bail

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Editor Press:

Please allow me space in your much appreciated paper to say a few words in regard to one of my friends and neighbors, T. E. Williams, who is a candidate for County Superintendent of Education. Having been born and reared in Chilton county, and having been actively engaged in teaching in the public schools of the county his whole interest is in the welfare of the boys and girls of the county.

His experience as a teacher and educational qualifications make him thoroughly competent for the office which he seeks.

His being in the school room prevents him seeing the voters of the county personally, therefore I take great pleasure in recommending him to the voters of Chilton county.

If your vote is cast for him it will be wisely cast, and much appreciated by him and those who know him.

Trusting for a democratic victory this year I am,

Yours for the right,

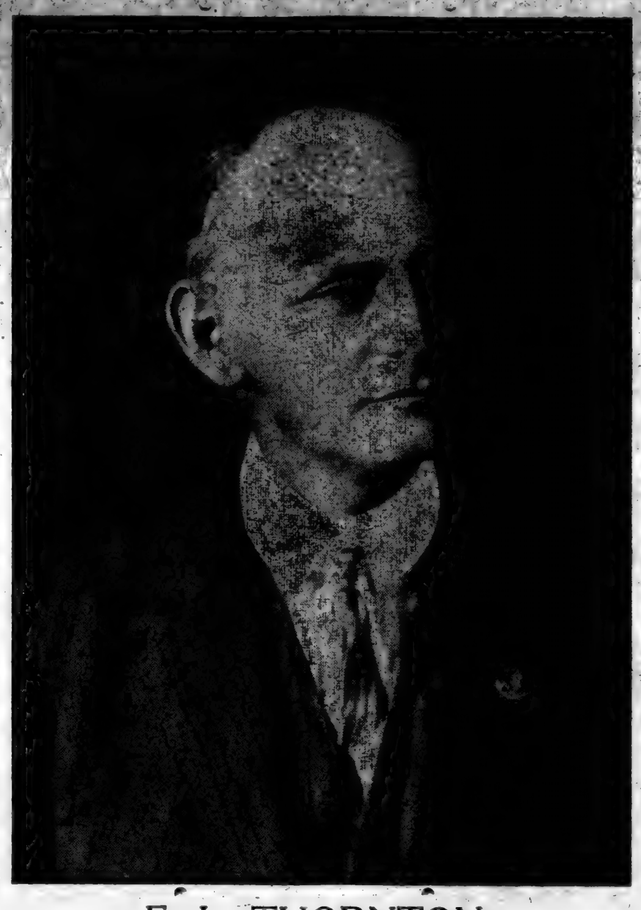
JAMES RANSOM

The Sheriff, on yesterday received a letter from a certain point enclosing a card of James Ransom, asking if the officers wanted that particular man and stating that it would be an easy matter to get him.

It will be remembered that Jas. Ransom was convicted in the early part of 1910, in the County Court, for carrying concealed weapons and fined $20.00 and sentenced to 108 days hard labor for costs. The fine not having been paid the prisoner was hand-cuffed and started off to the coal mines, in company with a certain high official, to work out his sentence and costs.

In some mysterious way Ransom secured his liberty, never having reached the coal mines.

The docket of the Court shows that the costs were paid at some time, by somebody (by whom we are unable to state) but the fine has never been paid.



Do any of the citizens of Clanton remember Ransom or the circumstances connected with his escape?

E. L. THORNTON

We present above, a likeness of Mr. E. L. Thornton of Mountain Creek, one of Chilton's prominent candidates for Tax Assessor.

Mr. Thornton, aside from being a gentleman of refinement and culture, as well as a man of distinguished looks, is one who commands the respect of all with whom he comes in contact.

He is of one of the oldest families in the county, some of his ancestors being among the first settlers of this section of the country.

Mr. Thornton is making a thorough, systematic canvass of the county as a candidate and the Press learns that he is meeting with enthusiastic encouragement wherever he goes.

He is a man, who if elected to office, will not only make a capable officer, but will give to the people of his county such an administration of the tax affairs of the county as will meet with their cordial approval.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Clanton Commandery A. F. & A. M., held an important conclave Tuesday night, at which time the Commandery was duly inspected by Sir Knight Louis J. Wright of Talladega.

The Wednesday Afternoon Domino Club was delightfully entertained last week by Mrs. W. M. Adams at her beautiful home on Oakdale avenue.

Four apartments were thrown open to the guests, and six tables were arranged for the game of "42." In each room lovely golden daffodils nodded their heads in greeting. The color scheme of yellow was beautifully carried out in every detail.

Mrs. J. H. Middleton graciously assisted the hostess in entertaining her guests.

The Club pin fell to Miss Lurline Harper for making the highest score. After the games a delicious course luncheon was served.

Notice of Sale of Land for Division.

Under and by virtue of an order and decree of the Probate Court of Chilton county, Alabama, rendered on the 25th day of March, 1912, the undersigned Commissioner, named in said order and decree, will sell to the highest bidder, for cash, in front of the Court House door in Clanton, in said county and state, within the legal hours of sale, on MONDAY, the 15th day of APRIL, 1912, the following described lands of the estate of William Lambert, deceased, to-wit:

Se 1-4 of ne 1-4 and ne 1-4 of ne 1-4 in Section 12, Township 22, Range 14, chilton county, Alabama. Said sale being for the purpose of division among the heirs of the estate of said William Lambert, deceased.

This the 28th day of March, 1912.

The members of the Inter Se Club were delightfully entertained on Friday afternoon by Mrs. Martin Nix at her home in west Clanton. The guests were given a clever little contest, the working out of which afforded much amusement. The prize, a silver embroidery stiletto, was won by Mrs. R. E. Luckey. Later in the afternoon a two course luncheon was enjoyed amid the effective decoration of buttercups.

The following marriage license were issued this week.

Mr. Ernest Kimbrell to Miss Mary Burnett; Mr. E. W. Wamble to Miss Lillian Gentry; Mr. Henry Hankins to Miss Beaulah M. Johnson; Mr. M. E. Thrash to Mrs. Fannie Connell; Mr. Tom Edwards to Miss Lena Jones; Mr. Geo. B. Kimbro to Miss Velma A. Barnett.

A Nervous Woman Finds Relief After Many Years

Women who suffer from extreme nervousness, often endure much suffering before finding any relief. Mrs. Daniel Kintner, of Defiance, O., had such an experience, regarding which she says:

"I had stomach trouble when I was eighteen years old that broke down my health, and for years I suffered with nervousness, headache, indigestion and nervous spasms. The spasms got so bad I would have them three or four times a week. After trying nearly every remedy recommended, I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I must say it helped me wonderfully. I have had no severe nervousness for several years."

MRS. DAN KINTNER,
1002 Pleasant St., Defiance, O.

Many remedies are recommended for diseases of the nervous system that fail to produce results because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. Dr. Miles' Nervine has proven its value in such cases so many times that it is unnecessary to make claims for it. You can

An Attempt to Mislead the Voter.

Chas. Henderson's opponent directly and through his friends is sending out a card to the voter, where they speak of Chas. Henderson as follows:

"He has twice been elected a member of the Railroad Com ission and now seeks a third election."

It is evident that the intention of this paragraph is to have the voter believe that Chas. Henderson is seeking to be elected to the third term as President of the Railroad Commission. This is untrue and is known to be untrue. Chas. Henderson has been elected Associate Commissioner one term, and President of the Commission ONE Term, and ONE TERM ONLY, and he now asks the usual democratic endorsement for a second term.

THE AMERICAN HOME

WM. A. RADFORD EDITOR

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 178 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

This house plan appeals to me as being one of the neatest and most interesting low-cost houses I ever built. The plan lends itself to a splendid arrangement of rooms, both upstairs and down. It is easy to arrange the necessary conveniences when the rear of the house is wider than the front, and this object is easily accomplished with a two-section roof on the three-gable plan—one of the most satisfactory roofs ever built. This style of roof dates back to the earliest American architecture. It originated in the efforts of builders to add a pleasing front to the old-fashioned long houses built with the side to the road; but this plan has been improved upon, until the completed house shows very little resemblance to the original efforts in this direction.

While the front part of the house is pleasing and the arrangement is almost perfect, the rear section is given up entirely to the dining room, kitchen and the accessories to these rooms. While we all like to see a pretty parlor and an attractive hall, we should remember that a house is built to live in next year and for a good many years to come. The work of getting meals is about the same, day after day and year after year. Meals are prepared in the kitchen and served in the dining room three times daily, and a little saving in work each time amounts to a great deal in the aggregate. A dining room 12 feet wide and 26 feet 6 inches long is unusual, even in a large house. This is not a large house, but there is room enough for a large dining room without encroaching on anything else.

The little square hall in the rear is really a vestibule. It is the right place for an ice-box, away from the heat of the kitchen, but not far enough away to be inconvenient. I like to see a refrigerator close to the outside entrance. Ice comes in dripping wet in warm weather, and the man who carries it usually has more or less mud and dirt on his boots. It is a great saving on a woman's nerves to have dirt left outside, or as near outside as possible. Then there is a saving of ice by having the refrigerator in a comparatively cool place. If we have our own ice-house, the work of getting the ice cut, washing it and putting it into the ice-box is drip carried to a bed of mint. We all know how to appreciate roast lamb with mint sauce; and when the mint is gathered fresh and clean at the side of the house, it is much more of a delicacy than when bought from the market and carted around through the dust for 24 hours before being delivered. Mint will grow fairly well in the garden if lightly shaded; but it is a water-loving plant, and does better when it gets a continual supply of moisture. If the pipe from the ice-box is short, the water is likely to be rather cold. It is better to run the water along an open trough for a distance of eight to feet feet, to raise the temperature of the drip water. For this purpose an open trough is better than a pipe, for two reasons: the water is exposed to the atmosphere, and warms up much better in summer; and, if the ice-box is used in cold weather, a trough will not burst when the water freezes. Another drain for an ice-box that came under my observation, was carried to a porcelain dish for the benefit of the birds. It kept a constant supply of water in a shallow dish, and the birds enjoyed their daily bath during the warm weather. It was amusing to see them splash the water about. This was an occurrence that interested and delighted the children very much.

This style of house just suits a two-story porch, and the porch seems to fit the house as though it grew there. It is not always easy to arrange a porch on three sides of a house without making some of the rooms dark, but that objection is eliminated in this plan. This style of porch is a finish to the building and is a great protection to both front and side doors opening into the dining room.

I like an outside entrance to the dining room, especially where the room is large and not overcrowded with furniture. I think most housewives like this arrangement also. A dining room is not furnished usually so expensively as a front parlor. When there is a side entrance the immediate friends of the family usually step right into the inner circle without the formality of ringing the front door bell. There is an element of sociability in this sort of thing that induces comfort. I do not believe in furnishing a parlor in such a way that it is too nice to use. I believe in comfort first and show afterward; but at the same time it is considerable work to keep the front part of the house in first-class condition and have every member of the family running through it continually. A woman dislikes to order the children out of the parlor to stay out, unless they have some other place to go, and there should be a comfortable place for the children in every home. The dining room in this house offers a solution of the problem. With a good grate and a cheerful fire in cold weather the youngsters will be found in the dining room. Merry time, eh? Oh, you old folks, we all know that you

THE ELECTRICAL WORLD

ELECTRIC HEATER IS UNIQUE

As Arranged by Three Michigan Men It Is Divided Into Three Parts—Set Up Where Needed.

It took three Michigan men to design the electric heater here shown, but when they were through they had an apparatus that can be put up in any room of the house in a few minutes. A circular stand with four legs forms the bottom part. On this rests a steel plate of horseshoe shape with two projections on the ends upon which the electric wires are plugged to provide the current. The third part of the apparatus consists of a cylindrical chamber with a top and closed at the bottom, that forms the heater proper. This chamber fits on the stand and a center rod runs through the center of the stand and is clamped in place, holding the affair together. This device can be used not only to take the chill off the bathroom or any other room before the heater is started in the cellar, or it can be used as a stove to heat food that does not require a very hot fire.

New Electric Heater.

WAY TO PRINT PHOTOGRAPHS

Calhoun System Enables One to Use Steady Electric Light With Automatic Time Device.

In printing photographs by natural light, a photographer spends much of his time in watching the effect of the light which is not always uniform. The Calhoun photo printer enables the photographer to use steady electric light and to set an automatic timing device which cuts off this light at the proper time, says the Popular Eelctricity. The light is provided by a movable cluster of incandescent lamps within a cabinet. It is claimed that with good weather and sunlight a photographer can

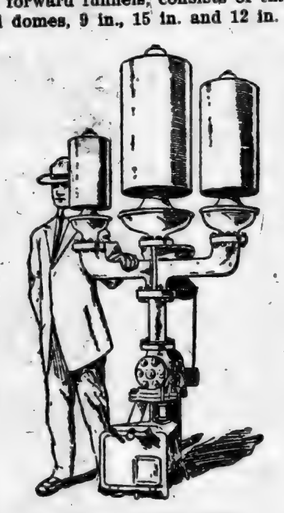
WIRELESS IN CONGO STATE

System Is to Be Carried Out Covering 1,860 Miles With Transmitting Stations Along Route.

It appears from a note in the columns of the Electrical Review that a system of wireless telegraphy is to be carried out in the Congo state, following the course of the Congo up to the Kwango district for a distance of 1,860 miles; transmitting stations are to be erected in all the principal places. The apparatus of the Radio-Electrique as used in the French possessions will be employed in the neighborhood of the French colonies, while the usual apparatus of the Telefunken Gesellschaft will be used in the vicinity of the German colonies. It is proposed to endeavor to reach an understanding with France and Germany with regard to the state's lastly, it is other to bring the whole system into communication.

BIG AID TO WEATHER BUREAU

For Dissemination of Weather Forecasts Telephones Have Played Important Part.



Telephones are handmaids to the weather bureau. Diligent efforts have been made on the part of the bureau to increase the distribution of weather forecasts, and the principal part of this work has been directed toward the dissemiantion of forecasts through the medium of the telephone companies, and they have responded almost unanimously to the invitation to cooperate for the benefit of their subscribers. During the year several states of the middle west and on the Pacific slope were canvassed, and as a result a large number of telephone companies in those states are now cooperating with the bureau in this important work.

One of the largest telephone companies operating in the southern states, which has heretofore declined to take up the work of distribution, has fallen into line, and is now giving its subscribers the benefit of the daily forecasts through a large number of exchanges, particularly in Mississippi and Tennessee. In the middle west the telephone is largely used for transmitting forecasts, and the weather information is much appreciated. The officials of the companies state that the number of calls that come into "central" daily for weather reports is surprising. They say that it is an advantage to them to have the opportunity of distributing the information free, as this aids in securing more subscribers. Some officials are enthusiastic in their commendation.

BIG WHISTLES OF "OLYMPIC"

Each Set, One on Each of the Forward Funnels, Are Controlled by Electricity.

The whistles of the "Olympic" are the largest ever made. Each set, of which there are two, one on each of the forward funnels, consists of three bell domes, 9 in., 15 in. and 12 in. in diameter, grouped together on a branch piece, says the Popular Mechanics. The height from the base of the branch piece to the top of the center dome is 4 ft. 2½ in., and the combined weight of the three domes and the branch piece is 764½ lbs.

The whistles, which are electrically controlled, are so arranged and tuned as to give the distinctive harmonious blast which is known by the White Star line navigators as their own recognized sound.

Novel Use for Eiffel Tower.

An attempt is to be made to use the Eiffel Tower for the purpose of protecting Paris and the surrounding country from the ravages of hailstones. M. de Beauchamp, a French scientist, has made some very successful experiments with electric column of only 100 feet in height, by means of which he was able to protect the surrounding land within a radius of two miles. Equally successful results in the case of the Eiffel Tower would be of importance, from an agricultural point of view, to the country around Paris.

ELECTRICAL NOTES

Steel dies now are engraved by electricity.

Japan now has forty-five gas companies, as against only seven five years ago.

The United States has issued nearly 60,000 patents for inventions about electrical lines.

In some parts of Australia the telephone is regarded as an amusement rather than a necessity.

More than 350,000 electric flatirons have been sold within a year in the United States and Canada.

A machine has been perfected that will seal 30,000 envelopes in an hour. It is driven by electricity.

It is stated that the weekly royalties of Mr. Edison's large moving picture investments amount to $2,500.

For Union Workers

Important Happenings in Industrial Circles in This Country and Europe

Christiania, Norway.—A number of reports upon various phases of Norwegian governmental activity designed to benefit the people have been published in daily consular and trade reports. Among these were reports upon the Bolig (Dwellings) Bank, through which the government makes liberal low-rate loans to the working people for building homes; the municipal employment bureau, conducted by the city government in the interest of both workmen and employers of labor; government aid to the dairying industry, and some others. Just now the government, in co-operation with the city authorities, is establishing in Stavanger a domestic science school, intended to afford a complete course in housekeeping to young girls over sixteen years of age.

Vienna, Austria.—The Metal Workers' union in Austria has issued a report on the activity of the union since its commencement. In the three years from 1908 to 1910 it appears that 28,000 workmen (23 per cent) fought out their movements with complete success, 70,000 (63.5 per cent) were partially successful, and 12,500 (11.5 per cent) were beaten. In these three years the union spent $195,000 for strike support. Improvements in wages and reductions of hours were secured, but the effect of the increase of wages is more than wiped out by the rapid increase in the cost of living.

Washington.—Seventy days was set as the limit for the taking of testimony in the contempt cases pending before Justice Wright in the District supreme court against President Samuel Gompers, Vice-President John Mitchell and Secretary Frank Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor. The prosecuting commmittee has 30 days in which to take evidence against the labor leaders, the defendants will have a like time to offer their defense and then the prosecution will have ten days for rebuttal testimony. It is probable that a decision in the case will not be handed down until some time next spring.

Chicago.—B. J. McMahon, representing the Glass Bottle Blowers' association, asked the assistance of the Chicago Federation of Labor in procuring the passage of an amendment to the city ordinance dealing with the size of milk bottles. Under the present law, one company is given a monopoly of the sale of milk bottles in Chicago, because it controls the patent under which they are made. Hundreds of glass bottle blowers have been thrown out of work.

Manchester, England.—The Dock Laborers' union held a meeting recently and passed a resolution declaring that after January 1 next they would refuse to work with laborers who had not the National Transport Federation's ticket. The union officials in Manchester say there is no doubt that the resolution will be carried into effect at the New Year, but they do not anticipate any difficulty will arise.

Berlin, Germany.—A conference was held recently by the employers in the cloak and suit making and children's clothing trades in Berlin, who met the representatives of the fifty thousand female home workers and three thousand tailor intermediaries who have been on strike since November 23. It is stated that there is a prospect of settlement.

London, England.—The Labor Copartnership association now embraces 111 societies in Great Britain. The capital of these workmen's societies approximates $10,000,000, and their trade amount to nearly $22,000,000 per annum. The last return shows that $131,395 was divided among the workers as their share of the profits.

Birmingham, Eng.—At the Birmingham quarterly iron and steel meeting the market was pronounced the best within the last three years, and an optimistic feeling generally prevailed. Many manufacturers are refusing orders, and others report themselves very busy, while no one complains of lack of orders.

Washington.—Wages paid to women in the laundries in Russia are from $4 to $6 a month, with room and board included, but the living quarters are in the cellar, and the food of the coarsest kind. Mechanics in these laundries command, under the same conditions about 70 cents a day.

Pittsburg, Pa.—More than $3,000,000 was spent in the last two years by the United Mine Workers of America to keep men in idleness. Nova Scotia received the largest amount of the strike benefits, the total reaching well over $1,000,000.

Milwaukee.—Wren M. Zahn, business manager of the Milwaukee Wood, Wire and Metal Lather's union, signed up 75 leaving the trade, wages were 35 cents an hour with unlimited hours. Before the wages increased to 37½ cents per hour, and hours were reduced to [illegible]

Stockholm, Sweden.—The lock[out] in the building trades of Sweden [has] come to an end, the victory in [the] main, being with the men. The [new] agreements are to run for five [years] —in that respect the men have lost, but the wage rates are not to be [cut] old ones, or even reduced ones, as [the] employers intended. The wages [are] to be increased slightly, from ½ [cent] to 3 cents an hour, with a further increase of ½ cent from April 1, 1[912]. The nine-hour day is to be [main]tained where the rule obtains [now] and the agreement is not to end [till] December 31 as the employers [wish]ed, in the middle of the winter, when building activities are at a standstill, but on March 31.

Cincinnati.—The majority report of a board of arbitration appointed to [settle] just the differences betwen the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad and its employes favors the employes and grants them increases in wages. Section foremen earning less than $50 a month will get an increase of $2.50 a month, section laborers receiving less than 15 cents an hour get an increase of half a cent an hour, and pumpers will receive a five per cent. raise. M. Morrissey, the third member of the board, dissented to the findings, contending that the proposed rates are not parallel the rates paid for the same work on other railroads.

Harrisburg, Ill.—Organized labor in Saline county has bought the Harrisburg Chronicle, one of the oldest and foremost Republican papers of southern Illinois. The paper will be operated by the Harrisburg Trades and Labor assembly. The plant is one of the finest in southern Illinois. Each union laborer will be assessed one dollar to help pay the $6,000 necessary to obtain possession of the publication. The purchase of the paper is said to have grown out of the opposition of the press to the 1910 car strike.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—As a result of the agitation carried on by the Retail Clothing Salesmen's union it has succeeded in forming a branch of salesmen employed in Brooklyn stores. Twenty-six retail clothing merchants in the eastern section of Brooklyn have signed agreements with the union, recognizing it and granting the men a six-day work week instead of seven days, as they were compelled to work previous to the formation of the union.

Melbourne.—Opinion amongst Australian trade unionists is still very much divided as to which is the best tribunal to adjust industrial conditions—(a) An arbitration court presided over by a judge and able to legislate as to hours, wages, etc., or (b) a wages board for each industry composed of an equal number of employers and employes and an outside chairman.

Washington.—Railway systems, with a mileage aggregate of 47,500, have increased the wages of employes during the past year 4.87 per cent. over 1910. The total amount of this increase means that there will have been put into the pockets of the employes at the close of 1911 the sum of $14,636,000 more than was received for the same service in 1910.

Cincinnati.—Cincinnati has recently opened a municipal domestic laundry where poor women of the tenement district may take the family clothing and do their own washing with the aid of the most up-to-date machinery. There all the modern laundry mechanical aids are brought within reach of the poorest families.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Throughout Greater Pittsburg there is an atmosphere of activity noting a return of industrial activity. Hundreds of skilled mechanics as well as laborers, many of whom have been idle all or part of the time, are now steadily employed and the ranks of the employed are daily being augmented.

Milwaukee.—The Milwaukee Cigarmakers' union has proposed an amendment to the international constitution providing that on and after May 1, 1913, there shall be no more open shops under the jurisdiction of the International Cigarmakers' union.

Washington.—In Porto Rico, thirty-two new local unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor have been organized in the last year, while several which had been temporarily suspended were reinstated in the federation.

Boston.—The laborers' pension law which Boston will put into operation March 1, 1913, is the first instance of a municipality in America granting retirement with half pay to its workers.

Berlin, Germany.—The city council of Nuremberg and Fuerth are [to] pasture by the tar-load and [have] them to the people in [small] parcels at cost, the price of [the] tar being distributed in [many] forms of carts per 100 [pounds] of thousands of [citizens] dodging the [automobiles] for [their] purchases.

Chas. Henderson

President of Railroad Commission
Candidate for Re-election

Eight Reasons Why He Should Receive Your Support.

FIRST: You have elected him once to this position, and he asks your endorsement for re-election, based on a well established Democratic precedent.

SECOND: The position to which he aspires is purely a business office in which business affairs are adjusted. Mr. Henderson's successful business life speaks for itself.

THIRD: His experience gained as President of the Railroad Commission, coupled with his business experience, equips him most thoroughly for the position he seeks.

FOURTH: His able, fair and impartial administration is not questioned, even by his opponent's greatest admirers.

FIFTH: His opponent's attitude is that of deserting an office to which you, in your confidence, elected him.

SIXTH: His opponent asks that an office, which he now fills, the term of which does not expire until 1915, be filled by appointment, while you claim the Constitutional right to fill it by election.

SEVENTH: His opponent's business experience has not been such, as could in anywise, qualify him for President of the Railroad Commission.

EIGHTH: His opponent's only reason for asking for your support (that we have seen or heard of) is that, on account of his living in the same Congressional District, as does Charles Henderson, he could run for Railroad Commissioner two years hence.

Respectfully solicited—
E. P. KENNEDY,
Campaign Manager.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

LATE NEWS OF THE WORLD TERSELY TOLD.

SOUTH, EAST, NORTH AND WEST

Notes From Foreign Lands, Throughout the Nation and Particularly the Great South.

Southern.

These counties have been released from the cattle tick quarantine: King and Jecos counties, Texas; also portions of Howard and Terrell counties; portions of Ripley, Oregon; Newton and McDonald counties in Missouri; Panola, Adams, counties, Mississippi; Hart county, Georgia; Union, Laurens, Cherokee, Spartanburg and Greenwood and portions of Abbeville, York and Chester counties, South Carolina; Lawrence and Benton and portions of Hardemann, Hamilton and Polk counties, Tennessee.

Sidna Edwards, a tall, rugged mountaineer of 22, sat calmly in the darkness of the little brick pall at Hillsbille, Va., the first catch of the posses who have been scouring the mountains for those of the Allen gang who got away after the court house assassination of March 14, when a judge, prosecutor, sheriff and two bystanders were killed and two others were seriously wounded.

The census bureau's prelimiaary report on cotton ginning, giving the government's first figures, other than estimates, on the size of the 1911 cotton crop of the United States, shows the total crop to have reached the unprecedented size of 16,050,819 running bales, counting round bales as half bales, and including linters, which is equivalent to 16,205,097 five hundred-pound bales. The crop reporting board of the department of agriculture, in its estimate of the 1911 cotton crop, issued December 11, last, reckoned the total production at 14,885,000 bales of 500 pounds, gross weight. The county's 1910 production was 12,005,688 bales of 500 pounds. In previous record years the total crop was 13,587,306 bales in 1908, 13,595,498 in 1906 and 13,679,954 bales in 1904.

Seventy lives is accepted as an approximately correct estimate of the human toll taken when mine No. 2 of the Sas Bois Coal company at McCurtain, Okla., was wrecked by an explosion. Of one hundred and sixteen men of the day shift only 46 are now known to be alive, while the others are entombed behind the debris. In the opinion of government experts and mine officials they are dead, and a special train which brought physicians and nurses from Fort Smith, Ark., returned. Five physicians remained with the faint hope that some of the imprisoned men might be found alive. Accumulated gas or coal dust was the cause of the explosion, according to experts.

Two bills were introduced in the legislature of Maryland in connection with the Southern Development and Demonstration Organization, which was formed there recently to exploit the South. One was a bill of incorporation and the other provided for an appropriation of $20,000 for the organization, which will depend upon contributions of states, railroads and transportation companies, boards of trade and individuals to maintain it.

General.

The great Lawrence, Mass., textile strike, which brought in its train increased wages for 275,000 textile workers in New England, was officially declared off at all the mills in Lawrence, having accomplished its purpose. In this connection, it is generally believed too that advances in wages or reduction in hours to paper mill employees, bagging and burlap workers, machinists, are all traceable directly or indirectly to the movement which had its origin in Lawrence.

Confirmation of a cablegram announcing that Christians are to enjoy liberty and freedom in China under the republic was received by the American coard of commissioners for foreign missions from Rev. Harry S. Martin, the boards' agent at Pekin, Mr. Martin wrote the native pastors of the Protestant cuurcaes in Pekin, planned a union thanksgiving service and four native preachers called on President Yhan and invited him to be present.

The vanguard of the Mexican Federal army, number 500 men, commanded by Gen. Trucy Aubert, met and defeated eighteen hundred rebels, under General Salazar, 20 miles south of Jiminez, according to reports received at the government offices.

The first of the annual announcements of the failure of the peach crop comes from New York, Pa. A dispatch from that city says: "The crop will be nearly a complete failure."

The British government is endeavoring to enact a minimum wage bill to end the coal strike.

The first message of Gov. George W. Hunt was read to Arizona's first state legislature. The governor urged the enactment for submission to the people of an amendment to the constitution providing for the recall of judicial officers.

A telegram from Wu Shan, province of Sze Chwan, China, says that three Americans, Messrs. Hicks, Hoffman and Sheldon, who are presumed to be missionaries, were attacked while erploring the gorges in the Yangtse river in a boat and all three were robbed and wounded. Soldiers and a doctor have been dispatched from Ichang to Wu Shan, which is about 75 miles to the west, on the Yangtse.

Although it has become known that the police of New York are in possession of a second bomb mailed to Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, detectives would not disclose on what clews they are working to solve the two mysterious attempts upon the life of the jurist. The new bomb was detected in the mails and kept intact; threatening letters have been sent to Delancey Nicoll, attorney for Mortimer L. Schiff, in the case of Folke E. Brandt, Mr. Schiff's former valet.

Dean Walter T. Sumner of the Cathedral of S.s. Peter and Paul delivered a sermon upon the "Sacrament of Marriage," in Chicago, during the course of which he made the following observation: "Beginning with Easter no persons will be married at the cathedral unless they present a certificate of health from a reputable physician to the effect that they are normal, physically and mentally, and have neither incurable or communicable disease."

The Japanese antarctic expedition returned to Wellington, New Zealand. They report having seen nothing of the British polar expedition of Capt. Robert Scott. The Japanese reported all on board the Kaina Maru well.

A fierce battle between revolutionaries and the government forces in Paraguay has been going on for several days and is still raging, according to telegrams received from Asuncion, Buenos Ayres.

Robert M. LaFollette's majority in North Dakota will not be far from 18,000 when the final presidential preference primary returns are received and may be heavier. Of the total vote LaFollette has polled about 32,000 votes, while Roosevelt has polled about 18,000. The Taft vote in the state has only been about 3,000. The trend of the vote throughout the state as indicated by the incoming returns was interesting.

As the result of the discovery by the government of Nicaragua of a plot to assassinate Secretary of State Knox on the occasion of his recent visit to the capital of that country, it is not improbable that a number of prominent Liberals will be put to death. Thirteen dynamite bombs placed beneath the roadbed over which Secretary Knox's special train traveled from Corinto to Managua, and connected with an electric battery were discovered by a government agent.

The Queen Mary, Great Britain's twenty-fifth dreadnaught, was launched at Jarrow, England, in the presence of thousands of spectators. The new battle cruiser is of the same type as the cruiser Lion, launched in August, 1910, but has a greater displacement and horse power, which are given as 227,000 tons and 78,000 indicated horse power ,respectively. The Queen Mary is the largest warship yet built in Great Britain, and her total cost amounted to $10,305,320.

Washington.

The interstate commerce commission, in an opinion made public, established the far-reaching principle that a railroad must so adjust its rates that justice will be done between communities, regardless of the state lines. If a railroad makes a low rate, even when forced to do so by a state commission, it must accord the same rate to interstate traffic moving under substantially simflar conditions. It puts on a radically different basis the relations between state and Federal railroad commissions. The decision directly affects the Western and Atlantic railroad and it also affects the rates from Atlanta to Augusta, Atlanta to West Point, or any other local rate that might be shown to have an effect upon the interstate commerce business of the carrier.

The United States will not interfere with legitimate exportations of food, clothing, dry goods and hardware to Mexico. President Taft and his cabinet decided that such necessities did not come within the meaning of the president's proclamation forbidding the exportation of munitions of war. The question of permitting dynamite and other explosives to go from this country to Mexico referred to Attorney General Wickersham.

President Taft postponed indefinitely his proposed conference with John Mitchell regarding the coal situation. This announcement from the white house was unaccompanied by any stated reason. While officials were extremely reticent as to the cause of the postponement of the conference with the labor leader, it was generally believed the president and secretary feared that the activity of the ministration at this time might be premature and might complicate the situation.

Twenty billion dollars is the value of the present annual output of the American factories, the total having just doubled during the past ten years according to a commerce and labor department estimate. Exports from the United States in 1911 amounted to over $2,013,500,000, of which only $90,000,000 was in manufactures. This the department points out shows that the bulk of the export trade is acquired through no selling effort, but is due to the fact that foreign buyers come to America for cotton, corn and wheat which they must have.

LAWRENCE STRIKE IS DECLARED OFF

NEW BEDFORD NOW DISPLACES LAWRENCE AS CENTER OF TEXTILE SITUATION.

INSIST ON 10 PER CENT RAISE

Believed Increase Received By Operatives in Other Industries Traceable to Lawrence Movement.

Boston.—The great Lawrence strike which brought in its train increased wages for 275,000 textile workers in New England, was officially declared off at all the mills in Lawrence, having accomplished its purpose in the opinion of the leaders.

In this connection it is generally believed, too, that advances in wages or reduction in hours to paper mill employes, bagging and burlap workers, machinists and operatives in other industries are all traceable directly or indirectly to the movement which had its origin in Lawrence. The total number of persons thus to benefit is considerably upward of 300,000.

Advances in the price of woolen and cotton goods which have been made, or which are in prospect, will probably place upon the ultimate consumer much of the burden of the additional cost to the textile manufacturers. This will aggregate between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 during the next year, it is estimated. Mill agents in announcing the advance in prices have frankly said that the upward trend is the result of wage increases.

The rise in the price of cotton goods announced is comparatively small, a fraction of a cent a yard in most cases, but selling agents predict that the net advance to the retailer may ultimately reach 2 cents a yard. Some increased prices also have been quoted on woolen goods and dealers freely predict higher prices for next season.

New Bedford, where the manufacturers of fine cotton goods have refused to accede to the demands of the employes for an additional 5 per cent increase, has displaced Lawrence as the center of the textile situation. It is feared that a strike of from 25,000 to 30,000 operatives will follow. Unless the mill owners give the increase demanded within a few days, While an increase of 5 per cent has been granted the New Bedford operatives are insistent that they receive 10 per cent. Secretary Devoll of the Manufacturers' association has promised them that the mill owners will decide early in the week whether this will be granted. The suggestion has been made that an immediate increase of 7 1-2 per cent be given with a promise of an additional 2 1-2 per cent on a given date. This may be the basis of a compromise.

ORDER LOWER RATES.

Interstate Commerce Commission Declares Present Rates Unreasonable.

Washington.—The interstate commerce commission, in an opinion made public, established the far-reaching principle that a railroad must so adjust its rates that justice will be done between communities regardless of state lines. If a railroad makes a low rate upon traffic wholly within a state, even when forced to do so by a state commission, it must accord the same rate to interstate traffic moving under substantially similar conditions.

The principle was laid down by a vote of 4 to 3. The minority held that the powers of congress were usurped by the majority opinion, and that the remedy for such a situation should be applied through additional legislation.

The decision was in the case of the railroad commission of Louisiana against the St. Louis and Southwestern railway and other carriers operating between Louisiana and Texas.

General Bingham Dead.

Philadelphia.—Gen. Henry H. Bingham, member of congress from the First Pennsylvania district, and "father of the house," died at his home here. He had been a member of the house continuously since March 4, 1879. He was 71 years old. General Bingham had been ill for a long time from a complication of diseases.

Richeson Is Physically Well.

Boston, Mass.—The Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, in jail under the sentence of death for the murder of Avis Linnell, now is in better condition physically and mentally than at any time during his confinement.

Providence, R. I.—A resolution endorsing the proposed income tax amendment to the federal constitution was introduced in the general assembly and referred to the committee on special legislation.

Paris.—J. F. Poggenburg of New York, the American champion, defeated Count Da Dree, a Frenchman, in the qualification of the international amateur billiard tournament. Poggenburg scored 400 points to 187 for the Frenchman.

CORONER

I am a candidate for the nomination as Coroner of Chilton county and subject to the action of the Democratic primary election to be held Monday, April 1st 1912. H. C. YOUNG.

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR

EASILY HIGHEST PAID MAGISTRATE IN THE WORLD.

Head of World's Greatest City, He Performs the Duties of Simple Justice of the Peace in His Official Mansion.

No more violent contrast is to be found the world over than that existing between the various duties of the lord mayor of London. Theoretically, at least, the king of Great Britain and Ireland and emperor of India cannot enter the city of London without his consent; yet he spends the best part of his mornings dispensing Solomonlike justice upon drunk who have broken the peace of the square mile of territory over which he rules.

Of course, the mayor of an American city is its chief magistrate, but he seldom if ever is called upon to waste his valuable time over such humble duties. In London, the greatest city in the world, the lord mayor, unless called away on other duties, is to be found every morning after 11 o'clock in the little justice room of the great Mansion House, his official residence dealing with the astonishingly small batch of lawbreakers taken in the net of the great police system that makes the city of London proper the safest and most lawabiding stretch of territory to be found in any large city in the world.

The city is only a square mile in extent, the greater part of it being occupied by the great business houses that control the finances of the world. There is located the famous Bank of England, for instance, behind whose eight-foot walls repose at all times a reserve fund of $100,000,000 in gold. Twenty-eight soldiers guard the treasure from within, but from without it is even better looked after. Scattered about the square mile of London, as thick as flies about a honey pot, are 1,800 bluecoated policemen. After eight or nine o'clock at night the silence of the streets in that part of Greater London is seldom broken except by the slow trend of the guardians of the law. Foolhardy, indeed would be the burglar who attempted to ply his trade in this well-guarded area.

It is not strange, then, that criminals give the city a wide berth and the majority of those who find themselves in the dock facing the lord mayor of London are men and women who have drunk "not wisely but too well." The present lord mayor is a teetotaler, but he is possessed of a delightful broadmindness that views with sorrow rather than anger and severity the weaknesses of others. The city of London drunks never had a more lenient magistrate to pass judgment upon them, and dismissals with a kindly word of reproof and encouragement to better deeds far outnumber the fines.

The lord mayor of London receives as much as the president of the United States. His yearly pay envelope is twice as bulky as that of the prime minister of Great Britain. Those who have a leaning toward mathematics can figure out that he is the highest paid magistrate in the world, when one takes into consideration the proportion of his waking day that is spent on the bench. It must not be thought, however, that he has nothing else to do, although it is perfectly clear that his duties, taken as a whole, are largely ornamental.

Ultimatum Explained.

"Couldn't you be persuaded to accept a nomination?" inquired the solicitous friend.

"Not unless there is an unmistakable call for me from the better element of the people."

"And whom do you consider the better element?"

"Those who have the good sense to call for me."

The Medium—Ah, beautiful lady, you have come to find your future husband; is it not so?

The Lady—Not much; I've come to see where my present husband is when he's absent.

Boy Had Noticed Things.

The dear little office-boy had been detected in a lie. It was not one of the ordinary prevarications of the everyday world, and, moreover, to make the crime more grievous, he had persisted in adhering to his original audacious statement.

"Do you know, my lad," asked a kindly clerk, in a kindly fashion, "that becomes of young lads who deal with the truth?"

"Aye," was the assured reply; "the police often sends them out as travelers when they grow up!"

Spendthrift.

Uncle Ezra—Do you think the boy young Eph Hoskins made in New York will last him long?

Uncle Eben—You bet it won't! He's going an awful pace. I was down to the general store last night, and young Eph was writing $100 checks for lighting his cigars with them.—

Swift Transformation Briefly Described.

About food, the following brief but fantastic letter from a Georgia woman goes straight to the point and is convincing.

"My frequent attacks of indigestion and palpitation of the heart culminated in a sudden and desperate illness from which I arose enfeebled in mind and body. The doctor advised me to live on cereals, but none of them agreed with me until I tried Grape-Nuts food and Postum.

"The more I used of them the more I became convinced that they were just what I needed, and in a short time they made a different woman of me. My stomach and heart troubles disappeared as if by magic, and my mind was restored and is as clear as it ever was.

"I have gained flesh and strength so rapidly that my friends were astonished. Postum and Grape-Nuts have benefited me so greatly that I am glad to bear this testimony." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Well-ville."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

FACE LONG SESSION

Congress May Sit Until After National Conventions.

SUPPLY BILLS ARE FOUGHT

Deadlock Between House and Senate Might Leave Departments of Government Without Any Visible Means of Support.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—This year in congress there has been a disposition to tack "extraneous legislation" onto the appropriation bills. Under the Republican rule no legislation was put on the supply measures except that which the party members claimed had a rightful place there. Years ago there was adopted in congress what was called the Holman rule prepared by Representative Holman of Indiana, "the watchdog of the treasury." This rule allowed legislation to be put on the supply measures provided it was intended to decrease government expenditures. The Republicans repudiated the Holman rule, but the Democrats have reinstated it.

The army appropriation bill carries legislation reducing the cavalry of the army from 15 regiments to 10, and it contains some other legislation which the Republicans say is "extraneous." The senate is Republican and it seems to be opposed to the action of the Democrats in attaching legislation to the supply measure. There are arguments for and against the course which the Democratic majority in the house has followed, but the right or the wrong of the thing aside, the fact remains that the senate is likely to get at loggerheads with the house over these matters and as a result it may be that congress will sit until a time long after the national conventions have been held.

Produces New Situation.

If either house wishes to do it, it can hold up appropriation bills and by refusing to sanction them can leave departments and branches of government without visible means of support, provided, of course, that adjournment comes before the supply bills have been sanctioned. If the senate shall agree with the house and pass the appropriation measures with their riders it is possible, perhaps even probable, in one or two instances that the president will veto the bills which he does not like. If he should veto the army bill, for instance, because of attached legislation of which he disapproves, the army officers and the 60,000 or 70,000 enlisted men would be left without a cent of pay, and more than this, there would be no money for the purchase of supplies. This thing did happen once away back in the time of President Hayes. He vetoed an army appropriation bill because it had a rider on it to which neither the president nor his party could subscribe. The matter which was put onto the bill at that time, however, was to some extent political and controversial in its nature. Nothing has been put onto the appropriation bills this year which is not either directly or indirectly connected with the service for which the money supplied by the bill is voted. It is said that there has been no situation just like this within the memory of the oldest member.

Indians Visit Taft.

President Taft was visited a day or two ago at the White House by three bands of Sioux Indians from the Santee, the Pine Ridge and the Rosebud agencies. The braves of the Pine Ridge were led by Jack Red Cloud, son of Old Red Cloud, who died a year ago and who in his day was one of the great warriors of the Dakota nation. Jack was dressed in the clothes of civilization. In a way he looked well enough, but not altogether comfortable. This son of a warrior of many battles has seen some fighting himself. He was "out" with the bands of Kicking Bear and Short Bull in the last uprising against the whites in the days of the Ghost Dance craze. The last time that one white man who was at the White House when the Indians called saw Jack Red Cloud, the Indian was tearing down the trail leading past the trader's store at Pine Ridge and emptying his Winchester with a gleeful disregard of the terror that he was causing.

At the time of Jack's escapade in December, 1890, he was not thirty years old and he was full of war and enthusiasm. He had left the hostile camp beyond White Clay Creek bent on a frolic on his own account. On his pony, painted, red flanneled, and feathered, he dashed through the agency emptying his gun and nearly scaring the lives out of half a dozen newspaper correspondents who happened to be in the trail.

Sullenly Surrenders.

Young Red Cloud on that day circled the agency, and before the troops could kill him or arrest him he was beyond the danger line, headed straight for the hostile camp.

The day of the Indians' call on the president, General Miles walked up Pennsylvania avenue through a snowstorm looking not much older than he did when he was in command of Pine Ridge agency twenty-one years ago last December and January. He was told that Jack Red Cloud was at the White House and said that he would like to see him and that as he was an good fighting man as ever drilled he must be a fine, upstanding fellow. The general recently received a letter from Short Bull, one of the Sioux objectors, who had his trouble on the warpath against the whites immediately following the killing of Sitting Bull by the Indian police near Standing Rock Agency. Short Bull is now leading a lazy life of retirement on the agency. His warpath days are over, but he was zealous for fight a score of years ago and with Kicking Bear he was declared so dangerous that the two were led captives to Fort Sheridan near Chicago.

While the Sioux were still on the warpath early in the month of January, 1891, Red Cloud, Jack's father, who was too old to go on the warpath no matter what his yearnings were, was sent out by his military authorities to the hostile camp to use his best endeavors to induce the Indians to surrender without further fighting. There had been a fight at Wounded Knee, where ninety of the Seventh cavalry were killed and wounded, and where Big Foot's band of Sioux virtually had been wiped out of existence. The authorities did not want any more of it, if they could bring the thing to an end peaceably. Red Cloud went out on his mission and when he came back he said that his appeals had been of no avail.

Craft of the Redskin.

After the surrender one of the Sioux warriors was asked what Red Cloud said to them when he was delivering the soldiers' message asking for peace. Did he deliver it? Not if the youths of his tribe tell the truth. They said that the chief came to them and that his bleary old eyes lighted and his voice was young when he told them that war was for men, and peace was for cowards.

An attempt was made after the surrender to get Red Cloud to tell the story of the Fetterman fight, in which he led the Sioux. Jack Red Cloud brought to his father a granddaughter who spoke English, and she was asked to act as interpreter, but the old man refused to tell the story, saying that it was not for a warrior to boast, and then he added that some white man might tell the story.

It was not long after the Civil war that Red Cloud met in battle the field-tried soldiers of that conflict and they found him worthy to meet them. Mineral wealth had been discovered in Montana and the rush of prospectors and settlers made it necessary for the government to erect a military post along the trail leading over the prairies to the mines. On the trail to the Powder River was built Fort Phil Kearney. While the troops ordered to the new post were on the march a scout came riding into the column with his horse under spur. Later Red Cloud with his braves met Fetterman in battle and killed him and fifty followers.

Circles the Globe.

One man in Washington is in touch, by wire and wireless, with every corner of the United States, even up to farthest Nome, Alaska. And this same man, by wire and wireless, is in touch with the whole world—with the six or seven hundred wireless telegraph shore stations scattered all over the globe, not to speak of the operators on the ships sailing the seas of the globe.

If he so desired, and if the government which pays him his salary in the department of war so ordered, this man could talk with the operator in Eastport, Maine; the Harvard University laboratory, the lightship "Skunk" off the English coast, with the Russian station at Vladivostok, Siberia; with Perim or Zanzibar, some miles to the southward. If it was necessary to do so, words could be flashed from Fort William McKinley across to Fukui, Japan, and no one sailing underneath the flying messages need be the wiser. And every day the number of these points in the gigantic forld-circling system of intercommunication increases—both in efficiency and certainty. The one man in the war department at Washington will have his hands full, and he can talk all he wants to.

Will Be No Babel.

"The ether," says Commissioner Chamberlain of the bureau of navigation, "is common property, and with the cheapest apparatus unrestrained trivial messages can create babel." What a magnificent babel it would be if the tribes and tongues were at war with each other! But, despite the ingenuities of the ever-present practical joker, there isn't going to be any babel.

As long ago as 1905 the Imperial German government, observing the need for the regulation of wireless telegraphy, and in order to secure the greatest benefit from it and prevent the establishment of a world-wide wireless monopoly, invited other nations to join it in adequate international regulation—the only effective kind, as wireless defies boundary lines.

It seems that the delegates from the United States were influential in shaping the international agreement, but, owing to a peculiar circumstance, they are powerless to further the ratification by this nation. The reason is simple: the land-telegraphs of Europe, Japan and nations generally are owned by the government and are usually operated by the national postoffice system—also always a government institution.

Where the Hitch Comes.

In the United States, of course, private capital controls the land telegraph lines. Now, the Berlin convention fixes the rates of wireless dispatches and provides for their transmission over land lines to their terminus and from their point of origin. Many people say that without either federal ownership or else federal control of land lines it will be impossible for this country to join and live up to the provisions of the international agreement. Others, however, are confident that the difficulties in the way will be overcome.

LIVE WIRE SPARKS

Berlin.—The strike of coal miners at Waldenburg, lower Silesia, has been called off.

Denain, France.—The striking coal miners here will resume work, an agreement with the mine owners having been effected.

El Paso, Tex.—An official report given out at Juarez claims that in the fighting at Escalon, which continued Sunday, the rebels scored a victory.

Prague, Austria.—The miners in the Aussig district have resolved to call a general strike. Thirty-six thousand men will be affected.

Rome.—King Victor Emmanuel left here for Venice, where he is to meet the German emperor. Extraordinary police precautions were taken all along the route and at the station prior to the king's departure.

Queenstown.—The steamer Mauretania, on her way to New York, arrived here, but was unable to take aboard 132 passengers and many sacks of mail which were awaiting her on account of the heavy seas.

Guayaquil, Ecuador.—Carlos Freile, who recently resigned as president of the Ecuador senate, and General Tobar, a former candidate for the presidency, left on the steamer Cachapoal for Europe.

St. Louis.—James J. Britt, third assistant postmaster, arrived here from Washington to take testimony in the congressional investigation of the prosecution by the postoffice department of E. G. Lewis and the Lewis enterprises.

Lynn, Mass.—In 21 shoe factories McKay stitchers will strike because of the refusal of the manufacturers to grant the demand for an advance in the piece work schedule.

Oshkosh, Wis.—Bert Hicks, killed in China by pirates, was a son of E. R. Hicks, former attorney general of Wisconsin. He was about 25 years old and went to China 18 months ago to establish a school of mines.

El Paso.—Although there was no interference with the telegraph wires between Juarez and Chihuahua, no press dispatches were received, nor did anything arrive for the commanders of the garrison, according to their own stories.

Washington.—A movement for the standardization of hygiene methods throughout the world will be inaugurated at the international congress on hygiene and demography, which meets here September 23-28, in response to the invitation of the president and congress.

Washington.—Robert F. Wynne, former captain in the United States marine corps, known in that service as "the fighting marine," died here at the home of his father, former Postmaster General Robert J. Wynne. Captain Wynne was 36 years old. He died of tuberculosis, contracted in China during the campaign against the Boxers.

Cincinnati.—The usual spring flood passed its ordinary limits but the Ohio river is surging over unusual heights. The river is expected to pass the 50 foot stage soon, rising at the rate of two tenths of an inch an hour. Nine loaded coal barges went down with considerable loss.

Washington.—Senator Joseph M. Dixon, chairman of the Roosevelt executive committee, gave out a statement regarding the Indiana primaries, saying in part: "We have carried eight congressional districts out of thirteen for Colonel Roosevelt, and insured the control of the state convention, which will elect four more Roosevelt delegates to the national convention at Chicago."

New York.—Although it has become known that the police are in possession of a second bomb mailed to Judge Otto A. Rosalsky of the court of general sessions, the trial judge in the Brandt case, detectives would not disclose on what clues they are working to solve the two mysterious attempts upon the life of the jurist.

Charleston, S. C.—The gunboat Ferrier, the crew of which mutined Saturday and which was boarded Sunday afternoon by a force of marines from the United States revenue cutter Yamacraw, remained in the hands of her captors, riding quietly at anchor off the battery.

Roanoke, Va.—Detective Tom Felts, who arrived here with Sidna Edwards, said Sidna confessed to him on the train that he handed his uncle, Floyd Allen, a pistol the morning of the shooting at Hillsville. The prisoner denied that he fired a shot.

Hong Kong.—The powers have agreed to suppress fighting in the European quarter at Swatow in the future. A conflict with the Chinese seems inevitable and Europeans are coming to Hong Kong. The provinces of Kwaing Si and Kwang Tung are in a state of turmoil. Insurgents along the Canton river are defiant in spite of the gunboats.

St. Louis.—Heavy snow in the surrounding territory aggravated flood conditions along the Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio rivers. The Mississippi stood at 24.2 feet here, a rise of two-tenths of a foot in 12 hours.

Ichang, Province of Hu Peh, China.—A telegram received here from Wu Shan, province of Sze Chan, says that three Americans, Silsbee Hicks, Thirlwall Hicks, who left Kuikiang on the Yangtse river, and Miss Ethel Stanley, who left Ichang on the same day, have not been heard from since they left Wu Shan.

MERCHANDISE GOES IN GOOD VOLUME.

Adverse Weather Conditions Fail to Have Effect.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

Though adverse weather conditions in various parts of the country tend to make for more or less irregularity in trade, merchandise continues to move from first hands in good volume. However, it is probable that while business has not retrograded, it has not extended, this being primarily due to the inclemency of the weather, and not to any diminution in wants. Conditions, based on the lightness of stocks in the hands of final purveyors, are really propitious, and growth in confidence, despite some untoward clouds in the field of labor, is one of the most characteristic features of the general situation.

Dry goods and coal remain in the forefront as regards activity. In the dry goods line advances on several kinds of goods have been made by the mills, and in view of the fact that stocks are light, that labor demands higher wages, and that production is still under normal, merchants, if they want goods, must not delay in placing orders at values satisfactory to the mills.

Leather is not especially active, but prospects bearing on the future are good, and prices are expected to advance because supplies are decreasing, raw material is higher, and uses for other articles than shoes are being extended.

It must not be overlooked that some sections of the country, those catering to the coal mining regions, and particularly bituminous mining, are inclined to go slow in making purchases pending clearer views as to the outcome of discussions over wage scales. In the iron and steel line there is more activity in foundry iron, the leading interest has adopted a firmer stand for higher prices, and there is somewhat more railroad buying.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending March 21 were 252, against 241 last week, 235 in the like week of 1911, 231 in 1910, 226 in 1909 and 286 in 1908.

Business failures in Canada number 37, which compares with 25 last week and 24 in the like week of last year.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending March 21 aggregate 3,069,074 bushels, against 2,332,056 last week and 2,325,517 this week last year. For the 38 weeks ending March 21 exports were 118,736,682 bushels, against 88,970,825 in the corresponding period last year.

Corn exports for the week are 309,764 bushels, against 834,400 last week and 1,510,793 bushels in 1911. For the 38 weeks ending March 21 corn exports are 30,268,162, against 37,692,660 last year.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The tendency in the industries and trades is toward a broader distribution. The increased activity is in spite of the slow breaking up of a winter of unusual severity of pending controversies abroad and at home, including, as they do, the still unsettled coal strike in England and the disagreement between coal operators and miners in this country. Other labor troubles, however, are less disturbing. The Lawrence strike is virtually over, while advances of wages of 5 to 10 per cent in the cotton goods trade indicate the betterment in that direction. It is significant that the reports from the west now report the improved busines senfi-report the improved business sentiment and this in connection with the general unfavorable weather.

Efforts to advance prices of iron and steel are meeting with some success. Pig iron is slightly firmer and there is some strengthening in steel bars, plates and shapes. With the approach of spring and the resumption of building structural material is more active and fabricating shops are fairly busy. Prospective business foots up to over 100,000 tons and the erection of the new terminal at Detroit will call for a large tonnage. The steel car plants could handle more business and railroad orders are still disappointing. Bessemer pig iron is firmer. Demand for tin plate has broadened moderately but sheets are shaded and new business is much less than capacity.

The dry goods markets continue very firm and with a broadening trade prices generally display an advancing tendency. Prints and print cloths continue very active and standard prints are to be advanced to 5 cents per yard, while regular print cloths are now quoted at 3¾ cents. Ginghams are in brisk request and some lines of these and of cotton flannels are held at value on future delivery. In woolens some of the best selling lines are being eagerly sought but mills are unable to increase their deliveries.

Advances in some lines of men's fall wear have been made by certain factors and one large producer has advanced all of its staple and semi-staple worsteds 5 cents a yard. The large staple dress goods mills have an abundance of orders and jobbers are doing a better business. Cotton goods are very firm. There is a marked shortage in the supply of

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

Odd, Va.:—"I am enjoying better health than I have for 20 years, and I believe I can safely say now that I am a well woman. I was reared on a farm and had all kinds of heavy work to do which caused the troubles that came on me later. For five years during the Change of Life I was not able to lift a pail of water. I had hemorrhages which would last for weeks and I was not able to sit up in bed. I suffered a great deal with my back and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night, and I did not do any housework for three years.

"Now I can do as much work as any woman of my age in the county, thanks to the benefit I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women."—Mrs. MARTHA L. HOLLOWAY, Odd, Va.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Relieves Backache Instantly

Sloan's Liniment is a great remedy for backache. It penetrates and relieves the pain instantly—no rubbing necessary—just lay it on lightly.

Here's Proof.

"I had my back hurt in the Boer War and in San Francisco two years ago I was hit by a street car in the same place. I tried all kinds of dope without success. Two weeks ago I saw your liniment in a drug store and got a bottle to try. The first application caused instant relief, and now except for a little stiffness, I am almost well."

MAPLESVILLE

Maplesville, March 23, 1912
Editor of Press:—

As there seems to be a lot of good men running for office, it has caused me to ruminate. I can't vote for all of them, so I will have to decide soon which to support; there is one, however, I shall heartily endorse for Tax Assessor, to-wit: E. L. Thornton, a Christian gentleman of the true type, thoroughly qualified to fill any office for which he may ask. I have known him a long time and have known him to be the right man at the right place at the right time. To know him is to love him; we need fear no mistakes in our assessments if Thornton is elected. He is spoken of highly in this vicinity by republicans as well as democrats as a good man for the office. I am like the old deacon was by his pastor; he would always sleep during preaching; but there came a new preacher and the deacon stayed awake. His pastor asked him why he did so and he said he knew his pastor would do alright so he could snooze some, but this new preacher might make some mistakes, so he had better watch him. Moral: Now if E. L. Thornton is elected, which he will be, I can rest assured there will be no mistakes as has been the case heretofore.

With best wishes to the Press and Editor, also the democrats, I am, Respectfully yours,

W. Y. Atchison.

THINK THIS OVER

This Offer Should Gain the Confidence of the Most Skeptical.

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principal is a recent scientific discovery that is oderless, colorless, and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle, and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. This ingredient does not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping, or other inconvenience. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember, you can get them in Clanton only at our store. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Upchurch Drug Co.

DON'T BE BALD

Nearly Any One May Secure a Splendid Growth of Hair.

We have a remedy that has aided to grow hair and prevented baldness in 93 out of 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. That may seem like a strong statement—it is, and we mean it to be, and no one should doubt it until they have put our claims to an actual test.

We are so certain Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will cure dandruff, prevent baldness, stimulate the scalp and hair roots, stop falling hair and grow new hair, that we personally give our positive guarantee to refund every penny paid us for it in every instance where it does not give entire satisfaction to the user.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is as pleasant to use as clear spring water. It is delightfully perfumed, and does not grease or gum the hair. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. Without guarantee back of it, you certainly take no risk. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Upchurch Drug Co.

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Jemison, Ala., 3-27, 1912

As the day for the election of democratic standard bearers is upon us and on next Monday we will be called upon to make our selections of those who are to lead the party to victory in November, I wish to say to the voters of the county that if you think I am the one to lead the ticket for Collector I shall greatly appreciate your votes and pledge myself to work dilligently for the success of the entire ticket in November; if, however, you think some one else better qualified, or will add greater strength to the ticket, your verdict shall be my verdict and I shall unhesitatisgly and gladly do all I can to bring about success.

Now let all go to the polls next Monday, whatever the conditions of the weather, and register our votes for democratic nominees giving our ticket the largest vote it has ever received in the county.

Faithfully,
Green D. Retherford.

Notice of Primary Election.

Notice is hereby given that a resolution was adopted by the Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton county, Alabama, on December 28th, 1911, calling a primary election to be held on Monday, the first day of April, 1912, to nominate the following officers, to-wit:

A Tax Assessor, a Tax Collector, a Treasurer, County Superintendent of Education, a Commissioner from the Third District, a Commissioner from the Fourth District, a Coroner, Two Justices of the Peace in each precinct in said county, One Constable for each precinct in said county, and two members of the County Executive Committee from each precinct in said county; also to vote for the nomination of such State and Congressional officers as are to be nominated in said primary election under the rulings and call of the State Executive Committee of the Democratic party of Alabama and the Executive Committee of the Democratic party of the Fourth Congressional District of the State of Alabama; also to vote for the election of four delegates to the State Convention of the Democratic and Conservative party of Alabama, called to meet in Montgomery on April 17th, 1912.

In pursuance of the above resolution, notice is hereby given that said primary election therein provided for will be held in the several precincts on Monday, the first day of April, 1912, in accordance with the Primary election laws of the State of Alabama and the directions of the said county committee as above set forth.

LEE ARNOLD KILLED AT VIRGINIA CITY

SHOOTING DONE BY TOM THORNTON.

Tom Thornton, tophouse foreman, shot and killed Lee Arnold at the commissary at Virginia mines about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, according to information reaching Birmingham last night. It is said that the trouble between the men arose over a dispute about weigh tickets.

It is stated that Arnold, who was a coal miner, had five checks when Thornton approached him and said he had mined only four cars of coal. A heated argument ensued, during which it is said that Arnold struck at Thornton with his miner's pick.

This occurred at the mine workings. The two men then went to the commissary, where the trouble was renewed with the result that Arnold was shot. Thornton fired four times, each bullet taking effect. Arnold was wounded once in the right arm once in the left arm, once in the shoulder and once in the breast. He died almost instantly and will be buried at Valley Creek this afternoon.

Deputy Sheriff Parker, who is stationed at Virginia mines, stated Thornton made his escape from Virginia City and had left word that he was going to North Birmingham, where he meant to surrender to a policeman, who was his friend, there. Another report stated that he was en route to the Sheriff's office in Birmingham to give himself up, but up until midnight nothing had been heard from him. The Sheriff and a large force of deputies are after Thornton in an attempt to arrest him. It was stated at the Sheriff's office last night that there had been trouble between Thornton and Arnold before this time.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

It has been learned by the Press man that the shooting was purely in self defense. The man had abused Mr. Thornton and threatened his life an hour previously, stating that unless he (Thornton) arranged the account between them by the time they met again, Thornton would meet death.

An hour afterward they met; Mr. Thornton had provided himself with a gun, expecting trouble as the man shot was a dangerous character.

When he approached he began to abuse Thornton again and advanced upon him with an uplifted pick. Thornton warned him not to advance further, but he continued to do so whereupon the fatal shots were fired.

Mr. Thornton has not yet surrendered, but as soon as the Coroner's jury has investigated the case he proposes to surrender and make bond.

Mr. Thornton is a former resident of Clanton.

A REPUBLICAN PRAYER

O Lord Billy Trft, thou art our Lord and Savior on earth, and you know that we have sat in conventions with negroes, and have elected one negro delegate to the National Convention to nominate you for President. Now Lord Billy, you know that we will do anything that you want us to do if you will just save us on earth for we don't expect to be saved in the other world. You know Lord Billy that if the other crowd that opened the convention with prayer, led by a negro, gets in, that we will be cut out from the pie counter forever. We have had free access to the pie counter for four long years, and Lord Billy, we beseach thee to save us and give it to us four more. We are getting in earnest about it, so save us we pray thee. Amen.

ANOTHER CONVERT

Editor Press:

I have today cast my bollot with the Democratic party, the party of my youth and the party of my young manhood. My first ballot at the polls in the good old county of Coosa, was as a democrat. But the party of my youth so manipulated at the ballot box that I, together with thousands of others of the best democrats of Alabama, turned to the banner of Capt. R. F. Cobb in 1892. When the People's party of this county immerged into the republican party, I fell in with them, but it has grown so corrupt that I feel that I cannot adhere to its practices any longer. I remember the letter that the leaders of the republican party got out in 1910, claiming that it was a letter written by Judge Honeycutt, for the purpose of deceiving the honest voters of the county. I don't approve of that kind of politics. And again, I saw the picture of the Republican convention, with the negroes sitting side by side of the white men. That is more than I am going to stand, and it is more than any white man will stand if he is not hunting pie. I have known Mr. A. C. Smith and Mr. M. A. Killgore for a long time, and I know that what they say of the negroes in the Republican convention is true. Now I appeal to my Republican friends. lets not stand to such rot as this any longer. We are white men, raised in Alabama; our interests are here; it is up to the South to maintain the purity of the Anglo-Saxon race, and I for one shall help maintain it.

Yours truly,

R. Rutland.

VARDAMAN FAVORS UNDERWOOD

Washington, D. C., March 10.—"It was about as I expected, no more, no less," was the substance of Senator-elect James K. Vardaman's comment on Senator Percy's reply to the Mississippi legislature joint resolution requesting his resignation from the U. S. senate.

Mr. Vardaman said also that he suspected the legislature would have something more to say to Senator Percy.

Asked if he intends to make any suggestions to his friends in the legislature concerning their probable reply to Senator Percy. Mr. Vardaman answered that he would not.

Tonight Mr. Vardaman called on Senator Gore of Oklahoma, who lived in the former's congressional district before removing to the state of his adoption. Mr. Vardaman left tonight for Jackson. He placed his son in a preparatory school in Annapolis.

Senator-elect Vardaman declared in favor of the nomination of Oscar W. Underwood for president. He said:

"I think the tariff will be the preeminent issue of the present campaign and the democrats will keep it to the front. Mr. Underwood more clearly represents the democratic attitude toward the tariff than any other man in the race. He is a young man of splendid poise, sound judgment common sense and rugged honesty and I think he would make an admirable president. If nominated, I believe he would defeat either of the two leading candidates now seeking the republican nomination."

MR. HAYES ELECTED MARSHAL

CONFLICTING REPORTS.

The Press has tried its best to get straight information as to the situation in the matter of City officers. It has been unable to do so.

Town Clerk Robinson was sick at the time of the meeting of the Council; Mayor Matthews was out of the city at the time we called upon him. Mr. Morgan and Mr. Hayes do not appear to understand the action of the Council in the same way, the Councilmen differ somewhat as to the action taken, and so it has proved a hard task to get just what actually occurred.

Anyway, at a meeting of the Council Monday night last the Mayor was authorized to put Mr. Lee Hayes on duty as "Marshal" and at the same time to continue Mr. Morgan. Just what official position Mr. Morgan holds and the position occupied by Mr. Hayes cannot be told till the minutes of the Council can be seen. Mr. Morgan contends that Mr. Hayes occupies the position of "Night Marshal" heretofore filled by Mr. Palmer; Mr. Hayes says he was elected Marshal of Clanton and that his duty covers the office as set forth in the law. The Council meets again tonight, at which time the matter will probably be adjusted.

The Press does not pretend to act as umpire; both are friends to this paper. "You pays your money and takes your choice."

AN APOLOGY AND EXPLANATION

We go to our patrons with but little news, except political news, this week. It has been a trying time on the editor and the office men. They have set news items and had to "kill them." The editor has been so much engaged in election affairs that he had no opportunity for newspaper work.

We felt that the people wanted to know about the election and we have tried to give them the news. The election is now over and we shall get down to brass tacks. Excuse us this week and we promise to give you a bright, newsy paper hereafter.

PROF. NYDE W. HENSON ELECTED

At a recent meeting of the City School Board Prof Hicks tendered his resignation as Principal and the Board elected Prof. Henson, late of the Thorsby Institute, as Principal for the coming scholastic year. Prof. Henson will probably conduct a Normal Institute at the close of the present session. It would be well for students who contemplate a Normal course to watch the columns of the Press for information on this line.

CARD OF THANKS

MR. THORNTON EXPRESSES GRATITUDE.

I take this, my first opportunity, to publicly express my sincere thanks to my friends for their loyal support at the recent primary.

I shall try to so conduct the affairs of the office, after my election, as to merit a continuance of your confidence.

To those who voted for other candidates I wish to say you exercised a privilege secured to every free man and in making your choice you could not have made a mistake in voting for any one of the other candidates, for they are all worthy of your enthusiastic support, but since I have been honored with the nomination, I wish to ask that you give me the same cordial support in the general election which you have displayed in the interest of your particular candidate. With this support I shall be [illegible] to any of our choice [illegible] but if we support [illegible]

ELECTION RETURNS AND REMARKS

The Executive Committee met on Wednesday to tabulate and declare the result of the primary election and to transact such other business as should properly come before it. Unfortunately the entire committee was not present, but there were enough present to transact the business of the committee. Chairman Pinckard was called to court in Prattville at the last moment and the committee selected Mr. E. E. Calloway to act in his place.

The secretary had already tabulated the returns as sent in to him so that the work of the committee was greatly expedited; all to be done was to verify his figures from the official returns as filed with the chairman.

We give above the tabulated vote for the county ticket. It was impossible for us to give more than this in this issue; however, our people are not so much interested in the state and district nominations as they are in the county ticket.

The full vote for other officers was as follows:—Underwood 751; Billingsley 707; Cobb 690; Mitchell 702; Edmonson 738; Brown 132; Henderson 653; Cheney 134; Goodbrad 52; Wallace 556; Abercrombie 382; Atkins 234; Brooke 14; Hill 155; Price 38; Blackmon 745.

Messrs. W. H. Foshee, Sam A. Latham, Jos. A. Mitchell and Tipton Mullins were unanimously elected as delegates to the state convention and Messrs. W. C. Dyer, E. B. Langston; E. F. Mead and F. M. Wood were elected as alternate delegates to the convention.

But few of the precincts made returns for Justices of the Peace, Constable or Executive Committeemen.

Just here it would be a good idea for the Press to state that it is important for returns to be made for ALL of the officers. Some of our committeemen seem to think that all that is necessary is to send in a besmirched copy of the vote for county officers. Had they all complied with the request of the Secretary and sent in a list of ALL the vote, the work of the committee would have been greatly reduced. In several instances the returns given to the Secretary did not tally with the official returns and this caused much confusion. It is as easy to do the thing right as to do it wrong and it saves much trouble and worry.

A Case in Point.

ROPER AND WILLIAMS TIE FOR SUPERINTENDENT.

The returns as given to the Secretary showed that Roper had received 338 votes to Williams' [illegible] whereas in fact Roper had [illegible]

According to the returns made to the Secretary Mr. Roper was leading Mr. Williams by six votes; on the official count the loss of the above six votes made a tie between them.

Could Have Been Avoided, A Little Care Would Have Saved Much Trouble and Confusion.

Mr. Williams went home thinking he had been defeated; Mr. Roper went to bed believing he was nominated. Had a little care been exercised in making the returns to the Secretary each of these gentlemen would have known the actual results twenty four hours before they did, the friends of each would have been in better spirits, the work of the committee would have been reduced, the labor of the Secretary would not have been doubled and things generally would have been better. Hereafter, if you send in advance returns at all send them in CORRECTLY. It is FAR BETTER not to send at all than to send in reports which mislead.

Quite a number failed to send in any returns whatever and this kept things in confusion for twenty four hours; others brought in returns and gave them to candidates but never came about the Secretary except to gain information about other boxes, whereas the returns ought to have gone to the Secretary so that the tabulated statement could have been made for ALL rather than for a select few. The Secretary is not disposed to find fault, but if our committeemen would be a little thoughtful, and candidates and their friends would remember that others besides themselves are interested in returns from each box, it would save much labor and would hasten the CORRECT news of the general result.

The committee, when it was confronted with the fact that a tie vote had been cast for Superintendent, were "up against" a proposition.

Under the law the Chairman is to decide the tie, but the Chairman was not present, and we are informed does not care to make the decision any way. The Committee at first thought it best to order a primary some time in May but when they began to figure on the time, the expense and the worry they decided to hold an other meeting on Monday, APRIL EIGHTH, (next Monday) at which time it is hoped that the two tie candidates will come to some amicable settlement of the affair and avoid the necessity of a second primary election. It is hoped that every member of the Committee will be present at that time (next Monday.)

The new Executive Committee was ELECTED last Monday and should have been present Wednesday to take charge of party affairs, to organize and get the work of the committee in hand. Some of them seem to think it necessary to wait till the November election. The Committee has already been elected. Let them, as well as the old committee, be in Clanton next Monday.

In the election for Constable for Clanton precinct Mr. C. W. Cox received 72 votes and Mr. Lee Hayes 62. Messrs. Sam A. Latham and Mack Broadhead were elected members of the Executive Committee.

CITY OF DARKNESS

NO, NOT HADES, BUT CLANTON.

For some reason the streets have been dark for the past night or two. The Wade Electric Light and Power Company say it is because the City will not pay them for the "juice" furnished. One of the Councilmen told the Press man that payment had been ordered by the Council but that the Company had failed to call for the money.

Be that as it may, the streets look dreary, dismal and desolate at night.

Again its another case of "You pays your money and takes your choice." We are requested to say, however, that the all-night service for private consumers will be continued, and that it is highly probable that some arrangement may be made by which the streets will again glisten and glow.

A. F. Davis, Loree, Ala., writes his opinion of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for the benefit of anyone needing a medicine to cure coughs and colds. He says, "I have never sold any cough medicine that I think is as good as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. I use it myself and don't intend to be without it. I have found it excellent in cases of cold and lagrippe." Upchurch Drug Co.

BURNING DAYLIGHT

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledge, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and, amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco where he meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer. He makes large investments and gets into the political ring. For a rest he goes to the country. Daylight gets deeper into high finance in San Francisco, but often the longing for the simple life nearly overcomes him. Dede Mason buys a horse and Daylight meets her in her saddle trips. One day he asks Dede to go with him on one more ride, his purpose being to ask her to marry him and they canter away, she trying to analyse her feelings. Dede tells Daylight that her happiness could not lie with a money manipulator. Daylight undertakes to build up a great industrial community. He is insistent that she marry him and yet hopes to win her. Daylight falls back into his old drinking ways. There is a flurry in the money market, but Daylight tells Dede that he is going to work on a ranch and prove to her that he has reformed.

CHAPTER XX.—Continued.

Two days later, Daylight stood waiting outside the little Glen Ellen hotel. The ceremony was over, and he had left Dede to go inside and change into her riding-habit while he brought the horses. He held them now, Bob and Mab, and in the shadow of the watering-trough Wolf lay and looked on. Already two days of ardent California sun and touched with new fires the ancient bronze in Daylight's face. But warmer still was the glow that came into his cheeks and burned in his eyes as he saw Dede coming out the door, riding-whip in hand, clad in the familiar corduroy skirt and leggings of the old Piedmont days. There was warmth and glow in her own face as she answered his gaze and glanced on past him to the horses. Then she saw Mab. But her gaze leaped back to the man.

"Oh, Elam!" she breathed.

* * * * * * * *

Many persons, themselves city-bred, and city reared, have fled to the soil and succeeded in winning great happiness. In such cases they have succeeded only by going through a process of savage disillusionment. But with Dede and Daylight it was different. They had both been born on the soil, and they knew its naked simplicities and rawer ways. They were like two persons, after far wandering, who had merely come home again. There was less of the unexpected in their dealings with nature, while theirs was all the delight of reminiscence. What might appear sordid and squalid to the fastidiously reared, was to them eminently wholesome and natural. The commerce of nature was to them no unknown and untried trade. They made fewer mistakes. They already knew, and it was a joy to remember what they had forgotten.

And another thing they learned was that it was easier for one who has gorged at the flesh-pots to content himself with the meagreness of a crust, than for one who has known only the crust. Not that their life was meagre. It was that they found keener delights and deeper satisfactions in little things. Daylight, who had played the game in its biggest and most fantastic aspects, found that here, on the slopes of Sonoma Mountain, it was still the same old game. Man had still work to perform, forces to combat, obstacles to overcome. When he experimented in a small way at raising a few pigeons for market, he found no less zest in calculating in squabs than formerly when he had calculated in millions. Achievement was no less achievement, while the process of it seemed more rational and received the sanction of his reason.

The domestic cat that had gone wild and that preyed on his pigeons, he found, by the comparative standard, to be of no less paramount menace than a Charles Klinkner in the field of finance, trying to raid him for several millions. The hawks and weasels and 'coons were so many Dowsetts, Lettons, and Guggenhammers that struck at him secretly. The sea of wild vegetation that tossed its surf against the boundaries of all his clearings and that sometimes rushed in and flooded it in a single week's time necessitated as much energy to withstand with hoe and cultivator as did the encroachments of the sea in the case of hills that crumbled to it. [illegible] extravagance of a Yankee screw-driver, and his glee in the marvelous little mechanism was so keen that Dede conceived forthright a great idea. For six months she saved her egg-money, which was hers by right of allotment, and on his birthday presented him with a turning-lathe of wonderful simplicity and multifarious efficiencies. And their mutual delight in the lathe, which was his, was only equalled by their delight in Mab's first foal, which was Dede's special private property.

Daylight had made no assertion of total abstinence, though he had not taken a drink for months after the day he resolved to let his business go to smash. Soon he proved himself strong enough to dare to take a drink without taking a second. On the other hand, with his coming to live in the country, had passed all desire and need for drink. He felt no yearning for it, and even forgot that it existed. Yet he refused to be afraid of it, and in town, on occasion, when invited by the storekeeper, would reply: "All right, sen. If my taking a drink will make you happy, here goes. Whisky for mine."

"Say," He Called Out, "I'd Like to Tackle You Again."

One day, stopping to mail a letter at the Glen Ellen postoffice, they were hailed by the blacksmith.

"Say, Daylight," he said, "a young fellow named Slosson sends you his regards. He came through in an auto on the way to Santa Rosa. He wanted to know if you didn't live hereabouts, but the crowd with him was in a hurry. So he sent you his regards and said to tell you he'd taken your advice and was still going on breaking his own record."

Daylight had long since told Dede of the incident.

"Slosson?" he meditated. "Slosson? That must be the hammer-thrower. He put my hand down twice, the young scamp." He turned suddenly to Dede. "Say, it's only twelve miles to Santa Rosa, and the horses are fresh."

She divined what was in his mind, of which his twinkling eyes and sheepish, boyish grin gave sufficient advertisement, and she smiled and nodded acquiescence.

"We'll cut across by Bennett Valley," he said. "It's nearer that way."

"And laid him in a manger."—St. Luke II., 7.
"And he, bearing his cross, went forth."—St. John XIX., 17.

Mary, Mary, your song was sweet,
Soft and sweet, and crooning low;
True and tender its measure beat
Out into the morning glow
When the promise was made complete
On that Christmas long ago.

Shepherds watching their flocks, they heard
Angel choruses, word on word,
And their souls were with wonder stirred—
Mary, Mary, your song was sweet.

Gently, gently, you hummed the song
In the stable poor and bare—
Still it echoes, and echoes long
In a mother song all fair,
In a melody true and strong
That all humble folk may share.

Wise men, bearded, and gray, and gaunt,
Rode through sunbeams that fell aslant,
Giving voice to a glory chant—
Mary, Mary, your song was sweet.

Stripes, and jeers, and the heavy tree—
These were his, and words of scorn,
Sorrow deeper than grief might be,
Bruising goad, and piercing thorn—
Still there echoed the melody
Which you crooned that Christmas morn.

One has brought him a winding sheet,
One has spices for head and feet;
Now the price has been paid complete—
Mary, Mary, your song was sweet.

A Public Proposal

Story of Interpolations in the Easter Anthem

PERKINS sat beside Miss Lewis in the choir. Perkins sang baritone, and she sang alto. They had sang in the choir for two years, and naturally it was a polite act at the first for him to offer to escort her home after choir practice.

This got to be a habit with him, until one evening he experienced a peculiar shock. Another man appeared at the choir rehearsal and listened with evident enjoyment to the singing, and then calmly walked away with Miss Lewis.

Shocks of this sort are salutary to the young man in love. Without them he takes the affair in too much of a matter of course way. He simply drifts.

The drifting lover is not a satisfactory one to a girl. The tide of his affection may be smooth enough, but it does not get anywhere. Women like the ambitious, aggressive man.

And certainly, from the feminine standpoint, aggressiveness and ambition are never more aptly exercised than in the effort to win her hand. Winning a hand is different from holding it as though it were inherited property.

The other man was Hollicker. Hollicker was a man who formulated a campaign as soon as he decided upon its object.

Consequently he had maneuvred so that Perkins had had mighty few moments with Miss Lewis.

And she enjoyed it. No matter how much a girl thinks of a man, she must enjoy his desperation and despair when he sees another man apparently winning her away from him. It is this elusiveness in woman nature that constitutes a large part of her human nature.

Perkins wanted to propose now, badly enough. But he needed the chance. This Easter morning when the choir arose to sing the anthem he looked over the congregation and he gritted his teeth when he saw Hollicker sitting right in the Lewis pew.

Mechanically he took up his part of the anthem, and as he sang an inspiration came to him. He and Miss Lewis had sort of a recitative second part to the solo during most of the anthem. The soprano carried the air and held all the attention of the audience, and the deep tones of the organ effectually hid the words the baritone and Miss Lewis sang.

Instead of the words on the page before him he touched her elbow with his and softly sang:

"Am I never to have a chance—
Never to have a chance—
A chance to speak to you alone?"

She glanced at him almost with alarm. She could not believe she had heard him aright. He returned her glance and again sang:

"I mean what I say.
Listen to me,
For I am deeply—
Am deeply in earnest this morning."

With another glance, of understanding this time, she sang:

"What in the world—
What in the world—
What in the world do you mean?"

Perkins waited until it was his time to sing again and then he leaned a bit toward her and sang:

"You know very well—
You kno wvery well"—

She took up her part of the anthem in her mellow alto tones at once with:

"I can't imagine—
Can't imagine—
What do you mean?"

It was the moment for the choir to swing into the finale. The organ was booming and the singers were beginning to fortissimo passages. Perkins

"I Will—I Will—But Do Not Kiss Me Here—Not Here."

slipped his hand under the book and caught her fingers in his. He sang:

"This is my only chance—
Say that you will wed me.
O, say that you will wed me
Will wed me."

There was an answering pressure on his fingers, and with a demure smile on her lips she answered:

"I will—
I will.
But do not kiss me here—
Not here."

As the congregation was leaving Hollicker came to Miss Lewis and said:

"I must congratulate you on the expression you gave to your part of the music this morning."

"So must I," Perkins declared. "And while you are about it, you might as well congratulate us both."

Carrsville Lady Says She Laid Awake At Night Because of Her Troubles.

Carrsville, Ky.—Mrs. F. E. Cossey, of this town, says: "I had been afflicted for nearly six years with womanly troubles, and would suffer so much, every month!

It would take a book to tell what I have suffered in that time.

I got so I could not sleep at night, from nervousness. I had four different doctors to treat me, but they could not help.

When I took Cardui, it relieved me at once. I can't praise it enough.

I hardly know how to tell you what Cardui has done for me. I have taken about seven bottles, and nothing else I ever took gave me such relief.

All my friends know how bad I was, and how Cardui has helped me in many different ways."

Cardui is made from purely vegetable ingredients, which act particularly on the delicate womanly system, building up health and strength where it is most needed.

During the past 50 years it has helped thousands of ladies, afflicted with just such troubles as those from which Mrs. Cossey suffered.

It is therefore a remedy that you can feel confidence in. Its merit is guaranteed by years of success.

Don't experiment. Take Cardui. Begin today.

"ECZEMA ITCHED SO BADLY I COULDN'T STAND IT."

"I suffered with eczema on my neck for about six months, beginning by little pimples breaking out. I kept scratching till the blood came. It kept getting worse, I couldn't sleep nights any more. It kept itching for about a month, then I went to a doctor and got some liquid to take. It seemed as if I was going to get better. The itching stopped for about three days, but when it started again, was even worse than before. The eczema itched so badly I couldn't stand it any more.

"I went to a doctor and he gave me some medicine, but didn't do any good. We have been having Cuticura Remedies in the house, so I decided to try them. I had been using Cuticura Soap, so I got me a box of Cuticura Ointment, and washed off the affected part with Cuticura Soap three times a day, and then put the Cuticura Ointment on. The first day I put it on, it relieved me of itching so I could sleep all that night. It took about a week, then I could see the scab come off. I kept the treatment up for three weeks, and my eczema was cured.

"My brother got his face burned with gun-powder, and he used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The people all thought he would have scars, but you can't see that he ever had his face burned. It was simply awful to look at before the Cuticura Remedies (Soap and Ointment) cured it." (Signed) Miss Elizabeth Gehrki, Forrest City, Ark., Oct. 16, 1910. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

PRESS OF COUNTRY PRAISED

Officers of Anti-Tuberculosis Association Acknowledge Debt in Fight Against Dread Disease.

Publicity in newspapers and magazines to the amount of 1,500,000 inches a year on tuberculosis and its prevention is being given by the press of the United States, according to an estimate issued recently by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. If all the publicity on tuberculosis given by the press of this country gathered in one paper, the National Association estimates it would make a paper of over 6,250 pages. In the last four years, during which time an active publicity campaign has been carried on, the National Association estimates that over 5,000,000 inches, or over 90 miles, of press notices on tuberculosis have been published.

"Publicity is the very heart of the educational campaign against tuberculosis," says Dr. Livingston Farrand, the executive secretary of the national association. "Largely because of the intelligent co-operation of the press has the anti-tuberculosis movement in this country been able to become, as it is, the greatest organized movement of its kind in the world. When tuberculosis shall have become a rare disease the American press may justly claim a large share in this gigantic achievement."

When to Call the Doctor.

When to summon the doctor is a point which has probably puzzled most people at one time or another, but in the case of throat and intestinal troubles there should be no uncertainty, says a medical authority. The doctor should be summoned at once, for the sore throat may be diphtheria, and the intestinal symptoms may mean peritonitis, appendicitis or any one of a dozen complaints of serious character. Valuable time and the golden opportunity may be wasted by waiting for symptoms that are severe enough to justify calling the doctor.

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter under act of Congress, March 3rd, 1879.

Eight hundred and eighty four votes, with two precincts not voting, in a democratic primary is a pretty good indication that "the people" are awakening to the fact that democracy is the salvation of this country.

How do you like our candidates? All good, competent, faithful men aren't they? Then make up your mind to put them in office.

The election of Hobson over Moody was a foregone conclusion to those who had kept their fingers on the political pulse but that Moody would make so poor a showing in his own county was somewhat of a surprise.

The vote given Fred Blackmon for renomination, notwithstanding he had no opposition, was indeed a compliment to that worthy representative. No doubt he feels greatful to his friends in Chilton.

Madero seems to be having as much trouble in Mexico now as he gave Diaz some months ago. doubtless the grizzled old ex-President in his far away home of chosen exile is enjoying a hearty laugh at Madero's expense.

The death of Senator Robert L. Taylor of Tennessee removes from the national arena one of its most unique characters. All the nation looses by the death of such a man. He was not state property but a real asset of the world. He loved people and won his way to fame because of that love.

No more orderly primary elec- was ever held in the county than that of the democrats last Monday. There was lots of friendly rivalry but no indications of ill feeling or bitterness.

With Kemp and Thornton and Odeh and Roper or Williams and Foshee and Sims and Young inducted into office—as of cource they will be soon after the November election — Chilton will have a corps of officers of whom any county could well be proud.

There was one remarkable thing about the recent primary which has perhaps been overlooked by most of our political observers. Every candidate, both the successful and the defeated ones carried their respective precincts by a handsome majority.

When the church and the state are combined the rights of the people are destroyed. When the Ministry undertakes to dictate in school affairs it is time to look for the downfall of the school.

The action of the Council in electing a Marshall without notice to the general public—who have much interest in such affairs—has been a subject of frequent remark upon the streets the past few days. Strange that officials elected by the public are hesitant about taking the public into their confidence.

Strange that they work in such a manner as to accomplish their purposes before the public knows anything of the action.

There are many others besides the Town Council who are interested in the government of the town. Snap judgement never did pay in the long run and it wont pay in this particular case.

The PRESS man saw nearly every one of the recent candidates after the election. Each one expressed himself as regretful of his own defeat but said:—I want you to understand that I had a full grown man to run against and I do not feel the least abashed because of my defeat. I was outrun by a staving good man—in fact it took a good one to beat me—and I'm ready to give him my enthusiastic support. When I'm defeated by such a man as the one who was nominated for the office I sought there is no cause for regret or soreness.

This was practically the expression of all the defeated candidates, and it made the PRESS man and all others feel good. We wish to commend such spirits to the people of Chilton. It is of this kind that full grown men are made and through this kind that democracy is to grow and prosper.

NOTICE.

As is usual, when a public utility is forced to take a step backward, we are looking for a good deal of criticism on our recent discontinuance of the street service. Now, we never cut the street lights off; the mayor and council did it. They never paid or made any effort to pay and we took that as a polite way of getting rid of the burden. They make the statement now that we never tried to collect our money; ask the clerk about that. We have literally camped on his trail. One of the councilmen tells us himself that Mr. Upchurch had a warrant for $150 cashed recently. Then, why have we have been so persistently refused the money on a $45.00 one since January 1st? Trying to force us to quit, don't you reckon?

But whether they wanted to pay and could not, or could pay and would not, is of small difference to us; they did not. And however they may have felt, it is not in our ability to buy coal and hire labor on nothing a month. The laconic comment of a citizen on a councilman's charge of mistreatment is about as near correct as one can get. "They ought to have paid for the durn lights if they wanted them." This is certainly nothing more or less than an out and out business proposition. The town has a better place than street lighting to put their money and we can use our coal to better advantage elsewhere. We stand ready to resume service in this direction but the business, as heretofore conducted, is undesirable.

Naturally there will be some of those recently wired customers who will feel that they were not treated right. Better disappoint a few customers than a long list of creditors. If you will give us time we believe we can show you a steady substantial growth, but better not risk a sand foundation. We have great faith in Clanton and its future, and we believe that our already good town will still be better. We have at least an average citizen's interest in its prosperity, and we believe we would be as slow as any one to do something to retard its progress. However, there is such a thing as necessity.

Mrs. J. C. Oliver, Tickfaw, La., tells how quickly she was relieved of her pains through the use of Foley Kidney Pills. "I had been suffering with kidney trouble for several months when I took Foley Kidney Pills and the third day after taking them I was greatly relieved. I can recommend Foley's Kidney Pills to all who suffer with kidney and bladder trouble, as I know from experience that they are fine." Upchurch Drug Co.

AN EVENING OF PLEASURE

Last Sunday night the musically inclined ladies of Clanton furnished to their friends an entertainment of rare pleasure. It was an Organ recital, arranged by Miss Lurline Harper, and in which the best talent of the city took part. The program was admirably rendered. The Press intended to make special mention of each part of the program but our space precludes the idea just now. We wish we could make mention of every part of the much enjoyed entertainment.

Many expressions of delight have been heard by the newsgatherer and it is sincerely hoped that ahose who arranged the program and executed it will soon again afford their friends the pleasure of another musical.

Constipation brings many ailments in its train and is the primary cause of much sickness. Keep your bowels regular madam, and you will escape many of the ailments to which women are subject. Constipation is a very simple thing, but like many simple things, it may lead to serious consequences. Nature often needs a little assistance and when Chamberlain's Tablets are given at the first indication, much distress and suffering may be avoided. Sold by all dealers.

ALMOST AT LIBERTY

Tuesday night a convict, sentenced to eighteen years in the penitentiary, was being carried from Birmingham to Wetumpka. At Mountain Creek he jumped from the train, secured a horse and rode to Cooper, where he changed horses and rode away for Clanton. Just north of Clanton he abandoned his horse and started "footback." A Sheriff's posse was organized here, dogs secured and the fugitive tracked and captured. He left Wednesday morning for Wetumpka to serve his eighteen years.

PASTOR RUSSELL SPEAKS ON MARS HILL

"Unknown God" Again Declared In Athens and Corinth.

In the Words of St. Paul, He Declares That For a Long Time God "Winked" at Polytheism and Image Worship, "but Now Commands All to Repent."

PASTOR RUSSELL

Corinth, Greece, Mar. 10.—The I. B. S. A. Missions Investigation Committee is here. Pastor Russell, its Chairman, delivered an address in our largest Auditorium. Rev. Bosdayannes served as interpreter. Pastor Russell's text was, "God hath appointed a day in the which He will judge the world." (Acts xvii, 31.) He said:—

Enroute to your city I visited Athens. As I stood upon Mars Hill and made a short address my mind reverted to the account of Saint Paul's preaching there, and I have chosen some of his words on that occasion as my text. As St. Paul made no impression there it is quite improbable that I made any.

True, it is not today fashionable in civilized communities to worship images; and yet in another sense it is still fashionable. There is still much idol worship throughout the civilized world, but in a different form from that of old. No longer do we bow before wooden mages, but before inward images, the images of our minds, our mental aspirations—with some, wealth and fame; with others, ease and pleasure, and with still others, the creed-idols of our forefathers, miserable misrepresentations of the true God.

The Day of Judgment.

Saint Paul on Mars Hill preached Jesus and the resurrection—Jesus as the Redeemer from the death sentence, making possible the resurrection of the dead by satisfying the demands of Divine Law against the sinner—the resurrection as the means through which the blessing of the Savior's death will reach Adam and all his children.

Addressing the Gentiles, the Apostle explains that for a long time God had "winked" at Polytheism and image worship, "but now," he says, "God commandeth all men everywhere to repent." How did God "wink" at sin and idolatry? And does He still "wink" at it? And why did He change and when did He begin to command repentance?

We answer: For four thousand years idolatry prevailed and God took no notice of it. He did not "wink" at the idolaters' dying in their ignorance, and say to the devils, "Take these poor creatures who know no better! Roast them to all eternity!" Nothing of the kind! Our forefathers merely imagined that and by false reasoning convinced themselves, and twisted texts of Scripture which they did not properly understand in support of this theory.

Let us note carefully what the Apostle says respecting God's appointed Day for the judging of the world. He says that the command to repent now goes forth to all men everywhere, "because God hath appointed a Day, in the which He will judge the world." The Apostle does not refer to that Day as already begun, but as merely appointed or arranged for in advance. He means that in arranging that "Jesus, by the grace of God, should taste death for every man," God was arranging that every man might have a judgment or a trial, to determine whether or not he will be worthy of this blessing which Jesus' death provides him an opportunity to secure.

"The Mystery of God."

The purpose of the nineteen centuries between the time when Jesus died as man's Redeemer and the time when He will take His Throne, as the Restorer of Adam and his race, is spoken of as a "mystery," because the great work of grace herein accomplished is measurably hidden from the world.

The Scriptures tell us who may understand this "mystery," and when it will be finished. They say, "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him, and He will show them His Covenant." They tell us that "In the days of the voice of the Seventh Angel, when he shall begin to sound, the Mystery of God shall be finished," which He hath kept secret from the foundation of the world. (Revelation x, 7.) Saint Paul refers to this mystery, saying that it was "hidden from past Ages and Dispensations," and "is now revealed to the saints." (Colossians i, 26, 27.) He explains what it is—that we should be fellow-heirs, and of the same Body with our Redeemer.—Eph. iii, 3.

We should notice this wide difference between the reward promised the Church and that proffered the world. The difference is as to nature. The reward for the world will be earthly, human nature, with everlasting life in an earthly Paradise or Eden—world-wide. Mankind never lost a spiritual or heavenly condition through Adam's disobedience, nor in any other manner. He never had such a condition or nature that he could lose it. He was made men, "a little lower than the angels." This which he lost Jesus paid the redemption price for at Calvary; and these things lost are the very things which [illegible]

Guard Your Children Against Bowel Trouble

Many children at an early age become constipated, and frequently serious consequences result. Not being able to realize his own condition, a child's bowels should be constantly watched, and a gentle laxative given when necessary. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are especially well adapted to women and children. The Sisters of Christian Charity, 531 Charles St., Luzerne, Pa., who attend many cases of sickness say of them:

"Some time ago we began using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and find that we like them very much. Their action is excellent and we are grateful for having been made acquainted with them. We have had good results in every case and the Sisters are very much pleased."

The form and flavor of any medicine is very important, no matter who is to take it. The taste and appearance are especially important when children are concerned. All parents know how hard it is to give the average child "medicine," even though the taste is partially disguised. In using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, however, this difficulty is overcome. The shape of the tablets, their appearance and candy-like taste at once appeal to any child, with the result that they are taken without objection.

The rich chocolate flavor and absence of other taste, make Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets the ideal remedy for children.

If the first box fails to benefit, the price is returned. Ask your druggist. A box of 25 doses costs only 25 cents. Never sold in bulk.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

LATE NEWS OF THE WORLD TERSELY TOLD.

SOUTH, EAST, NORTH AND WEST

Notes From Foreign Lands, Throughout the Nation and Particularly the Great South.

Southern.

Robert Love Taylor, United States senator from Tennessee," "Fiddling Bob," to the South, died in Washington, D. C., unable to withstand an operation for gallstones performed. "Fiddling Bob" Taylor, so known because he played his way into the hearts of his audiences, carrying his violin wherever he campaigned, was 61 years old. He was born at Happy Valley, in eastern Tennesee, but spent most of his life at Nashville, practicing law.

Although government and police officials refuse to give out any information in regard to the matter, several arrests were made which indicate that extensive robberies of the mail have been systematicaly carried on for a considerable period, at Rome, Ga., and that the total amounts go far up, into the thousands. Under arrest in connection with these charges are "Cull" Earl, baggage agent for the Rome Transfer company, and Jim Carter, coloren, porter and bus driver for the same company.

A pitched battle occurred on the streets of Rockingham, N. C., between officers and a number of linemen, in which three of the officers were wounded and several of the linemen badly used up. The latter were drinking, it is alleged, and when one of them was arrested for creating a disturbance a number of others rushed the officers with the possible intention of freeing their comrade, when the shooting commenced. Deputy Sherib C, C. Shores is the more seriously wounded.

The safe in the postoffice at St. Elmo, Tenn., a suburb at the foot of Lookout Mountain, near Chattanooga, was blown with nitroglycerin. The thieves escaped with over a thousand dollars, mostly in stamps. Dogs were taken to the scene, but failed to take up the trail. There is no clue to the identity of the safe-blowers. This is the second suburban postoffice robbed within 24 hours, probably by the same gang.

Charles Hall Taylor, a scion of one of the most prominent families in Macon, Ga., and connected with the best blood of this section of the state, was shot and killed on the door steps of G. F. Tyndall, a laundry wagon driver, when the latter came home and found Taylor with his arms about his young sister-in-law. Taylor, who was 22 years of age, died in the city hospital twenty minutes after the shooting. Tyndall is locked up charged with murder.

Friel Allen, a blue-eyed stripling of 17, youngest of the eight of the Allen gang, each indicted for the five murders in the Carroll county court house a fortnight ago, was taken in a carriage shed at the home of his father, Jack Allen, eight miles from Hillsville, Va. He cheerfully submitted to arrest, and he occupies a cell in the Hillsville jail with his cousin, Claude Swanson Allen, who surrendered without resistance to the detectives. Only Sidna Allen, a man of middle age, and his young nephew, Wesley Edwards, both bold mountaineers of reckless daring, are fugitives.

Senator Bob Taylor of Tennessee, who has been ill for several days with an aggravated gall stone trouble, was much worse after a restless night. His case so far has failed to yield to treatment and his condition is regarded as precarious.

General.

The first step toward a stoppage in coal production in the United States as a result of the miners' wage disputes was taken, when the union ordered 170,000 miners in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania to quit work. The suspension was ordered because the operators refused to grant the union's demand for increased pay.

Declaring the pension roll of honor which could not possibly be tainted with fraud or dishonor, the senate refused to make public the names of the 1,000,000,000 persons who are drawing $157,980,000 annually from the United States government. The senate refused to let the light into the skeleton closet of the pension bureau. However, there is a provision in the bill directing the commissioner of pensions to prepare a list of the pensioners in each state.

More than 120,000 textile operatives in New England received a general advance in wages when the increase announced recently by many cotton and woolen manufacturers went into effect.

It is announced in Atlanta that Otto Kahn, the New York millionaire, will attend the grand opera in April.

The automobile bandits who in February terrorized many districts of France by carrying out an extraordinary series of crimes, have perpetrated quing the past few days a fresh series of daring crimes. They have already murdered six persons.

STATE NEWS OF INTEREST

MINOR HAPPENINGS IN ALABAMA CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

BISHOP E. E. HOSS PRESIDED

District Methodist Conference Held in the City of Birmingham April 3 and 4.

Birmingham.—Bishop E. E. Hoss, of Tennessee, presided over the Birmingham District Conference at the Fountain Heights Methodist church April 3 and 4. In addition to the pastors and lay delegates of the local churches who were in attendance, practically all presiding elders of the North Alabama Conference were present.

There are 22 churches in the Birmingham district that were represented by four lay delegates each besides the pastor. H. B. Urquhart is lay leader of the district. The conference missionary secretary, the president of Birmingham College and the editor of the Alabama Christian Advocate and representatives of the Missionary Board and Board of Church Extension, were prominent visitors to the conference.

Plans and new methods of the different interests of the church were discussed and worked out. The conference has most to do with the individual churches, and it was this feature that received the greater portion of the attention of the conference.

Birmingham.—Preparations being made for the entertainment of the annual convention of the State Medical Association in Birmingham April 16-19 indicate that more than one thousand physicians from all parts of Alabama and from several other states will be here. The program arranged contains a number of important papers to be read and discussions on subjects of interest to the profession in all parts of the country. Instead of yellow fever, the physicians are now interested in meningitis, fevers and tuberculosis, and the discussions promise to be of mutual benefit.

Montgomery.—Alabama's agricultural train is assured. The contract between the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and the State Department of Agriculture has been drawn up. It calls for a special train of three cars to be run over the entire trackage of that road. Efforts are being made to have the other railroads join in the move. This train will start out from Montgomery about the middle of July, covering the territory through which the Atlantic Coast Line runs. Should other roads wish to participate, the train will be transferred to other tracks.

Mobile.—Mrs. Virginia Theresa Wasserleben was arraigned in the city court here April 4th to answer the charge of murder. The victim was Fred Wasserleben, husband of the accused, and a former member of the Mobile police department. Mrs. Mary T. Godau, mother of the defendant, confessed to the crime, but her trial is yet to be had. Wasserleben was killed on Saturday night, December 30, according to the evidence and statement of Mrs. Godau, and his body was found the following Sunday morning in a pool of water some distance from the home.

Mobile.—The population of the city of Mobile, according to the 1912 directory just issued, is 60,618, a gain of nearly 7,000 over the United States census of 1910. The new directory contains 24,246 names, and the population is estimated by using 2 1-2 as the multiple. The directory contains 1,111 more names than the directory of 1911, and the Smiths, as usual, lead the procession of family names with a total of 215.

Columbia.—Beginning March 31 and continuing four days, there was held with Columbia Baptist church a Bible conference. This meeting was authorized by the Columbia Baptist Association at its session last October. Some of the strongest speakers and ablest workers of the state, representing every phase of religious activity, attended the conference.

Aguiston.—The body of Rufus Henderson, a flagman of the Southern Railway Company, who was run over and instantly killed by Southern passenger train No. 12 at McFall Station, south of here, was shipped to Bynum for burial.

Birmingham. — It was announced hat Oscar W. Underwood, majority leader of the house and democratic presidential candidate, will be here on or about April 20 to attend the wedding of his son, Lewis, to Miss Mary Campbell, daughter of E. K. Campbell.

Mobile.—Arrangements have been practically completed for the twentieth convention of the Alabama Bankers Association, which meets in this city May 17 and 18.

Birmingham.—The 28th annual meeting of the Woman's Synodical Union of Alabama, representing missions, both home and foreign, of the Southern Presbyterian church, convened here.

Florence.—Lauderdale county juries batted 99 per cent at the term of court just closed, the only flaw in their average fro mthe point of view of the solicitor being a disagreement in a liquor case. In every other case tried at the busy term convictions were returned. This record has never been duplicated so far as known here.

Eufaula.—Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Gay, of this city, suffered a peculiar accident while riding in their automobile through Georgetown, when they drove their machine into a loose telephone wire stretched across the street. It caught them under the necks and came near beheading them. Both sustained serious gashes about the throat.

Monroeville.—The jury trying David K. Smith, of Montgomery county, formerly of Monroe, returned a verdict of acquittal. Smith was indicted for the killing of Senator O. O. Bayless. The shooting took place on the public square in Monroeville on the evening of July 14, 1909. This is the second time the case has been tried. The first trial soon after the killing resulted in a mistrial.

Montgomery.—Running about forty miles an hour around a deep curve, the Atlantic Coast Line passenger train No. 189 was wrecked 134 miles from Montgomery. The truck of the engine tender left the rails, and this was followed by the successive derailment of the mail car, baggage car, express, three coaches and a sleeper. None of the equipment was badly damaged, and no one was seriously injured.

Montgomery.—A number of applications have been filed with the governor for the two state mine inspectorships that are to be named on April 20. On that day the terms of Inspectors Kelso and Roscoe will expire. They are both candidates to succeed themselves. Under the state mining law the decrease in the coal production for 1911 provides that one of the mine inspectorships can be abolished. However, at present, the state is divided into districts, and the abolition of one of these offices would call for a redistricting.

Montgomery.—Charged with the serious offense of attempting to intimidate a government witness, though apparently unconscious of the magnitude of the crime, J. Ivey Waits, a white man of Deatsville, is under arrest here. It is alleged that on March 19, in the city of Montgomery, he cursed and abused one H. A. Bentley, a government witness, who on that day testified for the government before the federal commissioner in the case of Babe Dennison, a white man of Deatsville, who was charged with selling liquor without federal liquor license.

Bessemer.—After 41 years as a town, Jonesboro, by act of its council, passed into history and became a part of Bessemer. In 1871, shortly after the Alabama Great Southern was built towards Meridian, the merchants who were doing business at old Jonesboro moved their stores from off the country pike and located the new town on the line of the new railroad a mile below Bessemer, and the town soon became a lively, progressive place, with plenty of business, many people coming to the new town to live. As a town it thrived until 1887, when Bessemer was started, and then the business interests began to wane, and the larger place easily outstripped the older place.

Montgomery.—While there has been considerable cotton selling during the month of March, there is now a disposition to hold up in Alabama. The reason is that prices promise to be affected favorably to the holder of cotton by the adverse conditions surrounding the planting of this year's crop.

The weather still conspires against a large cotton acreage. Excess rainfall throughout the state has greatly retarded soil preparation, and has, in fact, already made it certain that there will be a smaller acreage than would doubtless have been planted with a dryer and more favorable planting season.

A price of 10 1-2 cents is not so bullish, but mills are hard put to care for rush orders, and the demand abroad is reported excellent in spite of the strike. This active condition of the market having, as it does, a basis of permanency, together with the poor prospects for planting this year, certainly tend strongly toward higher prices for the 1911 crop.

Montgomery.—The city of Montgomery paid out of its funds the $35,000 of a $290,000 loan due April 1st. Commissioner of Finances and Accounts J. T. Letcher was authorized by the commission to give notes for the balance, $175,000, bearing 4 1-4 per cent. interest, maturing October 1, 1912.

Montgomery.—Boswell H. Richardson, of Athens, has been appointed trustee of the Public District Agricultural School by Governor O'Neal.

TO CUT OUT DECEIT

"Applause" to Be Barred From Congressional Record.

STUCK IN FOR HOME READERS

Bills for Monuments and Memorials Are Numerous This Session—Wave Perry's "Don't Give Up the Ship" Flag.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—Congress intends to shut down on "deceitful allusions to applause." Perhaps the public does not know it, but a great many of the fine speeches which appear in the Congressional Record and which frequently are sent out in pamphlet form to constituents to admire, never were delivered. A member gets two minutes' time, stands on his feet, delivers himself of the opening paragraph of a speech and then gets "leave to print" the remainder in the Congressional Record. When the Record appears with the speeches in full it frequently has been found that the member who was supposed to have delivered the speech has inserted here and there in parenthesis the word "applause" and occasionally he has inserted "great applause" and on other occasions he may put in "long, loud and continuous applause," and again "great cheering." This has been pronounced time and again to be a petty sort of deceit intended for home consumption and the making of votes.

Congress may take cognizance of this "applause practice," for Representative Dupre has introduced this resolution, which it is said may pass:

"Resolved, That the Congressional Record shall hereafter contain no reference to any applause that may occur in connection with anything done or said on the floor of the house of representatives, nor shall any method of indicating approval or disapproval thereof be employed in said publication."

There is nothing in this resolution to show directly what it is aimed at, but every member knows and it is probable that a good many men who have written the word applause a dozen times will vote for the resolution rather than have it appear that they have been addicted to a deceitful practice and would like to keep it up.

Season for Monuments.

This seems to be the session for the introduction of bills into congress for the erection of monuments and memorials of various kinds. Mr. Flood of Virginia has just introduced a bill, "To provide for the construction of a memorial highway, archway and gateway in memory of Thomas Jefferson at Monticello, Albemarle county, Virginia." The Democrats make more or less of a shrine of Thomas Jefferson's old home. The approaches to it are said not to be what they should be, and there is a chance that Mr. Flood's bill will pass the house. It will stand a fair chance of passage in the senate also, because although the Republicans there are in a majority, no party men like to let it appear that they are moved by political considerations to deny honor to the memory of a great man of another party.

Representative Legare of South Carolina, having noted the successful attempt to secure a monument to Christopher Columbus in the city of Washington, has asked congress to erect a monument to the memory of Queen Isabella of Spain.

Show Perry's Old Flag.

The other day in congress an appropriation was asked to repair, preserve and properly exhibit the trophy flags now in store in the naval academy at Annapolis, Md. In order that the attempt to secure the appropriation might have plenty of patriotic sentiment to inspire its passage, one of the members had secured from the naval academy several of the battle flags which are now in the keeping of that institution. One of them was the flag flown by Commodore Perry at the battle of Lake Erie. It is a blue flag with these words in gold letters inscribed upon it: "Don't Give Up the Ship." These words, of course, will be recognized as those of Captain Lawrence of the United States navy, who commanded the frigate Chesapeake in its battle with the British frigate Shannon off the Maine coast in the war of 1812.

Lawrence was mortally wounded in the action and his last words were "Don't give up the ship," words which became the motto of the American navy. Captain Lawrence lies buried in Trinity churchyard, New York city, his grave being within fifteen feet of the iron fence which separates the cemetery from the busiest part of that great thoroughfare, Broadway. Hundreds of thousands of people visit this grave in the course of a year and it is seen through the fence palings by as many more thousands, who if they would stop for a moment, could read from the pavement the inspiriting inscription which the tomb bears.

Marines Are Ever First.

The reported request from the American minister at the City of Mexico for marines to guard the legation there in case that the uprising against the president of Mexico should endanger the lives of Americans, accentuates the fact that the marines of the United States service almost always have been the first of the American armed forces to be called on for service in cases that this country is threatened with trouble abroad.

saying and the implication in it is that the marines will believe anything and there is also something of a sneer in the saying. This "remark of reproach" is not nearly one, for the sailors who originated it only meant to intimate that the marines did not know anything about sailing a ship. No sailor has ever contended that the marine is not a good fighter and "all for the colors."

The American marines had the first fight with the Spaniards in Cuba. They were sent into China at the time that the embassies were beleaguered in 1900 and at the Battle of Tientsin the marines lost heavily. They have been landed in Mexico before this and in several of the South American countries and always have they done good service. Years ago over in Korea the marines of this government fought and fought well. The record of the marines is a long one and an honorable one.

General George F. Elliott of the marine corps years ago with 21 marines and 29 sailors made a hurry-up march from Chemulpo to Seoul in Korea in order to protect the American consulate and the missionaries at that place during the war between China and Japan. At that time Elliott was a lieutenant attached to the U. S. S. Baltimore. News came to the ship that the Koreans were raising the cry "Korea for the Koreans" and were about to massacre all the foreigners at the Korean capital. Admiral McNair ordered Elliott and his little command to take up a "double time" across country to save the missionaries.

A Hazardous Trip.

It is probable that few military bodies were ever asked to engage in such a trip as that turned out to be. It was so hot that the marines turned the tables and told the sailors that their belt buckles melted in the sun. Nearly the whole line of the march was through submerged rice fields, the men being up to their knees in water half the time, with their footsteps clogged by the plant roots and stems. Under these conditions they made pace at the rate of five miles an hour, and they reached their destination in time to perform the service for which the call for the march had been issued.

General Elliott has seen service in all sorts of climatic conditions. He was assigned to the Alliance for her cruise to the Arctic years ago, and on the voyage the ship's crew reached a northern point of 80 degrees and 10 minutes, the record up to that time. It was immediately upon his return from the Arctic that Elliott was ordered to the tropics, and he saw fighting in Panama, which was then in the hands of the revolutionary forces.

During this Panama service the revolutionists made an attempt to blow Elliott and his command off the face of the isthmus with dynamite. Elliott and a private of marines caught the man hired to explode the stuff just as he was about to light the fuse. It was perhaps a narrower escape than any which the general ever had, and his narrow escapes besprinkle plentifully his record.

Many Claims in Congress.

Readers of Mark Twain will remember his story of the great beef claim and the course of the proceedings before the lawmakers in Washington. When a man does digging after truth in the records of congress he can find some things which are stranger than the romances of the fiction writers. There are claims today before either congress or the court of claims which have their origin back in the Revolutionary days. The tracing of the right to recompense from the government for sacrifices made by ancestors of present day people is one of the hardest tasks known to lawyers. The trail gets confused after time, and so it is that some people who may have legitimate claims against Uncle Sam are unable to collect them.

Only the other day an adverse report on a Revolutionary claim was made by Senator Townsend of the senate committee which has charge of such matters. The claim was for the payment of 30 loan certificates alleged to have been issued by Richard Ralph Randall, May 15, 1779, which certificates were for $500, continental money, specie value, $47.73. Congress was asked that these certificates should be paid with interest to a very remote descendant of Randall, who died in 1790. He left a son, William, who, when he was an old man, advertised for the lost certificates and memorialized congress for their payment. The lawmakers refused to pay any attention to the matter. Others have presented the claim but without success.

Claims growing out of the war between the states are, of course, more numerous than those growing out of the war of the Revolution, because the one war is nearer to us than the other, and many of the active claimants are living. The senate has just given the Shawnee Indians of Kansas the right to go to the proper United States court to have their claims adjusted for indemnity for losses sustained by them during the Civil war. It is claimed that these particular Shawnee Indians remained peaceful during the trouble between the states, did not commit depredations, and yet on the supposition that they had done so, Union soldiers seized the Indians' provisions, household goods, cattle, horses and hogs and used them without rendering any payment therefor.

It has been said that the Civil war is nearer to us than the Revolutionary war, but the length of time that it takes to have a claim adjusted or even to start it on the way to adjustment may be made known when it is said that this Shawnee matter has been pending in one way or another for 45 years.

ALABAMA VOTED APRIL FIRST

Henderson Scores a Victory for Railroad Commissioner---Wallace Is a Winner in Contest for Game Commissioner---Large Vote Polled for Underwood.

Hobson Defeats Moody---Richardson Has No Trouble in Defeating Blackwell---Kyle Price Springs a Surprise By His Good Showing---Dent is Re-elected.

Birmingham.—A large vote was polled in every district in the state in the primary on April 1st. The name of Oscar W. Underwood as a candidate for the democratic nomination for the presidency headed the ballot and he received practically the unanimous indorsement of the people of this state.

William Richardson swept the Eighth Congressional district, defeating his opponent, Samuel Blackwell. In the Second Hubert S. Dent was victor over O. C. Wiley. Richmond P. Hobson will be returned from the Sixth, it being the general concession that he had defeated Frank S. Moody.

From the present indication it will require the official count to name the winner of the spirited race for congressman at large. The leaders are V. B. Atkins of Dallas and John W. Abercrombie of Tuscaloosa. The latter has apparently carried Jefferson county. Montgomery will probably give Atkins a majority of 300, and Mobile, it is intimated, went heavily for the Dallas county candidate. Of 1500 votes polled in Dallas, Atkins received 1000 in round numbers. From the figures at hand, however, the fact remains that the two are neck and neck, with Atkins probably having a shade the better of the argument. Isaac W. Hill will probably finish third, although Kyle H. Price surprised many by the showing he made.

Charles Henderson won another term as president of the railroad commission. From the figures at hand, he swept the state, carrying a great majority of the counties. Cyrus B. Brown, secretary of state and his opponent, lost Jefferson and many others on which he was counting. His banner county was Walker.

John H. Wallace, Jr., chairman of the fish and game commission, has defeated his opponents, John C. Cheney and Thomas Goodbrad, although the former made a most creditable showing.

Underwood delegates to the state convention were elected from every county, and it is assured that the convention, April 17, will instruct the delegation of this state to cast its vote for Underwood at the Baltimore convention.

There will be no opposition in the convention to either of the justices of the supreme court, Sayre and McClellan, and they will be re-elected by acclamation.

A large vote was polled all over the state. Fair weather prevailed. At no voting place was disorder reported.

OSCAR W. UNDERWOOD,

Received the Unanimous Endorsement of the People of His State.

BULLETINS FROM OVER THE STATE

Baldwin.

Incompleet results from Baldwin county show the following vote: Abercrombie 119, Atkins 34, Brooke 0, Hill 3, Price 2, Dent 118, Wiley 43.

Blount.

It was predicted that Abercrombie, Henderson and Wallace would carry this county by safe majority.

Butler.

Greenville.—Heavy vote was polled in Butler county primary, over 2000 votes being cast. Incomplete returns show that Dent, Abercrombie, Henderson, Cheney are in the lead.

Barbour.

Clayton.—Vote here exceedingly light. Underwood, 116; Brown, 27; Charles Henderson, 152; Cheney 151, Goodbrad, 4; Wallace, 27. For congressman at large, Abercrombie, 53; Atkins, 62; Brooke, 1; Hill, 7; Price, 55. Henderson has certainly carried the county. Wallace looks like a winner and indications favor Price with Atkins and Abercrombie close.

Eufaula.—Official returns from the state election in this city indicate a light vote polled, those outside the city limits taking but little interest. The official count here is as follows: For president railroad commission, Brown 34; Henderson 327. For game commissioner, Cheney 49; Goodbrad 24; John H. Wallace, Jr., 283. Congressman at large, Abercrombie 30; Atkins 174; Brooks 3; Hull 12; Price 132.

Bibb.

Centreville.—Atkins has carried the county for congressman at large by a good majority with Abercrombie second. Henderson has carried the county for president of railroad commission by several hundred majority over Brown.

J. H. Wallace leads for state game commission. Underwood delegates to the state convention had no opposition.

Cleburne.

Underwood, Henderson, Abercrombie and Wallace, from all indications received a big majority of the votes cast. For judge, Merrill will carry county.

Cullman.

John H. Wallace ran ahead for state game and fish commissioner. Brown leads for president railroad commission. Abercrombie seems to have carried the county, with Atkins a close follower. Burnett received a large vote. He had no opposition.

Chilton.

Mountain Creek.—The result of the vote at this place was: Oscar W. Underwood 96, Cyrus B. Brown 19, Charles Henderson 77, John C. Cheney 8, Thomas O. Goodbrad 3, John H. Wallace, Jr., 80, John W. Abercrombie 64, Victor B. Atkins 8, Isaac W. Hill 12, Kyle B. Price 11.

Colbert.

Sheffield.—Nothing definite comes as yet from Colbert county. Abercrombie is leading for congressman at large. The vote for Cyrus Brown is heavy. John Wallace leads for game warden.

Calhoun.

Anniston.—About 3000 votes were cast. Eight boxes are yet to come. Henderson and Wallace carry the county. Abercrombie and Atkins are running close, the former being 48 ahead at present time.

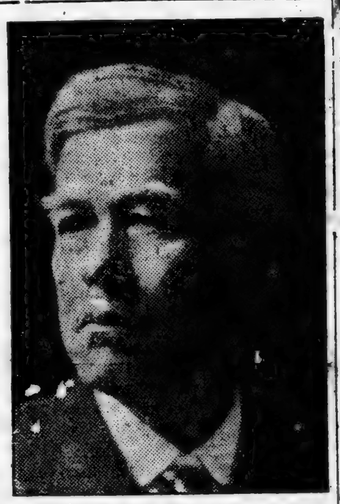
Conecuh.

Evergreen.—Incomplete returns from seven beats give Dent 31, Wiley 116. The returns for state offices are not yet in.

Covington.

Andalusia.—From the returns thus far received, it is conceded that the county will go for Henderson for railroad commissioner. It will take a final count to settle who are the delegates and the other state officials.

Coosa.



Goodwater.—Four largest beats in Coosa gives Henderson a lead over Brown for railroad commissioner 10 to 1. Cheney leads for game commissioner by small majority. Abercrombie leads by large majority in country beats for congressman at large. Goodwater beat gave Price 52, Abercrombie 20, Atkins 1, Brooke 1, Hill 48. The hot fight in this county was over the delegation to state convention.

Dale.

It is estimated that Charles Henderson leads over Brown for railroad commission by 3 to 1. Price has small plurality for congressman at large with Abercrombie a close second. Cheney and Wallace are in a close race for game warden.

Dallas.

Selma.—Returns from seven county boxes show Abercrombie 9; Atkins 167; Brooke, 7; Price, 2. Brown and Wallace lead in those boxes. In congressional and county ticket there is no opposition. Atkins will get 1000 at least of 1500 votes cast here today. Henderson leads Brown and Goodbrad will carry the county.

V. B. ATKINS,

In a Hair-Raising Finish With John W. Abercrombie for Congressman at Large.

DeKalb.

Collinsville.—The local box gives Abercrombie 58, Atkins 30, Brooke 5, Hill 5, Henderson 71, Brown 20. Almost full vote cast.

Etowah.

Hill will get a big majority for congressman at large.

Escambia.

Brewton.—All indications point to Dent carrying the county by a large majority for congress.

Franklin.

Russellville.—In the election here results were as follows: Two hundred and five votes were cast, 204 for Underwood and the Underwood electors.

Cheney received 14 votes, Goodbrad four votes, John H. Wallace, Jr., 106; Brown 51, Henderson 138; Abercrombie, for congressman from the state at large, 62. Atkins 53, Brooke 6, Hill 44, Price 3. Burnett got 192. The news from the other boxes are that they will run just about the same proportion as Russellville does.

Hale.

Incomplete returns place Atkins, Henderson, Wallace and Hobson in the lead.

Limestone.

Athens.—The election passed off quietly in this county. Richardson leads for congressman at large and Brown leads for railroad commissioner.

Lauderdale.

Florence.—Returns show that Underwood has carried Lauderdale practically solid. Abercrombie leads for congressman at large and Henderson leads Brown. Wallace for game warden is leading.

Lamar.

Kennedy.—In the election here from seven to eight beats heard from Charles Henderson leads for president of the railroad commission; for state game and fish commissioner, J. H. Wallace leads. John W. Abercrombie carries these beats for congressman at large. For representative for congress from Sixth district from six beats, heard from, Hobson 251, Moody 181.

RICHMOND P. HOBSON,

After a Spirited Campagn, Succeeded in Defeating Frank S. Moody.

Lawrence.

Election passed off quietly with about normal vote polled. It is estimated that Henderson and Brown will run close in the county. Abercrombie received a large vote. Hill and Atkins following in order named. Richardson will carry the county by a very large majority.

Lee.

11 out of 16 beats give Henderson 881, Brown 81, Cheney 622, Wallace 320, Goodbrad 36, Hill 374, Price 302, Abercrombie 221, Atkins 50, Brooke 26.

Lowndes.

Lowndes county, from most reliable unofficial returns, gives majorities as follows: Underwood solid, with a few votes for Wilson; president railroad commission, Charles Henderson by good majority; John Wallace has carried this county for game commissioner by small majority. Atkins, for congressman at large, from present indications, has polled a vote far in excess of his opponents.

Morgan.

Indications are that the following have carried this county and congressional district by good majorities: For congressmen at large, Hill; for congressman this district, Richardson; for game and fish commissioner, Wallace, for railroad commissioner, Henderson.

Marshall.

Hill and Abercrombie lead in race for congressman at large. Wallace leads for game commissioner. Henderson leads for railroad commissioner. Everything went for Underwood.

Montgomery.

Congressman Second District, Dent 2042; Wiley 325; Congressman at large, Abercrombie leads Atkins by 100 votes; John H. Wallace, Jr., for State Game and Fish Commissioner, and Cyrus B. Brown, for President State Railroad Commissioner, ran ahead of their opponents.

Mobile.

Mobile.—A heavy vote was cast in every precinct to Mobile county. Particular interest was centered in the race for congressman at large. The indications at 9, are that Atkins has carried the county by a large majority.

SENATOR TAYLOR PASSES AWAY.

THE TENNESSEE SENATOR SUCCUMBED TO OPERATION FOR GALL STONES.

A CLEVELAND DEMOCRAT

Dead Senator Member of Office-Holding Family—Thrice Governor of Tennessee.

Washington.—Robert Love Taylor, United States senator from Tennessee—"Fiddling Bob" to all the South—died here, unable to withstand the shock of an operation for gall stones.

"Fiddling Bob" Taylor, so known because he played his way into the hearts of his audiences, carrying his violin whereyer he campaigned, was 61 years old. He was born at Happy Valley, in Eastern Tennessee, but spent most of his life at Nashville practicing law. He belonged to an office-holding family. His father was a representative in congress and commissioner of Indian affairs, and an uncle was in the Confederate senate.

Once pension agent at Knoxville, thrice governor of Tennessee, from 1887 to 1891 and 1897 to 1899, Senator Taylor forged his way to the national House of Representatives from the same congressional district that had previously sent his father to congress and later his brother, Alfred A. Taylor, whom he subsequently defeated for governor.

Senator Taylor was a Cleveland democrat. He had served in the senate since January, 1907, his principal activity being in behalf of a comprehensive system of good roads and the lakes to the gulf deep waterway project. His last speech in the senate was made last July in advocacy of a Confederate monument bill.

MADERO WILL NOT RESIGN.

Denies False Stories of a Sensational Character Originating at Capital.

Mexico City.—"Whatever happens, I shall be found at my post. I shall not resign. Reports that have been published that I intend to leave the presidency are untrue."

President Madero made the above statement in a conversation wherein he branded as false other stories of a sensational character which recently have originated in the capital.

IMMEDIATE EFFECT OF GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY IS SOON REALIZED.

According to my experience I do not consider there is anything to equal Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root for kidney affection. Twice it relieved me when I was completely helpless.

The last time I was traveling in Texas, when my kidneys became affected, and for ten days I suffered excruciating pain, accompanied with severe chills. Several years previous, having been relieved of a similar attack, I naturally sought relief as before, from Swamp-Root.

After using four of the large size bottles, I was completely restored and went on my way rejoicing and praising Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. This was three years ago, and I have had no indication of the return of the affliction. Yours very truly,
